BIZ MAY BANKROLL FILM OWI

LAUNCH USS LA IN BOWL SENDOFF

Film industry, through Motion Picture for Hollywood, Treasury Department, combined with the Navy and civic officials to auspiciously launch the July drive in this area to sell $40,000,000 in War Bonds to build the cruiser 'Los Angeles' at mammoth event last night in Hollywood Bowl, which was topped by stirring address by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, guest of honor for the occasion.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

According to statements by Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Secretary of the Navy Knox, the progress of the war has been assured to keep its present pace until the axis are destroyed.

As if to confirm this prediction, United States forces moved against Jap air bases of vital importance in the South Pacific. The push is on in a big way.

A breakdown of Italian resistance does not seem out of the question. As a matter of fact the Allies seem to be pretty certain of it, since Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden reiterated his invitation to the Fascist government to avail itself of the opportunity offered—unconditional surrender, before Allied power forces that decision upon them.

OFFER MADE IN EAST ACCORDING TO POYNTER

Belief that OWI's Motion Picture Bureau will be continued as a liaison office to the film industry, regardless of any budget slashes made by Congress, was expressed last night by Nelson Poynter, head man at Lowell Mellett's Hollywood Little White House. Poynter stated Producers were desirous of continuing present Government relations, said he understood the industry had even made an offer in the east to stand the cost of operating the Bureau, and declared he stood ready to return to the status of a $1-a-year man if necessary.

Poynter declared the cost of operating the Hollywood office was only $50,000, and said both the Coast and Washington liaison bureaus could be continued for approximately $100,000. He said the biggest share of the $1,300,000 budget was for raw film for 26

FREE lance publicist, who specializes in handling publicity for directors, is said to have a good gag in working his clients for expenses every time he wants to make a trip east. Publicist tells them that he has some great story ideas to plant with Eastern mags and papers that will hit about the time their picture is being released which is generally four or five months in advance. He then gets what he calls 'extra expense coin' for the trip which averages from $50 to $100 a touch. On his arrival in New York he visits publicity departments of companies for whom his client may work, ascertains what is being done on publicity for them and with whom. They tell him publications, etc., and he comes back and claims credit for them. One publicity head caught up with his racket recently and informed his client what company had done naming magazines, features that were planted and even details of stories that were not given director's personal flack. When latter returned, client reversed the tables on him by knowing more about the planted breaks than even the errant flack.

ODDLY timed visits of recording heads to Hollywood is causing platter-minded gentry to wonder if it is a coincidence or result of some inner-maneuvering in the wax works generally. Week ago Monday Jack Kapp, head of Decca recording trained in and is still here—probably will be for some time. Next Monday Manie Sacks, Columbia record guiding hand arrives. Week later Leonard Joy, RCA-Victor recording head is expected in and a few days after that it is reliably reported that James Murray, general manager of RCA's recording division will be seen in these parts. Announced purpose for all visits is the same—artist contact. Story is that largest majority of disc names are out here now, busy on the studio lots, and that includes a good slice of the hottest bands extant. Pointed out by observers who always look beyond the obvious and stated for motives is the fact that in the past year and a half Sacks and Joy have made three western trips, all of them within ten days of each other and each trip finding them in Hollywood together for a good part of their stays.

BIG laugh at one of the major studios is a producer who recently found himself in favor with top rung at the plant after having functioned for years as a unit production manager. He decided that publicity for him and his importance was the paramount issue with him. His picture assignments have important directors and cast names. Each time an announcement was made in connection with them he could not understand why mention was not made of his name too. He even threatened to hire his own personal press agent. He finally went to a studio exec and complained that players and directors and name of pictures were being publicized but not he. He got fast brush off in reply 'that all mentions help sell pictures and as yet public were not interested in his name or the papers either as he had not established himself.' But he's still trying to sell others on the lot but seems their ear trumpets are missing when he pouts.

PARAMOUNT, prepping its 'So Proudly We Hail,' for release sometime in September, will likely get the jump on Metro's 'Cry Havoc.' Both pictures deal with Army nurses and their work during the Bataan and Corregidor fighting and first out is expected to reap advantage of initial box office splurge that will undoubtedly fall to film showing women at war. Metro's picture, based on the play of the same title, is still in work while Paramount has already had trade screenings on its film. An added factor in being first out with such a subject is the forthcoming government campaign to depict the essential part warrior maidens are playing on the battle field and elsewhere in the war effort. Such a drive will naturally give added impetus to either 'So Proudly' or 'Cry Havoc,' whichever reaches the nation's screens first.

PRODUCER Dore Schary is instituting new wrinkle in preparation of screenplay for 'Storm of the West,' which studio figures to turn out on most expensive budget of any western epic for this year. Schary, who wrote the original; and Sinclair Lewis, brought from the east to prepare the screenplay; leave the studio within the next two weeks to personally scout locations in Arizona, New Mexico and Utah, over a two month stretch. Producer angle is that script can be more easily contrived and set up in detail when the writer is intimately familiar with locations selected for various sequences. Its reverse approach to general procedure, where scripter prepares settings in script—and then forces location department and scouts to find proper settings to fit his descriptions.

False Faces

(Melodrama)

Republic release. Features Stanley Ridges, Bill Henry, Rex Williams, Veda Ann Borg, with Janet Shaw, Joseph Crehan, Chester Clute, John Maxwell, Dick Wessel, Billy Nelson, Etta McDaniel, Nicodemus. Associate producer-director, George Sherman. Original screen play, Curt Siodmak. Photography, William Bradford. Musical director, Morton Scott. Film editor, Arthur Roberts. Sound, Tom Carman. Art director, Russell Kimball. Set decorations, Charles Thompson. Reviewed at the Orpheum, Los Angeles, June 30, 1943. Running time: 56 MINS.

'False Faces' stacks up as okay program material for the whodunit fans. Held to 56 minutes by tight editing, sequences occasionally are jumpy but otherwise story is satisfactorily told under producer-director guidance of George Sherman. Lead falls to Stanley Ridges, with younger cast members holding important, but secondary spots, as this yarn of the murder of a two-timing night club singer is unfolded.

Ridges has his troubles as the district attorney seeking the killer, largely due to his wayward son being involved and romancing of his daughter with another suspect. Murderer is well-concealed from cast until closing moments. Plot in Curt Siodmak's original script places Bill Henry, orchestra leader, and Rex Williams, the d.a.'s playboy son, in the apartment of Veda Ann Borg the night she is killed. Old love letters incriminate Henry, now in love with the d.a.'s daughter, making him prime suspect, although Williams comes in for his share of suspicion. Washup of crime has apartment manager confessing; the playboy reforms and Henry gets the d.a.'s daughter.

Confused moments in finished product result from sudden change of Henry from a calm suspect to an apparently third-degreed harrassed prisoner without benefit of explanation. Cast competently performs character requirements under Sherman's direction and production acruments are capably carried out. Among the players are Janet Shaw, the daughter; Joseph Crehan, a police captain; Chester Clute, the killer; John Maxwell, Dick Wessel, d.a. aides; Billy Nelson, and Etta McDaniel and Nicodemus as apartment cleaners who discover the body.

William Bradford photographed.

ful parade of film stars and talent on the platform during the course of the evening, together with martial and patriotic musical numbers by bands of the Navy, Marines and Coast Guard—both individually and en masse. KFWB broadcast the early portion of the program, with NBC network picking up second half—including Secretary Knox's speech for national broadcast.

P-38'S APPEAR

Adding to the patriotic impress on the audience was appearance of squadron of 11 or more P-38 fighter planes, who flew over the bowl from the north in the gathering twilight in formation and then return for low level flying around the bowl to give the audience an idea of protection afforded by our armed forces. Second appearance of the flight interrupted act of George Burns and Gracie Allen—at the mike at the time—but Lt. Rudy Vallee, conducting the Coast Guard band, quickly has his group start playing 'Army Air Corps' to successfully bridge the necessary pause.

Audience started filling the Bowl early with the Los Angeles County band providing music until main program got under way at 7:45 when massed bands of the Navy, Coast Guard and Marines played 'Stars and Stripes Forever.' Acrobatic trio, billed as the Coast Guard Cutters, came on for some fast and slick acrobatics of big time calibre, and then Secretary Knox and his official party entered from east side of the Bowl and proceeded to the honor box.

SINGS ANTHEM

Color guards of the three branches of Naval service then marched in for introduction of Kathryn Grayson, who sang 'The Star Spangled Banner.' Edward G. Robinson then came on to take over as master of ceremonies and pointed out that the cruiser Los Angeles was only a blueprint tonight, but the citizens of the city and vicinity comprise a task force to raise the money to have it built and put into early action. Betty Hutton then made appearance and sang 'Murder, He Says,' in her showmanly and inimitable bombshell style. Violinist Joseph Szegheti and pianist Hazel Scott provided musical treats in the first portion of the program, while Burns and Allen did a fast-patter sketch which was unfortunately interrupted by the aerial display just as they got started. The Coast Guard and Navy bands spliced in a couple of appearances with service and nautical tunes.

James L. Beebe, chairman of Citizens' Committee for the War Bond drive to build the cruiser Los Angeles, made a brief address in which he expressed appreciation for part being played by the motion picture industry and its committee, in the drive—in addition to other previous War Bond campaigns. Beebe pointed out that Los Angeles had always supported the Navy, 'and the community was proud to have had great units of the fleet in our harbor for many years and their officers and crews a part of the life of our community.'

MILLS TALKS

Howard D. Mills, Southern California Administrator, War Savings Staff, Treasury Department, followed Beebe to point out that the War Bond program in Los Angeles County has passed its second anniversary with a consistent record of greater public response month after month. This he stated, was due to the character, patriotism and initiative of the citizens of the county, their leaders and their institutions. He paid tribute to Secretary Knox for his presence in the city to assist in launching the program and predicted that the drive for funds to pay for construction of the earmarked cruiser Los Angeles would be most successful.

Edward G. Robinson proved a glib master of ceremonies, smoothly getting final portion of program, broadcast over NBC from 9 p. m., underway on schedule by bringing in 'The Grooner' after a most suitable introduction. Bing Crosby did right vocally by 'As Time Goes By' and 'Old Glory.' The Navy medley that followed by the massed bands of the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard gave a musically martial note before Dinah Shore, the favorite songbird of the AEF according to Robinson's introduction, pleased with 'Black Magic' and 'Mad About Him Blues.'

DeMILLE PRESENTS KNOX

Robinson introduced Cecil B. De Mille who delivered the address presenting Secretary Knox to the audience for the highlight speech of the evening. Before Knox went into what he referred to as his 'canned speech,' the Secretary had a few words to say in praise of the picture industry and the willing part it has played and is playing in the war effort. As to the 1,000-odd men that would be needed to man the Cruiser Los Angeles, Knox declared there were plenty of sailors on shore duty that could sail the sea, provided Los Angeles also came across with 1,000 WAVES to replace them on land.

Knox said in part:

'Men and women of Los Angeles, California: It is a source of real joy and satisfaction to me to participate with you in the inauguration of a campaign which will add another fine cruiser to the Fleet. The Los Angeles, when she takes her place

When Peter Minuit traded a handful of trinkets and a jug of Holland rum for possession of Manhattan Island, he started something which has repercussions on Hollywood—minus the jug of strong water. Studios in the film area are setting up collection boxes for deposits of costume jewelry, of which there is a plentitude, not only on the picture lots but all around town where the jingle of synthetic jems on Hollywood blvd. out-jangles the spurs in Gower Gulch. Practically every gal in these parts has an armful of bracelets or an earful of earrings or a handful of near-gold rings, set with near-diamonds, near-emeralds, near-rubies and near-pearls. Such dewdads as these established American trade in the days of the Yankee Clippers. Now the government is collecting glittering baubles to be sent to soldiers and sailors in tropical islands, to be exchanged for fruits, vegetables and whatnot on an honest economic basis. In World War 1 the soldiers traded dollars for francs and took it on the financial chin. This time they will get a better break in the far flung islands—better than their folks at home, where a dollar begins to look like a franc at the meat market.

DAVIS LOSES PIX UNIT FIGHT

SENATORS CUT IT TO $50,000

Washington, June 30.—The OWI Motion Picture Bureau appeared definitely on the way out tonight, with the richest country in the world ticketed to accept free film handouts from the industry.

The Senate votes this afternoon to accept its finance committee's report, granting the OWI domestic branch, $3,561,000. This in comparison to the original OWI appropriation sought by OWI for $8,800,000.

Of the money allocated, only $50,000 was earmarked for the motion picture branch, despite a warning from Elmer Davis that the unit would need $275,000 merely to serve as liaison between the industry and federal government.

MELLETT AT LOSS

Lowell Mellett, head of the bureau, threw up his hands in despair, asserting that the $50,000, 'meant virtually nothing.' Reports that Mellett would shift his office to the White House and serve as contact to the industry from that base of operations were scoffed at here. It was pointed out that if Mellett were to operate out of the White House, a new uproar would undoubtedly result.

Meanwhile, the Senate measure was sent to joint conference committee where it still has the job of getting approval from the lower chamber.

Before voting the $3,561,000, the Senators defeated an amendment of Senator Joseph O'Mahoney, Nevada Democrat, which would have built up the domestic OWI budget to the $5,500,000 originally approved by the House Appropriations Committee.

RADIO DOES BETTER

The radio bureau of the OWI came off considerably better than the film unit, being allotted $811,499, which will at least, permit it to operate as a liaison body, although its production program will have to go out the window.

In a letter to the Senate, Elmer Davis said in part:

'The (senate) subcommittee has allowed $50,000 for the Motion Picture Bureau. We are required to clear and approved all government motion pictures, and to maintain liaison with the industry in its relationship with the Federal Government. Performance of these services, with all other activities of our Motion Picture Bureau eliminated, would cost around $275,000 and would materially help the motion picture industry in its desire to produce pictures useful to the war effort. An appropriation of $50,000 for the Motion Picture Bureau would be utterly insufficient for that purpose and would accordingly be $50,000 wasted.'

DAVIS MODERATED

Davis expressed willingness to settle for enough to do the liaison job, but the Senators couldn't see it that way. It is figured that $50,000 will be about enough to liquidate the film bureau, unless the industry comes to the aid of the OWI and forces the government to be in the position of accepting charity from private business.

Anti-New Deal, Senator Zillard Tydings, Maryland Democrat, delivered the killing blow this afternoon when he argued, 'The senate Committee know that the army and navy are making pictures for either personnel, and that private companies are putting out propaganda pictures for the public. Elmer Davis said he needed to keep liaison between the motion picture industry and the government, so that OWI could make suggestions and give ideas. We have therefore allowed $50,000 for liaison purposes. There was no point in putting in any money for OWI, except for correlation purposes.'

SUNBROCK CIRCUS BANKRUPT BUT POSTS FRIDAY OPENING

New York, June 30.—Larry Sunbrock, on behalf of 'Big Top, Inc.,' circus running in rear of Roxy Theatre which closed Monday, posted notice it would reopen Friday and filed an application for reorganization under Bankruptcy Act in Federal Court today.

Promoter listed liabilities totaling $136,108, including creditors and unsecured claims for $104,499; wages due, $3,238; liquidated merchandise and rental, $104,499. Sunbrock lists himself as among creditors holding unsecured claims for sum of $35,000, and claims he loaned 'Top' corporation that amount.

Petition recites 'we' are unable to pay debts, and asks court permission to pay off employees on installments with 25% down. Listed as assets are $30,000 stock in trade, $10,000 as security on lease, an additional $3,500 on deposit with AGVA and other labor unions. Petition makes no listing of good will or evaluation thereof. It was further recited that parking lot was leased from Consolidated Biological Products, Inc., at $100,000 annual rental.

AGVA yanked performers off lot on Monday when Sunbrock failed to produce a cash bond to guarantee week salaries. Musicians, stagehands and other allied crafts also ordered walkout.

It is claimed by Sunbrock, in announcing the Friday reopening, that $50,000 new capital is being brought into the venture, but AGVA has warned performers to 'wait and see.'

shorts, plus production costs. He said this was due to the large number of prints required and non-theatrical, 16 mm. stuff turned out for farmers, etc.

The Hollywood OWI chief said if Congressional budget cuts become final, he believed the production end would be the first to go. He added, however, that yesterday's move on OWI expenditures was only Senate action, and expressed belief it would be 24 hours yet before the final results would become known.

Poynter said his Hollywood Bureau currently consists of 16 persons, including readers and stenographers. He said the situation was like that in a city news room, that you would 'go to press' even if the publisher suddenly showed up and fired most of the personnel. He said no moves are anticipated to reduce his Bureau at present and that no plans will be made until final action is taken on appropriation requests for continuance of the Office of War Information.

Mellet some time ago asked that all studios submit scripts to his Hollywood office for suggestions, and it is understood that most of them are doing so. Mellett said he had no authority to order changes in stories or production, but said the Bureau would make recommendations that might save them coin if the War Dept. or other Government agencies ordered changes after the picture was shot. There was considerable agitation over the request and some of the studios indicated they would not submit scripts to the OWI.

MacKendricks' Transfer

W. W. MacKendricks, branch manager of Monogram's Salt Lake City exchange, has been transferred to Seattle to take over spot as Mono office manager there.

Report NY OWI Film Unit Shutting as Funds Cut Off

New York, June 30.—With no further funds available for carrying on picture activities on July 1, OWI Domestic Film Unit here shutters its doors and ceases operations at midnight tonight, according to latest information.

Many expert technicians, recruited from Hollywood for the unit, and the entire staff are thrown out of work. Equipment costing thousands probably will be split up among other Government agencies.

W. P. Montague, formerly assistant editor of Paramount newsreel who resigned about a year ago to go with OWI, also is out as chief editor. Sam Spewack, who brought him over from Paramount, is now with Overseas Division of OWI abroad. Three camera crews working on OWI shorts in the field were ordered in today. Eight shorts completed recently were shown Lowell Mellett when he was in New York Tuesday, and four others are nearing completion.

Tinters Elect Martin Prexy, Tomkinson Named VeePee

Ed Martin has been elected president of Moving Picture Painters Local 644, defeating Ernie Hoffman, who was seeking reelection. Tommy Tomkinson was named vice-prexy, A. B. Winstead, recording secretary, and Fred West, financial secretary.

J. Schindler was elected treasurer, Jack Downey trustee, George Stout conductor, Boris Goodman, warden, and Armand Oulette delegate to the District Council of Painters. Carl Head, acting business representative, and Jack Kistner were elected delegates to the Conference of Studio Unions. Stout died Monday, leaving the office of conductor vacant.

Head leaves tomorrow for Munz Lake to spend a two weeks vacation. Herbert Sorrell, 644 business representative, is due back at his desk July 6 after a two months vacation. He was not up for reelection, his contract still having sometime to run.

Senate N. G.'s House Bill For Ousting Rider

Washington, June 30.—For the third time the Senate voted down the $143,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill because it carries a rider to oust three employes of Federal Communications Commission—William E. Dodd and Goodwin Watson—and Dr. Robert Lovett, secretary of Virgin Islands. Although the bill is an important one, the irate senators claim the rights of Dodd, Watson and Lovett are being trampled and that they were accused of subversive activity in illegal, star chamber proceedings.

'Doughgirls' Break For Elder Thespians

New York, June 30.—The Lambs got a break when Joseph Fields wrote 'Doughgirls.' Cast calls for middle-agers or older, and players who haven't work in years now are with the 'Doughgirls' companies.

In addition to the original, one company is on at Chicago, another in Los Angeles, and a fourth due in Boston this fall. A. K.'s will then be scarce around the club house.

Similarly, 'Arsenic and Old Lace' is a boon for mature actresses, with two old lady leads, and three companies going.

Library of Congress Requests Significant Films for Record

Washington, June 30.—Library of Congress has requested U. S. film producers to deposit with the Library 104 films and portions of films made between May 1, 1942, and April 30, 1943. The Library explained this was just a start and that eventually it intends to add to its collection prints of all significant films, just as it already adds books and periodicals. It is compelled to restrict selection right now because it lacks adequate facilities for screening, cataloguing and shelving great quantities of films.

Basis of selection for the first 104 pictures are as follows:

1. Newsreels or parts of films which record events, occurrences or people of probable interest to students of the times.
2. Documentary films of significance and interest to both social and political historians.
3. Films which mark important artistic or technological advances in the art of motion pictures, regardless of how popular they may be.
4. Films, such as certain animated cartoons, 'which have had a currency so great as to provide elements of the common imaginative life of the period.'
5. Outstanding films of scientific interest or geographic interest not included in other categories.

Picked at random from the list are the following, to give an idea of what the Library is after:

Paramount News shots of bombing of Malta; Pathe shots of The Battle of the Solomons; Metro Newsreel shots on Wendell Willkie in China.

March of Time's 'India At War'; Metro's 'Mrs. Miniver'; Warners' 'Divide and Conquer'; Columbia's 'Atlantic Convoy'; United Artists' 'Mask of Nippon'; Unversal's 'Shadow of a Doubt'; Republic's 'Ridin' Down the Canyon'; Walt Disney's 'Saludos Amigos'; RKO's 'Hitler's Children'; Metro's 'Falla'; Paramount's 'Wake Island'; Warners 'Yankee Doodle Dandy'; 20th-Fox' 'The Moon Is Down.'

Talbot Given Pair

Irvin Talbot will handle musical direction on two recently-completed 'Hopalong Cassidys' for Harry Sherman, 'False Colors' and 'Riders of the Deadline.'

Pal Rolls Two Soon

Two Puppetoons are being readied by producer George Pal, to roll within next 30 days. Films are 'Jasper and the Dentist' and 'Package for Jasper.'

Planted

Paramount

Freddie Steele, 'Hail The Conquering Hero.'

Alan Napier, Carl Esmonds, Erskine Sanford, Dan Duryea, Percy Waram, Thomas Louden, 'Ministry of Fear.'

Universal

Marie Osborne, 'His Butler's Sister.'

Jean Blair, 'The Strange Death of Adolph Hitler.'

Columbia

Elmer Jerome, Elspeth Dudgeon, 'Footlight Glamour.'

RKO

George Givot, 'Government Girl.'

national significance, the first to be 'The Story of Woodrow Wilson.'

Zanuck who is vacationing with his family near Boulder Dam until after the holiday stated:

'In returning to the industry I feel greatly honored to be entrusted with the responsibility of producing a picture based on the life of Woodrow Wilson and others of this scope and importance. Pictures of this type are of the utmost importance today and for the post-war world, for I am convinced that they not only have vital meaning but at the same time contain the dramatic elements that go to make fine entertainment.'

Zanuck also thanked his fellow workers, who carried on while he was in the service, for their loyalty, in his statement.

Zanuck on his return will confer with producers and directors who have pictures to get under way this month, as well as with producers and writers on forthcoming product as stories must be shaped up that are to be put into production by mid August.

Start 400 Volunteers Canvassing Studios On Cruiser Drive

Approximately 400 volunteer War Bond salesmen, members of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, start canvassing the film industry today as the 'Build the Cruiser Los Angeles' campaign gets under way in Southern California. This group will contact every employee in studios, allied industries, guilds, unions and offices of agents, business managers and independent publicists to encourage purchase of extra bonds during the July drive.

Campaign was officially opened last night with a huge entertainment in the Hollywood Bowl with Navy Secretary Frank Knox as guest of honor. With this event out of the way, the committee now will concentrate all efforts in the industry so that its proper contribution can be made in bond sales for the drive.

Talent, Studio Dearth Stymie English Pix

New York, June 30.—Paramount film production in England is stymied due to dearth of talent and shortage of studio facilities, according to David Rose, company's managing director in Great Britain, who arrived from London over the past weekend.

British government has taken over all but two studios—Gainsborough and Denham—Rose stated, and both of these are booked far in advance for production purposes.

be made until wages are handed out next week in various factories, war plants and business houses; so that the holiday weekend will be conveniently skipped on the deductions.

But, when initial smack of deductions is made in the pay envelopes, much of the amount deducted is siphoned off the spending coin that has gone to theatres, nightspots, cocktail lounges, etc., and it will take the rank and file of employes two months to readjust themselves to the shortened income.

Tax is particularly heavy, insofar as withholding out of weekly paycheck is concerned, for single workers without dependents. Persons in this class will be tapped for tax of $8.60 for those earning between $50 and $60 weekly. Married person in same classification will have $6.20 diverted into the government coffers. In cases where wives work and take their own exemptions on separate income tax returns, withholding figure is at $8.60.

Film leaders anticipate that box offices will feel repercussions downward during July and August, but that the public will be able to readjust finances after short time of operation under withholding tax operations to return to the films for major source of entertainment by Sept. 1. It is admitted that tax introduction will not put a huge dent in theatre receipts, but percentage of drop must be anticipated.

English Gets Western With WAPS Twist

make films and is looking for others as well as name talent to come under its banner. Understood that top names in producer, directorial and acting ranks will be given propositions for deals that will include percentages of the picture takes.

As yet no releasing deal has been set for the company output or a studio to produce in. Likely however, that studio space may be taken on the Sam Goldwyn or General Service lots.

Spitz who is associated already with Jack Skirball to make a film starring Fred Allen and with Jack Moss to make 'Duffy's Tavern' has releasing deals for these pictures with United Artists.

Therefore, it is quite possible due to presence here of Ed. Raftery, United Artists prexy, that Spitz may want to throw all his film distribution into one basket and have the new company releasing its product through same company. No deal for release has been discussed with Spyros Skouras by either Goetz or Spitz, who has been personal attorney for Skouras for number of years.

Neither has any discussion on deal of this sort taken place with Metro, as latter company has been adverse to deals of this sort, with likelihood that UA will wind up with the distribution.

Spitz who has been legal adviser to film companies and executives for past 25 years was prexy of RKO once, resigning four years ago.

in the line, will add to both the power and glory of the greatest fleet ever to sail under the American flag. The ship you propose to provide will join a glorious company of fast, powerful cruisers whose might will be employed to extend the horizons of human liberty.

'We sail the seas, in this greatest naval war in all history, not to extend our dominions, not to bring other peoples, unwillingly, under the yoke of our power, but to insure that the liberties we enjoy, and for which we are fighting, shall be accessible to other peoples who are willing to fight to achieve them, and willing to die to maintain them. We, in America, know too well the quality of liberty to make the mistake of thinking that it can be given. It cannot be bestowed without effort of those who, now, do not enjoy it. We know, from a bitter experience covering a century and a half, that liberty must always be purchased at a price, and can only be maintained and preserved by those who are ever ready to meet the costs of its maintenance. In this war we do not play the part of a Sir Galahad riding forth to discover whom we may rescue from the toils of a tyrant. We are not dominated by an idealism aimed to salvage the lost liberties of other peoples. Our idealism is coupled with a realism that is the fruit of experience. Primarily we are fighting for our own liberties and their maintenance. Our enemies are those evil forces in the world who would achieve world dominance by destroying liberty everywhere.

Since success in such a purpose would involve the destruction of our own liberties, we are in this fight to the finish, and the only tolerable finish lies in the unconditional surrender of these enemies of human freedom.

Knox referred in detail to the over-running of countries by Germany and Japan shortly after the United States entered the war, with miraculous expansion of the fleet to that of the most powerful in the world in actual commission. Knox also stressed the terrific expansion of industries to war machinery and equipment; the large army expertly trained for battle in any zone; the huge merchant marine, and a supreme air force.

Continuing, he said, 'Summed up, what I have been saying to you is that in this war we have now seized the initiative. Possession of the initiative does not mean that the war has been won and that victory is just around the corner. There is nothing which would warrant any such optimism. The enemy, both east and west, is still in possession of the bulk of his strength, and most of the fruits of his early victories. We have yet a far and hard road to travel before victory is assured. It does mean, however, that we now—and from now on—can pick the time, and place, where battle will be waged, and in military affairs that means a great deal.

'The fact that Los Angeles, in this stage of the war, is inaugurating a campaign to provide a new cruiser for the fleet, which will help win the war, is—in itself—evidence that you believe there is a lot of hard fighting yet to be done, and that we must—all of us—give everything that is asked of us to insure victory.'

Kathryn Grayson closed the ceremonies with singing of 'God Bless America.'

Racketeers' Lawyer Claims Bioff, Browne Plot to Grab Leniency

New York, June 30.—Defense counsel James D. C. Murray, acting for the alleged six Chicago gangsters, accused George E. Browne, former president of IATSE, and William Bioff, West Coast labor leader, of attempting to obtain leniency for themselves by putting his six clients behind bars.

Accusation was made today in New York Federal Court, in which Murray pleaded for three motions in which he sought dismissal of the alleged racketeers.

Arguing the three motions, he intimated that the recent extension of the time of the New York Federal Court in the case of Browne and Bioff prompted them to involve his clients in the racketeering probe of the motion picture industry.

Judge Murray Hulvert reserved decision on the motion and the counsel sought a delay of one month in the trial which was set for Sept. 7. The court indicated that the postponement might be granted and instructed counsel to confer with Boris Kostelanetz, new Special Assistant U. S. Attorney General with respect to proposed delay.

SAG FACES COURT BATTLE

To Split 'TITA' Troupe Sending Each Unit On Front Tours

'This Is the Army' unit, which has been here for number of months making film version of the show at the Warner lot, is slated to pull out for Camp Upton in about two weeks. Although nothing official has been divulged by Army headquarters, it is expected that TITA unit comprising 300 men will be culled at Upton for two sections of around 100 soldiers each—with leftovers getting assignment to active service in other service units.

Two sections to be set up will tour Army camps in different fighting fronts, with each presenting condensed versions of the show exclusively for service men. There will be no civilian performances anywhere or at any time, under plan under consideration.

In selecting soldiers and members for units each individual will be picked on abilities to perform specialties on own hook; as intention is to in turn split each of the two units into smaller groups for shows in smaller camps or posts where facilities prevent presentation of the complete condensed version. Sets for the two units for the proposed tours will be constructed at Camp Upton while TITA company is returning east.

None of the TITA personnel has yet seen completed film production of the show, but promise has been made that picture will be run off for the unit some time next week.

CRAIG, SUSPENDED, MAY MOVE FOR LEGAL REVIEW

Following announcement by the Screen Actors Guild yesterday that Hal Craig, a bit player, had been suspended for one year, Attorney Alexander H. Schullman declared that every legal remedy would be exhausted in challenging the right of the SAG to deprive an actor of his livelihood. Schullman branded the action as 'arbitrary, oppressive and dictatorial,' and said he would insist Craig be permitted to continue working pending an appeal to the SAG membership and, if necessary, until the courts had an opportunity to review the proceedings. Schullman said he would head for the Federal Court if appeal to SAG is denied.

Schullman said the SAG Constitution provides for an appeal to the Class A members and that he will demand it also be submitted to the Class B members for their decision on the appeal. When advised of the decision, Attorney Schullman stated:

'ARBITRARY, OPPRESSIVE'

'It is arbitrary, oppressive and dictatorial. It strikes at the constitutional right of free speech and emphasizes the fact that the Board of Directors of the Screen Actors Guild can not and will not function in behalf of the Class B members. It now seems clear that the various detriments suffered by the Class B players and their continual plight has been perpetuated by the manner of operation and construction of the Screen Actors Guild.'

The SAG in announcing the suspension of Craig because of his statement in a complaint to the War Manpower Commission that the Guild was 'producer-controlled,' stated:

RECKLESS CHARGES

'The trial of Mr. Craig disclosed that his statement was made recklessly, without supporting facts. He was represented by counsel and given the opportunity to present supporting evidence from witnesses. He introduced no evidence from witnesses. Mr. Craig admitted at the hearing that he had no evidence that the Guild was dominated or controlled by the motion picture producers. When his testimony was sifted, it was reduced to an unsupported allegation that the Guild might not properly represent its members because two out of the 33 members of the Board had what Mr. Craig regarded as 'employer status.'

Craig stated:

'The fact that the Board of Directors permitted an article to appear in The Actor under the title "Grave Charges," makes it obvious that my case was prejudiced and that I was convicted before trial, also that my character was attacked in a way that bespeaks of slander. In my effort to champion the cause of the extra, bit players and other classes of the 4,700 B members of the SAG, it certainly appears I have been dealt a blow below the belt.'

NO VOICE OR VOTE

Attorney Schullman in further discussion of the decision said, 'It is strange that while fighting the war for the four freedoms, we have Fascism manifested here in the Screen Actors Guild, since no Class B member has a voice or vote in the election of, nor can he or she ever become a director or official.' He added that the entire procedure was unconstitutional, declared the Board was biased and that it acted as judge, jury and prosecutor and that Craig was denied a trial by a jury of his peers. He contended it was clearly established that there 'is a producer acting as president of the Screen Actors Guild, and that there was a producer serving on the Board of Directors, and that such producers, because of their employer status, can not properly collectively bargain in behalf of Class B players. He said he had never seen such an exhibition of autocracy as manifested in the construction and By-Laws of the SAG, disfranchising all Class B players and depriving them of representation, at least during the 1941 negotiations with the producers, and compelling them to dance to the tune played exclusively by the Board of Directors.'

CAGNEY AND BOYER

The SAG statement after pointing out two members of the Board were regarded by Craig as having 'employer status' continued:

'These two board members were identified as James Cagney, president of the Guild, and Charles Boyer, a director. The Guild introduced evidence that Mr. Cagney was financially interested in a company which produced only pictures in which Mr. Cagney renders services as an actor, and that Mr. Boyer is an employee of Universal as an actor and actor-producer, and that he had no financial interest in the company. The record of Mr. Cagney and Mr. Boyer in devoting their time to Guild duties in the interests of all actors speaks for itself. There is nothing in the record, much less in Mr. Craig's testimony, to support the belief that these two out of 33 Guild Board members could, if they wanted to, make the Guild producer controlled.'

'The Guild proceeded with disciplinary action against Mr. Craig, with full realization that the question of free speech would be raised. The Guild has always welcomed criticism with constructive motives, but Mr. Craig's reckless charge could only be destructive. Free speech does not embrace the right to shout "fire" in a crowded theatre.

STATEMENT INJURIOUS

'The Guild Board has a responsibility to protect the record and reputation of the organization, in the interests of all members. Mr. Craig's statement was particularly injurious at this time, when the Guild is attempting to establish a self-governing unit for the extra players, and simultaneously is attempting to negotiate for improvements for extras in the contract with the producers. The effort to establish an autonomous unit for the extras has been delayed by obstructionists tactics on the part of extra groups struggling for power, and Mr. Craig's statement served to abet the activities of these groups and injure the interests of extra players generally. Through disciplinary action against Mr. Craig, the Guild affirms its intention of protecting the interests and reputation of the entire organization.'

The SAG's reference to testimony and absence was characterized by Attorney Schullman as a 'cheap lie, conceived with the idea of breaking down the morale of the Class B members who are demanding the constitutional right to manage their own affairs.' He said Craig had other witnesses present, but it was agreed their testimony would be corroborative and that the record so stated.

Find Missing Hound, Save $100,000 in Footage Shot

Dada, Samuel Goldwyn's wandering boy-dog, who disappeared Tuesday after a surfeit of life as a movie star, was found yesterday by an unidentified man and returned to the set of Goldwyn's 'The North Star.' Estimated, Dada would have cost producer $100,000 had he not been found, for several reels of picture would have to be re-shot. Dada had nothing to say other than to growl his displeasure at having to resume life of a canine movie star.

Robinson Selects Juve From 462 New Faces

Winning out over 462 interviewed applicants, Glenn Vernon, a juvenile from the 'Junior Miss' cast, was assigned to a major role in RKO's 'Revenge' by producer Casey Robinson yesterday.

Robinson's nationwide search for a cast of all-new faces has so far produced only four of the 13 roles to be filled in this modern Russian drama. Pic will roll as soon as casting is completed, probably in the next fortnight under the direction of Jacques Tourneur.

The big offensive in the South Pacific is making 'satisfactory progress according to plan.' While it is still too early to speculate on the outcome of the current offensive the general pattern indicates that the United Nations are going to take advantage of their present favorable position.

An interesting report from London reveals that United States military leaders in Washington will soon receive a plan to bomb Japanese and Italian volcanos as a means of ending the war quickly. According to the author, research and examination have revealed that upheavals, causing earthquakes and eruptions could be caused by heavy penetration bombs.

DAVIS WIRES POYNTER TO CLOSE UP SHOP HERE

OWI and its Motion Picture Bureau did a fadeout yesterday, following receipt of instructions from Washington to liquidate and shutter the office as of July 15. The Overseas Unit headed by Ulric Bell is practically certain to continue functioning since Congress appropriated funds for that purpose.

Less than 24 hours after Nelson Poynter, headman for Lowell Mellett here, had expressed belief the Motion Picture Bureau would continue regardless of budget slashes by Congress, he received telegraphic instruction from Elmer Davis to give notice to his staff of 15. Their services are to terminate as of July 15 which Davis estimated would give them time to liquidate pending business.

It is understood the Government also nixed offer of Poyntor to serve as a dollar-a-year man in his current post as OWI motion picture liaison chief in Hollywood. At the same time it was disclosed that the motion picture industry had no intention

CRUISER BOND DRIVE OFF TO GOOD START FIRST DAY

The Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood reports a promising start has been made in the 'Build the Cruiser Los Angeles' War Bond drive, with many extra bonds sold to workers in the film industry yesterday. The opening day's record for the motion picture industry in the campaign to sell $40,000,000 in bonds includes only securities bought by investors over and above their usual subscriptions through payroll savings.

Chairman Henry Ginsberg points out that while these cash sales of extra bonds is the keynote of the current drive, the 400 volunteer bond salesmen now at work are making an equal effort to add several thousand regular subscribers to payroll savings for at least 10% of their salaries. Bond meetings are being called for today and the early part of next week in many studios and allied industries. Meanwhile, the committee is encouraging film guilds, unions and other organizations to buy bonds this month from their treasuries.

MANY of the Army, Navy and Marines brass hats will be shown Walt Disney's production of Major Alexander P. de Seversky's thesis, 'Victory Through Air Power,' before animation feature gets its premiere in New York on July 17. Showings will be held here and in Washington for individuals and groups of military toppers. Documented conviction of an expert, de Seversky, is presented in the picture with no pulling of punches. He asks for a separate air command in the U. S. forces, and showing of feature is expected to create a great deal of controversy among those who argue for and against a separate air force. Seversky himself, as part of preliminary exploitation activity, will appear on Report to the Nation over CBS on July 14 in connection with 'Air Power.' Disney spoke last night on March of Time about his studio's war work and commenting on 'Air Power.' Preliminary showings, beside those to military toppers, will be given for newspaper publishers, big execs of the aircraft industry and radio commentators.

THOUGH New York end of industry put in its plea for saving of Domestic Motion Picture section of Office of War Information, Hollywood production crowd, with one or two exceptions, were most gleeful of fact it will be abandoned as of July 15. Studio executives have been frowning on tactics and methods employed by the OWI boys locally. They felt that latter were trying to get wrong kind of propaganda into pictures with ulterior motives and that had they cottoned to the ideas of this group the industry would have found itself in plenty of hot water with legislators in Washington as well as with civic groups around the country. Many of studio heads and producers of late assumed a cold courteous attitude toward the OWI boys but disregarded their ideas.

LOS ANGELES Times and Examiner are making effective a one-third reduction in lineage for theatre directory ads with Monday, July 5, editions as step to conserve newsprint under WPB directive. Reduction will not affect inch space ads as yet, although some advertisers fear future government orders may result in additional slicing. Cut in theatre directory ads has not yet been slated by Herald Express and Daily News, although drop in lineage is anticipated unless sheets are able to effect other savings in news print. Fox West Coast is reducing its space for individual theatres from three lines to two lines. First line will run name of house and location while second will list the pictures playing.

An actor in the elder days was much the same in many ways as dramatists and mechanists and pharmacists and coopers.
He labored long to learn his art and played a harsh and toilsome part among his fellow troupers.
And in the end a little child tossed off its little bib and smiled and stole the picture play
And that is why the actor now is toiling with unfurrowed brow at Lockheed—he knows that no moppet is going to prowl the set and steal his scene away.

Gals, Incorporated

(Comedy-Drama With Songs)

Universal release. Cast: Leon Errol, Harriet Hilliard, Grace McDonald, David Bacon, Betty Kean, Maureen Cannon, Lillian Cornell, Minna Phillips, Marion Daniels, The Pied Pipers, Glen Gray and the Casa Loma Orchestra. Directed by Leslie Goodwins. Associate producer, Will Cowan. Screenplay by Edward Dein. Suggested by story by Dave Gould and Charles Marion. Photography by Jerome Ash. Film editor, Arthur Hilton. Music and lyrics by Milton Rosen and Everett Carter. Dances staged by Josephine Earl. Musical director, Charles Previn. Art direction, John B. Goodman and Robert Boyle. Previewed in studio projection room, July 1, 1943. Running time, 60 MINS.

Generous supply of song, specialty and musical entertainment makes this a diverting programmer that will adequately fulfill its purpose as supporting attraction in the family and hinterland bookings.

Story is a fragile framework which supplies suitable background on which to mount 12 numbers and specialties. Night club is operated by group of girls backed by rich and eccentric Leon Errol. When latter's sister gives advance notice of arrival from the west, with warning that he will be cut off from further funds unless he is married and settled down, girls vote Grace McDonald to pose as his wife. Situation provides ample footage for farcical treatment and complications, including arrival of Errol's son on leave from the Marines for a fast romance with Miss McDonald and quick wedding conclusion.

Betty Kean handles pair of comedy dance routines, with Margery Daye on at nightspot for an acrobatic dance. Miss McDonald sings two new numbers by Milton Rosen and Everett Carter, 'All the Time It's You' and 'Here's Your Kiss'—latter having servicemen's angle that might catch moderate popularity. Lillian Cornell makes one appearance to effectively deliver 'Brazil,' while Glen Gray and the Casa Loma ork—in addition to providing all background music—handle several musical selections, and the Pied Piper foursome delivers two standards with special arrangements. Harriet Hilliard also is on for one song.

Errol broadly characterizes the rich eccentric whose playboy activities has him backing the nightspot. Miss McDonald and Miss Hilliard are most prominent among the girls in support, with Betty Kean clicking through with a comedy characterization. Gray and his ork capably handle the musical end, while the Pied Pipers and Miss Daye deliver their respective specialties satisfactorily.

Direction by Leslie Goodwins swings proceedings along at a consistent pace, and the dozen numbers are spotted okay in what could easily become an overload of song and music.

Schwarz Signs Koontz

Melvin Koontz, of Bird Wonderland Zoo, was signed by PRC Producer Jack Schwarz for 'Tiger Fangs' which features Frank Buck, his black leopard, 'Dynamite' and his tiger 'Satan.'

Casts Crew As Extras

Shortage of local extras along Mendocino County coastline has forced director Mitchell Leisen, who is filming Paramount's 'Frenchman's Creek' to use truck drivers and other members of crew to fill in.

Submarine Base

(Melodrama)

PRC production. Cast: John Litel, Alan Baxter, Eric Blore, George Metaxa, George Lee, Rafael Storm, Fifi D'Orsay, Iris Adrian, Jacqueline Dalya, Anna Demetrio, Luis Alberni, Lucien Prival. Director, Albert Kelley. Producer, Jack Schwarz. Associate producer, Harry D. Edwards. Leon Fromkess in charge of production. Original screenplay Arthur St. Claire, George Merrick. Photography, Marcel Le Picard. Music, composed and directed by Charles Dant. Art director, Frank Sylos. Editor, Holbrook N. Todd. Previewed in Hollywood, July 1, 1943. Running time: 65 MINS.

PRC will have to plug this to the limit to overcome wordiness of its scenes and lack of action which permit players without exception to indulge in field day of ham. What was a promising premise fails to develop with any degree of conviction, plot missing on all six and devolving into hodge-podge of story. Picture must be teamed with strong feature to pass.

Alan Baxter is in for another of his restrained 'killer' roles, this time as an American gangster working out of a tropical isle on the Equator off Brazil, on business of his own. What this business is never is revealed until closing few feet, but audience can make good guess what he's doing—how he came about it being another story. He fishes a man out of the sea, who turns out to be a New York copper who pursued him back in the States. Copper, putting two and two together, thinks he's helping Nazis and is out to get him again. Film ends with Baxter, king of the island, disclosed as supplying Nazi subs with torpedoes which are timed to explode a few hours after taking on load, Baxter meeting his death at hands of German agent.

Little directorial attempt apparently was made to hold actors to any definite line throughout picture. Consequently, performances are rough and slipshod, same holding true of screenplay, an original by Arthur St. Claire and George Merrick. Baxter stands out as most emphatic character, Eric Blore present for comedy relief, and John Litel plays the American detective, who left the force to join U. S. Merchant Marine. Patriotic note is brought in by the heels. Fifi D'Orsay, Jacqueline Dalya and Iris Adrian head feminine contingent and George Metaxa, offering smoothest portrayal in film, is Nazi agent. Picture was produced by Jack Schwarz, Harry D. Edwards listed as his production associate and Albert Kelley directed.

Scribbling

George Carlton Brown assigned to write the screenplay of 'For Women Only' for Republic producer Albert J. Cohen.

Robert Lees and Fred Rinaldo, Universal contract writers, have been assigned to polish final script of 'Ride, Sailor, Ride.'

Edward Dein will prepare screenplay of 'Rhythm On Parade,' first picture under production wing of Alex Thurn-Taxis at Universal.

George Bricker has been teamed with Philip Lewis to screenplay 20th's 'Laura' which Otto Preminger will produce.

Film Review

Fugitive From Sonora

(Western)

Republic release. Stars Don 'Red' Barry. Features Wally Vernon, Lynn Merrick, Harry Cording, Ethan Laidlaw, Pierce Lyden, Gary Bruce, Ken Duncan, Tommy Coats, Frank McCarroll. Director, Howard Bretherton. Associate producer, Eddy White. Original screen play, Norman S. Hall. Photography, William Bradford. Film editor, Richard Van Enger. Sound, Max Hutchinson. Art director, Russell Kimball. Set decorations, Charles Thompson. Musical score, Mort Glickman. Reviewed at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, July 1, 1943. Running time: 59 MINS.

'Fugitive From Sonora' is slick western material, turned out in high action style that carries an adventure flavor not found too often in present-day desert sagas. Eddy White's associate production gives the market a bangup picture and Howard Bretherton's direction achieves smart effect in both the action and story-telling. The Don 'Red' Barry fans will find this one of his best in a series that has always hit the mark in the western field.

Norman S. Hall's original script gives neat twist to the dual personality theme by casting Barry as a two-fisted travelling parson and the sky pilot's renegade brother, a hardened killer. Plot involves a parole commissioner and rancher, who uses released killers to terrorize a rich range and keep settlers out. Into this setup walks the parson, who soon savvies the dirty work, is believed bumped off by the gang but lives to see his bad brother avenge the shooting and remove the killers without benefit of law.

Barry does an excellent job in the dual assignment. Wally Vernon, Sonora's tombstone carver, furnishes the good comedy and Lynn Merrick shines as the femme lead, putting considerably more into the part than expected from a prairie heroine. Harry Cording, Ethan Laidlaw, Pierce Lyden are the chief dirty workers, and Gary Bruce shows well as a gang member who tries to go straight.

William Bradford did the good photography and other technical credits are all first rate.

'Money Girls' Little Theatre Fare Only

H. M. Horkheimer last night debutted as a stage producer at his Playtime Theatre with what is programed as an 'hilarious comedy of youth and beauty on the loose.' A handful of agents and studio scouts who made up the slim turnout will take strong issue with that description, of which they squirmed in hard chairs to sit through. 'Money Girls' is not hilarious, it might be a comedy and as for youth and beauty, there will be doubts raised there, too.

Three-acter, by Elizabeth and Gloria Coombs, with added dialogue by Charles Williams, who shares direction billing with Roy Mack, isn't commercial theatre, nor is there anything there for pictures. It's strictly Little Theatre fare for tryout students. Even though the cast lists such veteran performers as Herbert Corthell, Barry McCollum, Mary Young, and P. J. Kelly there was little they could do to get this weakling on its feet. The youngsters around whom the piece revolved are more decorated in their many changes of frocks than motivators of the flimsy plot, which has to do with three dames, willed $100,000 each with the proviso that they must be married within five days. Their romantics with three A. K.'s and a bevy of sailors provide the comedy premise, such as it is, but it is too labored and limp most of the way.

'Money Girls' won't be around long but anyway here are the rest of the players who struggled through their parts: Vivian Carter, Eva McVeagt, Ruby Dandrich, James Hazard, Joe McFall, Peter Duncan, Ted Stanhope, Jack Roman, Steve Brodie, Colin Campbell.

'Horky' can forget all about this one and start all over again, now that he has a theatre on his hands.

Top B. O. to Stay Says Bernhard at WB Sales Session

New York, July 1.—Opening session of first of a series of three Warners regional sales meetings was addressed today by Joseph Bernhard at the Waldorf Astoria hotel, with theatre circuit chief telling conventioneers that company would continue its 'open door' policy for customers with problems, particularly in situations affected by population shifts due to war conditions.

He pointed out, though, that wartime shifts of population have hit only a small percentage, and predicted that theatres would continue at an even higher rate of attendance after the war. This will be due, he declared, to established theatre-going habit now taking place and progressive improvement in quality of pictures. Also a factor is the development of thousands of new film fans by industry's policy of supplying screen entertainment to the armed forces.

Ben Kalmenson presided at meeting and will also conduct regionals in Chicago and San Francisco. Kalmenson formally announced affiliation of Bert M. Stearn with the sales organization and gave winners in the 1943 sales drive. Announcements were followed by business sessions and group conferences conducted by Kalmenson, A. Sachson, Jules Lapidus, Howard Levinson, A. W. Schwalberg, N. H. Moray and other sales department heads. Business sessions resume in the morning.

Name Sturdivant Prexy Cal. Theatres Assoc., Succeeding Bowles

San Francisco, July 1. — B. V. Sturdivant, Northern California division supervisor for Fox West Coast Theatres, was elected president of the board of California Theatres Association, Inc., at a meeting today. He succeeds A. M. Bowles, former F-WC division manager here and who now is F-WC general manager with headquarters in Los Angeles. Bowles was prexy of the association from the time of its inception in 1927.

Only other change in the board was election of H. Q. Franklin, of Aaron Goldberg Theatres, to take the place of the late Aaron Goldberg. Mrs. Hulda McGinn, secretary-manager, and Herman Wobber, vice president, were re-elected.

Herbel Gets $1,500 In WB Sales Drive

New York, July 1.—Western District Manager Henry Herbel, headquartered in Los Angeles, came out on top in Warners 1943 Drive of Champions, copping first prize of $1,500. Herbel's district led drive from first and during final weeks, other districts gunned for the remaining prize positions as west had unbeatable lead.

Second among district sales heads was Ralph McCoy, Dallas, getting $1,000, while Hall Walsh, Kansas City, hit third prize of $750.

Foreign Managers—OWI Set On Distribution in War Won Area

New York, July 1.—Agreement between film foreign managers and representatives of the OWI Overseas Bureau represents a compromise between the original idea of OWI and initial stand taken by picture companies. It calls for OWI to get reasonable rental, full accounting of all rental monies collected, also that distribution of U. S. films in such foreign lands be turned over to the distributors themselves as soon as possible.

According to industry plans these films will have superimposed titles in appropriate languages, then will be turned over to OWI Overseas Bureau for shipment to strategic points. While plans are being worked out, the work of superimposing titles has progressed so far that numerous productions are ready for shipment.

Lux Vacancy Divided By CBS for Drama, Frank Sinatra

CBS is spotting two half hour programs in the Lux time on Monday night for the eight-week hiatus period. 'Romance' moves into the first half hour with stage and film stars guesting. Earl McGill produces and Marx Loeb directs. Last half, also originating in New York for the first few weeks, stars Frank Sinatra as emcee and vocalist of 'Broadway Bandbox,' musical piece with comedy to be produced by Herb Polesie. Program moves here in August so Sinatra can fill his picture commitment.

Davidson Taylor, assistant program director in New York for CBS, is passing the next few weeks here setting up new shows, working on sustainers and laying the ground work for 'Mr. Deeds,' a massive United Nations war show. He is also arranging the audition for a Norman Corwin program at KNX July 8.

F-WC Calif. District Managers Meet Here Today

Fox West Coast Northern Division district managers arrive today from San Francisco for one-day get-together with Southern California district men to talk plans for a summer sales drive for F-WC theatres. They will huddle here with George Bowser, SC division supervisor, and Dean Hyskell, advertising chief for southern territory.

Making jaunt for huddles are B. V. Sturdivant, division supervisor, and district men Dick Spier, Nick Turner, Harry Seipel and Herman Kersken.

Joint Congress Group Cuts OWI Again

Washington, July 1.—Joint House-Senate Conference Committee tonight further crippled the OWI by slashing the budget for its domestic branch to $2,750,000, as against the $3,500,000 voted yesterday by the Senate. The money was lumped together rather than earmarked, which may result in enough being available for the film unit to continue in skeleton form, although this still appeared doubtful.

Hammerstein, Rodgers Due On 'Fair' Talk

New York, July 1.—Oscar Hammerstein II and Richard Rodgers are Coasting July 9 to huddle with Darryl Zanuck on musical version of 'State Fair.' They are scheduled to return July 15 preferring to work on music in New York instead of on Coast.

OWI GIVES UP THE GHOST, CLOSE HOLLYWOOD OFFICE

of offering to finance the OWI Motion Picture Bureau. It was said that a few individuals might look with favor on such a move, but that the Hays office as a whole would not think of any such action, taking the position it would be tantamount to offering to finance the U. S. Government and would be contrary to the wishes of Congress, which had eliminated funds requested by OWI to continue the picture bureau.

It is generally understood here and in Washington that Lowell Mellett, chief of OWI's Motion Picture Division, will continue to maintain some kind of contact with the film industry, perhaps along the lines he did while executive assistant to the President before OWI was established. At that time Mellett kept in close contact with company heads in New York, and is reported to have rendered valuable aid to them in keeping down requests for theatre playing time for documentary and propaganda films and in helping to solve their raw film needs. When asked, he also offered advice as to scenes, etc., which Producers were doubtful the War Department and other Government agencies would approve. He also worked closely with industry heads in their contacts with the Treasury Department and other Government agencies.

OWI closing orders yesterday also included some 40-odd news bureaus throughout the country, including those in Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland, Phoenix and the regional office in San Francisco.

Tip from Washington is that coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats who knocked out OWI did so because they feared endeavors would be made to propagandize through motion pictures and the radio for a fourth term for President Roosevelt. It was claimed this already was being done when the OWI appropriations were eliminated and the news agencies and Motion Picture Bureau ordered shuttered. To make a thorough job of clipping the wings of OWI to stop the asserted propaganda, the Congressional group decided to do away with all other OWI agencies, including the Motion Picture Bureau. The Overseas Unit was the only OWI agency that apparently escaped with its scalp.

It was believed here that yesterday's closing order would mark the end of the practice of many studios in submitting advance copies of scripts and story material since it was not thought the Overseas Branch would have time, even if it was inclined to consider the vast amount of material with the staff that would be available.

H'WD RADIO OWI CONTINUES WORK

Hollywood office of OWI domestic radio division is continuing as if nothing happened to the budget in Washington. Cornwall Jackson, chief deputy to Nat Wolff, said yesterday that recent advices from Washington were to keep going as is and nothing subsequent has been received to countermand that order. Jackson pointed out that the Hollywood radio office operates independently of other OWI branches and that he and Wolff function as liaison officers. George Zachary, program director of OWI domestic radio, is here from the east to supervise recordings for the agency. Wolff is now on vacation.

OKAY OVERTIME SCALE FOR SALARIED WORK SUPERVISORS

Washington, July 1.—The way was opened here today for studios to pay their salaried personnel, not covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act, increases for overtime work. Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of Internal Revenue, pointed out that only those covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act now get time and one half for overtime.

'Payment for overtime to the wage earners,' he pointed out, 'without any additional compensation to the salaried personnel, in many cases results in the wage earners receiving more total compensation for a given period than their immediate supervisors.' Previously the overtime increases to salaried employes making more than $5,000 a year, or to executive, administrative and professional employes making less than $5,000, and not represented by a recognized union, had been barred under the salary stabilization regulations. How much this will mean to high salaried actors and officials of the studios could not be immediately determined, but it was likely that they would be allowed something.

Chief beneficiaries will be in the lower and intermediate brackets. The Bureau of Internal Revenue will operate the plan on a sliding scale, in which virtually all salaried people are expected to benefit, providing they work overtime.

For example, salaried employes whose regular pay for a 40-hour week is equal to, or less than, the highest hourly paid employes, will get overtime pay at the same overtime rates as are paid in that plant to the highest hourly paid employes. In the succeeding higher levels, the rate of the increases will be scaled downward, according to rules to be set up by the Bureau of Internal Revenue and regional offices of its salary stabilization unit.

Approval of the increases will be required in all cases, it was explained, 'except where the employer had a regularly established overtime payment plan in effect on Oct. 3, 1942, and neither the plan, the rates, nor the hours have been changed.'

Bills Sign Leonard

Producers Bill Pine and Bill Thomas have signed Sheldon Leonard to fill top male comedy spot in their forthcoming 'Timber Queen' which Paramount is making.

S. F. Musician Shortage Hurts 'Laugh Time' Opening There

San Francisco, July 1. — 'Laugh Time' will make its debut at the Curran theatre here Monday night with less than a full orchestra in the pit due to drain on musician ranks by the Fourth of July holiday. The Paul Small-Fred Finklehoffe stager, third in a trilogy that included 'Show Time' and 'Big Time,' asked the Curran for a 10-piece orchestra but was told the Musicians Union rule required 12 men. Later it was discovered that two musicians travelling with Lou Forman, musical director, could not even be used to fill out to a 10-piece outfit for the opening.

Show will do the best it can with available talent and cast pulls out for Sacramento tomorrow morning for a tryout at the Civic auditorium there Saturday night. Advance ticket sale for the Frisco opening is running ahead of advance for 'Big Time,' which also bowed in here. The holiday is helping to hypo the b.o.

Kane to England for 20th Quota Films

Subject to final planning by Darryl F. Zanuck, Robert Kane probably will go to England in about six weeks to take care of British quota production requirements for 20th-Fox. Minimum for 20th for this season will be one picture, but two may be made.

Kane, who has previously handled 20th production in London, is expected to solve multiple problem of studio allotment space, casting, completion of story preparation and technical matters to launch picture some time this fall.

Spyros Skouras, prexy, and Murray Silverstone, in charge of foreign distribution, are scheduled to depart for England after preparations have been completed.

PRC Heads Due Here To Plan '43-44 Program

PRC prexy, O. Henry Briggs and distribution head, Arthur Greenblatt arrive from New York July 13 to confer with production head, Leon Fromkess on details of the 1943-44 program. A week's stay is expected.

RCA Picks Thompson Idea Over R and R For Hour Show

RCA has accepted a radio idea submitted by J. Walter Thompson agency for an hour show on the Blue network starting in September. Budget for the series, to exceed $1,000,000, will be appropriated at RCA board of directors meeting July 9. Ruthrauff & Ryan agency, which has the radio receiving set, phonograph and television segments of the RCA account, also made a pitch for the radio biz with a plattered audition starring Ronald Colman and Dinah Shore. Blue net, which is owned by RCA, has suggested the 7 to 8 p. m. Saturday spot for the show.

Two Years for Bailer Of Nick Dean

New York, July 1.—Martin A. Hirsh, former auditor for the Treasury Department, who posted bail of $25,000 for Nick (Circella) Dean, bodyguard for George E. Browne, must serve two years and pay a $2,000 fine, as a result of his conviction on perjury charges being upheld today by the Circuit Court of Appeals. The conviction followed his inability to explain where he got the $25,000. Also his failure to prove a loan of $5,000 he claimed he made to Lou Levy. Dean is serving an eight-year prison term as a henchman of Willie Bioff and Browne.

MAYO EXTRAS WILL PROTEST NO REP STATUS TO LAB.-MAN.

When the film industry's Labor-Management Committee meets at 2 p. m. today a new protest over lack of representation for the 4,700 Class B members of the Screen Actors Guild will be filed with the War Manpower Commission's representative. Protest was drafted last night by Harry Mayo, head of the Screen Extras and Actors Union.

Mayo also complained over the exemption by the WMC over extras from the availability certificate without consulting the players themselves. Extras took position that action of WMC in excluding them from availability certificates used in all essential war industries would permit producers to bring in people from defense plants to take their jobs and also permit them to employ outsiders.

Meeting of Committee today is to formally approve the WMC's Work Stabilization plan, which was conceived to check the labor turnover in essential industries and stop pirating of trained experts.

Mono's 3 In July

Monogram has scheduled three features to roll during month of July according to Trem Carr, executive director in charge of production.

On July 6 'The Thirteenth Guest' rolls, on the 14th 'College Sweetheart.' Final feature for month will be 'Johnny Doesn't Live Here Anymore.'

NEIC Plans Mass Flag Dedication July 14

day session of two-day pow-wow of Conference Board of NEIC at the Waldorf-Astoria. Here Washington execs will outline the role the entertainment industry can play in speeding Victory with the projected plans to be sifted and channelled to the 62 show biz organizations that will participate in the conference.

All participants in Times Square demonstration will march in costume to scene of flag dedication. Expected this will be the most unique ceremony Broadway has ever seen. Four major networks will broadcast the program.

Tonight's meeting of Continuations Committee mapping the NEIC pow-wow received, among additional pledges of allied entertainment units, wired promises from Screen Actors Guild and Hollywood Victory Committee to be represented by Ken Thompson; Screen Writers Guild by Lillian Helman, and Artist Managers Guild by Adrian McCalman.

Greek War Epic Zanuck Early Film Project, No Title Set Yet

War drama with Greek background will be one of the first features to be readied for early production by Darryl F. Zanuck when he returns to his executive production post at 20th-Fox next Tuesday. Picture, bearing no title yet, will be first Hollywood production to extol the fighting spirit of Greece in its stand against German-Italian invasion which gave the Allied armies added time to prepare, both in North Africa and elsewhere.

George Maniotes, minister of Information for the Greek Embassy in Washington, has checked in at studio to act in an advisory and technical capacity.

Garland SRO in Robin Hood Dell Concert

Judy Garland last night sang to 15,000 at Robin Hood Dell summer concert in Philadelphia as guest star with Andre Kostelanetz. Metro actress is first Hollywood singer, outside previous operatic stars, to appear at this annual music festival. She goes on to New York today to appear at eastern and mid-western army camps.

More than 10,000 persons were turned away. Many of them had purchased tickets and money was refunded. Previous record was held by Oscar Levant who drew 14,250 on July 30, 1942.

PRC Steers Half Way Clear Of War Pix

New York, July 1. — Arthur Greenblatt, PRC sales head, told organization members attending a local sales conference here today that company's 1943-44 program will consist of 50 percent escapist pix, veering away from war pictures, and will include musicals, semi-musicals and comedies. Balance will be drama melodramas without war slants.

Stating that half the coming season's program would be ready by October, Greenblatt said lowest budget picture on new season will equal highest budgeted film company made this year.

'We have no limits on budget. We have the go sign from our financial backers,' Greenblatt concluded.

Cohen Set To Produce Rep's 'Atlantic City'

Albert J. Cohen will produce 'Atlantic City' for Republic. Writers are being sent there immediately and the studio is searching all former 'Miss Americas.'

This year's Labor Day beauty pageant will play an important part in the resort history, which will feature 15 musical numbers.

Frisco News Theatres Edit Off Premises

San Francisco, July 1.—Two newsreel theatres here, Telenews and Newsreel have established editing and cutting studios away from theatre premises as result of Fire Department ruling, which resulted from fire which recently gutted Telenews. New studios will also edit and screen films for Oakland branches.

Ames' U Ticket Okayed By Superior Court

Ramsay Ames, 19-year-old former Broadway singer, had her contract with Universal approved today by Superior Court Judge Joseph W. Vickers. Contract is for seven years with salary ranging from $100 to $1,000 per week.

Lippert Gets WPB Nod For New Alameda Opening House

San Francisco, July 1.—Robert L. Lippert Theatres today received a War Production Board okay for another Alameda house, sold a Vallejo theatre to Fox West Coast, and set a new house opening in San Pablo for Saturday night.

Alameda house is a 300-400 seat, first-run deluxer—to open not later than August 12. WPB authorization for the second Lippert house there is attributed to the local war boom and resultant population boost. Lippert brings all equipment for the house from the year-old Park Theatre, Syracuse, N. Y., which he purchased and stripped. Town's other four houses are owned by Nasser Bros.

His only house in Vallejo, the Studio, brought Lippert a reported $300,000 from FWC. They now have all six houses in this boom town, and will use it for first runs or moveovers.

Converted from a garage, the Pablo, in San Pablo, is a 500 seater. Lippert immediately set a Saturday opening for this neighborhood theatre.

Stone Plans Second UA Musical, Seeks Cast

Andrew Stone begins casting of his second United Artists picture next week at General Service Studios. Film is to be a musical, with multiplicity of specialties and bands, and producer hopes to line up number of personalities.

Unusual angle is story has not yet been written, Stone and Frederick Jackson, his associate, having only a tentative outline in mind. Producer wants to determine just what talent is available before writing full draft of story.

'Jack the Ripper' 20th Horror Film Idea

Under title 'The Lodger,' 20th-Fox is readying genuine horror picture about Jack the Ripper, notorious woman killer of England in the middle 1800's.

Robert Bassler will produce under executive hand of Bryan Foy, and the production will carry higher-than-average budget with treatment similar to 'Night Must Fall.' Script is in preparation.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

The peace and quiet of Independence weekend was shattered by the news of an American attack on the Solomon Islands and by Hitler's somewhat belated summer offensive on the eastern front.

The Nazi drive seems to be a last and desperate gamble to take Moscow—but since the blue chips are down, Hitler will find that the cards are no longer stacked in his favor. The Soviets have been watching his every move and they were ready.

Some time ago the Nazi soldiers sang 'We Are Sailing For England'; now they are singing 'The Watch On the Rhine'.

Pretty soon there won't be any Nazis to sing.

July 4 Biz Blows Ballroom Tops, Theatres Register Socko Returns

Over 34,000 admissions gave three beach ballrooms their biggest July 3-4 business in years, while the Palladium bettered last year's holiday weekend with 15,400 dancers for the Saturday-Sunday period. Name bands were credited with a take that exceeded all expectations at the beach, although A-book mileage limitations helped boost the nearby holiday business. Since none

JOAN CRAWFORD'S leaving Metro after an 18-year association marks final check-off of what for years was regarded as studio's Big Four. In leaving lot, star joins procession of Norma Shearer, Jeanette MacDonald and Greta Garbo, all of whom preceded her in dropping off company payroll. There was a time when quartet garnered all prize plums in roles handed out by studio and as consequence were top four stars on lot for many years. Collectively, gals have been with Metro for 63 years—Crawford 18, Garbo 17, Shearer 19 and MacDonald 9. Metro's other top star of past, Myrna Loy, checked off lot about a year ago, when she married an easterner and elected to remain on Atlantic Coast. Lately, there's been talk of her returning, but studio isn't banking too heavily on this.

PARAMOUNT has added Stetson hats to extensive list of commercial promotional tieups on 'So Proudly We Hail.' Campaign, set up by Sam Vorzimer, tieup contact in George Brown's studio publicity department, includes commercial advertising spreads in newspapers and magazines, cutouts and posters. Cooperative promotional outlay by the companies participating to tie in with the picture is estimated at around $4,000,000 in value to the picture. Among national advertisers participating are: Royal Crown Cola, Max Factor, Chesterfield, Calox, Frederics Tru-Curl, International Silverware, Bates Fabrics, Lux, Woodbury, Deltah Pearls, Cheerioats, North Star Blankets and Stetson.

INCREASED leeway for young male actors in films, to replenish war-drained personnel, has eight Warner contract players making screen bow in 'Destination Tokyo,' Cary Grant-John Garfield starrer. They are Bob Hutton, Warner Anderson, William Prince, Warren Douglas, John Alvin, Tom Tully, Bill Kennedy and John Forsythe. Dane Clark appears for the second time and the submarine crew in the cast will be rounded out by 25 other young players who aren't under contract to any studio. Most of the action is in the cramped quarters of a submarine and the newcomers are by circumstances of story and place included in the close shots with the stars to give them unusual prominence.

PLAYERS—male and femme—are revolting as never before against type casting just at the time when supply of talent is lowest, making casting problems unusually acute in almost every studio. Protests against monotonous, repetitious type casting and characterization not only includes the yaps from men who don't want to play any more Nazis or Japs and from those who don't want to play the heels of any nationality, but comes from gals who have appeared in one or more of the multiplying features dealing with women in the various war services and are beginning to get skittish at prospective typing in future pictures of same nature.

STUDIO flacks are doing a burn and tearing their hair over annual headache of turning out 'guest' columns for Hollywood and even New York columnists, so latter can take vacations for-free without doing any advance writing to cover their respective absences. Columnists are demanding not run-of-the mill stuff to fill their space while they're away, but insisting that flacks write in their own specialized style, in some cases. Beef is that since copy is free, columnists shouldn't be too choosy as long as it's readable and well-written, and that columnists make it needlessly tough for studio men.

Film Reviews

It's a Great Life

(Comedy-Drama)

Columbia production. Features Blondie and the Bumpsteads. Cast: Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Simms, Hugh Herbert, Jonathan Hale, Danny Mummert, Alan Dinehart, Douglas Leavitt, Irving Bacon, Marjorie Ann Mutchie, Daisy (dog) and Reggie (horse). Produced and directed by Frank Strayer. Original screenplay by Connie Lee and Karen DeWolf. Based on comic strip 'Blondie' created by Chic Young. Photography by L. W. O'Connell. Film editor, Al Clark. Art direction by Lionel Banks and Walter Holscher. Musical director, M. W. Stoloff. Assistant director, Rex Bailey. Reviewed at the Hawaii, Los Angeles, July 2, 1943. Running time: 66 MINS.

Blondie and the Bumpstead family romp through this latest issue of the series in light and diverting entertainment that will groove well as a supporting programmer in the nabe and hinterland bookings.

This time, critical situation in the menage revolves around Dagwood's purchase of a horse, and resultant stabling of the animal in the back yard. Family becomes attached to the thoroughbred hunter, but sells it on insistence of the boss. Things become complicated when eccentric Hugh Herbert, who has property the boss wants to acquire, wants the animal, which projects Dagwood into a fox hunt for a wild ride before everything turns out okay.

Frank Strayer as producer-director plays every situation for laugh reaction, and succeeds fairly well in achieving that aim. Wanderings of the horse through the Bumpstead house, and canine tricks of Daisy and her brood of pups, provide numerous sidelights to the main theme and the screwball situations generated by Dagwood, et al.

Cast parades the usual members of the Blondie unit, with addition of Marjorie Ann Mutchie as baby sister in the family. In addition to Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Simms, Jonathan Hale, Danny Mummert and Daisy, there's Hugh Herbert as the absent-minded eccentric and Alan Dinehart as the light heavy. Fox hunt provides good angle for chase at the finish, and is smoothly set up.

Allen-Skirball Deal Is Off, Comic To Rest

New York, July 5.—The Fred Allen pic for Skirball-Spitz is off. Allen, it is reported, didn't like switch which Sally Benson, who scripted, 'Shadow of Doubt,' gave yarn. Then, too, Allen has been advised by his doctors to take complete rest from radio, pictures or other assignments for six months. Allen left for Montauk Point to rest.

Keighley In England

Washington, July 5.—Col. William Keighley, chief of the Army Air Forces motion picture unit, landed in England today, according to word received here. Keighley has been scheduled for some time to go to North Africa to head the Air Forces picture taking there, but whether he will remain in Britain or continue to the African war theatre was not disclosed in Army circles.

Crime Doctor

(Drama)

Columbia production. Stars Warner Baxter. Features Margaret Lindsay. Cast: John Litel, Ray Collins, Harold Huber, Don Costello, Leon Ames, Constance Worth, Dorothy Tree, Vi Athens. Directed by Michael Gordon. Produced by Ralph Cohn. Screenplay by Graham Baker and Louis Lantz. Adapted by Jerome Odlum. From radio program of same title by Max Marcin. Photographed by James S. Brown, Jr. Film editor, Dwight Caldwell. Music by Lee Zahler. Assistant Director, Jack Corrick. Reviewed at the Hawaii, Los Angeles, July 2, 1943. Running time: 65 MINS.

This is a tightly-knit and interestingly-told drama that will provide good program support in the regular runs. In the nabe and outlying bookings, marquee voltage of Warner Baxter can generate some extra customers.

Story, taken from the network radio program of same title which is written by Max Marcin, details the complications presented Baxter when he becomes an amnesia victim, and endeavors to pick up some inkling of his past life. But under new name and environment, Baxter starts life over to become a student, interne and doctor—and falls in love with social worker Margaret Lindsay. Curtained past still disturbs him, however, until he gets clue from gangster John Litel; but it's not until he becomes chairman of the state parole board that definite clue to his past identity is provided; with final information that he was mastermind of robbery ring responsible for daring holdup at time of crack on his head for memory lapse.

Suspense in the Marcin original is accentuated via good script and adaptation provided by writers Graham Baker, Louis Lantz and Jerome Odlum, plus paceful direction by Michael Gordon. Baxter capably carries the lead as the amnesia victim who overcomes obstacles to become a success in the medical world, while Miss Lindsay displays personality as the romantic interest. Litel, Harold Huber and Don Costello combine to provide the menace as members of the mob bent on getting Baxter to revive his memory sufficiently to uncover the cached loot. Ray Collins is good as the elderly doctor who steers Baxter through his amnesia decade.

FCC Fly Lets Go At Cox In Monoply Charge

Washington, July 5. — Federal Communications Committee chairman James L. Fly hit back hard at the Eugene E. Cox committee last night following the first open hearing of that investigating committee on Friday morning. Fly, who had maintained silence for months under Cox charges, issued a fire breather, in which he accused the representative and committee chairman with aiding commercial radio interests to impose monopolistic control upon the nation's radio waves. He asserted that 'Cox's Wall Street mouthpiece (presumably Eugene L. Garey, general counsel for the committee) is trying to destroy the highly valuable war work of the commission.'

films made by all other government agencies, and will continue to serve as liaison between the government agencies and the film and radio industries. This was made clear Saturday when Elmer Davis wired Ulric Bell on the Coast to continue his overseas film activities and to notify the film industry that cooperation and contact will be maintained. While Davis is not certain whether there will be a domestic branch office in Hollywood, there will probably be an office of some kind to handle the work.

There is thought that the film industry may set up a liaison office of its own on the Coast to take over a considerable portion of the burden and expense. It appears certain that a skeleton office must be maintained in Washington, and it is probable that Lowell Mellett will remain on the job running it.

Berlin to Lead Two 'TITA' Units for Overseas Shows

Washington, July 5.—Irving Berlin is scheduled to go overseas with two 100-man units of the Army musical show, 'This Is the Army,' the war department announced today. One group of soldier-actors will head for North Africa and the other for Britain, it was indicated, to put on the show for troops in combat areas.

Remainder of the large cast will remain in the U. S. with the men sent back to their respective units. According to present plans, the two troupes going overseas will be dissolved when they have completed their itineraries and assigned to forces abroad.

LA, Egyptian First-Run Plan Nears Okay

Further huddles will take place this week between Edward Alperson, head of RKO theatres, and Charles P. Skouras, Fox West Coast prexy, confabs being aimed at ironing out additional details in proposed swinging of two additional first run houses to joint operation by two circuits. Deal is understood to be nearing an okay and would open new outlets for product now awaiting playing time at the RKO Hillstreet and Pantages theatres.

Deal would provide for the Los Angeles and Egyptian theatres to take product not used at the Pan-Hillstreet for first run, and then go into the Fairfax and Tower for continued first run playing time. Likely that F-WC would continue physical operation of the houses with RKO participating with pictures.

Talk first started in New York between Alperson and Skouras. RKO has long been trying to obtain new outlets here due to film backlog pressure.

Appeal Platter Ban to WLB, Petrillo Won't Change Stand

decide whether the union musicians are on strike against the transcription companies. Should this decision be reached, WLB would have to order the musicians to resume production of transcriptions before it would move to settle the disagreement. Best information is that Petrillo would balk at this, which means that WLB would refuse to hold hearings and do anything about the case.

Neville Miller, National Association of Broadcasters president, issued a statement this afternoon in which he said: 'The broadcasting industry welcomes the certification of the Petrillo dispute to the WLB. It can now be disposed of in orderly fashion on its merits, in line with the country's wartime labor policy. The board is now obligated to direct the striking musicians to return to work immediately so that further damage to our wartime communications system may be averted.'

Certication followed a meeting between Petrillo and the seven companies at which AFM prexy refused to change his stand in the matter, holding that the fight is aimed at radio and not the recording companies. Petrillo declares wide use of waxes for broadcasting deprives union members of a livelihood.

of the beach spots used name bands last year there was no standard of comparison.

An all-time record crowd of 5,500 paid to see Vaughn Monroe at the Casa Manana, Culver City, Saturday night, and a few hundred less made the same trek Sunday. Swing-shifters and seekers of more dancing, from spots closing at the regular time, gave owner Joseph G. Zucca 3,200 admissions for the midnight-to-dawn portion of his 8:30 to 5 program Saturday night. The house was emptied of 3,300 people at 12 n. He again offered 8½ hours of dancing to Monroe's music Sunday night.

Count Basie pulled 4,500 Saturday night and 3,900 Sunday at the Aragon, Ocean Park, while Jan Garber was responsible for an evenly divided 10,400 for the two nights at Bernie Cohen's block-distant Casino Gardens. Over 4,000 more attended a swing-shift dance at this spot, sponsored by Harry Schooler, who runs the opposing Aragon.

The Palladium's 15,400 was far above last year's holiday figure. Saturday night accounted for 7,800, and Sunday for 7,600, with 2,600 passing through the turnstiles before 5:30 p.m. for Stan Kenton's afternoon performance. Most of the service men came to this easily-reached spot, with comparatively few in evidence at the beach.

Peg pants were seen at the Aragon, but the few wearing them left their zoot coats and other equipment at home. All the other spots barred zooters. It was peaceful at all points. Clever shading enabled the beach spots to use more lights than before at their entrances, but the overall picture still was a far cry from the brightly-lighted pre-war midway.

first runs totals nearly $225,000, almost $75,000 above mark set by pictures the preceding week, and legit theatres will garner approximately $92,500.

Swinging in the lead was Metro's 'Presenting Lily Mars' in Fox West Coast's Carthay Circle, Grauman's Chinese, Loew's State and Ritz theatres. Musical is expected to pile up $53,700 total for the week, having already drawn in $46,000 for first five days. Film was unusually strong both at the Carthay and Ritz, pushing those houses up to estimated $8,500 and $9,200 respectively.

Downtown and Hollywood Paramounts, with 'Five Graves To Cairo' and 'Chatterbox,' will grab a wham $44,500. Hollywood house is grinding to terrific $17,500 by single-billing at night for fast turnover with 'Cairo'. Warners Hollywood, Downtown and Wiltern are good for a solid $43,000 with 'Background To Danger'. Pantages and RKO Hillstreet theatres are catching very husky business with 'Mister Big' and 'Two Tickets To London'. Day-daters will pile up great $34,500 for the week after dragging smart $7,100 Sunday and nearly $6,400 yesterday. Orpheum is riding high this week toward $25,000 with Woody Herman's orchestra on stage.

In legit field, 'Lady In the Dark' at the Philharmonic is getting a capacity $42,000 with no holiday matinee. 'Doughgirls' continues good at the Biltmore with likely $13,500. 'Blackouts of 1943' at the El Capitan goes up to heavy $16,000 estimate, based on holiday mat. 'Born Happy' at the Mayan and 'Horror Tonight' at the Belasco will divide nice $20,000 with heavy end falling to the former show.

a radical cut in its shorts staff, reducing personnel in the department by 25 to 30, including supervisors, directors and writers. Series to be knocked out include the John Nesbitt, Our Gang and incidental reels, but company is continuing the top-money briefies such as the Pete Smiths, studio's leader; the John FitzPatrick travel reels, and the Carey Wilson and Robert Benchley shorts, plus cartoon subjects.

It is understood that four supervisors and Ed Kahn, shorts director; a number of executives, writers and technical workers are among those to go. Personnel checking off was given notice last Thursday and department, under its new budgeting, will start functioning with the curtailment as of July 15.

Other major companies, although tentatively slating full shorts programs when setting up the new season's schedules, are understood to be considering steps similar to Metro in slicing off any particular series that doesn't measure up to profit gauge which has become the standard for continuation in face of necessary cutting of screen time due to government reels.

Treasury Jerks Film On Inflation, No Official Reason

Sudden pulling of the inflation subject made by Metro at request of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau last Thursday, date reel was to have national release, was at insistence of new Treasury officials, who reportedly decided against screening short for the public due to chaotic conditions on the home front at this time.

Word to yank government briefie was received here Thursday morning and it was taken out of Loew's State after one showing. Other houses with a Thursday change and early a. m. shows got in one screening before prints were called back. Pantages and Hillstreet and other theatres changing bill last Wednesday, played reel for one day.

Files to Vacate SAG Craig Suspension

Motion to vacate the judgment of the Screen Actors Guild in suspending Hal Craig, bit player, for one year was filed with the SAG over the weekend by Attorney Alex H. Schullman. Motion for a new trial and an appeal from the decision also was filed at the same time.

Schullman advised SAG that organization would be held responsible for any monetary losses of player through suspension, which he said was arbitrary and dictatorial. In seeking a new trial he claimed newly discovered evidence that extras had been exempted by the War Manpower Commission from availability certificates without consulting Craig or any of the other 4,700 Class B members of the Guild.

Chico Talking Frisco Variety Show Idea

San Francisco, July 5. — Chico Marx, currently appearing with his band on the stage of the Golden Gate Theatre here, has been talking to Irving Ackerman, partner of Sid Grauman in the Alcazar Theatre operations, about bringing a variety show into the Alcazar. Idea would be for Marx and his orch to form the basis for a two-a-day vauder similar to Grauman's 'Highlites of 1943' which played the Alcazar. Ackerman referred Marx to Grauman who is now in Los Angeles.

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, July 5.—How well does Hollywood fare on those scripts it ships east to the War Department, as is required where one or more sequences involve military personnel or action? Allyn Butterfield, motion picture editor of Army Public Relations, who checks the scripts for reasons of security and military propriety, estimates that only 10% are flatly rejected. Of the remainder, roughly half are approved as is, while the others are returned for changes, usually of a minor nature. In a typical month, between 20 and 25 scripts will be handled by Butterfield.

It is a splendid commentary on the understanding between the War Department and the industry that a finished picture has never been completely turned down, and only an occasional one is sent back for minor retakes.

So realistic are Hollywood portrayals of actual battle conditions that such films as 'Bombardier', 'Aerial Gunner' and 'Action In the North Atlantic' are being used for training purposes. When these commercial pix are shown to men in uniform, Army has a strict rule that no civilian may be present—on the theory that civilians should ante up at the box office if they want to see commercial pictures.

Promotion departments on the Coast can take a bow, too. Recently an officer from an Army training center looked over the still picture layouts of recent commercial films made with Army cooperation, which are on display at the Pentagon. The officer was so impressed with the battle shots in stills of 'So Proudly We Hail' that he asked for a set for training purposes.

RECALLS CARMINATI

Do you remember Tullio Carminati, who once made pictures in Hollywood? Radio Rome announced in a shortwave broadcast beamed to this country, the other day, that he is now organizing an Italian stage company to tour what the Flying Fortresses leave of that country. The broadcast included the company's repertoire, one play being 'The Man of Pleasure'.

If you sometimes wonder what makes some Congressmen tick—you are probably correct.

During the debate on the floor of the House which preceded killing the budget of the OWI domestic branch, Rep. Lesinski, of Michigan, launched a hot attack on Matthew Gordon, head of the Foreign Service Division of OWI. Lesinski charged that here was practically a child in his early twenties, who was no linguist at all, heading this important foreign unit of OWI. The Congressman generously and gratuitously added that he did not know whether Gordon was a Communist.

Fact of the matter is that Matt Gordon, formerly with CBS, is in his thirties; Foreign Service Division is part of the Domestic branch, and requires no knowledge of foreign languages whatsoever; and Gordon usually votes the Republican ticket.

On such misinformation do Congressmen vote, and agencies like OWI are crippled.

GARBO TENTH

And what do you think of Greta Garbo landing no better than 10th place in that recent poll of favorite motion picture actors and actresses taken among Swedish theatregoers?

Topping the list was Greer Garson. Others in order of their popularity were Ingrid Bergman, Gary Cooper, Vivien Leigh, Bette Davis, Robert Taylor, Clark Gable and Noel Coward.

Broadway Fourth Take Beats Last Years' Holdovers Stout

New York, July 5. — Although the volume of travel in and out of town hit a new high, grosses in film theatres, over the three-day Fourth of July weekend, while not record breaking, were exceptionally good. Figures surpassed last year's Fourth however and also Decoration Day when another three-day weekend fell.

Business Saturday was somewhat spotty but very big Sunday and today, with matinee today larger than yesterday and Saturday. New major first run, 'Background to Danger' with Hal McIntyre at the Strand, opened big Friday when other theatres sluffed off. 'Bombardier' went into the Criterion Thursday and on the weekend was under expectations.

Holdovers include 'Stage Door Canteen' and Phil Spitalny at the Capitol; 'The Youngest Profession' at the Music Hall; 'Dixie,' the Andrews Sisters and Michel Ayers at the Paramount, and 'Coney Island' with Enric Madriguera at the Roxy.

New York, July 5.—Eighteen out of the 23 shows on Broadway played matinees today and although there had been little advance selling for the performance, the standouts drew capacity. Threat of rain until after curtain time accounted for strong attendance despite many locals being out of town for the holiday.

WMC Industry Stabilization Becomes Effective July 18

The War Manpower Commission's new work stabilization plan for the motion picture industry becomes effective July 18. This was decided Friday when the industry's Labor-Management Committee approved issuance of extended availability certificates to most technical crafts and exempted extras, day players and stuntmen from availability certificate requirements. All employes except those exempted must present certificates in order to secure employment after that date.

At Friday's meeting, E. C. Rinehart, assistant area director for the WMC, said the first draft of a plan to put Los Angeles industry on a 48-hour week would be ready for submission within the next week or 10 days. Most studios have been operating on an eight-hour basis, but several dropped calls back to six hours when men were not needed.

Protest over extras being exempted from availability certificate requirements was filed at Friday's meeting by Harry Mayo, chairman of the Screen Extras and Actors Union, and protests also were lodged with the WMC office in Los Angeles. It was pointed out the extras were without representation on the L-M Committee and had not been consulted about their desires. It was claimed exemption would permit Producers to flood industry with outsiders to work as extras on waivers.

Groups which will receive extended availability certificates, permitting them to move from one studio to another, include carpenters, journeymen electricians, chauffeurs and truck drivers, wranglers, car washers, plasterers, laborers, machinists, blacksmiths, moulders, sheet metal workers, scenic artists, decorators, painters, hair stylists, body makeup women, grips, lamp operators, tailors, prop and miniature journeymen, special effects, upholsterers, draperymen, greensmen, projectionists, welders, nurses, watchmen, musicians and freelance players.

In a notice to studios, Fred Pelton, Producer member of the L-M Committee, advised them the following procedure for establishment of the plan had been approved by the WMC:

'During week ending July 10, studios will prepare extended availability certificates for each employe on the current payroll whose job classification entitled him to an extended availability certificate. These certificates may be retained in the studio files during the tenure of employment of such employes, or for convenience may be give nto and be retained by the employes.

'Prior to July 12, studios will send lists of names for whom extended availability certificates have been issued to their respective labor organizations, thus preventing duplication. During week ending July 17, these respective labor organizations will check names and issue extended availability certificates to their members and permittees not covered by the studios. On July 18, the employment stabilization plan will be fully in effect, and thereafter studios and employes will comply with the plan and regulations previously issued by the WMC.'

Extras and other actors exempted from certificate requirements will be free to move from one industry to another, it was explained. Plan is expected to check big labor turnover in the industry and stop pirating of trained experts by other essential industries.

Obituaries

JACK EDWARDS

Funeral services for Jack Edwards, 59, will be held tomorrow at the Wee Kirk o' the Heather, Forest Lawn, at 3:30 p.m. Edwards, former theatrical and exploitation manager as well as a VARIETY staff man, died at his home, 7467 Hollywood boulevard, Saturday as result of a heart ailment from which he had suffered for some years.

Edwards left the newspaper field after work in Milwaukee, Kansas City and other cities for New York where he became manager of Billboard. From there he joined the Shuberts handling roadshows, and for a time managed a theatre in Washington jointly operated by the Shuberts and George Marshall. He then went with Pathe to handle exploitation in its New York office, then moved to Chicago to handle exploitation for Universal. Later Edwards came to the Coast for VARIETY, working in Los Angeles before becoming manager of VARIETY'S San Francisco office. He returned to the Los Angeles staff and then in 1929 went with RKO as exploitation man, later going to Cincinnati to manage a theatre for same company. Several years later Edwards returned to VARIETY staff here, then went with National Screen Service. At the time of his death he was with Fox West Coast Theatres. During his roadshow work Edwards was connected with tour of 'The Birth of a Nation' and other early special films.

Surviving are his widow, Helen Edwards; a daughter by a former marriage, Edna Schwartz of Detroit, and two brothers, Killian and Ben Schwartz, of Milwaukee.

ROMBERG GIRDS SPA FOR FIGHT

WB TAKES A LEAD ON 1943-44

Warner Brothers theatre department executives who attended second day of regional meeting of the company's sales department in New York Saturday, with Ben Kalmenson presiding, heard details of the company's plans for the new season.

As announced by the studio here, Warners will enter the 1943-44 season with a list of story properties surpassing all previous years. In addition to 14 features already completed, five others now are before the cameras and another dozen ready to start shooting as soon as studio space is available.

Lineup includes a dozen Broadway stage hits and an even larger number of published novels. There are six musicals and six biographical yarns.

While exact number of features to be released in new season will depend on market conditions, studio, maintaining continuous capacity production, will be prepared for any possible change in present conditions.

Starting Labor Day, releases of the new season include the following already completed pictures:

'Watch On the Rhine,' starring Bette Davis, Paul Lucas and Geraldine Fitzgerald.

'Thank Your Lucky Stars,' musical, Eddie Cantor Humphrey Bogart, Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Errol Flynn, John Garfield, Joan Leslie, Ida Lupino, Dennis Morgan, Ann Sheridan, Dinah Shore, Alexis Smith, Jack Carson, Alan Hale, Edward Everett Horton, S. Z. Sakall, Hattie McDaniel, Willie Best, Ruth Donnelly, Henry Armetta, Noble Johnson, Spike Jones and his City Slickers and Don Wilson.

'Old Acquaintance,' starring Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins.

'Princess O'Rourke,' comedy, starring Olivia de Havilland, Robert Cummings, Jack Carson and Jane Wyman.

'The Desert Song,' operetta, starring Dennis Morgan and Irene Manning.

'Devotion,' starring Olivia de Havilland, Ida Lupino, Nancy Coleman, Paul Henreid, Sydney Greenstreet.

'Saratoga Trunk,' starring Gary Cooper and Ingrid Bergman.

'Arsenic and Old Lace,' starring Carey Grant, Priscilla Lane and Raymond Massey.

'The Adventures of Mark Twain,' starring Fredric March and Alexis Smith.

Now in production and expected to be finished by time 1943-44 season starts are:

'Northern Pursuit,' 'Destination Tokyo,' 'Conflict,' 'In Our Time' and 'Shine On Harvest Moon.'

TRIPLE DUES TO COVER BATTLE FOR COPYRIGHTS

Calling on the membership of Songwriters Protective Association to rally to an aggressive defense of its rights, now 'seriously menaced', Sigmund Romberg, president, has proposed that dues for the next two years be increased three-fold. Letters have gone out to SPA's 1,400 members, nearly all of whom also are affiliated with Ascap, asking for a favorable response to his proposals. Romberg states that if the members are otherwise inclined he will resign the presidency rather than 'adopt a policy of inaction'.

Romberg points out that the necessity for increased dues is impelled by substantial legal costs involved in lawsuits for the protection of the writers' interests and full development of the Mills Plan, which he declares is 'constructive, far-reaching and if carried to a successful conclusion will establish revolutionary improvements in the songwriters' bargaining position.'

Romberg's letter to SPA members follows:

HIS LETTER

'Dear Friend and Member:

'Your SPA is confronted with the necessity for making an important decision. We simply cannot fulfill the destiny of the organization and accomplish its objectives within the budget made possible by our present rate of dues.

'We must either return to a state of relative inactivity, such as has been the policy for the past few years, or we must determine to go ahead on a campaign which involves not only protecting important rights that we now have, and which are seriously menaced, but improving our working conditions. My conception of SPA is that through organized effort and the united front, it exists solely for the development and protection of all of the rights, present and future, of its members. Existing rights are seriously imperiled.

'The "BMI-Marks vs. Ascap" suit is based on the theory that the publisher owns, to the exclusion of the writer, all of the rights under a copyright of which he is the owner, regardless of the membership or the non-membership of the writer in any performing rights organization. If this suit should be decided favorably to the plaintiffs, it would be a shocking disaster to the welfare of songwriters. The so-called 'Irish Eyes' copyright-renewal case recently decided in the United States Supreme Court is completely adverse to the interests of songwriters. SPA, through its counsel, has already intervened in the former case, which has not yet been tried, just as it intervened in the latter case, which was unsuccessfully tried.

BMI-MARKS CASE

'The BMI-Marks case is at the moment by far the most important. Its defense should not be left to Ascap, where there is a divided interest, with publishers on one side of the question and writers on the other, or to the individual defendants other than Ascap, who are a few songwriters. The whole craft should rally to a most aggressive defense. Very substantial legal costs will be involved.

'Some nine months ago I suggested to the Council and to the membership that we avail ourselves of the opportunity to secure the services of E. C. Mills, who needs no introduction to any of you. The Council enthusiastically endorsed the idea and authorized me to approach him. I did so, and you know the result. I certainly did not persuade Mr. Mills to take charge of our affairs with any notion that he was going to sit idly by and do nothing. He evolved what has come to be known as the "Mills Plan", which has been twice endorsed in principle by the Council and unanimously approved at general membership meetings held both in New York and Hollywood.

COSTS OF PLAN

'The Plan is constructive, far-reaching, and if carried to a successful conclusion, will establish revolutionary improvements in the songwriters' bargaining position. Putting this Plan into effect will involve substantial costs which cannot be covered by present revenue from dues.

'Therefore, I have proposed, in order to meet the necessities and to do a real job here, that our dues be increased for the next two years, commencing with the next quarter, to the extent indicated by the following table:

	Now Pay Per Annum	Will Pay Per Annum
Members in Class A	$50	$150
Class B	30	90
Class C	20	60
Class D	10	30
Associate
Members	5	10

'The only alternative is, in my opinion, to adopt a policy of inaction. Personally, I am entirely unwilling to have the organization revert to inactivity. I propose to go forward, or to retire from this office and let someone else become responsible for the conduct of SPA's affairs.

'Therefore, I enclose the customary form of assignment for a deduction from Ascap royalties of the increased amount of dues. If you are a member of Ascap, and in favor of our going ahead, please sign and return this enclosure. If you are not a member of Ascap, and nevertheless in favor of progress as suggested, please let me know and I will bill you for the increased rate of dues.

'If the response to this suggestion is unfavorable, I think it must be regarded by the Council and myself as a vote of no confidence.

'In view of the necessity for reaching a quick decision, I urge that you let me know by return mail, and I hope favorably.

'Faithfully yours,
'SIGMUND ROMBERG.'

CAMPSHOW MARK SET FOR JUNE

With 28 Hollywood personalities set for early service camp tours, 22 others completing tours and eight still making appearances, the Hollywood Victory Committee announced a new one-month camp entertainment record for June. Those still appearing in camps are Robert Young, Charles Laughton, Grace McDonald, Nan Wynn, Edgar Buchanan and Helen Walker, Philip Dorn and Mary Lee. Five players also have gone overseas since June 1.

A total of 385 personalities made 1,106 appearances in 176 events during the month, with 27 events for Government agencies, 91 for the Army and 33 for the Navy. Since organization of the HVC 18 months ago, 2,042 artists have given their services for a total of 13,496 appearances in 4,942 entertainment, bond-selling, relief and other events.

'Laugh Time' Nostalgic Vaude Hit in Frisco

San Francisco, July 5.—Midway in 'Laugh Time' the Paul Small-Fred Finklehoffe two-a-day vauder that bowed in tonight at the Curran, Bert Wheeler says, in answer to a terrific hand: 'All this audience must be from the old Orpheum.' Such was the spirit of the sell-out audience in greeting the third of the Small-Finkelhoffe trilogy that has included 'Show Time' and 'Big Time.'

'Laugh Time' is almost pure Orpheum circuit in its appeal and staging. Any old time vaudeville artist in the audience must have been heartened by the way show went over. For nothing else could be credited with its first-night's success than 'here was vaudeville, and the customers went for it even when it wasn't so good.' Whether the first night audience was packed, at $2.75 top, with vaude addicts and the supply will run out later is a question.

Frank Fay is emcee and works well with Wheeler in their clowning. Ethel Waters, the third co-star, got a tremendous ovation coming on stage and went over big.

Whether the figures given by the Russian communique are too high, or too low, the fact remains that the Nazi blitz attack has not resulted in sudden and far reaching successes, such as has happened in the past.

There is more behind this attack than meets the eye, and if the truth makes its appearance it may very well be we shall see the lifeless skeleton of what once was the Nazi military might.

TIPOFF IN 40% DROP AT GATE

New York, July 6.—More than $1,000,000 worth of war stories bought by major studios since Pearl Harbor are now unlikely to be produced. Decline of approximately 40% in average take of war dramas and discussion among company production heads which considers that war in Europe will possibly end by next year are main factors in decision to shelve stories that cost from $50,000 to $300,000.

Curtailed production and distribution, which requires watching of deliveries more carefully is also influencing battle yarn nix generally.

SHORAGE of talent, which has existed particularly in the starring and featured ranks for two years, is now extending down through supporting roles, according to production execs and major casting directors. Supporting player dearth is occasioned by coralling of name or recognized types by studios on term tickets—with most of the majors having largest talent lists in history. Result is general disregard of talent loanout provisions of the four-and-three plan as set up by the Producers Association to provide uniformity of loaning supporting players between the major studios. It's getting to be a wide open affair, with contracting companies asking skyrocketing figures for loanouts, and—in many cases—reserving rights to okay roles offered by the borrowing studio. Under the four-and-three system, loaning studio received compensation of minimum of four weeks of regular contract salary for a contracted player, plus an additional three weeks of stated salary which was intended to cover carrying time on the home lot. If player was used beyond the four weeks, borrowing plant paid regular weekly salary to the lending studio. Plan was found, during operation, to be equitable all around insofar as weekly salary contractees were concerned, but growing demands for the supporting players has most of the majors kicking the uniform system out the window and changing to higher weekly fees that will return plenty of profit. It is expected that the present disregard of the four-and-three plan will provide topic for plenty of discussion in future meetings of the Producers Association, as it is known that the studio heads are not agreeable to skyrocketing supporting player salaries generally—which is likely to happen if the contract supporters are loaned out at excessive figures to other plants.

JAMES R. YOUNG, author of 'The Land of the Rising Sun,' and former International News Service representative in Tokio for number of years, will be used extensively for exploitation and promotion of the film production in key centers by RKO. Young, while in Hollywood functioning as technical advisor on the picture, got a wide play via Hearst papers on various interviews on Jap war aims, etc., and RKO figures similar attention can be gained around the country. Writer will first head for New England and upper New York state, where RKO is staging multi-theatre openings of 'Sun' in that area Aug. 3. He then hops for the Pacific northwest to hypo openings in the Seattle, Portland and Spokane districts; will do some spade work for Southern California district Aug. 18 and then close in the San Francisco area a week later. Midwest and southern dates for Young depends on lineup of bookings in those sectors.

NATIONAL figures in Washington will take part in a special broadcast July 14 over NBC to intensify campaign by advertisers to disseminate information deemed necessary to home front participation in the war, now said to be lagging. Program under auspices of War Advertising Council in cooperation with Office of War Information will stress the part all citizens can play in the war, with an especial appeal to advertisers to double the amount that has been expended for this purpose. Among the speakers will be Donald Nelson, Elmer Davis, Marvin Jones and possibly James Byrnes, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and General Somerville. Broadcast on 138-station hookup is titled 'The Role of Business in Furnishing the People With Essential War Information.' Advertisers have contributed $250,000,000 in the past year to the government through various media for informational purposes.

WHILE Sam Goldwyn and RKO were discussing renewal of his releasing pact problem of first run in Chicago of 'They've Got Me Covered' bookings there came up. Price of $35,000 asked by Jim Mulvey for first run of picture did not intrigue anyone in the territory. RKO sales force were led to believe that unless they got the price the Goldwyn renewal might not materialize. So they went to their theatre department and got latter to agree to the $35,000 guarantee for the film there and had it booked into the Grand, formerly legit house. From indications looks as though the theatre department will go $30,000 in the 'red' on the buy, but Sam Goldwyn is appeased at least and continuation of the old deal is in effect.

TWENTIETH-FOX is understood to have encountered story angle difficulties on its projected 'Mexico City,' a William LeBaron production and now has script back for a rewriting job. Reported that changes are being made at suggestion of Inter-Americas group to better influence Pan-American relations. There is also a possibility that LeBaron will decide to scrap story and use title for an entirely new yarn. Picture is to be a musical and is down on LeBaron's schedule for production following completion of his 'Pin-Up Girl' tuner.

LACK of Technicolor equipment has forced Metro to abandon plans to film 'The Canterville Ghost,' starring Charles Laughton, in color. For past month studio has tinkered with idea of showing Laughton, in title role, changing color from time to time, from red to purple to yellow to blue. Idea would have been a natural, but shortage of facilities finally has caused studio to change its plans, and film will be shot in black and white.

Joe College, or even Joe High School, who once served a term as supernumerary in the distant hope of grasping a speaking role in the great game of Drama, steps out of his classroom today and trips into riches, like the old guy who fell into a sewer and came up with a handful of gold watches. The idea of scholastic athletics, conceived centuries ago in the Olympian Games, was to train lads in warlike pursuits, such as running, jumping, wrestling, throwing the javelin and tossing the voice. There were no newspapers or films of radios in those days, so the boys were trained to develop Stentorian voices, strong and clear enough to carry over yonder Grecian meadow and tell the warriors on the other side what chumps they were to fight for Dear Old Sparta when they could grab a well-paid job in Athens sculping Aphrodite in marble at one drachma per diem instead of spearing Athenian soldiers on the battlefield. Even in those days the boys recognized the value of the publicity angle. The Greeks also had a word for 4F.

Victory Through Air Power

(Animation Documentary)

United Artists release of Walt Disney production in Technicolor. Features Major Alexander P. de Seversky. Director of photography, Ray Rennahan. Art direction, Richard Irvine. Production manager, Dan Keefe. Film editor, Jack Dennis. Interior decoration, William Kiernan. Narrated by Art Baker. Scenes with Major Seversky directed by H. C. Potter. Animation supervision, David D. Hand. Story direction, Perce Pearce. Previewed in Los Angeles, July 6, 1943. Feature length, running time: 65 MINS.

Walt Disney's highly perfected animation processes offered Major Alexander P. de Seversky a potent medium to broadcast his contention that colossal land-based warplanes with bomb and fire-power beyond anything now building are the key to America's fate in war and peace. Seversky has packed his thesis into an hour's swiftly reeling footage which embraces the historical highlights of aircraft development from the first filght of the Wrights at Kittyhawk to the present engines of battle. The cunning of Disney's animators keeps the Technicolor document constantly absorbing and informative, with fact and prophecy related in alternating comic and serious treatment.

The picture undoubtedly will become a subject for controversy between opposing schools of military practice in regard to the use of airpower, since Seversky comes out flatly for a separate U. S. air command, carrying on the discredited pleas of General Billy Mitchell. Aside from unquestioned technical appeal to the experts and personnel of the armed forces, 'Air Power' will have to be smartly sold as mass entertainment, since it is not escapist fantasy as many of Disney's previous feature-length films have been.

In the film Major de Seversky condenses and punctuates the arguments of his book of the same title. Throughout much of the footage he is shown in exposition of his beliefs about the relative strength and reliance of air force to other elements of military expediency. He offers a definite design for victory by the Allied nations in the present conflict. He analyses the factors of strength and weakness in the Pacific area, and argues that, short of a long siege, the way to lick Japan is by large land-based fighter-bombers from the Aleutians. His narrative is illustrated with maps and graphs and all the other tricks of animation to make them impressive, and with much beauty in the Technicolor effects and amazing craft of the Disney artists' staff.

Gen. Billy Mitchell speaks posthumously in a foreword. The early efforts and antics of pioneer planes and airmen are humorously depicted. Major de Seversky concludes that while no nation has a monopoly on the kind of plane building which will secure victory and assure a lasting peace, the United States with its immense industrial capacity now holds the answer.

Disney and his creative artists—Ray Rennahan directing the cameras, Richard Irvine on the art direction, Jack Dennis doing the editing, Art Baker sharing narration with Seversky, and others—supply the medium for the important documentary in a fashion which makes it memorable.

Play Review

HER FIRST MURDER

Baltimore, July 6.—Summertime stock tryout of 'Her First Murder' in a rewrite by Dunning, starring ZaSu Pitts, is familiar theatre employing all the worn out situations and characters of stereotype murder mysteries.

Set in a theatrical house, with Miss Pitts as a small town gal, suddenly placed in the role of detective, the whodunit has a few scattered laughs and no pace at all.

The star handles herself very well, and, given the right role in the right play, should be able to strike pay dirt. This however, is not the play. Of the rest of the cast, Frank Latimore makes the most of the romantic lead and Kathryn Giveny ekes out some laughs. It has nothing new for films.

Book 'Saludos Amigos' Over F-WC Chain

Contracts for 'Saludos Amigos,' Walt Disney special cartoon, to play Fox West Coast Circuit have been inked and film is expected to be booked for local showing within the next three or four weeks. Herb McIntyre, western district manager for RKO, has also sold film ot the McNeil-Naify circuit in San Francisco. Picture is being sold solo by RKO outside of its regular blocks of features on special deals.

F-WC Holds Starland

With 'Lady' Fold Sat. Lawrence to Rest, Seek New Play

Gertrude Lawrence will not bring 'Lady in the Dark' back to Broadway next season after a summer layoff, but instead is looking for a new play to do after she returns from a European trip. Miss Lawrence folds 'Lady' here at the Philharmonic Saturday night and leaves the next day for eight weeks' rest at Cape Cod. Following siesta to recupe from strenuous road tour of the show, in which she has appeared for 102 weeks, including current stanza, actress goes to Europe for the Red Cross and to work with the Entertainment National Services Association, British organization furnishing entertainment to the armed forces, etc., of which she is vice president.

Legit star has indicated she would like to team with John Golden for a new show next season if he can find a suitable vehicle. During her Cape Cod rest Miss Lawrence will read new material and if finding something to her liking will start preparations for its presentation upon her return from abroad. Jack Potter, company manager, and others with actress would start setting up of any play while Miss Lawrence is on her Red Cross trip.

Philharmonic would like to have 'Lady in the Dark' stay for a fourth week but heat and long tour already put in by Miss Lawrence decided her against holdover, despite fact stay would have undoubtedly resulted in another capacity week. Show has been sold out for its three weeks here and will roll up an estimated $135,000 gross for the run. During its long tour troupe has never missed an opening despite hazards of wartime travel with 105 people and seven baggage cars full of props, etc.

Milstein and Wood Film Partners

Jake Milstein has closed a partnership deal with Sam Wood and will be business manager of the Wood production unit at Columbia in addition to handling marketing of the output. Product-Loaded Non-Theatre Companys Stymied by Indies Demands of independent exhibitors for small rental terms on backlog product which non-theatre controlling distributors have been unable to unload, so far have stymied all efforts to conclude so-called pressure deals. Indies, apparently feeling such distribs are on the spot for releases, have asked terms that exchanges claim would allow no profit, thus kicking possible deals in the face.

Non-theatre distributors have been eyeing possibilities for some time of relieving backlog pressure through tieups with unaffiliated houses, offering to help on exploitation, etc., in their efforts to work out equitable arrangements whereby everyone could make a profit.

As an example of terms demanded by some exhibs when approached with such propositions, is deal asked by operator controlling three houses now playing sluff product. A major exchange offered theatres a group of pictures for first runs, plus advertising aid, at terms lower than usual but on which reasonable returns could be realized. Indie countered with percentage terms that would have left exchange in the red, and latter, despite it needed a quick release for several pictures, promptly nixed deal. Shortly after, exchange placed four of the jammed up films with a major theatre circuit at good terms and has refused to listen to additional offers from the independent.

Distributors generally are taking the stand that indies are passing up opportunity to get pictures never before available and build house trade through 'short-sighted' demand for assertedly unfair prices.

If theatre deal now being talked between RKO and Fox West Coast for the Egyptian and Los Angeles to become day-daters with the Tower and Fairfax carrying moveover first run policy is finally consummated there will be a measure of relief offered to non-theatre distributors. Under combination operation being talked, product from Columbia, RKO, Universal and other majors will have crack at earlier first run playing time instead of waiting in line for dates at the Pantages and Hillstreet.

WLB Open Hearing on Wax Dispute Friday

Washington, July 6.—Calling a public hearing for Friday, the War Labor Board announced that it will then decide whether the dispute between James C. Petrillo's American Federation of Musicians and seven transcription companies 'is a labor dispute over which the board should take jurisdiction.'

The validity of the disc companies' contention that the musicians are on strike was raised by labor members of the WLB, after the U. S. Conciliation Service certified the case to the board yesterday. The Conciliation Service did not set forth any demands by either side, claiming that the issue is the union's 'refusal to negotiate.' The board decision for a hearing was unanimous.

SAG BOARD GETS CRAIG CASE APPEAL MON. NIGHT

Triple motion of Hal Craig, film bit player, to vacate his one-year suspension, reopen his trial, and appeal to the Class B membership of the Screen Actors Guild, will go before the SAG Board of Directors Monday night. Player also is asking that his suspension be lifted pending outcome of the appeal and in event of an unfavorable decision until such time as the courts have had an opportunity to review the proceedings.

Board has the discretion to reopen the trial or to approve an appeal to either the Class A or Class B memberships, or both, at meetings called for that purpose. Board, if it sees fit, can require posting of coin to cover cost of membership meeting to pass on appeal.

Alexander H. Schullman, attorney for Craig, in moving for a new trial, claims a fraud was perpetrated upon the War Manpower Commission when it was represented that the extras desired exemption from the availability certificate to be required of film employes after July 18. He contends that neither Craig nor any of the other 4,700 Class B members were consulted or advised of the action.

Craig, through Attorney Schullman, also issued an appeal for the entire Class B membership to get together and fight for autonomy. He pointed out that he was being deprived of work, stating he was forced off a job at Darmour after having worked in a major studio the day following his suspension. In his appeal for unity, Craig said:

'In my fight for closed shop and for my attempt to coordinate the different factions of the B-members who are striving for better working conditions, better pay and self-autonomy, I have had my ears slapped by the SAG directorship as an example to other B members and to put fear in the hearts of those who may wish to do the same.'

In the meantime, the SAG was proceeding with plans for autonomy for extras, calling various group leaders to headquarters to get their reactions. It is understood definite move toward setting extras up in their own union will be made shortly.

Try Schwartz $100,000 U Story Suit Today

Lawsuit in which Myron K. Schwartz is asking $100,000 damages from Universal, charging plagirism, went to trial today before Superior Judge Caryl M. Sheldon and jury. Schwartz charged in his petition that he wrote yarn entitled 'South Sea Bound,' or 'Hockshop' at request of studio prior to January 17, 1941. After delivering manuscript to studio he waited several months and finally manuscript was returned to him, he alleged.

In 1942, studio did, 'Pardon My Sarong,' the complaint continues, 'which included and embodied substantial parts and portions of plaintiff's material.' Schwartz is asking $50,000 damages and another $50,000 punitive damages.

The studio denied all the allegations.

Detroit Press Praises, But Legionnaires Decry, 'Mission'

Detroit, July 6. — Michigan department of Veterans of Foreign Wars has registered opposition to the showing of Warners 'Mission to Moscow,' which is making its first local appearance at the Palms-State.

Veterans passed resolution of condemnation at their annual convention after Commander Joseph W. Mann charged that the picture ridicules American democracy and the operations of Congress.

Most of Detroit's press, however, gave the film a good break, some sending political experts to cover it. One of the latter, Malcom W. Beingay, of the Free Press, called 'Moscow' propaganda, but added, 'So what? What isn't propaganda these days?'

Metro's 'Book-of-the Year' Explained

New York, July 6.—Metro's Book-of-the-year contest as outlined by Waldemar Vetlugin, would be judged by a board including one publisher, one agent, a Metro representative, and a name writer.

Prize would be $100,000 paid directly to the author, plus $25,000 to publisher — with latter amount handed out primarily for exploitation. Studio also proposes tie-in with magazine publishers where latter would buy serial rights for the novel for $40,000, with Metro paying $25,000 of this amount and mag the balance. Metro would acquire film rights to the book for production.

Warburton Named Lead For B'way Chiller

New York, July 6.—John Warburton, recently in films on the coast, is scheduled for one of the six leads in 'Murder Without Crime,' London chiller by J. Lee Thompson. Play was recommended for U. State Unemployment To Rule On Moppet Pay

Sacramento, July 6.—State Unemployment Commission will hear cases involving 32 child film actors who have filed claims for unemployment benefits in Los Angeles, July 16, 17, 18. Claims to date have been denied but a Commission official ruled that merits of the claims must be heard and the Commission must rule on validity of whether or not children are to be considered 'available for work.'

If they are so defined and can show they are unable to obtain jobs, their jobless benefits must be paid, no matter how much money they have made in previous pictures or what their bank balance is. The official explained.

FLY SUBMITS BARBED QUIZ TO COX FCC PROBE GROUP

Washington, July 6.—James C. Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, today asked the Cox committee investigating the Communications Commission whether the FCC will have an opportunity to state its side of the case. Fly posed a series of 12 questions in a letter to the Cox Committee, most of them for the purpose of alleging unfairness by the committee.

Some of the questions were:

'Has the committee already concluded that it will make its findings as set forth in its counsel's formal and broadly publicized statement?

'Did the committee authorize the publication of those conclusions of its Wall Street counsel?

'Is this committee going to continue to permit such conclusions to be broadcast without giving the commission an opportunity for a hearing?

'Is the committee now going to adjourn for the summer without giving the commission an opportunity for a hearing on the publicly announced conclusion?

'Is the committee going to continue the service of dollar-a-year men on Wall Street?

'Is the committee going to continue the practice of refusing to permit the commission to purchase copies of the transcripts of testimony made in secret sessions?'

Fly released the letter and also a series of earlier ones in which he requested copies of testimony made in closed sessions with FCC employes. Such transcript has never been made public.

Guiol Forms Own Unit For Productions

Fred Guiol, who acted as associate producer on Columbia's 'The More the Merrier' and 'Penny Serenade,' has organized a new producing company, Global Productions. Say Song Pubs Want Good War Tunes

New York, July 6.—That all music publishers do want war songs is indicated in their attempts to publish war tunes selected by Music War Council of American Theatre Wing. Original selection, 'Rainbow 'Round the World,' and result of second meeting last Tuesday, 'Prayer For a Soldier,' definitely sought after by music publishers. According to Oscar Hammerstein II, chairman of the council, interest of publishers is of prime import to council in possible exploitation of material. He added that he will bring before the next meeting of Council a proposed plan to bunch together songs selected by judges during the month and let publishers hear them en masse.

RKO Sales Group Head For NY Session

Bert McIntyre, RKO western district sales manager; Harry Cohen, Los Angeles branch manager; Dave Cantor, Pacific Coast exploitation man, and four salesmen from the local exchange head for New York today and company's sales convention, opening at the Waldorf Astoria July 12 for four days. Coast group expect to return July 22.

SWG Reviewing 1938 Policy War Stand For Amending

Wartime policy committee of the Screen Writers Guild, headed by Prexy Mary C. McCall and four former heads of organization, are reviewing the Guild's 1938 Statement of Policy to seek means of revising and amending it as a statement of SWG's wartime aims and activities. Other members of the group are John Howard Lawson, Ernest Pascal, Dudley Nichols, Sheridan Gibney, Edmund Hartmann, Morgan Cox, Arthur Horman, Frances Goodrich, Brenda Weisberg and Bess Taffel.

Final document will be submitted to a referendum of the Guild membership. First formal report already has been made to the Guild Executive Board, but it is understood considerable work remains to be done before the document will be in final shape for consideration of scriveners.

Knox, Woods Get Leads In U's 'Hi Ya Sailor'

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

The third day of the Nazi offensive has come and gone without success for the Nazis.

That sets me thinking: Is it a real offensive? Could it be that Hitler is trying to mislead the Allies into postponing their threatened invasion of the European continent by a display of his military might?

Time is the one thing Hitler needs more than victory. He needs it to rebuild his blasted areas and to transport his war industries to new and safer locations.

It is strange to behold a Nazi army fighting without total superiority. They look like a rather sorry bunch of supermen with an inferiority complex.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

LETTER just received by Cliff Work, at Universal, from Leslie Warner, former assistant director, stationed as yeoman at Dutch Harbor, Alaska, gives good picture of entertainment situation at that northern outpost. 'USO shows are continually arriving and pushing out farther into the active theatre. They are doing a great job and the boys are really appreciative. Then, too, an item of mutual interest is the motion picture angle. We have several theatres here and there are motion pictures every night. This is by far the most popular entertainment and every night is an SRO night. It is true that the pictures are not the latest, but then, at outposts like this, pictures do not have to be dated to be enjoyed. Because of mixed audiences, comedies and action pictures are by far the most popular. Biographies, psychological studies and heavy dramas are not so well received—the boys want action and laughs. ''Pittsburgh'' was well liked, particularly the fight sequences, and Dietrich is still ''Legs'' Dietrich to the boys. However, a girl like Gracie McDonald really sends them home with a gleam in their eyes. ''Arabian Nights'' was unanimously acclaimed, the color, action and lovelies all they could ask for. Montez caused a great deal of comment.'

TO use his personnel to best advantage, since manpower counts for more than formerly in special categories, Walt Disney cast his art, animation and technical assignments on 'Victory Through Air Power' as carefully as other studios cast their performing talent. And having found very tangible rewards in such casting, Disney intends to make future assignments on animation features in the same manner. Among the cartoon craftsmen some are more capable in one type of animation, some in another—some excel on boats and marine subjects, some on human or animal characters, some on landscape etc. Formerly, with less rigid economies of time and labor, cartoon drawing assignments were less carefully made. Present care, Disney says, is only way in which he has been able to carry on his job, 92% of his production being on trainingfilmsfor armed services and other government films. Disney plant lost 27% of its personnel to military services.

MEAT rationing is having its direct effect upon the use of cattle droves in western pictures. Beef-on-the-hoof owners figure that a steer used in a stampede or run-through on a western film location wears off as much as 100 pounds in a couple of days, and 100 pounds of steak and chuck is something not to be tossed away into the unrationed atmosphere and turf. So, cattle stampedes are going to be talked about much more than shown in forthcoming prairie sagas. One careful producer of westerns in his last four pictures has used exactly one real live calf, although the quartet has been about rustling.

OVER at Universal they have sort of gotten away from the idea that it took 'Genius' to turn out a U Deanna Durbin film. 'Her's to Hold' recently completed is said to be the tops of the Durbin pictures. It had a new producer in Felix Jackson who worked on story as well and a brand new director, Frank Ryan, to bring into the stellar ranks. Also the picture did not run into costs as have been accumulated heretofore, with indications being it will be the top grosser of the Durbin starrers.

They were sitting in the clubhouse on the shore of the River Styx, McGraw and Chance, reading the Seven-Spark edition of the Daily Asbestos and tossing off sparks of wonderment as they viewed the baseball race in the National League.

'Another feud between the Giants and the Cubs,' said McGraw.

'And what a feud,' said Chance. 'Your boys are battling to beat mine for last place. I hope you win.'

'That sounds like a dirty crack,' retorted McGraw.

'It ain't as dirty as the cracks you made when you were sitting in a dugout and I was playing on first base.'

'You were playing on a dime.'

'O, yeah!'

'O, yeah, and listen—'

A baseball writer, covering every front and conversant with all the batting and pitching averages, hesitates to tell you who is going to win the World Series next October. He picks winners under orders from the sporting editor, relayed from the managing editor who doesn't know anything about it, either. If anyone could tell you positively who is going to win a World Series, or a Kentucky Derby, or a traditional football game, or a heavyweight championship fight, there wouldn't be any more baseball or hoss racing or educational football or non-educational prize fighting. In the film business you can take a slant at the marquee and predict what boy goes into a romantic clinch with what gal in the final reel, but the producer is taking a chance, whether it is the right boy clinching with the right gal or whether it is the right story. It is a slim chance—about the same as a guy takes when he is running his own roulette wheel. Any producer who can't make money out of a picture nowadays ain't got no ear for music.

Trade Showing

Bomber's Moon

(Melodrama)

Twentieth Century-Fox production. Stars George Montgomery and Annabella. Features Kent Taylor, Walter Kingsford, Martin Kosleck, Dennis Hoey, and Robert Barrat. Supporting Cast: Richard Graham, Kenneth Brown, Lionel Royce, Victor Kilian, Felix Basch, Edith Evanson, George Davis, and Ilka Gruning. Directed by Charles Fuhr. Produced by Sol M. Wurtzel. Screenplay by Kenneth Gamet. Original by Leonard Lee. Photography by Lucien Ballard. Film editor, Robert Fritch. Special photographic effects by Fred Sersen. Art direction by James Basevi and Lewis Creber. Music by David Buttolph. Musical direction, Emil Newman. Tradeshown in L. A. July 7, 1943. Running time, 69 MINS.

'Bomber's Moon' hits the tag end of the cycle of numerous pictures depicting escape from the Nazis and Gestapo. Hewing to familiar lines, and decidedly unimaginative throughout, picture makes unsuccessful attempts to generate interest in the trite proceedings. At best, it will have to be content with filler datings in the secondary duals.

Direction credited to Charles Fuhr (latter is a synthetic name) actually goes to Edward Ludwig and Harold Schuster, both who handled about equal parts of the picture. Neither distinguished themselves. Original by Leonard Lee and script by Kenneth Gamet combine the usual synthetic dramatics previously displayed in 'escape from the Nazis' cinematics, for yawning reaction.

Picture opens with George Montgomery an American bomber pilot who crash-lands near the coast after a bombing expedition into Germany. He's sent to Oflag prison, and celled with Kent Taylor, who's supposed to be a Czech but in reality a Gestapo agent assigned to expose secret underground leaders.

Pair escape, along with Annabella, a Russian interne, and then it's the usual chase to the coast—with Taylor killed when he attempts to give the Gestapo information on the underground workers. Girl boards a fishing boat for safe journey to England, but Montgomery takes more spectacular course of grabbing a German plane from an airfield to make the cross-channel trip. Naturally the American flyer and Russian girl carry on the usual romance enroute.

Montgomery, Annabella, Taylor and other members of the cast struggle valiantly with the material at hand, but it's too heavy a burden for the players. Camera work by Lucien Ballard takes full advantage of the numerous sets provided.

Screen Exhibits A & C for Jury

Jury of nine men and three women hearing trial of Hyron K. Schwartz's $100,000 plagiarism suit against Universal took time off yesterday afternoon to visit film company's projection room to see 'Pardon My Sarong', Abbott and Costello comedy which plaintiff charges was lifted from his 'South Seas Bound,' or 'Hockshop.'

Projection room trip was to acquaint jury and Superior Judge Caryl M. Sheldon with 'Pardon My Sarong' and portions which Schwartz charges were lifted from his story. Suit, seeking $50,000 actual and $50,000 exemplary damages, charges studio had possession of plaintiff's script for several months. Universal denies all allegations.

LEWIS LOVING FILM UNIONS NOW RAP HIS STEWARDSHIP

tification, even admiration amongst the ranks of working people. At a time when the thoughts and efforts of all workers should be riveted to the goal of a global victory over Fascism, he has brought their attention to a diversionary pecuniary war at home.

'By resorting to a nation-wide strike in war time, John L. Lewis has wreaked havoc with labor's aims in fighting the war. We might dwell at length on the damage done to Labor, to the consumer, to the morale of our armed forces and to American unity as a whole. Suffice to say that he has brought down the wrath of public and congressional opinion upon the labor movement and has marred labor's true contribution to the war effort.

'As bad as the repercussions from the coal strike have been, the treason of Lewis, nevertheless has served one good purpose. It has demonstrated anew the wisdom of labor's no-strike policy and emphasized more than ever the patriotism of the vast majority of American workers who are rigidly adhering to it. But, above all, Lewis' strikes have pointed to the inescapable truism that Labor must throw away its mighty peacetime club and step forward to fight in a new and more dynamic fashion.

'Labor has infinitely more at stake in the present world-wide revolution than in carrying on a separate struggle with industry. Labor's new battle line is a front against Fascism in any of its forms at home or abroad. Shall we let the lesson that John L. Lewis has taught us sink in? Then let us put the idea of work stoppages firmly behind us for the duration.'

Local 683, together with the Screen Office Employes Guild, Screen Cartoonists Guild and other picture crafts recently tried to put the Central Labor Council on record as reaffirming the American Federation of Labor no-strike pledge, but motion was defeated.

tually swamped with protests and demands that first checks be paid in full. Extras claimed they needed coin, that many had not been working regularly, and that they would have to file complete returns at the end of the fiscal year, anyway.

Extras said calls to the SAG were so heavy that many of them were unable to get through. They said calls to Central were referred either to the studios or the Guild, that studios said it was the law, and that even less satisfaction was received from the Revenue Department. It is understood Guild officials are looking into situation to see if any remedy can be found, but that situation is difficult to handle because of casual employment of extras and fact that they may work at three or more studios in any one week.

Extras insisted some relief should be found to give them all coin possible until such time as they actually had to file and make final payments. Group leaders pointed out that Florine Bale, regional director of the American Guild of Variety Artists, had worked out situation where variety performers, including club daters who work for $12.50 per call, were declared individual contractors, with result that payments are net and no deductions are made, leaving it to player to pay tax at end of year.

WIDEN IATSE-IBEW BREACH AS LATTER TRAINS JUICERS

Breach between IATSE and the IBEW over electrical jurisdiction in the studios was widened yesterday when the IB announced opening of a training school for IA juicer permit men who have been admitted to membership in IBEW Local B-11. Contending the IATSE was issuing juicer permits to laborers without any attempt to qualify them, the IBEW declared the men had applied for IBEW cards and said they would be thoroughly qualified when called upon to work in the motion picture industry.

Business Manager George (Curley) Davis, of Studio Technicians Unit of IB Local B-11 said:

'The Studio Technicians Unit of B-11 of the IBEW is now opening their school Monday morning, July 12, for the purpose of giving all of our members a thorough knowledge of illumination, and especially the large number of men who have applied for and received memberships in B-11. We are of the firm belief that these permit men are not fully qualified to efficiently perform the duties expected of them in the motion picture industry. Therefore, we are opening this school at once so that our members will be fully prepared to go into the film industry as soon as we are called upon to supply the industry with skilled set electricians.

'These permit men are members of Local 727 of the IATSE and were given permits by Local 728 of the IATSE, to go into the motion picture industry to work as set riggers and lamp operators without any schooling whatever. This has caused a terrific amount of friction between members of Local 728 and the permit men which, in all, it seems to me, Local 728 missed the boat about a year and a half ago when it refused to set up a school to instruct the very men it is now trying to recruit, knowing that the three armed services of Uncle Sam and the war industry were going to take over half of their membership and that it would be impossible to supply the motion picture industry with skilled set electricians.'

Fight was opened recently when Davis advised major studios his union was prepared to supply the industry with all skilled electricians necessary, without the necessity of companies paying time and a half as currently to get men. It is understood Producer representatives at that time notified the IATSE unless it furnished sufficient juicers the industry would call upon the IBEW to supply men.

SENATE MOVES TO WHITTLE DOWN FCC AUTHORITY SEEN

Washington, July 7.—Powerful Senate support for the White-Wheeler Bill to rewrite the Federal Communications Act and whittle down FCC authority was indicated here today, as Sen. Robert A. Taft, Ohio Republican, called for recess hearings on the bill and demanded suspension of the network regulations until after Congress acts.

Taft, one of the Republican Senatorial leaders, spoke strongly in favor of the networks and asserted that: 'The Supreme Court decision (in the WEB case) goes far beyond any intent of Congress.

'There is as yet no Federal agency in control of the press, and there is as yet no Federal bureau which licenses the press. But what is true of the newspapers is no longer true of the radio—the blood-brother of the newspaper as an instrument of free speech.

'Destruction of the networks under the FCC regulations,' he asserted, 'would be itself a serious limitation of expression within the United States.'

Dempsey Wins Divorce From Wife In NY

'Info Please' to 'War Bond Please' Switch

New impetus to the sale of War Bonds to help build the $40,000,000 cruiser, U. S. S. Los Angeles, was felt yesterday at Victory House in Pershing Square when 'Information, Please' quartet—Clifton Fadiman, Franklin P. Adams, Oscar Levant and John Kieran—appeared to vary their spiel to 'War Bonds, Please.'

Treasury Department's model of the ship will be paraded through downtown streets today from 11:00 a. m. to 3:00 p. m., to bolster sales. At 11:30 a. m., it will be launched in May Co.'s downtown store, with Joan Leslie, Warner star, officiating with bottle of champagne. Sale of War Bonds for cruiser will take place in all downtown stores, those participating in first $100,000 receiving lapel tags, inscribed, 'I helped buy the keel of the cruiser U. S. S. Los Angeles.'

Winchell All Blue

Walter Winchell, here for Sunday's broadcast, goes Blue Network all the way beginning July 18, over a hookup of 149 stations. New airing time of 6 p.m. removes the necessity of a rebroadcast. Winchell has been under Jergens sponsorship since Dec. 4, 1932. He remains here for several weeks.

Obituaries

CHARLES E. STEVENSON

Funeral services were held yesterday for Charles E. Stevenson, 55, who died Sunday at Palo Alto Veteran's Hospital. Stevenson, a star in the silents, put in 14 years with Hal Roach. He began his early screen work with Vitagraph, Fox, Select and First National. His last picture was Paramount's 'Dr. Fu Manchu.'

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Stevenson of Los Angeles.

REGINALD BARLOW

Colonel Reginald Barlow, legit and film actor, 76, died in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital yesterday. His stage and screen career covered a period of over 40 years. He was a commander in World War I.

The deceased was born in Cambridge, Mass., the son of Milton G. and Martha Barlow. His father was a professional. He was educated at U.C.C. in Toronto, Canada, and the Royal School of Infantry in Canada. He entered films in 1916 in N. Y. and came to Hollywood in 1931. His last picture was 'The Courageous Dr. Christian' which he made at RKO in 1941.

Barlow is survived by his widow, Carol, who lives at 12085 Valley Heart Drive, North Hollywood. Military funeral is being arranged by Pierce Brothers Mortuary.

MRS. CARLO CESERI

Mrs. Carlo Ceseri, early snake dancer under the name of 'Norska' and featured for several seasons with the Buffalo Bill Wild West show, died yesterday in Maywood hospital after a long illness. Her first public appearances were made at the age of 16 when she made a pet of a snake and was inspired to develop a routine with the reptile. By a former marriage she was wed to Al Stander, rodeo champion and a daughter of this union is Geraldine Stander, woman's swimming champion of Wyoming. Funeral arrangements have not yet been announced.

According to both Berlin and Moscow, one of the greatest mechanized battles in the history of mankind is now raging on the eastern front.

The Nazis so far have been unable to secure the break through. This was ascribed by experts to the fact that the Soviets for the first time have an air force equal to that of the Luftwaffe. The Nazi effort is now nearing its zenith—if the Nazi pincer fails to close, and that, within the next few days, there is no reason why the jaws of that pincer could not be broken singly.

It seems to me a plain case of Nazi leadership having been outsmarted by Soviet leadership.

Washington, July 8.—Lowell Mellett has resigned as head of the OWI domestic film unit, Daily Variety learned tonight. The new man to handle liaison work between the Government and the motion picture industry will be selected with the aid of the industry and may come directly out of the industry.

Mellett's resignation was brought about by two things: (1) The shrinkage of his organization to the barest skeleton size as a result of Congressional action in reducing the OWI domestic budget to $2,750,000; and (2) disagreement in policy with several other leading figures in the OWI domestic branch.

WAR Advertising Council's special broadcast over NBC hookup of 138 stations July 14 to spur wider use of government messages will be the occasion for a buffet breakfast to be tendered at Radio City by Sidney Strotz, NBC western division chief, to merchants, agency heads and other users of advertising media. Vittles will be served by Dave Chasen in studio A at NBC following the airing from New York at 7:30 a.m. Matutinal spread will be under joint NBC-KFI auspices. On the program to sound pleas for double the lineage and air time of last year by advertisers will be Donald M. Nelson, Elmer Davis, James Byrnes, Marvin Jones and Chester LaRoche, chairman of War Advertising Council. In a closed-circuit talk last Tuesday LaRoche cited figures to show the extent to which national advertisers have cooperated with the war effort. Total contribution of all advertising concerned with the war in the past year amounted to $250,000,000. Twice that sum is needed this year due to curtailed operation of Office of War Information. Object of the expenditure is to supply the home front with information needed for a wholehearted war effort, which national leaders claim has been sagging. Radio industry has pledged its full cooperation in disseminating informational data and advertisers are being asked to go along to the full extent of the campaign mapped by War Advertising Council.

DICK DICKSON, Harry Sherman's associate producer on 'Buffalo Bill' for 20th-Fox, knowing something of Indian guile, outmaneuvered a couple of chiefs with their respective braves on location at the Crow reservation near Hardin, Mont. Redskins are working in the picture. They like their siestas, on working time. First Chief Yellowbrow of the Crows came to Dickson and proposed to make him an honorary chieftain. Fine. But the ceremony would require three hours' time. Yeah? Second proposal to stop work while they made him a chief also came from Chief Stands In Timber of the Cheyennes. Total proposed time out, six hours. Fine, said Dickson, but the ceremonies would be performed—after the picture was finished, when the 500 Indians had gone off the payroll. May call Dickson Chief Wait a While.

Retakes

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

When curfew tolls the knell of parting day
The lowing herd sits down and goes to sleep.
The cattle snore beneath the Milky Way,
For they have heard about the price of beef.

Time was when they were routed from their feed
By phoney rustlers in the moon-lit glow
And urged to gallop in a fake stampede
To make a sequence in a picture show.

And then came war and steaks went soaring high
And bovine muscles drew a lofty price
And steers and dogies walked serenly by Like stock or bond investments laid on ice.

No more the herds stampede on yonder plain
For steers grow tough and skinny when they run.
Producers ask for sweating herds in vain—
At least, until this global war is done.

Before science discovered how to make an ice rink out of electricity, water and a few gallons of chemical whatnots, skating was strictly a seasonal pastime. Sometimes your grandpop rode the hoss car out to the baseball park and paid 15c to skate in center field, which had been flooded by a hose from Engine Co. No. 4 across the street, in return for which flooding the firemen achieved free access to the Western League ball games in the summer time. Your grandpop enjoyed skating in the ballpark except at certain times when he was doing a figure-eight and tripped over a rock or a tin can which had not been completely inundated. There is nothing so provoking to a skater as a crash dive on his right ear in the midst of a figure-eight. Sometimes your grandpop went up the river above the dam and skated to his heart's content until the ice cutters got busy with their horses and saws. After the first crop there was only a token of ice, smooth but deceptive. There is no fun swimming with a pair of skates on your feet. Grandpop's grandsons can skate all summer nowadays without fear of frigid drowning but they miss one boyhood pleasure—thawing out a frostbitten ear. In the classroom on a Monday morning the hero was the kid with the biggest, reddest ears.

Danger! Women At Work

PRC production. Co-features Patsy Kelly, Mary Brian, Isabel Jewell, Wanda McKay, Betty Compson, Cobina Wright, Sr. Supporting cast: Allan Byron, Warren Hymer, Michael Kirk, Vince Barnett. Director, Sam Newfield. Producer, Jack Schwarz. Associate producer, Harry D. Edwards. Leon Fromkess in charge of production. Screenplay, Martin Mooney. Original story, Gertrude Walker, Edgar G. Ulmer. Photography, Ira Morgan. Art director, Frank Sylos. Sets, Harry Rief. Editor, Robert O. Crandall. Previewed in Hollywood, July 8, 1943. Running time: 60 MINS.

Good idea which might have been developed further, 'Danger! Women at Work' contrives acceptable entertainment which should evoke mass approval. Theme is fresh and topical, with good measure of comedy thrown in tailored to suit PRC audiences. Picture has been given motivation which direction by Sam Newfield holds to strict course.

Story revolves around idea of Patsy Kelley, gas station attendant in Los Angeles, being left a 10-ton truck by her uncle. She decides to go into the trucking business with her two pals, Mary Brian, taxi driver, and Isabel Jewell, sister station worker, and after much argument with a trucking company talks her way into promise of a load in Las Vegas.

Gambler engages truck to haul his paraphernalia to Las Vegas, and main story unfolds en route to Nevada. Girls pick up Cobina Wright, Sr., society matron suffering with amnesia, Betty Compson, crystal ball gazer, and Wanda McKay, runaway heiress. They're also pursued by pair of hipackers and pair from finance company with legal papers to stop them from taking truck across state line, as well as couple of detectives intent upon catching up to heiress.

Out of this heterogeneous array of plot emerges a screen play with attributes of general appeal, sum total accented by comedy. Light touch has been maintained throughout, screenplay by Martin Mooney responsible for laughs. Patsy Kelly carries load with her customary gusto, and remainder of cast adequately support her. Jack Schwarz and Harry D. Edwards have made the most of their opportunities on production end, photography by Ira Morgan is up to his usual standard.

Film Reviews

Frontier Fury

(Western with Songs)

Columbia production. Stars Charles Starrett, with Roma Aldrich, Arthur (Arkansas) Hunnicutt and Jimmie Davis and his Singing Buckaroos. Others in the cast: Clancy Cooper, I. Stanford Jolley, Edmund Cobb, Bruce Bennett, Ted Mapes, Bill Wilkerson, Stanley Brown, Joel Friedkin. Director, William Berke. Producer, Jack Fier. Story and screen play, Betty Burbridge. Photography, Benjamin Kline. Film editor, Jerome Thoms. Art direction, Lionel Banks; associate, Perry Smith. Interior decorator, Robert Priestley. Assistant director, William O'Connor. Sound engineer, Lambert Day. Reviewed at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, July 8, 1943. Running time: 53 MINS.

'Frontier Fury' is fast and furious, slam-bang action fare for the Charles Starrett fans, featuring, as usual in his oaters, plenty of fisticuffs, etc., to please in the market. Action starts early and keeps going strong all the way with exception of occasional time-out for some excellent prairie music by Jimmie Davis and his Singing Buckaroos. Numbers are good but do stop the pace until completed.

Starrett turns Indian agent in this, and when, despite a trick to throw robbers off, he is relieved of $15,000 in government gold, earmarked for the redskins, he is fired and sets out to find the gang. Holdup was committed by renegade whites disguised as Indians but Starrett spots them as phonies and traces back on coins that were in the loot. He does it in highly satisfactory style but gets himself into plenty of difficulties while running down the gang. Tossed in is an Indian medicine show with a girl performer that eventually leads Starrett to the head of the gang.

Arthur (Arkansas) Hunnicutt furnishes the comedy as a peddler of insurance in the west. Roma Aldrich adds the femme interest and others in the cast include Clancy Cooper, leader of the outlaws, I. Stanford Jolley, Edmond Cobb, Bruce Bennett, Ted Mapes, Bill Wilkerson, Stanley Brown and Joel Friedkin.

William Berke's direction gets results from the original scripting job by Betty Burbridge in this Jack Fier production. Benjamin Kline's photography and other credits measure up.

Monogram has stirred up a neat, suspenseful western in 'The Stranger From Pecos,' another in the Johnny Mack Brown series and which should have no trouble hitting its mark. Brown and Raymond Hatton continue their characters established in preceding oaters, but this time Brown does his man-hunting with a new badge as a United States marshal instead of free-lancing as in the past. Legality shows Brown's 'Nevada' character, a fast gun-slinger out to round up scattered members of an outlaw band, in a better light.

Jess Bowers' script, as well as direction, keeps the action fast and the characters well-defined. Brown carries his search to the desert town of Blakewell, finds the sheriff heading a gang of killers that frame the innocent for their murdering and robbery. He pulls some fast ones on the bad boys, for a time appearing as bad as the gang until Hatton rides in in his usual U. S. marshal role and finds Brown is also doing his shooting for Uncle Sam. Pair team to remove a murder frame from a young man, discover the town banker is real kingpin of the baddie setup and settle things for a swift finale.

Both Brown and Hatton do sturdy team work in this, showing up as an excellent pair of wild west heroes. Kirby Grant and Christine McIntyre carry western romance, nicely projected. Sam Flint, Roy Barcroft, Charles King furnish the dirty work while others also okay include Steve Clark, Robert Fraser, Edmond Cobb, Bud Osborne and Artie Ortego.

Harry Neumann's camera work on this Scott R. Dunlap production measures up and musical score is an aid in outlining Hatton's character.

Thomson NY's On NEIC Two-Day Session

Kenneth Thomson trains for New York today, to attend two-day session of newly organized National Entertainment Industry Council conference board July 14-15. Meeting was called to determine how the industry can best function for an all-out contribution to the war effort, bolstering morale among the armed forces and the home front. War Department and other Government agency leaders will outline needs for morale building and for support of the National War Fund and Treasury Department campaigns.

THIRTY seconds after you enter a book shop you should walk out with a copy of '30 Seconds Over Tokyo' by Capt. T. W. Lawson, published by Random House. For $2 it's entertaining, enlightening and thrilling. Those 30 seconds that Lawson and his crew consumed in dropping destructive messages over Hirohito's domain are vividly described, as are the period of training for the event, trip to the jump-off spot on the Hornet and the subsequent adventures of Lawson and the other members of the mission after landing in China. Stuff contained in the book is natural background for a thrilling film as well as a message to the home folks that it takes guts to go through an experience as did Lawson and the other members of the Doolittle squadron that wreaked havoc in Japan. . . . 'Drunkard' Habitual, in 11th Year of Run And Going Big admission change since it opened was a 10-cent bump 10 months ago.

Almost complete absence of tourist business since the war began hasn't hurt the attendance. Defense workers from all parts of the country filled the slack. At the beginning local people, then the film crowd kept the house at capacity. Film stars brought the tourists, and they were responsible for sellouts until Pearl Harbor.

An estimated 2,191,200 bottles of beer have been served gratis in the 9,125 performance hours of the show. As hard liquor isn't sold or served, and must be checked at the door if carried, there hasn't been a single brawl or scuffle.

Cast of 15 still features six original members: Sam Ethridge, the hero, Jan Duggan, Neely Edwards, Larry Grenier, Ada Lilly, and George Stuart.

Most of them have bought homes with their earnings. Two company deaths during the run, Tom Biller and Jeffrey Williams, both played the same part: the aged philanthropist. Two picked up by film scouts, Nester Pivan and Henry Kleinback, also played the same part: the villain. Jan Duggan, the Bowery Nightingale, in the Olio (after show), has doubled between the show and almost every major studio. The three male leads, Sam Etheridge, Nester Pivan and George Stuart, now double on the Vega graveyard shift after the show.

Show claims the distinction of being the only legit to put on regular performances exclusively for service men. These Sunday afternoon performances have been playing to gratis houses for the past 10 weeks.

Many memorable evenings include a night during the '38 flood when it was the only show in Los Angeles; a night in '35 when Will Rogers raised his hand from the audience and asked for permission to put on a dance with Fred Stone; and a time when Will Hays got up and sang a solo chorus of a song he recognized in a quiz contest.

per cent over this year's quota with 50 per cent less product, sales personnel at the second of company's three regional meetings were told today at opening session at the Hotel Blackstone. Executives attribute increase to longer runs, more percentage deals and bigger theatre attendance throughout the country.

Kalmenson and Joseph Bernhard, vice president, addressed meeting today, stressing fact that growing manpower shortages may eventually create real problems for the industry and again announcing Warners' open door policy for exhibitors. Bernhard said principal aim currently is to keep organization going until normal staffs and normal working conditions return in referring to manpower difficulties. He also outlined general business situation under wartime conditions and government controls. Kalmenson spoke on sales policies and flexible number of releases set up to meet any market conditions.

Separate group meetings were held in the afternoon by Roy Haines for his midwest and southern divisions. Messages from Jack L. and Major Albert Warner, Charles Einfeld and Mort Blumenstock were read at early get-together and 'Watch on the Rhine' and 'Thank Your Lucky Stars,' new season features, were screened in the evening. Tomorrow morning Kalmenson will present 1943-44 lineup and business sessions will windup in the afternoon with a number of small group meetings slated for Saturday morning.

MELLETT RESIGNS OWI POST, SCHAEFER MAY SUCCEED

setup, will be assigned to other duties by the President in the near future. Nobody knows yet what they will be.

The successor to Mellett, it was indicated, will not be appointed until after Palmer Hoyt, new head of the OWI domestic branch, confers with leaders of the film industry and the War Activities Committee, probably the latter part of next week.

One report here was that Hoyt would ask the industry to suggest candidates for the job. OWI is expected to be very careful in its choice of a successor. It is generally recognized in Government circles that Mellett operated in close harmony with the industry and was well liked by film men. OWI wants another man who will be equally well-liked in view of the fact that the industry will be asked to do a larger job than ever and shoulder a much heavier financial burden.

It is known that Palmer Hoyt has long been in favor of using established means of communication, newspapers, magazines, radio and film, for government messages, rather than the issuance in Washington of pamphlets and brochures and the like. The indication is that the motion picture industry will produce a lot of instructional film for the government as the government itself goes out of the film business.

Choice of George Schaefer, present head of the War Activities Committee, to take the spot vacated by Mellett is considered a likely one in view of the fact that Schaefer has long been the liaison man between the industry and Washington, knows all the elements involved and would be acceptable to both the national leaders and Hollywood.

At Alexandria, Va., last night, it was stated that Mellett had just left home and that no information was available as to his destination. His close friend, Harold D. Jacobs, was reported in California.

Last night it was reported that the picture business is launching a campaign to keep Lowell Mellett in his job as film coordinator. Frank Freeman, head of Paramount studio, sent a wire to the White House in behalf of the Producers' Associations asking for Mellett's retention.

tops of the picture biz. Speaking before an assembly of business leaders of the Greater Los Angeles area at the Blossom Room of the Hollywood-Roosevelt Hotel, Coe declared:

'The motion picture is the greatest instrumentality of education open to man.'

And in its new chore of educating the world, Coe declared that it is in its role of an entertainment medium that the motion picture can conquer ignorance.

'The first offensive against ignorance must be knowledge,' he said, 'whatever imparts knowledge easily and pleasantly rouses ambition and routs ignorance.

It was before the audience of a banquet given by the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce that Coe spoke. The dinner inaugurated a closer relationship between business in general and the motion picture industry. A guest of honor was Governor Earl Warren, who planed in for the gathering. The Governor voiced a tribute to the film industry as did John B. Kingsley, president of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce. Coe was introduced by Judge Harlan G. Palmer, 'as a representative of an industry which, in making its home among us, has made us known as the motion picture capital of the world.'

There were more than 400 persons present. Seated at the speakers table were: Bert Allenberg, Fred W. Beetson, Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz, Nate Blumberg, Manchester Boddy, Commander A. J. Bolton, Richard A. Carrington, Jr., I. E. Chadwick, Norman Chandler, City Attorney, Ray L. Chesebro, Councilman Lloyd D. Davies, Walt Disney, Frank P. Doherty, Supervisor John Anson Ford, Y. Frank Freeman, Frank K. Galloway, Don Gilman, Henry Ginsberg, Samuel Goldwyn, Will H. Hays, Jean Hersholt, Chief of Police C. B. Horrall, District Attorney Fred N. Houser, Henry K. Hyde, Mrs. Leland Atherton Irish, Colonel Nathan S. Joy, E. B. Kahane, John B. Kingsley, Charles Koerner, Louis B. Mayer, Judge Harlan G. Palmer, J. P. McGowan, Bishop Joseph McGucken, Brig. Gen. Raymond E. McQuillan, S. D. Mandle, George Marshall, Assemblyman Franklin J. Potter, Leonard Reed, A. Bernard Shore, E. J. Shurtz, M. J. Siegel, Sidney Strotz, Donald W. Thornburgh, Walter Wanger, Jack L. Warner, Governor Earl Warren, Lewis Allen Weiss, Judge Emmett Wilson, Cliff Work and Loyd Wright.

The banquet featured a Hollywood innovation, a double-decked dais for the guests of honor. On the upper deck sat Chamber of commerce, civic, state and Army notables. On the lower deck were ranged leading representatives of the studios.

LA Theatre Defense Lead Is Copied by Other S. C. Cities

Results obtained locally in preparations of theatres for wartime emergencies by the Los Angeles Theatre Defense Bureau, are leading to plans for similar organizations in other Southern California cities. Other bureaus would operate individually, using LATDB as model and headquarters for dissemination of necessary information.

Currently being formed is a Santa Monica defense bureau. Beverly Hills has already established a bureau, with Tom Baily, director of the Los Angeles organization, as head. Similar setups are being contemplated for Huntington Park, Inglewood and Glendale.

Los Angeles TDB has majority of theatres in its defense setup, only 70 not participating in audience protection safety measures, etc. Efforts are being made to bring these outsiders into the organization without resorting to pressure from Civilian Defense headquarters and the Fire Department.

EXTRAS' TAX BITE HELP FADING, NEED NEW BILL that would hold up such deduction pending action by Congress.

Shelvey, in wire to Florine Bale, AGVA western regional director, stated:

'Relative to your telegram, advise we are doing everything possible on withholding tax problem. Have had national counsel in Washington with Internal Revenue Department for past month. We are attempting to get exemption for all artists on withholding. However, Internal Revenue Department advises this cannot be done except by act of Congress, and they are willing to assist us toward passage of bill covering same when Congress reconvenes in fall.

'Artists most definitely should have contracts read they are independent contractors and if theatre and cafe operators insist upon withholding tax we can have money returned to them after exemptions are made for artists in fall or directive order that we expect from Internal Revenue Department, recognizing artists as independent contractor, which will hold until Legislative action by Congress. Be assured we are doing everything humanly possible and will wire you moment Internal Revenue Department gives directive order recognizing artists as independent contractors.'

In the meantime, 4,700 film extras, through group leaders, are insisting that the Screen Actors Guild join with AGVA in asking that they, too, be declared independent contractors. Extras are particularly peeved that deductions are being made from every check, regardless of earnings and dependents.

Order Reserved Policy For SP Coach Travel

With travel continuing to congest all forms of public transportation systems, the Southern Pacific has announced that effective July 16th travelers will find it necessary to make reservations for all coach trips.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

As to the foreign situation there is an interesting mathematical problem which addicts are welcome to figure out.

General Giraud, instead of General DeGaulle arrived in Washington. Two days later invasion of Europe took place. The Nazis are on the receiving end of blows from all sides, which makes at least three at present.

President Roosevelt says, 'It's the beginning of the end.' The problem now is, how far are we from the end?

The answer will be given by the United Nation's forces within the next ten days.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

WRITING in The Deseret News, Salt Lake City's largest evening paper, Ralph B. Jordan, formerly with local I. N. S. office and now managing editor of Utah sheet, analyzed secret of Harry Sherman's success as a producer. In two-column blowup on front page, Jordan gave voice to subject which may prove of guidance to other producers. Article attributed Sherman's success to fact he always followed one formula . . . he peopled top characters in his pictures with CLEAN YOUNG MEN AND LOVELY DECENT GIRLS. And set them against a background of beautiful mountains and horses and lots of action, never deviating from this pattern. Jordan pointed out that many topflight people in every walk of life—noted authors, painters, business men, professional men and statesmen, producers and stars, even —who seldom or never patronize movie palaces where 'big' pictures show, attend little theatres ehibxiting only westerns . . . and reason for this is that they like clean stories, clean people, and clean ideas, along with good looking casts and beautiful backgrounds. Harry Sherman pictures strike this note, Jordan asserts . . . he keeps his pictures clean and exciting, thereby drawing an enormous audience and reaping a fortune for himself.

SECRETARY to a studio executive is reported as having been the cause for turmoil that resulted in cleaning out of its publicity department. Head of department protested to studio head that secretary was interfering with his department and resulted in her being taken off payroll. Her boss took trip east and is understood to have torn department apart to head of company with recommendations being made to clean out the entire staff and put in new method of operations under the New York offices which is being done.

THERE were plenty of American film subjects on hand in North Africa to be shipped into Sicily for troops and population as the invasion of the Italian Island got underway. Studios have been dubbing pictures in seven languages so that as soon as the invaders get set in their areas and conditions permit the civilian population will be shown American pictures. Murray Silverstone, foreign head of 20th Century-Fox functioned as liaison for the off shore forces with the studios and distribution organizations of the American companies on having the film coming through so that plenty is always in reserve, overseas.

FIRST major attempt of the Soviet film industry to dub Russian dialog into an American-made production is a success. Picture is 20th-Fox's 'In Old Chicago,' one of the first American films sold for Russian export some months ago. Soviet film trust dubbed Russian dialog throughout, with only songs by Alice Faye remaining in original American form on the soundtrack. Other American pictures acquired by the Soviet under recent film-purchasing deal are now in process of dubbing, while 'In Old Chicago' is hitting brisk biz pace in opening run in Moscow.

TIME magazine, in current issue, devotes slightly more than a column under Medicine to describe research and accomplishments of Jack Dawn to correct disfigurements of service men between period of convalescence from injuries and successive operations via plastic surgery to restore normal features. Dawn, head of Metro make-up department, is credited by Time with devising plastic for moulding replacements of disfigured portions of visible injuries; which can be stuck on in proper places with wetting of alcohol. It's just another unusual contribution to the war effort by the resourceful technicians and engineers of the film industry.

SUCCESS of RKO producer Casey Robinson's scheme to enlist new talent for his picture, 'Revenge,' by sending director Jacques Tourneur east to make screen tests of promising personalities may pave way to general practice of procedure for finding new faces. Robinson discovered four new personalities whom he cast in his picture, from tests made in New York, and tests reveal several other promising players whom he may call to Hollywood later. 'Revenge' has total of 12 important parts, four of which were cast in this fashion, which chalks up good percentage for idea.

In radio as well as films, ambitious actors refuse to be typed. Donald Bain achieved distinction as the voice of an owl on the airwaves, but do you think he was satisfied? Not Donald. His next success was the voice of a cricket and now he commutes daily to a boys' camp in yonder hills to perfect a vocal repertoire. Some day a genius will arise to imitate the voice of a giraffe.

Gals are riding all manner of vehicles today, ranging from bulldozers on the desert to race hosses on the Agua Caliente track. They rode hosses in your grandpop's time, but snootily, arrayed in derby hats and voluminous garments and perched on the steed's starboard beam in what was known as a side-saddle. You can probably find one of them (meaning a side-saddle) in a public museum, displayed between a dinosaur and a 35c table d'hote dinner. It was a drama, 'In Old Kentucky,' that introduced the femme jockey to a startled world. She Has What It Takes

Columbia. production. Features Jinx Falkenburg. Supporting cast: Tom Neal, Constance Worth, Douglas Leavitt, Joe King, Radio Rogues, The Vagabonds, Matt Willis, Daniel Ocko, George McKay, George Lloyd, Robert Homans, Joseph Crehan, John H. Dilson, Barbara Brown, Harry Hayden, Curly Wright. Director, Charles Barton. Producer, Colbert Clark. Screenplay, Paul Yawitz. Story, Robert Lee Johnson, Paul Yawitz. Photography, Philip Tannura. Editor, Al Clark. Art direction, Lionel Banks, Paul Murphy. Sets, Joseph Kish. Musical director, M. W. Stoloff. Songs: 'Let's March Together,' Saul Chaplin; 'I Bumped My Head On a Star,' Cindy Walker; 'Honk, Honk,' Roy Jacobs, Gene DePaul; 'Timber, Timber,' Don Reid, Henry Tobias; 'Moon On My Pillow,' Charlie Elliott and Henry Tobias. Reviewed at Pantage Theatre, Hollywood, Calif., July 9, 1943. Running time: 64 MINS.

Lightweight backstage musical, 'She Has What It Takes' is Columbia's latest effort to establish Jinx Falkenburg as a musical star. Actress' personality and beauty put her over, rather than songs she sings. Too much plot slows down action, but there are bright moments on stage, especially as presented by The Radio Rogues in their impersonations of faomsu personalities. Picture is generally engaging and should do well as supporting feature.

Studio repeats tried and true formula of chorus girl masquerading as someone else to get her break on the stage. This time, Jinx professes to be daughter of a famous theatrical light of the past, who, though she helped many to gain their fortunes, died alone and in poverty. Broadway columnist, who believes her story, gets her a job with producer who got his start with the 'mother,' and show is financed by quintet who were financed by late departed star. Story then is based upon efforts of woman reporter to show up Jinx as an imposter, and methods used by producer, columnist and others to circumvent her so show can open.

Screenplay is none too adroit at times and picture comes to too abrupt a conclusion. Despite this, direction by Charles Barton is well handled, who tries hard to overcome hurdle of script. He shows to advantage Miss Falkenburg, who is gaining ease with each successive appearance. Tom Neal plays columnist, and Constance worth portrays one of those flip lady reporters who talks back to her boss, as screen writers always have them do. Joe King is excellent as producer and rest of cast is up to par. The Vagabonds are in for several amusing eccentric song numbers, notably, 'Timber, Timber,' written by Don Reid and Henry Tobias, and 'Honk, Honk,' co-authored by Roy Jacobs and Gene DePaul. Philip Tannura handled cameras and Colbert Clark is credited as producer.

Oboler Yarn To Metro For Two Reeler

Metro has bought Arch Oboler's dramatic yarn, 'This Precious Freedom,' which will be made into a two-reeler with Claude Rains starred. Piece was originally set up for General Motors, which passed it up due to the controversial nature of the story. Original radio play, from which the film version was adapted, was kudosed in 1941 as the best air drama of the year. Yarn deals with fascist rule set up in America.

The Ghost and the Guest

(Comedy-Drama)

PRC production. Stars James Dunn, Florence Rice. Features Mabel Todd, Sam McDaniel, Robert Dudley, Eddy Chandler. Supporting cast: Jim Toney, Robert Bice, Renee Carson, Tony Ward, Anthony Caruso, Eddie Foster. Directed by William Nigh. Produced by Arthur Alexander and Alfred Stern. Leon Fromkess in charge of production. Screen play, Morey Amsterdam. Original story, Milt Gross. Photography, Robert Cline. Musical director, Lew Zahler. Sound engineer, Croson Jowett. Assistant director, Lou Perlof. Sets, James Altweis. Editor, Charles Henkel, Jr. Reviewed at the Vogue, Hollywood, July 9, 1943. Running time: 59 MINS.

Old chestnuts keynote the dialog and story theme of this programmer making it tedious at times, but there are enough complications to gain the interest of those who don't demand too much from a double feature. Fact that it doesn't deal with the war will make it a passable interlude on a battle-heavy program.

James Dunn is a crack-a-minute lawyer who marries willful Florence Rice at the beginning. Her father gives them a ramshackle farm as a wedding gift, and she switches the honeymoon there—where most of the action takes place. Spot formerly belonged to a gangster, who willed it to his hangman the previous week. In return, the now-retired executioner decides to give him a decent burial, and the coffin arrives a few minutes after the honeymooners. They call in the yokel police, and they in turn are followed by members of the mob looking for their leader's hidden loot — filling the house with unwanted honeymoon guests. Much is made of this situation.

Escaped prisoner, who traded places with the corpse, sneaks out of the coffin and starts roaming secret passageways. Attempts to chill come in here, but they fall flat. Matter comes to a quick close after all but one reel are spent establishing the premise. Escaped con and Florence Rice go after the carved image containing diamonds at the same time. Naturally, her screams bring all present to the scene of battle, and the police make the arrests.

Dunn and Rice virtually knock themselves out trying to make the forced, corny dialog sound like conversation. Mabel Todd plays the usual scatterbrained Mabel Todd; and Sam McDaniel and Robert Dudley try their hardest to make characterizations of a chauffeur and eccentric hangman funny—without much secc.

Imaginative photography by Robert Cline created the illusion that the picture covered a lot of ground, in this effort directed by William Nigh.

KGB's Fuller To KHJ As Asst. Program Head

Sid Fuller, manager of KGB, the Don Lee-owned outlet in San Diego, has been transferred to KHJ as assistant program director to Van Newkirk. Management of the border station passes to Fran Ide. Another appointment made by Lewis Allen Weiss, headman of the Don Lee chain, is that of William Evans as assistant manager of KGB. Two KHJ production execs, Dave Young and Wally Ramsey, are shedding these official duties to devote full time to preparing new shows for fall sponsorship.

'The Robe' Readership Claimed Largest For Any Film

RKO's Frank Ross, who returned yesterday from New York claims that his forthcoming production, 'The Robe,' will have the largest reader audience of any picture ever filmed. He stated that Simon-Shuster, publishers have arranged for distribution of the novel through Sears-Roebuck Company, similar to the book-of-the-month club.

Starting in September, the novel, 'The Robe' will be given to subscribers as a dividend book, having been chosen by the Gallup Poll, as the most interesting reading. Sears will carry four page insert in color in its catalogue and feature it in displays in 3,000 stores nation wide.

sel, who made the disclosure said that Miller had been completely exonerated, and asserted that the charge had been filed by Frank M. Russell, NBC vice president, as a result of a conversation he had in Chicago with James L. Fly, FCC chairman. Fly, on the witness stand at the time, hotly denied any Russell connection and said he had not been in Chicago at the time alleged by Garey.

Meanwhile the probe moved into the big league, as it was disclosed that President Roosevelt had ordered the War and Navy departments not to release to the committee documents which the Cox Committee wants to use in connection with its allegation that Fly has hindered the war effort.

Yesterday Garey released a copy of a memorandum submitted to the Navy more than a year ago by Rear Admiral Stanford C. Hooper, USN. retired, but at that time director of Naval Communications. Hooper made several charges against Fly and the FCC in connection with the war effort.

Fly issued a prompt denial and virtually dared the Cox Committee to give him a fair hearing at which he could prove that Hooper was incorrect.

Top plug tunes of the week, as logged over the major networks, NBC, CBS, Blue and Mutual, are being listed alphabetically, not numerically, under a new accord between the music publishers and song pluggers union, as a means to curb the payola evil. Thus, it is figured, the normal competitive methods, sans artificial stimulation to get on top will tend to eliminate some of the petty bribery, etc.

AFRA Rules 'Modern Screen' Must Pay Full Air Fees

'Modern Screen' series scheduled to start for a 42 week period middle of August of this action. The union expects the agency to accede to the ruling. If not members of AFRA will be forbidden to work on the program.

AFRA board ruled that the program is not primarily picture exploitation as it is sponsored by a commercial concern, and that no matter what its nature is as long as institutional or product advertising is done stars and feature players must be paid their regular salaries, even though scenes from pictures in which they appear are scripted for radio shows.

The question as what to do in connection with the Procter and Gamble new 'Hollywood Theatre' series was not decided at the New York meeting, but most likely the union will take stand as it has in the 'Modern Screen' series.

Studios most likely will endorse and collaborate with AFRA on the ruling, though former has contract with Screen Actors Guild that permits players to appear on radio programs exploiting films for minimum union pay. Matter of Lennin-Mitchell broadcast was submitted to Publicity Director Committee recently with request that each studio permit them to use at least three picture scripts during series without reimbursement to talent on grounds of exploitation. This was turned down flat, with publicity directors telling them to get AFRA ruling. With ruling made, the basic idea of shows must be submitted to Publicity Directors Committee as now and later it is said it will approve it under condition that none of AFRA rules with respect to pay of talent is broken.

Should Modern Screen go through with program according to the ruling of AFRA it is figured that an additional $125,000 will be added to the original budget of the show.

Understood studios are satisfied with the ruling as they feel had Lennin and Mitchell gotten by with the 'exploitation' instead of commercial phase of the show various columnists who have been in the habit of snaring free talent would be on the market again to head radio shows and have the studios in a turmoil to satisfy their whim in scripts and talent for their shows.

WLB Takes Over Wax Dispute, Accepts Jurisdiction

strike against the disc manufacturers. One report is, that when it takes jurisdiction WLB will set up a panel to determine the question.

What the Labor Board will attempt, will be to work out some form of agreement under which the musicians can resume manufacture of transcriptions.

Friday's session was along the expected lines, with Petrillo and his attorney, J. A. Padway, arguing there was not a strike; and A. W. Socolow, attorney for the transcription companies insisting there was a strike.

Petrillo's testimony highlighted the proceedings, when he said,

'All I said in August was that we weren't going to make any canned music. From that time on I have been pushed all over the country. I have had my picture taken going home, coming down, going to the restaurants—and cartoons. I read the papers every morning as to what I said yesterday that I didn't say.

'These people don't understand that the party is over. You can't take our musicians and sell them and sell them and sell them, without the musicians receiving compensation—In other words, we are not going to our own funeral any more. That's what it amounts to. We listen to it being played while we stay home, you see.'

On the question of real importance raised by Socolow in response to the AFM contention that it is through with the transcription field, went unanswered at the hearing.

'I challenge the union,' Socolow said, 'to tell us whether or not they are abandoning jurisdiction in the field completely, permanently and perpetually. If the union takes the position that they are no longer interested in making recordings — making electrical transcriptions, they have no objection to those being made by others or by members of this union, that they disclaim jurisdiction over, I want it said here and now, so we will know where we stand.'

Warners Hopes to Solidify Present Distribution-Exhibition Policies

dressing yesterday's sesh, pointed out to Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin delegates, that one of the major tasks of the motion picture industry in the post war era will be the safeguarding of six important gains achieved in the present era, which were attained in a large measure through close co-operation between sales organizations and exhibitors.

Gains listed were: Extended runs, higher quality product, substantial inventories of completed film before start of selling season, increase in percentage deals, expansion of film audience to all time peak and more equitable box office prices. 'In matter of extended runs, 70 per cent of exhibs have now been won over to wisdom of this policy from a profit standpoint in addition to being a protective measure under a war time economy,' Bernhard, pioneer and consistent advocate of maximum playing time, said.

Those attending yesterday's session among other operating execs included James E. Coston, Zone manager; Alex Halperin and Frank Williams, bookers; Larry Stein, Herbert Wheeler, Marcel Brazee and Al Kvool, district managers and Harry McDonald, Milwaukee Theatre manager.

Chicago, July 11.—Warners home office executives left here today for San Francisco where third of and last of a series of regional sales conferences will be held starting Thursday. Heading west were Ben Kalmenson, geleral sales manager; Arthur Sachson, Roy Haines, A. W. Schwalberg, Norman H. Moray, Howard Levinson and Albert S. Howson.

Company concluded its midwest sales get-together here yesterday with special group confabs on individual branch matters. Joseph Bernhard planed for New York late Friday.

Ben Kalmenson announced national trade showing of 'Watch On the Rhine' for July 26, along with 'Murder on the Waterfront.' He also introduced three new salesmen, Frank Carter, former booker promoted to sales spot in the Memphis branch, and Herb Blass and W. O. McFall, newly appointed at the Minneapolis branch.

EXPECT 300 AT RKO NY THREE DAY SALES SESH

Nearly 300 delegates will gather at Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York today for opening session of RKO's three day sales meet. Prexy Ned E. Depinet, will call the twelfth annual meeting to order.

Mexican Film Threat Seen

Mexico City, July 11.—Increased quality of Mexican-made features generally during the past year, is providing more than passing threat to domination of American pictures in theatres of this country.

Total of 24 domestic-produced features were released during the first six months of this year—figure doubling that of same period a year previously. According to estimates of close observers, the Mexican pictures are gradually creeping up to corral nearly half of box office revenue in competition with the American product.

SOEG Polls Members Of Classes One, Two On Overtime Bid

Screen Office Employes Guild is sending wage questionnaires to all studio members in Class one and two, preparatory to asking the War Labor Board for approval of adjustments of overtime payments in these classifications when 48-hour week becomes effective. The SOEG said that in many cases the longer week will result in inequities between the earnings of members in Classes One and two as contrasted with earnings of members in Classes three and four because of the method of overtime payments used for the two former divisions.

KPRO 'Try For A Pass' Airer Gets Bids

Radio station KPRO in Riverside who sponsored 'Try For a Pass,' program has networks bidding for it. SAG Meets Tonight On Craig Appeal, B's Autonomy Screen Actors Guild Board of Directors at its meeting tonight will pass on the new trial motion of Hal Craig, suspended bit player, and will discuss autonomy plan for extras with a group of essential players. Craig was set down for one year because of a protest to the War Manpower Commission in which he said the SAG was 'producer controlled.' His triple motion asks the judgment be vacated, seeks a new trial and appeals from the decision to the Class B membership.

SAG Board members are still trying to work out an autonomy plan for Class B members and representatives of the essential players will be asked to make recommendations. There has been some talk that Herbert Sorrell, business representative of Moving Picture Painters Local 644 and prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, might be asked by the SAG to aid in setting up a union for the extras because of his popularity with rank and file film workers.

FIRST '43 HALF TOPS ALL '42 HVC WAR EFFORT WORK

A new record for Army camp entertainment, bond selling and other patriotic activities was established by Hollywood personalities during the first six months of 1943. Activities during that period nearly equalled their accomplishments for the entire year of 1942, the Hollywood Victory Committee announced last night.

Players made a total of 5,876 appearances in the six months ended July 1, compared with 7,620 for the previous year. Approximately 350 personalities participated in Victory Committee activities each month, with a top figure of 496 in May.

Averaging eight performances each, entertainment troupes gave 334 camp shows in the Southern California-Arizona area, and 88 personalities made camp tours covering more than 400 Army, Navy and Marine stations throughout the country. A total of 14 stars have gone overseas to entertain in combat zones so far this year. Since Jan. 1,1656 new names have been added to the HVC roster, making a total of 2,046 personalities who have contributed their services to entertainment activities.

Cancel Capt. Miller's Initial CBS Airer

New York, July 11.—Captain Glenn Miller's initial CBS broadcast with Army Air Force Band of 40 pieces was cancelled Saturday morning just before show time by order of War Department. Reasons for the cancellation was still vague, but it was understood that the blackout stemmed from lack of proper clearance with army brass hats. CBS claims that program will debut next Saturday. In addition to musical program, airer was to have included dramatic bit based on army life by former actors Broderick Crawford and Damien O'Flynn. Some sources claimed this probable portion of show objected to by the War Department.

Play Review

TWO MRS. CARROLLS

New Haven, Conn., July 11.—American premiere of 'Two Mrs. Carroll' at Shubert Friday indicates a possible repetition of London successes following a polishing process. The material is there for a suspensful chiller, though present curtain is not too strong. Familiar angles about the artist who loves too many women are offset by a mystery-and-attempted-murder thread that holds the audiences interest.

Production is strengthened by Berguers good performance which maintains a quality tempo throughout the plays two acts.

Jory, as the artist is topflight and Braggiotti pleases as an ex-fiance. Added good support is given by Irene Worth as the other woman.

Fine technical features two attractive sets and numerous handsome dress creations. Staging, which is done by Denhams is typical edge-of-the-seat stuff.

Gershwin Role to Alda In WB's 'Rhapsody'

Robert Alda, night club m.c. and former vaudevillian, gets George Gershwin role in Warners 'Rhapsody in Blue,' part marking his screen bow. Jesse L. Lasky production is slated to roll under direction of Irving Rapper July 19.

Joan Leslie goes into role opposite, in fictitious character, and Morris Carnovsky will play Gershwin's father. Part of Max Dreyfuss, music publisher, goes to Charles Coburn.

Quintet of names will portray themselves, Paul Whiteman, Al Jolson, Oscar Levant, George White, and Al Galladoro, who was Whiteman's chief clarinetist when he recorded Gershwin's song.

Takes $100, Leaves $50 From Orpheum Actor

When Ralph Brewster left his dressing room to do his turn on the Orpheum stage yesterday he left $150 in the pocket of his coat hanging on a hook. When he returned $100 of this money was gone he told police. Whoever had taken it had left the remaining $50 for some reason.

Must Make Spanish Pix Or Can't Import Them

New York, July 11.—Spanish government has issued new regulations on film productions, which permit only companies that produce Spanish pix the right to import foreign films. New rule requires producers have picture script approved by a Production Board which has the right to make changes in the script or the picture itself, while board must approve budgets and minimum expenditure requirements. Move is expected to have effect on Spanish production because producers there have no guarantee they will get license to import foreign films.

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, July 11.—The industry is about to have new competition. The Axis puppet government of Croatia (part of Nazi-occupied Jugoslavia) has set itself up in the picture production biz. Axis-conrtolled Croatian radio station Rakovika burst its bombshell last week in a Croatian-language broadcast aimed at this country. It is all going to be very artistic, according to the broadcast and there is already in production a 'Croat film review,' presumably a newsreel.

In addition, t is claimed, a number of propaganda documentaries have been made—'For the Race of Croatia,' 'The Youth of Croatia,' 'Festival of Liberty' and 'Drine Sentinel.' It was also announced that 'Homeland,' a film on the life of Vatraslav Lisinski, Croatian composer, is now under the kleigs.

'The Croat film industry,' said the broadcaster, 'recognized the necessity of films to be used for entertainment, and work of this kind has already begun. In the shortest possible time, large film studios will be built. Taking all of these facts into consideration, we may conclude that our young film industry has enjoyed its full success. Also our youth with its new spirit (Nazi line) required the production of a new series of films.'

Oh, yes; there is even a government-issued periodical 'Hrvatski Slikopis'—'Croat Film' to you.

What got the Croats started, they claim, was that the industry was 'non-Aryan,' and was in the 'hands of individuals who used this method for their own financial gain' daring to export pictures to Croatia. It was also charged that in the old days, Croatian business 'used films to further its own ends, whether they fitted or not.'

Maybe you can figure it out.

OWI TOME TOPIC

Don't be surprised if, in the near future, the magazines are flooded with articles pro and con on the subject of OWI. Elmer Davis' staffers, now being dropped and quitting because of the short-changed budget allowed by Congress are in a steaming mood and many of them are writers.

Several are already at work on books and at least one has a book all completed, to be offered to a publisher if and when he leaves the payroll.

What his ex-brood will write and say about OWI is not the least of Davis' worries, these days.

Argentina is still getting German films shipped through Spain on Spanish boats. The only silver lining to this cloud of Axis propaganda, according to Government officials here, is the fact that precious cargo space must now be used for prints.

Formerly, the Nazis sent negatives to the Argentine and U. S. raw stock was used to make prints of Axis pictorial messages. Now that the Argentine's raw stock allotment has been cut so sharply by this country, it's no dice on making prints in Buenos Aires.

Here's one to interest the film carrier trucks in the gasoline scarce East. CIAA ran into the same problem in Latin America where gasoline is generally as precious as liquid gold, at present. Since the Rockefeller outfit has a tremendous job to get its 16 mm. films and portable theatres around South America, in many places it is now using trucks fueled by charcoal.

Don't laugh. We may come to that yet.

WYLER BROADCAST

In case you missed that recent brief broadcast by Major William Wyler over the Army Hour, the portion on aerial combat motion picture photography is worth repeating here. Said Wyler of the difficulties:

'There aren't many openings for a camera. You're cluttered up with a 'chute, oxygen equipment, a Mae West heavy flying suit, inter-communications system, gloves, camera. You try to squeeze yourself into a small space under a machine gun.

'About that time, the glass you are trying to see through gets fogged up or your camera freezes. Then when you're all set to shoot forward, the principal action takes place astern. You focus; your exposures vary from one side to another, into the sun and out of it.

'You can't move around too much, because you're on oxygen and you may pass out. Hot cartridges are coming down your neck. Also there are many other camera gremlins, but it has often struck me funny that while the Hun is shooting his .20 mms. at us, I'm shooting his picture.'

Washington hears nice things about the show put on for Bing Crosby at Camp Carson, Colorado, when Bing was made an honorary commanding officer. And how is he getting along with the song he promised to write for the boys at the 50th Hospital Unit there. . . . Did you know that the music to 'Dirty Gertie from Bizerte' were written by Sgt. Paul Reif, composer of 'Isle of Capri.' . . . Olivia de Havilland has been picked as first choice for 'Dingy Girl' by a bomber unit in North Africa. (Dingies are those little inflatable rubber rafts carried on planes that travel over water.) Other choices were Rita Hayworth, Betty Grable, Lana Turner, Betty Hutton and Linda Darnell. One man voted for Shirley Temple on the grounds that 'She's the only star who won't have died of old age by the time we get home.' . . . 'There's Something About a Soldier' is the working title of a short Columbia has been making at Camp Davis, N. C. Deals with experiences of an officer candidate at an anti-aircraft artillery school, and is earmarked for public showings. . . . And ask Carole Landis what happened when she walked by the shower room during her visit at Camp McCain, Miss. . . .

ISING IN CAPITAL

Major Rudolph Ising has come back to town to work for a while with the motion picture division of Army Air Forces. . . . Here's a laugh. Although Frank Capra's 'Prelude to War' hasn't done too well at its public showings in this country, they're yelling for it south of the border, according to CIAA. Only prints in the Latin countries have been those in the hands of U. S. Naval and military attaches who have conducted a number of restricted showings. Reception was so favorable that CIAA is now arranging to send down a number of prints for general distribution. . . . And while on the subject of Capra, little Pix Theatre here is running a series of seven consecutive revivals of his top smashes, each lasting one week. Columbia execs. are reported watching the experiment with interest. If it clicks, it may be tried out nationally, it is claimed. . . . Selznick film, 'A Day With Madame Chiang Kai-Shek,' will be distributed to the Latin countries in shorter Spanish and Portuguese versions. . . . New MGM short, 'By Different Ships,' is being made (or to be made) on basis of material contained in the USO pamphlet 'By Different Boats.' . . . Movietone News and News of the Day will get a good hand in Brazil with the newsreel clip of that country's top aviatrix, Senhora Anesia Pinheiro Machado, who is now taking special training at Houston, Texas.

Confidential reports from Norway say that virtually a complete boycott of Oslo theatres is still working. . . . All male theatre employees in Norway between 18 and 55 must now contribute one month's labor to the national labor service. . . . The Vichy French, who are busy trying to make everything look good, shoot broadcasts to this country bragging about the program of visual education they are going to set up in their schools—if and when they get the films and projectors. To listen to them tell it, every classroom will have its own projector.

War Agency Heads in Radio Appeal for Ad Cooperation

Biggies of the federal war agencies in Washington will participate in a special broadcast originating from NBC Hollywood next Wednesday morning. Airing will be aimed at American business men and advertising agencies to gain their whole-hearted support for wider use of government war messages in advertising.

Featured in the broadcast will be James Byrnes, assistant to president; Marvin Jones 'Food Czar'; Donald Nelson head of WPB; Elmer Davis of OWI and Chester J. Laroche, chairman of the War Advertising Council.

Broadcast will be preceded by a buffet breakfast with radio leaders, ad men and the press as guests.

Overseas 'TITA' Units Rehearsing Here

Guided by Irving Berlin, two sections of 'This Is the Army' which will go overseas for performances in separate sectors with the armed forces, are rehearsing at the old Vitagraph studio. Working with Berlin is Robert Sidney of the Army as dance director.

Scenery to be transported with the 'Army' show is being revised to conserve space.

Industry at $500,000 Cruiser Bond Mark In LA Drive

Hollywood's film industry soared beyond the $500,000 mark at the end of the first week of the special July campaign to sell enough extra bonds to build the Cruiser Los Angeles, according to an announcement made today by Henry Ginsberg, Chairman of the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, War Savings Staff, Treasury Department.

Although a large number of individual cash purchases have been made, the bulk of the $500,000 in extra bonds represented added investments by 17,000 subscribers regularly enrolled on weekly payroll allotments.

leaves his post on July 15, and Arch Mercy, who had been Mellett's chief aide in the film unit here, is expected to obtain a commission in the Army and go into active service shortly, so that Mellett's successor will start with a clean slate in Washington.

Discussing the future of the film bureau in his statement, Davis said, 'Our funds will not permit any production of motion pictures by OWI for domestic use. We will, however, continue to discharge our responsibility for the coordination of government films and for liaison between the government and the motion picture industry. We are indebted to Mr. Mellett for the establishment of cordial and satisfactory relations with the industry, which we hope may continue.'

Easting-Westing Fade Hurts NY Airers

New York, July 11.—Radio and advertising agency officials in the east are becoming concerned over growing dearth of talent for network program guest shots. Star names, most of which are centered in Hollywood, are shying away from trips east due to wartime restrictions on travel, and inability to obtain train accommodations.

Film names who do make the jaunt east, generally come under travel priorities for camp show tours and because of the desire to entertain the service men in camps and other bases, they have no hankering to take radio shots while on such trips. Evaporation of film talent for radio guestings is turning officials to the legit for replacements, but it is admitted that this source of supply is limited in comparison to film names from the coast.

Harris To Army Scripts

Ray S. Harris has returned to Astoria on another series of writing chores for the U. S. Signal Corps as a civilian scrivener, after short interval at home here.

Argentine Raw Film Situation Serious

Buenos Aires, July 11.—Argentina, which asked for 42,000,000 feet of raw film stock and received limited allotment of 7,200,000 feet for 1943, figures that reversal of governmental policies from original stand of pro-Axis will gain consideration for a substantial increase in footage available.

Local film industry, in lodging strong complaints against inequitable division of film between various producers and distributors—with charges that many newcomers and opportunists were horning in to use quota of raw stock as basis for promoting new companies—has been able to secure governmental consideration for a complete re-shuffle. Unless new government can secure concession from the United States for substantial increase of film footage for the year, local industry will be in hard straits.

Canteen Hosts 7,500 Men Over Weekend For New Record

The past week end saw the biggest assemblage of star names at the Hollywood Canteen since its opening nine months ago. According to Canteen figures approximately 7,500 servicemen representing all branches of our fighting forces were entertained on Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon.

Mickey Rooney headlined the show Friday night, with Nancy Walker, John Garfield, Gloria de Haven and Jess Barker in support. Lynn Bari, Ruth Hussey, Rita Quigley, June Carlson, Dewey Robinson, Sheldon Leonard and Herbert Rawlinson were on hand at the Snack Bar, dance floor and autograph stations to help along.

Kay Kyser and his orchestra headlined the Saturday night show, relieving the 410th Air Force Band who had come in from Douglas, Arizona.

David Forrester's Canteen Symphony Orchestra performed Miklos Rosza's, 'The Thief of Bagdad Suite' for Sunday guests and Harry Rosenthal's orchestra furnished the dance music.

See Wired Programs To Our Alaska Troops

New York, July 11.—Possibility of wired network programs to the American troops in the Alaska sector is seen in completion of the Signal Corps telephone line spanning the 2,000 will stretch between Edmonton, Canada, to Fairbanks, Alaska.

Although the line is designed primarily for military messages, there'll be one channel available most of the time for plugging in radio broadcasts for transmission to the troops stationed in the north.

HOUSE REVIEWS

CAPITOL, N. Y.

Spitalny, per usual, is the showmanly leader, brief in his introes and respectful to the capabilities of his band as well as the sensitivities of his audience. He has the wherewithal to entertain and he knows how to use it. His musicians' exemplary stage deportment could be a lesson to the rest of the band biz; their ability to play without music stands is something to turn every male crew green with embarrassment.

THERE ARE NO AGE DIFFERENTIALS IN AUDIENCE ENJOYMENT SO FAR AS SPITALNY'S BAND IS CONCERNED. At this reviewing, Friday (25) afternoon, there were as many youngsters as adults in the jammed theatre—and the reception was tremendous all the way. That Spitalny's classy presentation and Evelyn's fine arrangements of polite and hymnal music can key up all age groups is best pictured by the fact that applause often breaks out in the middle of the band and choral numbers.

It's difficult to dissect the show for standouts with everything on such a high plane. The opening medley of victory songs is a highlight; ditto Evelyn's masterful fiddling of 'Begin the Beguine' and then, with the 'magic strings' group behind her, 'Intermezzo,' with the arranger crediting the late Leslie Howard for bringing that tune to the front. There's a decided audience hypo when Maxine and the choral group sing 'Johnny Zero' and 'Ave Maria'; another click is Vivian's lyric sopranoing of 'Indian Love Call,' and then a finale boff with the entire group singing a stirring arrangement of Sousa's 'Stars and Stripes Forever.' That's the windup of a 44-minute show that holds more entertainment than can be found in the average show running twice as long.

SHREWD SHOWMANSHIP, FINE MUSICIANSHIP AND CONSUMMATE STAGE CRAFTSMANSHIP PARLAY PHIL SPITALNY'S ALL-GIRL CREW HERE INTO ONE OF THE BEST BANDSHOWS YET SEEN ON BROADWAY. All the component parts that are inherent in a superb entertainment have been given extra values by the maestro, including $9,500 spent for new costumes that would do justice to the finest musical. They make every femme in the band look like a Powers model—and that plenty of people will be looking at them is a cinch. With Spitalny's own basic boxoffice values, there's also 'Stage Door Canteen,' with its 48 stars, to insure terrific grosses for the length of the run here. . . . Scho.

JUNE GOLD MINE FOR EXTRAS

TOPS '42 BY $50,000 AS CALLS UP

Film extras hit a virtual gold mine during June, it was disclosed yesterday when a recapitulation of job placements by Central Casting Corp. showed total earnings for the 30-day period as $337,441.70. While this was a decline of approximately $20,000 from May, it carried the total earnings for the first six months of this year to well over $1,800,000. This also was an up of around $50,000 over June, 1942.

There was a total of 26,088 job

MELLETT IN FAREWELL TO FILMS

Washington, July 12. — Warm farewell tribute to the film industry was voiced here today by Lowell Mellett, whose resignation from the Office of War Information film bureau becomes effective Thursday.

'I am firmly convinced,' he said, 'of how highly important motion pictures are in the war. They are doing a really fine job, and I leave with the highest respect for the industry.

'I enjoyed my contact with Hollywood. I went into the job with qualms, for I was utterly inexperienced and had heard that it was an industry of strong, clashing personalities. However, at no time did I receive anything but utter cooperation.'

Mellet will take a short vacation, then will set up an office at the White House as a presidential aide.

Hope Airs From Wales

Bob Hope will do a broadcast from Bristol, Wales, Saturday at 11:30 a.m. PWT, acting as emcee for a show to be staged for United Nations armed forces. Airer is Hope's second from Great Britain since he went abroad. Vic Oliver, son-in-law of Winston Churchill, also will appear on show.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

The invasion of Sicily is, 'progressing according to plan and schedule,' at this time it looks as though a decisive battle between Nazi mechanized forces and General Patton's armored division will break out in the region of Agrigento.

It seems that the consolidation of the occupied territory is continuing very satisfactory, and thus chances are that General Patton's battle hardened tank divisions will be able to repeat their Tunisian successes.

The Invasion of Sicily seems to have a tremendous moral effect also on the eastern front, where the Nazis, in spite of tremendous efforts, have not been able to break through the defenses.

RKO PLANS 40 IN '43-'44, FIVE OUTSIDE PRODUCTIONS

CHANGE of plan this year from full sales conventions to regionals or meetings attended only by district and exchange heads, as followed by most companies, and switch to flexible production policy, has a sidelight affecting printers who serve the industry. Virtually none of the majors went for the usual ornate year books which are generally distributed to salesmen at the annual sesh. An additional reason was shortage of coated paper. A few studios put out enlarged brochures covering releases known to be set, but the big, beautiful, multi-colored product announcements were missing. One company which held a central meeting for its district heads and exchange managers issued a handsome, Life-styled book covering just one of their pictures. But the majority of pix planned got practically just a listing. Printing of year books always is looked forward to as a seasonal bounty not only by the press and type men, but by artists and engravers as well. Product announcement time always was the one occasion when the purse-strings were loosened widely and generously. But the spondulix, and the wide, sweeping orders for process engraving and the carte blanche orders to the art department are missing this season.

INCREASING number of completed scripts are being shelved by both major and independent companies due to inability to obtain suitable male leads carrying marquee voltage. Attitude of studio heads is to toss writing charges onto general overhead rather than take chances of production outlays of $500,000 and upwards without suitable insurance via drawing power in male spots. Scripts being cast aside for time being are generally those on non-war subjects, as the service dramas are generally prepared to utilize contract players that can easily be available when required. The war dramas, generally with virtual all-male casts, also dry up supply of men with varying degrees of name values, through castings in those pictures at the expense of the non-service features.

TURHAN BEY is one Hollywood player who, aside from his recent elevation to star rating at Universal, can no longer be cast in a heavy or derogatory role because of his nationality. He is a Turkish national and citizen, and Turkey is a cautious neutral in this war, wherefore any reference to that state or its people must be handled with extreme care in motion pictures. Bey's role in U's 'Raiders of the Desert,' changed in title from 'Flame of Stamboul' for the same reason, has been re-written and built up from the assignment which first had been intended for Sabu, with Maria Montez and Jon Hall.

Petticoat Larceny

(Comedy-Drama)

RKO production. Features Joan Carroll. Supporting cast: Ruth Warrick, Walter Reed, Wally Brown, Tom Kennedy, Jimmy Conlin, Vince Barnett, Paul Guilfoyle, Grant Withers, Earl Dewey, Charles Coleman, Cliff Clark. Director, Ben Holmes. Producer, Bert Gilroy. Screenplay, Jack Townley, Stuart Palmer. Music, Roy Webb. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Photography, Frank Reman. Art direction, Albert S. D'Agostino, Walter E. Keller. Sets, Darrell Silvera, Al Fields. Gowns, Renie. Editor, Harry Marker. Tradeshown in Hollywood, July 12, 1943. Running time: 61 MINS.

Tops for the nabes where juvenile stars are exploited and generally acceptable as supporting fare where plot and technique demands are not too rigid, 'Petticoat Larceny' presents the child actress, Joan Carroll, in a pleasing little film good for multitude of laughs. Achieving its sole purpose of entertainment, picture further establishes moppet as a light comedienne, virtue previously evidenced in RKO's 'Obliging Young Lady.' Story is strictly on lightweight side and reminiscent of many past plots where adults figured in leading role, but human element is stressed sufficiently to tickle popular palate.

Directed by Ben Holmes with the broad strokes script calls for rather than a subtle hand, tale concerns child star of radio, who, wise beyond her years, tires of corny type of script she dramatizes weekly in a Little-Nell-of-the-Underworld type of program and leaves her abode in dead of night for a sally into underworld, where she expects to pick up material herself for kind of show she wants to broadcast. She falls in with trio of small-time burglars, who take her for a safecracker when she burglarizes her own cafe, and straightaway put her under their respective protective wings.

There's the kidnap angle when her disappearance is discovered, for which her press agent is blamed, and later she is actually held for ransom when her protectors, believing her story that she is the daughter of a certain crook, turn her over to this worthy who in turn tries to collect for her return. Free-for-all brawl between p. a. and protectors on one hand and abduction outfit on other leads up to comedy conclusion, with newfound friends joining her on radio show.

Story is entirely fictional, not to be scrutinized critically, but suffices as a showcase for comedy the film offers. Starting out as a precocious brat, Joan soon switches over to appealing side and turns in bang-up performance of type story demands. She's ably supported by Tom Kennedy, Jimmy Conlin and Vince Barnett as comedy crooks, Walter Reed as publicist, and Ruth Warrick appears briefly as her guardian-aunt. Original screenplay by Jack Townley and Stuart Walker is well-paced, amusingly worked out, and Bert Gilroy is credited with production end. Frank Redman photographed with usual care and other departments add up.

Hopper Here Saturday

Washington, July 12.—Harold Hopper, chief of film division of War Production board will reach Hollywood on Saturday. Hopper will remain west about two weeks conferring with producers on film requirements for last quarter of 1943.

The Sky's The Limit

(Comedy-Drama With Music)

RKO production. Co-stars Fred Astaire and Joan Leslie. Supporting cast: Robert Benchley, Robert Ryan, Elizabeth Patterson, Margorie Gateson, Paul Hurst, Freddie Slack and his orchestra. Director, Edward H. Griffith. Producer, David Hempstead; Associate producer, Sherman Todd. Original screenplay, Frank Fenton and Lynn Root. Lyrics, Johnny Mercer. Music, Harold Arlen. Dances created and staged by Fred Astaire. Musical director, Leigh Harline. Art direction, Albert S. D'Agostino and Carroll Clark. Sets, Darrell Silvera and Claude Carpenter. Photography, Russell Metty. Special effects, Vernon L. Walker. Gowns, Renie. Editor, Roland Gross. Trade Shown in Hollywood July 12, 1943. Running time: 89 MINS.

'The Sky's The Limit' is notable, first of all, for marking a giant stride forward in Joan Leslie's screen career; second, for the colorful Fred Astaire character. It is an audience picture rather than a critics' treat, vagueness and story unfoldment offset by the charm of its principals and the dancing of the two stars. Unquestionably, it will draw at the box office, where the Astaire stepping is always welcomed and with the added incentive of Miss Leslie's allure it ranks as popular fare.

None too convincing is Astaire's portrayal of a Flying Tiger who returns to this country with two Tiger buddies to make a personal appearance tour of the nation. That characterization is established in a cluttered first reel. Thereafter star doffs his uniform for civvies for ten day leave, ducks out of tour and promptly falls in love with a beautiful young person he sees entering a night club. From there on it's nip and tuck between Astaire and the screen play writers, latter insisting in involving him in a romance which leaves audience as mystified at times as Astaire's screwball tactics do the lovely Miss Leslie.

Astaire and his co-star dance together twice, and while neither number presents the spectacular elements fans have come to expect in an Astaire film, they should be well received. Miss Leslie provides a charming partner and both in her dancing and her acting, she paces Astaire to the limit. Astaire's solo number, reckoned to be the highlight of the picture, is too studiously conceived to reach the pitch intended, and it is a far cry from matching the dancer's past offerings.

Situations allow for large measure of comedy, Robert Benchley taking precedence over others in this venture with a fat role as Joan's mag publisher boss. Femme star shows a natural tendency for timing, with Astaire feeding the lines, their bantering back and forth conducive to audience enjoyment. Outstanding is Benchley's contribution as master of ceremonies at a banquet, in which he makes an introduction by one of his familiar spiels.

Edward H. Griffith directed with a tongue obviously in cheek, having to hurdle an original screen play coauthored by Frank Fenton and Lynn Root which time and again nearly got out of hand.

Production values were well conceived and presented by David Hempstead, and photography by Russell Metty is artistic. Other departments add up as does the acting of those in support of principal. Freddie Slack and his orchestra appear and music was written by Harold Arlen and Johnny Mercer.

Hers To Hold

(Comedy-Drama)

Universal production. Co-stars Deanna Durbin and Joseph Cotten. Supporting cast: Charles Winninger, Evelyn Ankers, Gus Schilling, Nella Walker, Ludwig Stossel, Samuel S. Hinds, Fay Helm, Iris Adrian, Murray Alper, Douglas Wood, Minna Phillips, Nydia Westman, Irving Bacon. Director, Frank Ryan. Producer, Felix Jackson. Associate producer, Frank Shaw. Screenplay, Lewis R. Foster. Based on story by John D. Klorer. Photography, Woody Bredell. Art direction, John B. Goodman, Richard H. Riedel. Sets, R. A. Gausman, Ira S. Webb. Editor, Ted Kent. Gowns, Adrian, Vera West. Musical director, Charles Previn. Music, Frank Skinner. Original song, 'Say a Pray'r for the Boys Over There,' Jimmy McHugh, Herb Magidson. Previewed in Hollywood, July 12, 1943. Running time: 94 MINS.

This latest Deanna Durbin feature is right up to the minute, tuneful, entertaining, with sure-fire audience appeal. Co-starred with Joseph Cotten, actress turns in one of her most engaging and captivating performances, which permits her to sing quartet of song numbers, two of them popular type. Picture should gross at the boxoffice as a top Durbin presentation, and should be billed as such.

New producer and director, Felix Jackson and Frank Ryan, respectively, worked on 'Hers to Hold' with excellent results. Jackson was given able assistance by Frank Shaw, in his old berth of associate producer, much credit accruing to trio for success of film. Lewis R. Foster's screenplay based upon story by John D. Klorer is compact piece of writing, which Ryan's direction at all times keeps rolling. Star appears unusually lovely through photography by Woody Bredell.

Plot is timed to the present, Deanna playing a wealthy girl who takes a job in Vega airplane factory so she'll be near man she loves, Joseph Cotten. Cotten is a flyer, formerly of Flying Tigers, who's waiting his papers so he can fly again, the kind of a guy women run after and who isn't any too certain he wants Deanna. She makes him change his mind before he leaves for the wars, however, and Deanna goes back to her war job, where she warbles for Vega employes.

Some of scenes actually were filmed in vast Vega plant. Deanna plays a riveter, and her singing there of Cole Porter's 'Begin the Beguine' is the musical highlight of the picture. 'Say a Pray'r for the Boys Over There,' likewise sung at the plant, is an impressive song written for the star by Jimmy McHugh and Herb Magidson. Other two numbers she offers are 'Seguidilla,' from 'Carmen,' and 'Kashmiri Song.' Star is in splendid voice throughout.

Note of novelty is inserted in the running of footage from several of Deanna's early pictures, including her first, 'Three Smart Girls.' Scenes show star in process of growing up, to her present charming adulthood. Charles Winninger, who plays her father in film, is shown in several of these earlier shots, as well. Winninger's comedy is at its best in picture and he is teamed again with Nella Walker, as Deanna's mother.

Cotten plays straight, with light touch of comedy, and he gives outstanding portrayal. His pal in story, Gus Schilling, does a noble job of funstering, his best performance to

Joy Elected as 20th Prod. Assoc. Member, Succeeds Goetz

Col. Jason Joy was elected a Class B member of the Producers Association at yesterday meeting, on appointment from 20th-Fox. He succeeds William Goetz, whose resignation was accepted with regret.

Producers were advised by the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences that the last group of U. S. Marine Corps photographic trainees will complete their course next week. This group is in addition to 399 men trained by the industry at no cost to the Government, in both movie and still photography, who are now on active duty in the U. S. Signal Corps.

Herbert Freston, chairman of the Law Committee, reported on a series of meetings with the Council in connection with 50,000 enemy-owned patents which have been made available for licensing. Studio technical representatives have made a list of such patents that might be useful to studios. These will be subjected to careful study. The board recommended that the Council continue with further investigation of the patents which might be used in the motion picture industry.

Will H. Hays, prexy of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, discussed the current film situation in foreign territories and world-wide distribution of pictures after the war. He told of the vast territories that will be opened for distribution of pictures after hostilities cease, etc.

Pidgeon, Edwards Join USO-Camp Tours

Walter Pidgeon and Bonnie Edwards were announced last night as available to the War Department for a two-week USO-Camp Shows tour. They will open July 26 in a special act written by Nat Perrin, over a route yet to be set.

Jerry Colonna and Jinx Falkenburg also have accepted assignment to appear Friday night at Oakland Civic Auditorium to stimulate enlistment of harvest workers.

George Sanders and Ellen Drew will top the 'Soldiers With Wings' broadcast from Santa Ana tomorrow night. Set for radio transcriptions are Fibber McGee and Molly, Edward G. Robinson, Dick Powell, Ann Miller, James and Lucile Gleason, Marion Hutton and the Modernaires.

Bette Davis Due In

New York, July 12.—Bette Davis dropped into town on completion of her vacation at her New England farm, and pulls out for the Coast during the coming week to report to Warners for her next starrer, 'Mrs. Skeffington.' Script is being prepared by Philip J. and Julius G. Epstein.

FLY BLASTS AGAIN AT COX PROBE AS PUBLICITY BID

Washington, July 12.—New sock was taken at the Cox Committee investigating Federal Communications Commission by Chairman James L. Fly of the committee at latter's press conference today. 'The conduct of the proceedings, gearing everything to avoid a hearing and to make a cheap and irresponsible bid for publicity,' said Fly, 'seems to answer the question of the fairness to be expected. The investigation was punitive and irresponsible in its origin.'

'The proceedings follow the pattern of the original expressed attitudes. Everybody must be shocked by the conduct and the methods and processes of the committee. At the same time, I can't see how any of us can assert that we're surprised—anybody, that is who has followed the proceedings.'

placements during the month, with an average daily wage of $12.93. This was an increase in the average daily wage of 20 cents over the previous month. This is attributed largely to adjustments and overtime, particularly in the $10.50 classification.

Expenditures for $10.50 extras amounted to $192,339, while $55,489.50 was spent for $16.50 players. The gross for $5.50 extras was only $9,762.50, indicating that fewer and fewer extras are being used in this classification. Only a small percentage of the regular extras will work for $5.50 forcing the studios to up the ante to $10.50 or go outside for players on waivers from the Screen Actors Guild. This has become more and more difficult, as many waivers are now demanding the higher figure and also are asking for adjustments when called on for any work out of the ordinary.

Durante, Logan Set On 'Lower Basin Street'

Jimmy Durante and Ella Logan will do special appearance on 'Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street' when program swings over to half-hour airing on the Blue Sunday. Show has been filling the vacated 'Parker Family' time on Sunday nights at 7:45-8 o'clock. Regulars on program include Paul LaValle as baton-waver; Milton Cross, Giacomo McCarthy and Ernest Chappell.

Brahm On Horror Film For 20th Release

John Brahm has returned to 20th-Fox on a new deal to direct 'The Lodger,' horror pic built around the gruesome legend of Jack the Ripper, 18th century psychopathic killer, which Robert Bassler will produce.

Brahm left 20th after having started the Sonja Henie picture, 'Winter Time,' which was taken over by Archie Mayo, with Otto Brower on the second unit.

Final Vote Tonight on SOEG $5 Fine for Missing Meetings

Final vote on a proposed $5 nonattendance fine will be taken up by the Screen Office Employes Guild tonight at general membership meeting scheduled at Filmarte Theatre. Group also will ballot on a proposal to buy the house at one night performance of 'Meet The People,' proceeds to be put in a special fund to send cigarettes, etc., to service men.

Collarites will be advised that Bernard Lusher, SOEG secretary and Business Representative Ed Gilbert have been appointed special representatives of the War Manpower Commission to issue availability certificates to SOEG members under the work stabilization plan which becomes effective July 18. All clerical workers must secure a certificate in order to leave the industry or to switch from one studio to another.

Members are being told that under a ruling of the State Industrial Welfare Commission, femme employes who are required to report for work or are dismissed from work between the hours of 10 p. m. and 6 a. m. must be furnished proper transportation by employers. Facilities for providing hot food and drink must also be provided for femme workers by employers between those hours.

Expect Decision Today On Aleutians Film

Washington, July 12.—Final decision on the length of the Army's tinter on the Aleutians, made by Capt. John Huston under supervision of Col. Darryl F. Zanuck, may be made here tomorrow or Wednesday. Picture was completed in four reels and then cut to three. Subsequently, a version of one and one-half reels was turned out which nobody liked. Army is trying to get the picture through at four reels, and has a better chance at that length with Lowell Mellett no longer around on OWI.

Cleffers Meet Today On BMI-Marks Suit And Upped Dues

SPA or ASCAP meeting, is result of canvas of tune cleffers around town to gather together for mutual working out of plans for protection. Songsmiths are particularly indignant over the BMI-Marks court action which if won by plaintiffs would give the publisher exclusive copyright to a tune. ASCAP operation gives the organization and writer each 50% rights.

Two weeks ago Romberg notified SPA members that a jump in dues was necessary if association was to continue active and he pointed out necessity of aiding in defense of the BMI suit. Additional dues would also aid SPA's move for better working conditions.

Obituary

'OLLIE' TRAGGARDH

Funeral services will be held at three o'clock this afternoon at Pierce Bros., Beverly Hills, for 'Ollie' Traggardh, 52, who died Sunday after 14 years as an invalid.

Traggardh was manager of Paramount's ranch here for years. In 1925 he was appointed manager of Paramount distribution in England. Four years later he was married. While en route to United States on his honeymoon he suffered a stroke.

Since then he has lived the life of invalidism. In almost constant pain, he always kept a cheerful attitude. Death came at his Maple Drive home in Beverly Hills.

CISSIE LOFTUS

Cissie Loftus, 67, stage and screen star died in New York today of a heart ailment at her home in the Hotel Lincoln. She had been in poor health for some time.

Cissie Loftus was born Cecilia Marie Loftus, the daughter of Ben Brown and Marie Loftus, both professionals, in Glasgow, Oct. 22, 1876. She made her first theatre appearance in Belfast, at the Alhambra in Oct., 1892, singing a ballad.

She made her American debut in 1895 in vaudeville at Koster and Bial's. She returned to England in 1897, but after three years there again returned to the U. S. During her career she has played many English and American theatres. She became famous as an imitator of stage personalities. Her last picture was 'Lucky Partners,' which she made at RKO.

Peter John Barrie Waterman, a son by her second marriage, who is a London theatrical producer survives her. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

LOUIS LAH

Funeral services for Louis Lah were held July 10 at Waukegan, Ill., death having occurred July 7th of heart ailment. He was the father of Michael Lah, Metro cartoon animator, who went east for the funeral.

State. Single-biller looks set to grab approximately $56,700 for the run, bettering 'Presenting Lily Mars' ' sweet $56,450 of last week, despite latter's holiday admission. Chinese is particularly strong with likely $16,500 of the total and both the Ritz and Carthay Circle are also up above normal.

RKO's 'Bombardier' at the Hillstreet and Pantages is climbing to nifty $38,000 on seven days after catching $37,700 for nine days of 'Mister Big' and 'Two Tickets to London.' 'Background to Danger' at Warners Hollywood, Downtown and Wiltern hits $36,000 estimate for the second week and the Los Angeles and Hollywood Paramounts will rack up $27,000 for second week of 'Five Graves to Cairo' and 'Chatterbox.' Bill stays for a third week.

Moveovers on 'Presenting Lily Lily Mars' at the Four Star, United Artists and Wilshire are healthy with estimated $18,800. Hawaii, with second week of 'Crime Doctor' and 'It's a Great Life,' will garner $3,500. Orpheum, with Ann Corio, the Modernaires and Johnny 'Scat' Davis on stage will grind out nifty $19,500.

IBEW Juicers School Begins Courses

With an initial enrollment of approximately 100, school for training studio electricians was opened last night by IBEW Local B-11 at 1070 N. Fairfax. Classes will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 to 12 a. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m. School will be in charge of George (Curley) Davis, B-11 business representative, and Gene Gaillac, IBEW international representative.

Davis has notified all major studios that union will be prepared to furnish all juicers necessary to man sets without necessity of double shifting or payment of time and half. He says each member will be thoroughly trained in motion picture technique before they are sent on a call.

Davis said scores of permit men from the IATSE have obtained memberships and enrolled in the school. He says a large number of these formerly worked as laborers, but now have an opportunity to qualify as lamp operators at a much higher wage scale.

Speede Of Local 40 In From Chicago Trip

Al Speede, business representative of Local 40 International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, has returned from Chicago, where he discussed studio sound jurisdiction with IBEW international officers. Committee from IB International is scheduled to get together with similar group from the IATSE to see if agreement can be reached on line of job demarcation between two organizations. Speede said some progress was made at conference, but that some points remain to be cleared up.

Plan for RKO, F-WC Joint Operation Here Studied

Edward L. Alperson will submit details of the proposed joint operation of the Los Angeles and Egyptian theatres by RKO and Fox West Coast to RKO home office executives this week. Company's theatre chief had several confabs while on the Coast with Charles P. Skouras, head of Fox West Coast, getting details down on paper for possible approval or rejection by RKO execs.

That deal is nearing final stages is seen in fact that Rodney Pantages, who operates the Pantages as a daydater with the Hillstreet on a tieup with RKO, made trip east with Alperson last Friday, when latter left to attend company's sales convention. Pantages' approval would reportedly figure importantly in any final pact made for opening two new Los Angeles first runs by F-WC and RKO, due to his present theatre connection with film company.

Deal would have the Egyptian and Los Angeles taking product from RKO, Columbia, Universal and others for initial week first-running, followed by continued first run moveover to the Tower and Fairfax. Film companies without theatre outlets locally look with favor on proposed new combination, figuring it will open additional first run breaks for backed up product.

Directors Play Roles Is Beef Of Extras

Screen Actors Guild is investigating complaint of film extras that the director and assistant director appeared in a recent picture on one lot. Players also claimed group of picture mothers were shot on orders of assistant director, depriving that many extras of jobs. SAG officials said complaint and demand for penalty checks will be filed if evidence is substantiated.

WHY A MEMORIAL FOR THE MURDERED JEWS OF EUROPE? WHY NOT A MEMORIAL FOR THE DUTCH, CZECHS, NORWEGIANS, FRENCH AND BELGIANS WHO HAVE BEEN SLAUGHTERED BY THE GERMANS?

It is true that in all the conquered countries of Europe, the German rule is based on terror and the slaughter of innocent, unarmed men and women. The Germans regard the conquered peoples as chattels to be exploited and they are engaged in eliminating ruthlessly all revolt among them.

The Jews of Europe, however, are not being policed or coerced into obedience or terrified submission. They are part of no German reformation scheme. They have been singled out for extermination and extermination alone.

There is no question here of military necessity or political administration. The Jewish question in Europe is a separate plank in the German New Order platform. It is a plank on which is written the single word, "Murder."

THOUGH THE JEWS OF EUROPE NUMBER ONLY 3% OF THE TOTAL POPULATION, MORE THAN 50% OF ALL THE CIVILIAN DEAD ARE JEWS. TWO MILLION JEWISH MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN HAVE BEEN SLAUGHTERED—FOUR MILLION REMAIN. HITLER HAS PROMISED THEIR EXTERMINATION BY THE END OF 1943.

It is our deep belief that this mass murder of six million unarmed cilivians is not a Jewish situation. The killing of any innocent people is a crime that does not concern their relatives alone. Wherever crime flourishes, there the basic interests of civilization are in jeopardy. The killing of six million Jews is a problem that calls for more than Jewish indignation. It calls for a Second Front—not a second front of tanks, soldiers and planes—but a second front of the Human spirit against massacre. It calls for the mobilization of every shred of righteousness and spiritual power left in the civilized world.

The thundering of civilization against the swamp-like antics of the German government is alone capable of preventing Europe's great crime from accomplishment.

In their obsessive and despairing march into oblivion the German masses have no ear for the agony of those whom they must trample. They are themselves in agony. And in their vast and fatal preoccupation with their battle against the world, there is small room in them for moral awareness, small time for any spiritual introspection.

Their masters have told the Germans that the slaughter of innocent millions is a mystic necessity. One may be sure that there are great sections of the German masses who do not entirely believe in this necessity or whose belief in it is a fog drifting about their heads. Yet where is the voice to contradict the pronouncements of their masters? Where is the voice of civilization to penetrate the fog of battles and despairs, to strike through the lusts and terrors of war? Where is the ancient and honorable cry of human decency to bid the Germans halt and consider their slide into the swamp?

There is no such voice and no such cry. No government has thundered against any Crime. The executions of conquered peoples as hostages for sabotage or revolt has brought vigorous protest from their exiled governments in London. But where is the protest for the slaying of 2 million disenfranchised Jews and for the remaining 4 million now being exterminated? We have sympathized with the dead and with those still to be slaughtered and we have offered a rhetorical protest now and then. But the great powers of human righteousness have not been unleashed.

Our silence makes us all part of the massacre. We who could halt a crime and do not are not its witnesses but its participants.

One government alone has spoken—that of conquered Norway. Norway demanded that its Jewish citizens be left alone. Its demand was quickly granted by the German Reich. No Jews in Norway have been deported to slavery and death or molested beyond any other of its people.

The reason for this German submission to the outcry of a military powerless government is obvious. The German Reich did not want this outcry to gain ground to travel, too start a moral thunder in the world and to come rolling back upon its own masses. The German Reich is afraid of moral thunder. Moral thunder is a second front as devastating as any that may be opened by armies.

It is in the hope of hearing such moral thunder that thousands will come to our Memorial pageant, for the two million slaughtered Jews of Europe. And it is in the hope of helping to arouse this storm that we are staging his pageant at The Hollywood Bowl on Wednesday night, July 21st.

BLACK BUILDING
Los Angeles, California

My dear Mr. Scott:

Of course it shall be a great pleasure for me to act as co-chairman on the Pageant in the Hollywood Bowl on July 21st.

My sympathy with the persecution of the Jewish race is of long standing. It would be deplorable if the Jews and their friends in this country did not take some action to stop the persecutors of the unlucky Jews in Nazi occupied Europe.

We, of the Catholic Church, owe very much to the Jewish race, and we cannot forget that the Captain of our souls got the Jewish blood of His humanity from the Blessed Virgin Mary, who was a Jewess of Nazareth.

It is quite possible that I may be absent on July 21st. I don't think so, but should it happen so, I will be well represented by you and other members of our Catholic laity.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Sirs:

It will give me great pleasure to serve as co-chairman of the Pageant in the Hollywood Bowl on July 21st. That the Jewish people are planning such a pageant is a matter of gratification and pleasure to me. It will serve a very useful purpose in that it will give opportunity to those of us of other religions to express our high regard for the Jewish people and our sympathy for all Jews in Nazi occupied countries. The modern Jewish martyr will long be remembered in the history of the world and we of our generation must show our appreciation of those who in a real sense have suffered for us.

Thank you for asking me,

Sincerely yours,

See New 7-Yr. Pacts To Rathvon, Depinet

New York, July 13.—Reports are current here that new seven-year contracts are to be shortly handed to N. Peter Rathvon, president of Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp., and Ned Depinet, prez of RKO Pictures. Both tickets will call for substantial salary tilts.

Depinet's old contract with RKO expired last December, while Rathvon resumed direction of the parent corporation without a termer. Production head Charles Koerner recently was handed a seven-year agreement to continue in that post.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

I have just been giving a great deal of thought to the latest reports from Sicily, and I have come to the conclusion that the unmistakable, if agreeable perfume of, 'Fleur de Fowl Fish' is hovering over the whole scene.

What kind of navy is it that refuses to come out and fight when its country's soil is invaded? I could hardly visualize the American or British fleet going into hiding if their country's soil was invaded by the enemy.

Something is rotten somewhere—and it is not in Denmark this time. If it is the Fascist regime, then it is likely it will collapse very soon.

Perhaps just as quickly as the latest Nazi offensive on the eastern front.

Army Raw Stock Cut Assures Biz Film

Washington, July 13. — Armed services have made sharp reductions in their raw film requirements for the remainder of the year, virtually assuring the picture industry that its raw stock quota for the last quarter of 1943 will remain the same as at present. Present industry quotas are the same as those in force during the second quarter of the year.

New York, July 13.—Congressional criticism of OWI film activities has cooled producers with leaning toward political and sociological screen themes.

Entertainment-minded film makers state that the recent attacks from political quarters may keep the industry out of embarrassing feuds arising from production of political yarns which have been under consideration by several of the major studios.

Interest in Wendell Willkie's 'One World' for filming has consequently waned during the past few weeks, despite continued high sales of the book.

WB NET TOPS $2,000,000 FOR THIRD QUARTER GAIN ON '42

Warners earnings for the third quarter of the present fiscal year were estimated yesterday as in excess of $2,000,000, a substantial gain over the like 1942 period. But they will be somewhat less than the $2,418,000 for the preceding quarter.

For the first three periods of the fiscal year profits will be well over $6,000,000 as the half year mark was $4,141,799. That the earnings for the year will be more than $8,000,000 was confidently forecast by those familiar with the present rate of biz of the company.

Stage Producer George White goes to Warners today to confab with Producer Jesse Lasky and Director Irving Rapper on stage producer's acting role in 'Rhapsody In Blue'.

Robert Benchley, back from Washington and New York, huddling with Metro shorts exec Jerry Bresler on new comedy series in which he'll star and script. First will be 'Looking for Words.'

George Barnes' option as cameraman has been picked up for another year by David O. Selznick. Barnes currently is photographing Paramount's 'Frenchman's Creek,' on loan-out.

Julia Faye, who has appeared in practically all pictures directed by Cecil De Mille since her debut for the director in 1918, draws a spot in his 'Story of Dr. Wassell' at Paramount.

Herbert Rudley has been plucked from Broadway stage field by Warners to handle role of Ira Gershwin in 'Rhapsody In Blue'. Player recently appeared opposite Geraldine Fitzgerald in the Irwin Shaw play, 'Sons and Soldiers.'

Boris Karloff takes on the Groucho Marx guest spot July 24 on comedian's Pabst-CBS broadcast. E. A. Biron, Pabst exec, who has been here past six weeks arranging camp show appearances for radio troupe, returns to Chicago today.

Five members have been added to the newsroom staff of NBC's news and special events department under William F. Brooks, manager. Newcomers are Daniel O'Flaherty, Robert Brown, Marshall Smith, Jr., Arthur Wakelee and Charlotte Huber. Latter two will supervise monitoring of shortwave broadcast from world capitals and make study of operations of foreign radio news broadcasts.

DESPITE supposed 'gentlemen's agreement' within ranks of the major studios against raiding each other's production execs—and especially tampering with those who hold term contracts—events of the past several months disclose that devious methods can be cooked up to wean a producer away from another studio, despite any understanding among the front office execs on raiding tactics. Reshuffle of associate and full producers, and general trend of all studios to increase staffs in these departments, are slated to result in number of switches between studios before the end of the year. It is known that undercover promoters of such talent for some of the companies have received word to check the field for likely candidates on other lots who would fit into organizational schemes, and those scouts are fine-combing the field.

FOREIGN post-war boom for American films is likely, according to reports being brought back to major company headquarters here by foreign film execs. Prospects will be tempered, however, by the post-war money situation and need for extreme care and proper selection of products for various countries by U. S. distributors to obtain best reaction to product. Inhabitants of Nazi-occupied countries will be hungry for U. S. films, it is admitted, and will be especially anxious for sheer entertainment and escapist features. France and other countries are now saturated by Nazi propaganda pictures, which gives tipoff that the American distribs should avoid sending features with even slightest touch of propaganda into these occupied countries, to prevent reverse reaction of customers.

CASTING problems at Paramount concern not male, but femme players, judging by recent developments, contrary to situation at other studios. Start of Producer Seton I. Miller's 'Ministry of Fear' was held up until femme lead finally was found, Ray Milland having been set for top male spot nearly two months ago. Marjorie Reynolds won part. Eddie Bracken was assigned lead in Preston Sturges' 'Hail the Conquering Hero' many weeks before Ella Rains was decided upon to play opposite him, and studio still is searching for leading lady to appear with Bing Crosby in 'The Padre.'

PUBLICITY boys at RKO are so tickled with newly-contracted Barbara Hale's honesty in answering questions that they're getting behind her in big-scale buildup. Young actress from Chicago, when asked what her father did, for her biography, replied he was a gardener, and a darn good one. Customary response, if jobs are at all humble, is to paint parents with glowing colors. Whole attitude of gal is so different and sincere that entire department has taken over publicizing her as personal chore.

MEMBERS of Studio Transportation Drivers Local 399 have approved an up in monthly union dues from $4 to $5. It was explained union lost approximately $1,200 monthly in revenue when 200 drivers entered the armed services and another 100 left to take defense jobs. Move will enable Local 399 to hold jobs open for members in service and defense work, eliminating the necessity of taking in new members. If studio calls exceed current membership, union can issue temporary work permits to outsiders.

For Whom the Bell Tolls

(Drama In Technicolor)

Paramount release of a Sam Wood production. Stars Gary Cooper and Ingrid Bergman. Features Katina Paxinou, Akim Tamiroff, Arturo de Cordova, Joseph Calleia. In Technicolor. Supporting cast: Vladimir Sokoloff, Mikhail Rasumny, Fortunio Bonanova, Eric Feldary, Victor Varconi, Lilo Yarson, Alexander Granach, Adia Kuznetzoff, Leonid Snegoff, Leo Bulgakov, Duncan Renaldo, George Coularis, Frank Puglia, Pedro de Cordoba, Michael Visaroff, Konstantin Shayne, Martin Garralga, Jean Del Val, Jack Mylong, Feodor Chaliapin. Produced and directed by Sam Wood. Screenplay by Dudley Nichols. From the novel by Ernest Hemingway. Executive producer, B. G. DeSylva. Production designed by William Cameron Menzies. Photography, Ray Rennahan. Technicolor color director, Natalie Kalmus; associate, Morgan Padelford. Special photographic effects, Gordon Jennings, Jan Domela, Irmin Roberts. Process photography, Farciot Edouart. Music score, Victor Young. Orchestration, Leo Shunken and George Parrish. Art direction, Hans Dreier and Haldane Douglas. Edited by Sherman Todd and John Link. Set decoration, Bert Granger. Tradeshown at Los Angeles, July 13, 1943. Running time: 175 MINS.

Surmounting its political problems with intelligent as well as bold showmanship, yet adhering to the essence of the Hemingway novel, and delivering its turbulent drama with magnificent production and unforgettable performances, 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' will ring up enormous grosses and linger in long runs across the land.

Some controversy it may still excite in its stress on certain brutalities and in its dealings with the forces arrayed against each other in the recent Spanish civil war. But its intent obviously is to entertain, not to propagandize — to entertain by grappling an audience to the story's fascinating characters, in the throes of passions in the very immediate issues of life and death. It is a great melodrama of events finished, battles fought, victory or defeat sustained, but with echoes still alive across the world from the fields and cities where European nations tried out their new weapons of war and the mettle of probable antagonists. It is the personal tragi-drama of Spanish guerrilla fighters and an American comrade, a demolitionist, pitched against the violence of national cataclysm. And this gives Paramount's Sam Wood treatment of 'Bell Tolls' currency with the newest of the war documentaries.

So actual are the people and the issues involved and so soundly guided by Sam Wood's direction that Gary Cooper and Ingrid Bergman and their splendid supporting players are lifted to new levels of performance. Cooper is the American demolitionist who is assigned by the Spanish Republicans to dynamite a mountain bridge to frustrate an attack. Ingrid Bergman is the refugee from a devastated town, herself the victim of atrocities, whose first love the American wins. The two have a few days to complete their swiftly born love and to prepare for that tragic ending when Cooper dies behind his machine gun, protecting a pass. These are the scenes — the haunting scenes—translated from the sleeping bag chapters in Hemingway's book for which many casually read the book—filmed vividly but decorously. Cooper and Bergman do a great complementary enactment.

Picture introduces Katina Paxinou, Greek star, in the role of Pilar, the guerrilla woman who dominates the mountain camp. This is a magnificent display of resourcefulness and emotional power, indelibly stamped

The Falcon In Danger

(Melodrama)

RKO production. Cast: Tom Conway, Jean Brooks, Elaine Shepard, Amelita Ward, Cliff Clark, Ed Gargan, Clarence Kolb, Felix Basch, Richard Davies, Richard Martin, Erford Gage, Eddie Dunn. Produced by Maurice Geraghty. Director, William Clemens. Screen play, Fred Niblo, Jr., and Craig Rice. Based on characters created by Michael Arlen. Photography, Frank Redman. Music by Roy Webb. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Art directors, Albert S. D'Agostino and Walter E. Keller. Set decorations, Darrell Silvera and Harley Miller. Edited by George Crone. Tradeshown in Los Angeles, July 13, 1943. Running time: 70 MINS.

Following the conventional mystery-murder-meller formula, 'The Falcon in Danger,' is a satisfactory entry to carry along the RKO series of adventures by the omniscient sleuth who is also the target for pretty women in distress. Tom Conway carries off his chore with assurance, managing both the romantic interludes and the solution of the current puzzler whodunit in a way to please his confirmed fans.

This issue deals with a feud between two former business partners, one having gyped the other. They are Clarence Kolb and Felix Basch. Amelita Ward, (Bonnie) the gal who is always gumming up the Falcon's sleuthing, carries off her jealous intrusions with fripperous charm. Jean Brooks and Elaine Shepard are the kinswomen of the business principals. A kidnapping is involved. There is a suspicious butler of course, Eddie Dunn. Richard Davies is engaged to the wealthy girl. A mysteriously operated antique shop is the setting for gun excitement. There is amusement in a roller skating rink. The usual number of crimes are committed under the very noses of the Falcon and the others who share in the befuddlements. Behavior by those closely touched by the killings also as usual, is fairly nonchalant in the face of these lethal happenings.

It isn't quite clear, in the final phase of the script, by Fred Niblo, Jr., and Craig Rice, just how the infallible Falcon learns all the facts and pins the guilt properly, but the solution sounds glib and conclusive.

William Clemens does okay by the Falcon and the series with competent direction, and Maurice Geraghty held the production reigns.

Leo Diamond and his harmonica quintet has been signed by Universal for specialty numbers in 'Hi Ya, Sailor.'

Behind The Rising Sun

(Drama)

RKO production. Cast: Margo, Tom Neal, J. Carrol Naish, Robert Ryan, Gloria Holden, Don Douglas, George Givot, Adeline DeWalt Reynolds, Leonard Strong, Iris Wong, Wolfgang Zilzer, Shirley Lew, Benson Fong, Lee Tung Foo, Mike Mazurki. Directed by Edward Dmytryk. Original screen play, Emmet Lavery. Based on book, 'Behind the Rising Sun,' by James R. Young. Photography, Russell Metty. Special effects, Vernon L. Walker. Art directors, Albert S. D'Agostino and Al Herman. Set decorations, Darrell Silvera and Claude Carpenter. Music, Roy Webb. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Edited by Joseph Noriega. Tradeshown in Los Angeles, July 13, 1943. Running time: 87 MINS.

This is the first film which pretends to deal seriously with the racial and military psychology and behavior of the Japanese as our enemies. It has its basis in the factual recitative of James R. Young, American newspaper man who lived in Japan, and from whose book the picture takes title. Its main dramatic lines and episodes are asserted to follow the trend and the specific patterns of fact. They are combined to create important and powerful drama, up to the moment in timeliness and exploitability. The picture will be in the big money bracket, and will be considered in addition to serve an effective purpose in defining more sharply the 'nature of our enemy' in the Pacific—a dual credit for the RKO production and executive heads.

Under the careful and skillful direction of Edward Dmytryk and a well contrived script by Emmet Lavery as a chart for action, the story approach avoids cheap melodramatic tracks and mere shouted race hatreds. The savage treatment of prisoners is there, and the fanatical emphasis of a regimented and military-dominated folk on a code of 'honor' which the Caucasian can scarcely understand. And because of this studied and inspective approach, the dramatic impact of the narrative is all the more effective.

Method of telling is a retrospective recital by a Japanese father, a diplomatist, publisher and minister of propaganda, of how his son, born in Japan but like himself educated in an American university, reverts to his 'correct' racial and national training soon after he comes home and is swallowed up by the armies which first attack China and then the United States at Pearl Harbor. It has a fascinating suspense this recital, with each major event depicted, including a tenderly begun but finally devastated romance with a young Japanese girl below the boy's rank.

Father's role is impressively and very humanly handled by J. Carrol Naish. Tom Neal is the young son, also an excellent portrayal. And Margo gives excellent account of herself as the betrothed of Neal. Robert Ryan, Gloria Holden, Don Douglas, George Givot, Adeline DeWalt Reynolds, Wolfgang Zilzer are importantly spotted in support.

One of the most rousing and savage fights in pictures is the battle almost to the death between Lefty (Robert Ryan) an American boxer, and Mike Mazurki, as a Jap wrestler, pitted against each other as vicarious champions of an American engineer and the arrogant young Jap soldier.

Walter Wanger functions with his own unit on the Universal lot, but is financed by the studio. In addition to the normal peacetime problems involved in handling products from outside independent producers, distribs now have two more factors—playdates and raw stock. Any new pact of such nature would call for a stiff term and conditions for the indie releases, and outstanding quality of product for top star names would be major factors in setting any outside deals at this time.

Operations of the 'Thought Police,' the Jap Gestapo, create striking scenes of torture. School children regimentation is shown. Jap baseball games are converted into military exercises. Bombing of Pearl Harbor is shown from clips. Other news clips of recent action and of legitimate scenes of Japanese life are deftly inserted and effectively used to point up the drama. The young Jap officer is killed by a Yank fighter in air action. His ashes are ceremoniously returned to the father. It is from this point that the story starts and to which it returns before the father commits the ceremonious Japanese suicide.

There are inconsistencies in the narrative, and in characterization as well as motivation, but the picture as a whole has vigor, importance, unquestioned entertainment capacity.

Camera work by Russell Metty is exceptionally good, and other technical contributions uphold superior quality of the offering.

Money available for dividends on the 3,701,090 shares of common stock after payment of preferred requirements equal $1.06 a share for the first half year. However, there is little likelihood of a large dividend on the junior issue this year although a modest payment may be authorized by the directors before the year end.

Warners financial condition has been materially bettered by the refunding of its debentures and the calling of the preferred stock. The company just 12 years ago had a total debt of $126,000,000. This will have been reduced to about $58,000,000 by September including $8,911,000 in loans for redemption of the preferred stock.

The company has greatly strengthened its position by refunding operations. At one time it had outstanding $44,000,000 in 6% debentures, which sold as low as nine. Most of these have been retired or replaced with 2¾% bank loans. Of the $58,000,000 debt as of September, $33,000,000 is in mortgages on theatres of which $30,000,000 is with insurance companies and savings banks at an average rate of approximately 4¼%. Interest charges at one time in excess of $6,000,000 are now down to about $2,250,000.

Warners has kept about $5,000,000 in cash in its depreciation reserve for debt retirement. Earnings of approximately $8,000,000 for the fiscal year will raise the available retirement funds to about $13,000,000. About $4,900,000 in debt was retired first nine months of present fiscal year. For the year this figure will be raised to about $6,000,000.

Present definite debt retirement schedule calls for payment of about $1,900,000 on existing debt, plus $2,500,000 on new bank loans used to pay off debentures.

As an evidence of the benefits to the company of the new financing it was disclosed that the interest on $23,000,000 in new money obtained recently will be less than that on the $15,000,000 of obligations retired. In addition to cutting the cost of its debt, Warners has made a substantial saving in recent years by purchasing of property formerly leased and by the expiration of unprofitable leases.

Cash on hand at present is reported at approximately $13,000,000, practically the same as in February. Film inventories are $28,000,000 and are rated as the best in the company's history. Company has large backlog of paid for production and pictures are yielding larger returns due to increased box office revenues of its 516 theatres and longer runs being enjoyed by films.

Cleffers took stand at yesterday's get-together that ASCAP had deducted dues for 10 years without being advised by legal counsel that society's constitution forbids such withholding and recent resolution should be rescinded to allow practice to continue. No objection was raised to large increase in dues asked by Prexy Romberg, local songsmiths going along with organization's need to broaden its operations to include improving writers' working conditions and financing a defense against the BMI-Marks vs. ASCAP court action.

Yesterday's meeting drew out about 50 writers for confab and a number of others tied up at studios and unable to attend were reported to have telephoned in their okay to back up any majority decision made. Night meeting will be called next week so studio cleffers will have a chance to have their say in open session and aid fight against ASCAP dues resolution. Presiding at yesterday's 'indignation meeting' was Wolfe Gilbert, SPA vice president and an ASCAP director, who took over session at request of writers who had sought a get-together. Among speakers were Frank Loesser, Ned Washington, Jimmy McHugh, Jay Gorney, Robert MacGimsey, Sam Loerner, Bernie Grossman.

Dues hike sought by Romberg, with increases up to 200%, has reportedly met opposition in the east among some songwriters. Romberg bases his request on desire to make SPA an active organization, which it could not become without financing through heavier dues.

Ill in Pix

VERONICA LAKE'S baby, Anthony Detile, is in 'poor' condition at the Good Samaritan hospital. Three-pound son of Miss Lake and Major John Detlie was given a blood transfusion after it suffered a relapse yesterday. Miss Lake's condition is 'fine.'

MRS. DAVID HEMPSTEAD is in Good Samaritan hospital recuperating from minor operation. From present progress, she's expected to be moved home in a week.

SPG Protests Ouster Rep's Flack Dep't

Screen Publicists Guild executive board last night drafted protest over dismissal of Republic publicity personnel and appointed a grievance committee to confer today with Al Wilson, studio labor relations head. Members of committee are Lesley Mason, chairman; Ted Taylor, Bill Bloecker and Bob Joseph.

SPG tops declared 'high-handed' action of studio would set a dangerous precedent if allowed to go unchallenged by the Guild. It was stated grievance committee would investigate all circumstances that led up to dismissal of entire department and would insist that it was a violation of their basic agreement.

It has been announced that in the future publicity will be directed out of New York, and that a man will be sent here from eastern home office to act as liaison between studio and eastern advertising and exploitation department. It was stated members of department would be given two weeks' notice.

SPG is expected to demand retention of entire force, and probably will ask for support of eastern Guilders, as well as other film and guild unions.

across the three-hour length of the show in a rising tide of finest artistry. Akim Tamiroff is the bestial yet pathetic brigand, primitive, cowardly, unpredictable, who is deposed as leader by Pilar, his wife. Tamiroff plays it with earthy vigor, deep appreciation of the man's dilemmas and oblique passions, never goes overboard.

Flawless in the guise of the other guerrillas are Arturo de Cordova, Vladimir Sokoloff, Mikhail Rasumny, the Gypsy, Fortunio Bonanova, Eric Feldary, Victor Varconi. Joseph Calleia does a standout as El Sordo, another bandit leader. Lilo Yarson impresses as the adopted boy of El Sordo. A dozen other supporting roles are splendidly handled.

Wood, who dominated the procedure from selection of the background sites in the Sierra to the final battle escapades, adds a superb directorial trophy to his record. The characters are unerringly guided, the narrative forcefully told, the emotional peaks never muffed, the material presented with sharp accuracy and the melodramatic thrills in violences achieved without descending to phony effects.

Dudley Nichols' screen translation preserves the Hemingway essence, often with almost verbatim use of major scenes, but also with considerable addition of his own to simplify and telescope the action. Script is leisurely but not wasteful and captures the picturesque and the emotional with shrewd artistry.

The technical contributions are of highest quality. William Cameron Menzies is credited with the production design, an element of importance in this picture. The cameras of Ray Rennahan capture the Technicolor magnificence of the high Sierra areas with striking appropriateness for the dramatic action pitched against the crags and the roaring mountain streams. In keeping and calibre are the special photographic effects by Gordon Jennings, Jan Domela and Irmin Roberts, and the process work by Farciot Edouart, and the art direction by Hans Dreier and Haldane Douglas. Music—the score by Victor Young and orchestra by Leo Shunken and George Parrish—plays its important part to complete the whole dramatic impression.

The questionable phase of the picture—as to its political reverberations, possibly—is the sequence where Pilar recites in retrospect the atrocities committed by herself, Pablo and the Loyalist civilians upon captive Nationalist partisans in the gruesome gauntlet-of-death scene. These are the 'heroes,' the sympathetically viewed folk of the picture, who are thus shown committing abysmal horrors, whereas the atrocities of the Falangists are only verbally suggested by the Spanish refugee girl, Miss Bergman. The whole horror sequence, however, is so arranged that it could be cut out without destroying the continuity or the integrity of the picture.

Hudson Gets Two Aides In CBS Enlarging Move Order

In move to enlarge its program department to meet increasing demands for locally emanating shows, Columbia Broadcasting has handed Hal Hudson, west coast program director, two new assistants.

Moving up in the organization to spot of assistant program director in charge of writing is Everett Tomlinson, former continuity director. Glan Heisch, former production head of the OWI's Hollywood overseas division, comes over to CBS as assistant program director in charge of production. John Dunkel assumes Tomlinson's continuity director spot.

CBS move now gives it a three-man program board to confab and pass on west coast shows, reducing pressure formerly felt in department due to increase in radio use and heavy time buying by advertisers.

Lazar Uncovers Pro Talent for Hart's Air Force Show

New York, July 13.—Lt. Irving Lazar, ex-William Morriser, has uncovered pro talent more than sufficient to fill Moss Hart's Air Force show cast of 200 during 10,000 mile trek of the United States.

Lt. Col. Dudley Dean, representing General Henry Arnold, and in charge of the show, is being assisted in lining up talent around the country by Lazar and Lt. Benjamin Landis.

Lazar accompanied Hart west on tour of AAF bases and continued tour when Hart returned east. In addition to performers, Lazar also found composers, scenic artists, stagehands, and press agents. More technicians are needed, however.

Following a swing of eastern bases, Lazar will return here to negotiate for New York house for the show, which is slated to open in November.

First Prison Preem Suffers Odd Setbacks; Show Goes On Finally

Statesville, Ill., July 13.—Joe College, whispering signals out of the side of his mouth, held a powerful 'B' team from 20th-Fox on the one-yard line for an hour and a half last night in the first prison preem ever devised by a Hollywood flackery. But Brynie Foy finally went over for a touchdown, with a governor and a flock of law enforcement officers running interference. Final score was like one of those games in the elder days when Yale beat Bates, 6 to 0. It was a practice game for Yale but a moral victory for Bates.

Take it from the press agent, it was a case of sabotage among the freshmen, who admire Roger Touhy as a Phi Beta Kappa and who resent aspersions on his professional tact as shown in the picture, 'Roger Touhy, Gangster.' Something happened to the sound system, causing a long delay and disruption of both film and prison schedule. There were 1,600 guests, some voluntary, including Governor Dwight H. Green, representing the State of Illinois, and a lot of clergymen and newspapermen and uplifters from all over the country, eager to tell the world that crime does not pay.

In due time the sound system was repaired and the show went on with Lois Andrews lending a feminine touch to the proceedings and Irving S. Roth, attorney for Touhy, seeking an injunction to restrain 20th-Fox from showing the picture. The film, according to the lawyer, is a conspiracy to violate Touhy's constitutional rights.

SIX TINTERS IN RKO '43-'44 LINEUP OF FORTY FEATURES picture going through RKO in addition to Herbert Wilcox's 'Yellow Canary.'

At least six productions will be in Technicolor. Sales force was informed that five of the new pictures have been completed, and eight are currently in production. N. Peter Rathvon, president of Radio-Keith-Orpheum, stated he was proud that RKO was bringing radio names to pictures.

Floyd Odlum, chairman of the board of the company, addressed the convention. 'The motion picture industry will have greater opportunities after the war than in the past,' he said.

In predicting that films will play prominent part in carrying America to the world in the post-war period because the world will be more conscious of the United States than ever before, Odlum pointedly stated: 'there is good reason why people are going to the theatre, good reason why the pictures are getting film to carry on. It is because motion pictures are filling a real need—helping morale, helping build up production, helping the men at the front—and I think you people here should consider yourselves helpers in this effort.'

Headlining and high budget productions will include two Ginger Rogers; pair co-starring Fred Astaire and Joan Leslie; and Cary Grant in 'Experiment Perilous'; three Samuel Goldwyn features; Walt Disney's 'Let's Go Latin'; Frank Ross' 'The Robe'; picturization of Pearl Buck's 'China Sky'; two starring Jean Arthur and John Wayne; Eddie Cantor's 'Show Business'; pair of Maureen O'Hara co-starrers; two with Pat O'Brien headlining; Bing Crosby starring in filmusical, 'Down Melody Lane'; Rosalind Russell starred in 'Nurse Sister Kenny'; the Kay Kyser filmusical, 'Around the World'; Olivia de Havilland and Sonny Tufts in 'Government Girl'; and Casey Robinson's production of 'One Hour of Glory.'

The Falcon, Gildersleeve and Lum 'n' Abner series will continue; with new series to include Rookie group starring Wally Brown and Alan Carney, and Leon Errol headlining series of Mr. and Mrs. America. Thrill-chillers launched with 'The Cat People' will continue on the program, with Val Lewton slated to make twin-bill of two horror dramas of four reels each under titles of 'The Amorous Ghost' and 'The Screaming Skull.'

Edward Golden has signed contract to independently produce one feature for the new program. He will function on the RKO lot in same manner as Frank Ross, who will turn out film version of Lloyd C. Douglas' 'The Robe,' as an independent producer.

Studio producer group includes: David Hempstead, Eddie Cantor, Robert Fellows, Casey Robinson, Emmett Lavery, Val Lewton, Bert Gilroy, Maurice Geraghty, and Herman Schlom; while producer-directors comprise: Dudley Nichols, Tim Whelan, Allan Dwan, John Auer and Herbert Wilcox. Independent producers are, Goldwyn, Disney, Ross, Golden, Lesser and Ben Hersh.

Short subjects will total 171 one and two reelers, including the 'This Is America' series, and two reel starring comedies of six each from Edgar Kennedy and Leon Errol. Pathe News comprises bulk of short releases with total of 104 for the new season.

Odlum, who arrived from Washington today, said he was now taking active part in direction of company affairs, and lauded Depinet for latter's accomplishments. It's Odlum's first contact with the field forces. Charles Koerner is scheduled to outline production plans tomorrow. Three day session wind-up is tomorrow with details on selling instructions for individual and regional situations remaining to be ironed out. District managers are slated to continue in session Thursday, although they might finish tomorrow.

Small Nixes Goldwyn Lot, Moves to RKO-Pathe Instead

Edward Small has sidestepped deal to set up production headquarters on the Samuel Goldwyn lot, and instead, moves into RKO-Pathe studios to produce his four features for United Artists during the coming year.

Producer, who has been headquartering at General Service for past several years, became concerned a few months ago that increased number of production units operating on the lot would not allow him sufficient stage space when he was ready to go into production.

Last week, Small started negotiations to move to the Goldwyn lot—in fact shifted his writers into offices there Friday as advance unit. But Goldwyn's contract was not to his liking, as it carried provision that he was to produce exclusively at that studio, but—in turn—made no assurances that stage space would be available when he was ready to start shooting.

When Small held out for such guarantee from the studio in the contract, and lot officials failed to incorporate covering provision in redrawn document, he called off negotiations and closed with RKO for the Culver City deal.

Yesterday, Small's writing staff was being moved from the Goldwyn lot; he was setting up his own suite at Pathe; and other departments of his organization were still on the General Service lot awaiting move-over to Pathe some time today.

Castaway Seaman Is 'Lifeboat' Advisor

Producer Kenneth Macgowan, who produces 'Lifeboat' at 20th-Fox, with Alfred Hitchcock as director, announced that Thomas Fitzsimmons was en route here from Washington, D. C., to handle technical reins of the production, as Jim Havens, who originally was skedded for the job, goes into the Marine Corps as a captain on Aug. 1. Fitzsimmons, a seaman for 26 years, spent 20 days in a lifeboat when his ship was torpedoed on Murmansk run.

William Hillpot, radio production chief of Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, planes in Friday from New York for a five-day stay. He will confer with Jack Runyon, local CIAA radio representative, on Hollywood-produced shows aimed at Latin-American dialers. This is Hillpot's first trip to the Coast and he goes from here to San Francisco for a day before heading back to New York.

Among things Hillpot will confab with Runyon on is the new 'Desde Hollywood en Guerra' (Hollywood in War), half-hour program that will be launched shortly as a weekly broadcast. Show was originally a one-shot affair but received such a good reception below the border that CIAA decided to follow same format for a series. Initial recording had Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour, John Scott Trotter's music, the King's Men and Robert Taylor as stars. In addition to vocals and music, program will present a dramatic sketch dealing with some heroic incident in the present war and be tied together with Hollywood names.

CIAA Hollywood radio division launches its new 'We Women Up North' program Thursday with Jinx Falkenburg headlining to give Latin-American women an overall picture of the part femmes in the state are playing under wartime conditions. Guests on first show will be Edith Head, who will speak on how clothes styles here have been adapted to war conservation, and her husband, William Ihnen, 20th-Fox art director.

Deanna Durbin is another film name lined up for a CIAA show, being special guest on 'Hollywood Visits the Americas,' for 15th in the series on which Rosita Moreno is the permanent mistress of ceremonies.

MPRF Cases Decline But Costs Up 80%

Because of increased job opportunities, calls on the Motion Picture Relief Fund show a coresponding decrease although costs have risen, according to the annual report just issued. In 1942 there were 686 fewer cases than the previous year, but due to the fact that medical cases increased and living costs rose, the total relief expenditure was up 8%, or $27,500.

The increase in overhead operations, however, was only one-tenth of 1%. Approximately 85 cents out of every dollar contributed by industry workers and artists was used for relief.

Studio Union Confer. To Take Up SOEG Wage Tilt Bid

Demands of Screen Office Employes Guild for a 7% wage tilt for 2,000 studio White Collarites is scheduled to be taken up by the Conference of Studio Unions at meeting tonight. Guilders claim they were promised increase by Producers and that hike is necessary to correct pay inequities as allowed under Little Steel formula.

There is possibility that SOEG delegates will ask Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference, to take charge of negotiations with major companies, since it is claimed verbal promise of tilt was made to Sorrell and Glenn Pratt, former business representative for the Collarites. If Sorrell agrees to act, he will work in cooperation with Business Representative Ed Gilbert and Secretary Bernard Lusher of Guilders.

SOEG also is seeking to collect retroactive pay for film exchange members for week they were on strike. It is claimed payment for lost time was factor in unit accepting new wage schedules. Guild also is preparing to ask that pay of exchange members be increased.

Sets Wurtzel Damages Aside, New Trial On

Harry Wurtzel, actors agent, was granted a new trial today by Superior Judge Samuel R. Council Committee Proposes City One Cent Admission Tax

Local theatres, other amusement places and cafes with cover charges were threatened yesterday with a new tax nick when joint meeting of the Revenue and Taxation and Finance committees of the City Council officially proposed placing levy of one cent on all admissions. In addition, it was proposed to place a one-half cent 'sales and use tax' on all commodities.

Admission tax, while not new to other localities, springs a new one on local exhibitors and would cause considerable change in present methods of absorbing Federal box office levies. Only a few theatres locally add Federal nick to regular admissions, others absorbing levy, but latter, faced with additional taxation, would undoubtedly pass new tax on to ticket buyers.

Last March El Monte passed similar city ordinance on to film houses, but tax was thrown out when James Edwards and Art Sanborn, operating the Valley and El Monte theatres, respectively, closed houses in an unprecedented shutdown protest. San Diego has a one-cent admission tax that is proving a profitable income source in that war-swollen city.

City Council tax committee estimate new levy would raise between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 over a three-year period with theatres furnishing $1,000,000-to-$1,500,000 of this amount annually. Proceeds would be used to finance renovation of the city's old sewer system. Attempts of the Council to obtain funds from other sources for the work have met with opposition, forcing move to nick amusement spots, including sports events.

possibly James Allen, assistant chief of the Domestic Branch.

Mercey has been instructed to offer 'The Aleutians' to WAC in both two and four reels, with the suggestion that the two-reel version be used to get maximum distribution; and the uncut job be offered to any theatre which desires to use the picture at full length. Army has been anxious to get out the uncut version, and went to the length of making 150 four-reel tint prints which would be available to any film houses wanting them.

Allen today denied reports here that he would be suggested to take over the liaison job between OWI and the industry. He said there is no change in the plan to let the industry name the man, and to select him from film ranks, if so desired.

WAC comes into the picture as a result of rumors here that its function may change or that it may give way to some other organization in the industry. Davis and Hoyt will go to New York primarily to ask for suggestions and to listen.

Berman Skeds Four To Roll Next 60 Days

Metro Producer Pandro Berman puts quartet of pictures before cameras within next two months, according to present plans. Films are 'Dragon Seed,' 'National Velvet,' 'Marriage Is a Private Affair' and 'The Picture of Dorian Gray,' and are slated to get gun in that order.

Completed script of 'The Seventh Cross,' fifth on his production chart, will be handed in by Helen Deutsch last of week. Producer also is working on 'If Winter Comes,' and when ready to go will turn over completed screenplay to Ben Goetz for production in England.

Dubbed U.S. Films Set For Sicily Use

New York, July 13. — United States pictures with Italian dubbing were on hand for the invasion of Sicily, ready to be shown when the island was pacified. Plans were worked out by British and U. S. film heads on the use of pictures to aid in the liberation of territories and ease the burden of military occupation.

Fimberg To Par

Hal Fimberg moves to Paramount to work on script of 'Barn Dance,' forthcoming Walter MacEwen production, and winding up his chore on 'The Gay Nineties' at Warners for Jack Chertok. Sam Jaffe agented.

London Censors Stall On 'Mission' Okay

London, July 13. — 'Mission To Moscow,' scheduled for release at Warners house here, has not received the green signal of the censor that all is clear for showing. The censor's certificate necessary for the exhibition of a film in Great Britain has not been issued as yet. No reason has been given for the delay, nor has there been any comment from the New York home office. Difficulties had been anticipated because of the anti-British angles in the picture.

Foy Due From Preview

Bryan Foy returns to his executive producer desk at 20th-Fox next Monday, after jaunt to Stateville, Ill., where his picture, 'Roger Touhy, Gangster,' was previewed before law enforcement officers.

Jean Higgins replaces Celine Miles as color model director for Metro cartoon studio. Latter moves over to Screen Cartoonist's Guild as financial secretary, succeeding Pepe Ruiz who dons uniform.

'Connecticut Yankee' Stage Revival May Get Film Play

New York, July 13.—Revival of the Rodgers-Fields-Hart production of 'Connecticut Yankee' may be followed by screen version under the Warner banner. Richard Rodgers is promising the stage show, presumably backed by Warner coin.

Vivienne Segal will carry the femme lead, with no male opposition set to date, although Marcy Westcott will be in cast. Hart and Rodgers are writing several new tunes.

Warner financing of the show and later version will be discussed by Rodgers while latter is on the coast conferring with Darryl Zanuck on filmusical version of 'State Fair.'

Mortimer, Ex-Army, On Mirror Again, Due In

New York, July 13.—Lieut. Lee Mortimer has been put on inactive duty by the U. S. Army Signal Corps, for physical reasons after a series of operations in military hospitals. He was public relations officer for the Pictorial unit as Astoria during past year and a half.

Mortimer returns to the NY Daily Mirror as full time film critic and Broadway feature writer. He is due to leave for Hollywood next week to line up material for a series of stories on 'Hollywood At War.'

Light operations continue according to plan and schedule, in some instances far ahead of both.

The overall strategy seems to be, to continue our aerial attack on western Germany for the two-fold purpose of devastating Hitler's war industries and preventing the Luftwaffe from sending aid to either Sicily or the eastern front.

In the meantime the British forces, under General Montgomery, will attempt to reach Messina before engaging in a major battle with the Nazi forces, while the Yanks under the command of General Patton tackle the armored units in the south.

Adolf Hitler, himself, has taken the reins of the eastern offensive, and Moscow reports it is fizzling out.

I wonder if Wagner has a piece to fit the occasion—besides the 'Funeral March.'

INDUSTRY LEADERS VOW COMPLETE MOBILIZATION

New York, July 14.—Characterized as 'the beginning of a period in which the entertainment industry of America (stage, screen, radio and music) will achieve service without parallel,' show business leaders from east and west coast met at the Waldorf today to officially establish a National Entertainment Industry Council as a coordinating agency for complete mobilization of all its resources toward a successful prosecution of the war.

It was a session without precedent in show business, out of which will come a national talent pool in which all branches of the entertainment industry, by means of voluntary enlistments inspired by work already accomplished on Coast by Screen Actors Guild and Hollywood Victory Committee, will be drafted into all-out participation in the war program.

POOL FACILITIES

As set forth by James Cagney, representing SAG on the NEIC in offering a resolution which officially set machinery in motion, the 42 branches of the industry pledged to NEIC membership will bring together all their facilities and energies, with NEIC, as a consultative and advisory body, functioning as a clearing house for a talent pool channeled into the armed forces, civilian and production fronts.

Disposing of organizational details at opening powwow, including election of officers and important coordinating committee, in addition to hearing high Governmental and War Department officials, NEIC tomorrow will sit down to map its ambitious projects not only directed at speedy victory but for post-war needs as well.

NEW WMC ESSENTIAL LIST COMING, TO SUPERSEDE OLD

Washington, July 14.—The War Manpower Commission, finally admitting the inefficiency of its indices of essential activities and essential jobs, is about ready to break out a new list, a superdooper containing about 250 critical jobs. The old lists will not be recalled, but the new ones will supersede them in effect, with the current lists serving only as a sort of guidance to local draft boards.

Indicative of the awareness in official circles that local boards are simply not paying much attention to the current lists, a spokesman said yesterday that the present lists will 'remain in force insofar as they are forceful.' The present lists contain about 2,100 jobs.

HARRY COHN emerged the winner in five-week battle with Metro over the return of Alexander Hall, his contract director who was at the Culver City plant handling 'Heavenly Body.' Latter, with about two weeks of shooting remaining, was taken over yesterday by Vincent Minelli, while Hall checked back to Columbia to work on final script for 'My Friend Curly,' which he directs, with Cary Grant starred. Loanout deal for Hall to direct one for Metro was originally made several months ago, with time specified, but 'Body' was delayed for several reasons and Cohn started arguing with Metro front office execs over return of Hall when return date had passed. After consistent argument between Columbia and Metro execs extending over a five-week stretch, Cohn emerged the victor. Situation brings to mind previous director loanout by Cohn to Metro number of years ago, when talent trade sent Frank Capra to the Culver City plant from Columbia, but delays and eventual script shelving sent him back to Gower street without making the picture.

STAGES at Universal are resounding with music this week, indicating melodic stress on forthcoming releases. Olsen and Johnson in 'Crazy House' have Cass Daley, singing comedienne; Leighton Noble and orchestra, Count Basie and his band, Glen Miller Singers, Bobby Brooks, The Five Herzogs, all on musical chores. 'His Butler's Sister' has the usual number of Deanna Durbin songs, with studio orchestra. 'Man of the Family' has Susanna Foster and Count Basie and band. In 'You're a Lucky Fellow, Mr. Smith,' Allan Jones sings, with studio orchestra. The Delta Rhythm Boys, the Neilson Sisters and Wingy Manone warble in 'Hi Ya, Sailor.' Jan Garber and orchestra, Mary O'Brien and Liz Tilton, the Delta Rhythm Boys chant in an untitled short.

He may jump the gun when he starts his picture on Monday by calling it 'Naples,' and along about Wednesday the scene may be shifted to Genoa or Venice. Mexican Spitfire's Blessed Event

(Farce Comedy)

RKO production. Co-stars Lupe Velez and Leon Errol. Supporting cast: Walter Reed, Elizabeth Risdon, Lydia Bilbrook, Hugh Beaumont, Aileen Carlyle, Alan Carney, Marietta Canty, Ruth Lee, Wally Brown. Directed by Leslie Goodwins. Produced by Bert Gilroy. Screen play, Charles E. Roberts and Dane Lussier. Story, Charles E. Roberts. Musical director, C. Bakaleinikoff. Photography, Jack MacKenzie. Art directors, Albert S. D'Agostino and Walter E. Keller. Set decorations, Darrell Silvera and Harley Miller. Edited by Harry Marker. Tradeshown in Los Angeles, July 14, 1943. Running time: 63 MINS.

Leon Errol has established his Lord Epping firmly as an amusing character in RKO's 'Spitfire' series. Up to and including the present entry, his running mate has been Lupe Velez. The combination now goes out of existence, but Lord Epping is to go on, according to announcement at RKO sales meeting in New York. 'Blessed Event' is comparable to its predecessors, with the raucous Velez antics and the characteristic Errol comedy well utilized to give the customers what they expect and have often approved.

His lordship does a double role in this one, a masquerade which thrives on swift changes, exits, entries and the limping eccentricities against a rather vague plot web of a 'blessed event' which ties in with an expected contract for Lupe's husband from Epping, depending upon the presumed birth of a child. Event turns out to be the birth of some puppies, but a neighbor's child is utilized to carry on the deception up to the point where his lordship is willing to settle on terms of the young couple.

Director Leslie Goodwins holds the antic farce to fast movement and salts down the kind of laughs the 'Spitfire' fans anticipate from Errol and Miss Velez. Supporting players perform their assignments capably —Walter Reed, Elizabeth Risdon, Lydia Bilbrook as Lady Epping, Hugh Beaumont, Aileen Carlyle, Alan Carney the bartender, Marietta Canty, Ruth Lee and Wally Brown.

Screen play by Charles Roberts and Dane Lussier, with story by Roberts, provides neat structure for Errol's style delivery. Gag of Epping in an out of hotel well in belief he is masquerader is script topper. Picture will find its niche in the secondary duals.

After Midnight With Boston Blackie

(Melodrama)

Columbia release. Stars Chester Morris, with Richard Lane, Ann Savage, George E. Stone, Lloyd Corrigan. Supporting cast: Cy Kendall, George McKay, Al Hill, Walter Sande, Walter Baldwin, Jan Buckingham, Dick Elliott. Director, Lew Landers. Producer, Sam White. Screen play, Howard J. Green. Story, Aubrey Wisberg, based on the character created by Jack Boyle. Photography, L. W. O'Connell. Film editor, Richard Fantl. Art director, Lionel Banks; associate, Walter Holscher. Interior decorator, William Kiernan. Musical director, M. W. Stoloff. Assistant director, Earl Bellamy. Sound engineer, Lambert Day. Reviewed at the Orpheum, Los Angeles, July 14, 1943. Running time: 65 MINS.

'After Midnight with Boston Blackie' is an okay programmer, neatly projecting the cops-and-robbers theme with good pace and thrills under Lew Landers' direction. This time Boston Blackie, ex-con turned amateur detective, interests himself in saving hi-jacked diamonds belonging to an old prison pal. Chester Morris, in the title assignment, flips through the role for nice reaction, aided by expert support.

Plot, scripted by Howard J. Green from a story by Aubrey Wisberg, based on the Jack Boyle-created character, pits the quick wits of Blackie against a trio of thugs headed by Cy Kendall, latter having killed the old prison pal and purloined the diamonds in a double-cross on his own gang. Complicating Blackie's recovery of jewelry for the murdered man's daughter are police inspector Richard Lane and dumb copper Sande, who charge Blackie with the killing and theft. Following a series of near-escapes from both police and Kendall, Boston Blackie scores another success in tried-and-true meller fashion.

George E. Stone, as the Runt, Blackie's man Friday, Lane and Sande furnish the chuckles on plot's lighter side. Ann Savage is in for femme interest without romantic complications for the amateur dick. Lloyd Corrigan also gains chuckles as a writer of detective fiction and Jan Buckingham, strip teaser and near bride of the Runt spots a light situation in the plot. Standard heavy work is turned in by Kendall, who is bumped off by henchman Al Hill when latter discovers the double cross. Latter does okay by the spot, as does George McKay, second henchman.

L. W. O'Connell photographed the Sam White production which measures up to market intentions. Other technical credits are good.

Carroll charges that Paramount production, 'A Night At Earl Carroll's' which publicized his name as producer was a false representation and claims that he had little choice in the matter of producing the picture.

MPRF Buys $40,000 In Bonds to Aid LA Cruiser Drive

The Motion Picture Relief Fund set the pace for industry War Bond buyers in the 'Build the Cruiser Los Angeles,' yesterday by purchasing $40,000 of Series G bonds. It was stated these will be purchased by the Fund Board as a good investment, as well as a patriotic deed.

Columbia studio employes kicked in with $6,000 in extra bonds during the day.

Purchases for the special July campaign through the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, War Savings Staff of the Treasury Department, are close to the $600,000 mark, it was announced by Henry Ginsberg, committee chairman, following eight days of active campaigning. Special pledge cards for the campaign were distributed yesterday throughout the industry, and resulted in an active response from workers and artists.

British Documentaries Persuasive Films

Persuasively serving their purpose are the two four reel films released through the British Information Services for showing in this country, 'World of Plenty,' having to do with all the world wide problems of food; and 'The Silent Village,' a memorial to the martyred people of Lidice; enacted by the miners of a similar village in Wales. They were jointly press previewed last night at the Filmarte.

'World of Plenty,' is a skillful and graphic presentation of the production, distribution, consumption and peace time and war-time economics of food, particularly as they apply to America and Great Britain. Among the distinguished narrators for the document are government ministers and high officials. Film makes final plea and prediction that freedom from want for any nation from now on cannot be had until all the folks of the world, including all races, share in the plenty that can be grown and properly distributed.

'Silent Village' uses the device of showing a Welsh mining village as if it were the doomed Czechoslovakian town where all the males were shot and the buildings razed in retaliation for the shooting of Hitler's hangman Heydrich. Very impressive is the celebration of the heroism of that Czech village by the folk of Cwmgiedd, enacting out the tragic drama to bring it home to the rest of the world. Production is beautifully photographed, produced with great dignity and feeling and has the cooperation of the Czechoslovakian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the South Wales Miners Federation and the people of Swansea and Dulias Valleys.

Jaffe, Bacon, McCall, Jr., Busy On 'Sullivans'

Sam Jaffe, Lloyd Bacon and Mary McCall, Jr., checked onto 20th-Fox lot yesterday to prepare for 'The Sullivans,' which Miss McCall is scripting. Their immediate job is to find five youngsters and similar number of older actors to portray the five Sullivan brothers at two ages. Bacon will direct and Jaffee act as production exec.

'Wake Land' U. S. Tells Ad World at NBC Breakfast Meet

son, head of the War Production Board, Marvin Jones, Food Administrator, Fred M. Vincent, director of economic stabilization and Chester J. Laroche, chairman of the war advertising council.

Nelson urged business to prepare itself for a 'staggering job in months ahead' if the nation is to meet production schedules for 1943. He warned that 'a false and dangerously premature feeling that the war is in the bag,' has been partially responsible for the production slump. Pointing out that while munition figures are encouraging they are still behind the goal set. Among factors contributing are a shortage of industrial manpower, absenteeism and strikes, WPB chief stated.

To overcome production problem with which the government is dealing, Nelson said that the civilian population must understand the need of further intensifying the war effort and advertising is the means of best getting the message across.

Laroche gave statistics on what had been contributed so far by American business through ads, stating a total of $250,000,000 had been spent in all mediums, but that $500,000,000 was needed. He pointed out value of local advertisers joining in the 'war message in every ad' campaign the same as national firms, and decried doubtful value of institutional ads used to 'blatantly' plug how much a company is doing for the war. Instead, he declared, 'action messages' with a war theme aimed at getting something done is what is wanted.

Marvin Jones told of food hardships and that civilians must bear their share of the war burden by producing, conserving and sharing. Fred M. Vincent warned of the danger of inflation on the home front now and the threat of inflation after the war and of the need to 'hold the line against our deadliest and most insidious enemy at home, the mortal foe of every bank deposit, every insurance policy and every war bond.'

Washington, July 14.—One of the strangest stories to come out of Washington in a long time is brewing in the office of the Cox Committee to investigate the FCC. Because chairman James Lawrence Fly insisted upon maintaining the secrecy to which he was bound on certain matters by the Board of War Communications, even in the face of demands by the committee and its counsel that he discuss them in public session last week, there is a chance now that he will be cited for 'contempt of congress.'

That phrase itself has Washington wondering. The trouble is that legal action against Fly—maximum penalty $1,000 fine or a year in prison—would necessarily involve the Department of Justice.

The $64 question is, how the Department of Justice could possibly bring action against Fly and continue to ignore the far more serious charges against Rep. Eugene E. Cox, committee chairman, who allegedly accepted $2,500 from a Georgia radio station to represent it before the FCC. It is because the FCC brought out this story that it is being investigated.

cluded in the new super list, but it is not likely that any motion picture jobs will be included. Word is expected soon for the WMC that pre-Pearl Harbor fathers will not be liable for military service.

Discussions now are being held with military officials about their manpower needs, and the upshot of the whole thing, it is expected, may be that a great many job deferments now held by childless men under 38 may be wiped out.

All the hubbub about the Navy's industrial incentive film program seems to have been premature. Much of the blame probably should be laid at the door of the Navy because of the various fears it raised when announcing the program over the weekend. Two pictures are definite now, with three more possible.

The first deals with E-boats, submarine fighters, and no more than 15 prints of this two-reeler will be pulled. It will be shown only in 16mm., non-commercially, at war plants. The second deals with Naval action at Guadalcanal, and will be shown workers producing various items of Navy equipment. Three more may be made. Navy officers concerned were amazed and annoyed at the reaction, and it appears their anger might well be directed against their press officer for letting a misleading picture get out. Then, of course, there is the possibility that the release was written as it was in order to see how much of a howl it would elicit. If so, the Navy had decided within a very short time after the story appeared in the trade papers that it had better pull in its horns.

The Navy problem is actually smaller than the Army's industrial incentive film activities, which include the making of seven pictures already similar in spirit to those of the Navy, with an eighth in the works. The work is being done under Major Dick Maybaum.

The same distribution facilities are used by both services. The word production is a misnomer for the activities of either branch; the films are actually put together from footage shot for other purposes.

Lou R. Maxon, OPA information officer and deputy director, announced his resignation from the agency today. Maxon, head of the large advertising agency bearing his name, charged that OPA has ignored sound business principles and will fail unless it rids itself of young lawyers and 'slide-rule theorists.'

Todd to Mexico With Writers to Meet Cole On Musical

New York, July 14.—Mike Todd and his wife, accompanied by Herbert and Dorothy Fields, pull out for Mexico City where Cole Porter joins them from Hollywood to absorb local color for Todd's new musical show, 'Mexican Hayride.'

It now looks like Bobby Clark will get starring comedy spot, with the negotiations for Victor Moore and Billy Gaxton for the show complicated by their Hollywood picture deals.

Mrs. Todd remains in Mexico City indefinitely, but producer is slated to return here within 10 days to read 'Ghost in the Woodpile' by Gypsy Rose Lee, which George Kaufman stages. Patsy Kelly has inside track for lead in 'Ghost.'

House Rep. Asks Probe On Melvyn Douglas Rise to Captain

Washington, July 14. — Promotion of Private Melvyn Douglas to a captaincy, after only several months in the Army, was introduced by Representative James M. Morrison, La., as a subject for Congressional inquiry today.

Douglas, inducted last December 6, was reported to have been promoted and assigned to 8th Service Command headquarters to assist in the sale of War Bonds, last Friday, in dispatches from Houston, Texas. Morrison asked the House Military Affairs Committee to delve into circumstances surrounding the promotion. The congressman hinted that Douglas' friendships with Mrs. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins had something to do with the captaincy.

SPG Mulls Strategy to Combat Ouster of Rep's Flackery

Protesting to Republic yesterday that dismissal of lot's publicity personnel was a violation of the Work Stabilization Plan of the War Manpower Commission, Screen Publicists Guild last night also was considering several other moves in fight to force retention of workers. These included appeal to Conference of Studio Unions which was made last night, also to Screen Writers Guild and other film organizations for support.

SPG grievance committee composed of Lesley Mason, chairman, Ted Taylor, Bill Bloecher and Bob Josephs, filed protest at conference with Studio Manager Howard Sheehan, Labor Contact Al Wilson and Hortense Stahl, of Republic legal department. Sheehan declared studio has no intention of violating either its contract with SPG or the Government Work Stabilization Plan. He promised dismissals of flacks would be reexamined and an answer given on the protest within a few days.

It is understood, however, that Fred Pelton, Producer labor contact, has already advised studio dismissals do not violate Work Stabilization Plan since they conform with agreement between company and Publicists. Clause referred to provides no layoffs and discharges shall be made, among other causes, except where 'the termination is required by law, by a collective bargaining agreement—' It is understood company is ready to pay severance pay if contract calls for such in cases of those dismissed.

SPG's protest applied to three members, Len Boyd, Ambrose Barker and William Porter. Walter Compton, head of the Rep flackery, was a Guild member but carried a withdrawal card because of his executive post.

Guild said Wilson took position Rep had not been a subscriber to the Work Stabilization Plan and that it did not go into effect until July 18. Guild countered that all employers of more than eight persons in an essential industry were obligated by the WMC order placing stabilization in effect July 1. They said certain phases, such as issuance of availability certificates, was postponed until July 18.

Herbert Yates, company head, was reported due here this week, at which time it was understood a showdown would come on the dismissals. Fight, however, will hinge on whether SPG contract is sufficiently strong to force retention of workers or whether other crafts lend their support. Flacks are now working out two weeks notice.

bilization plan becomes effective in the motion picture industry on the above date.

While extras, day players and stuntmen already working in the industry and affiliated with the Guild are exempted from certificate requirements, newcomers into the industry will be required to produce them before they will be permitted to work. Such a certificate also will be required of members who wish to be reinstated after withdrawal or suspension from the SAG.

After stating that an availability cetrificate will be required when employes transfer from one job to another after July 18, Thomson writes:

'However, a special exemption has been granted for extra players, day players and stuntmen, because their employers change so frequently as to make the issuance of certificates of availability impractical. If you come under one of these three classifications, you may continue to move from job to job within the motion picture industry without availability certificates.

'However, if at any time you accept a free-lance contract to play a part, the studio by which you are employed will, at the termination of your contract, issue you a certificate which will enable you thereafter to do other free lance work in the motion picture industry. This certificate will not be needed when you work in the extra player, day player or stuntmen category.

'After July 18, all new members admitted to either Class A or Class B membership will be required to have availability certificates; likewise such a certificate will be required of members who wish to be reinstated after withdrawal or suspension.'

Extra leaders have protested exemption of extras from certificate requirements will enable producers to employ hundreds of outsiders for atmosphere work on waivers from the SAG. They insist that any outsider, whether employed as an SAG member or on waiver, should be required to have an availability certificate from the WMC.

Popkin Takes Vogue As New Day-Dater

Plans for a new day-date situation are being made by Harry Popkin, operator of the Million Dollar, Los Angeles theatre, and a string of independent houses, with the takeover of the Vogue, Hollywood blvd. first run, on lease from Howard Sheehan. Present plans being talked will call for the Million Dollar and Vogue to operate on a first-run, day-date policy, using a portion of product from Universal, Columbia, RKO, Republic and independent film companies.

Hitch may develop in the day-date policy if theatre deal now talked between Fox West Coast and RKO for similar operation of the Los Angeles and Egyptian theatres goes through. In that case, product Popkin could use for his new operation would undoubtedly go to F-WC and RKO, leaving former to work out some other method of using his two houses in a joint policy.

Cut Budget OWI-Radio Changes Listed by Chief Stauffer

announced yesterday that the Network Allocation Plan, the Special Announcement Plan, the Special Assignment Division and Special Events and Time Clearance will all continue pretty much as before.

There will be no change in personnel in the New York, Hollywood or Chicago offices, and no change in the functions of those offices. The clearance work carried on by the Field Division of OWI until today will be taken over in part by the 12 new members of the Bureau's Station Relations Division, who will from their offices in key cities:

(1) Clear all new programs from field offices of Government agencies.

(2) Serve as a central clearing point for announcements proposed by Government agencies.

(3) Service requests from local stations for information and guidance.

'Our function essentially will be to furnish the most complete and accurate information we can assemble and distribute it to the radio industry either directly or through the Station Relations Division,' Stauffer said, explaining that the industry must take over production on behalf of the Government even more than in the past

'With our reduced budget and operating staff,' Stauffer continued, 'we shall, of course, have to ask for even more cooperation from the radio industry than we have heretofore. In some regions, voluntary committees of broadcasters under the general guidance of the Radio Bureau's consultants have already been set up to supplement and implement the activities of our small station relations branch offices. Wherever such cooperative efforts can be worked out, they will obviously strengthen the orderly, intelligent use of available radio facilities.

'With your help there is no reason why the Radio Bureau should not continue to be as effective as it has been in channeling Government information to the radio industry. We shall, as in the past, attempt to avoid unnecessary duplication of effort on the Government's side and unnecessary pressures on the radio industry which has time and time again exhibited its willingness to cooperate in the war effort, provided the needs of the Government were made clear and properly channeled through one agency.'

LOOK AHEAD

Current NEIC activity will be culminated within next few weeks with observance of Pledge Week, to tee off with dedication of show business service flag, with All-Nation's performers dedicating themselves to a minimum of six weeks service.

Industry pledge, projected into session by Margaret Speaks and Kenneth Thomson for final adaptation by NEIC, enlists authors, lyric writers, musicians, producers, directors, artists, scenic designers and combined backstage crafts, all, of course, subject to contractual obligations, with entire industry asked to sign following pledge:

'Desiring to use my full efforts as an American toward the attainment of a speedy victory, I hereby pledge to the President of the United States, through my organization, my services as an artist for the entertainment and morale of the armed forces, the civilian population, the production front or any other field which, in the judgment of my organization, furthers our war program.

'This pledge is made in accordance with our President's recent statement that "Entertainment is always a national asset: invaluable in time of peace, it is indispensable in wartime."

'I hereby promise to advise my organization or any agency designated by them of the time when my services are available and I agree to report to my organization and render my services during such periods upon due notice.

'I further pledge to give an average minimum of six weeks per year or an equivalent of 36 performances or 36 work days.'

PRAISE FROM ARMY

Role that the show business has been playing—and must intensify from here on—in interpreting all the high aims for which the United Nations are fighting was set forth by speakers at today's luncheon and business session, including Brig. Gen. Frederick H. Osborn, chief of Special Services, U. S. Army, who in one of the greatest tributes ever paid show business, said he was speaking under compulsion of seven million men in the army and navy 'who want to thank you.'

Ted R. Gamble, assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury and National Director of War Finance Division of Treasury, also spoke, as did Bert Lytell and Winthrop W. Aldrich, director of National War Fund.

Secretary Morgenthau characterized role the entertainment industry is playing in war effort as 'representative of the finest type of patriotism. As a citizen, I know what you are doing in our camps and abroad, and in our cities through your canteens and service groups. As a citizen I am proud of you.

'As Secretary of the Treasury, I am more than proud, for I have come to depend upon you. When the first Bond program started you did not wait to be called into action—you volunteered. You took off your coats, rolled up your sleeves, and asked for a job to do. And you did it.

'NEVER LET UP'

'Since that time you have never let up in the energetic pursuit of your duty to your country. You have given us the magic of your theatres and movie houses. Through your huge radio audiences you have opened the door to nearly every home throughout the length and breadth of our land.

'Songwriters, authors, script writers, singers, actors—hundreds of you have made Bond-selling the most important thing in your lives for the duration. No other single group is so close to the heart of the American people.

'The entertainment industry knows what it can do best; your people know what they can do, more, as individuals, to raise money and build up spirit than any other single group anywhere.'

Pointing out that it is the 'last big job to solve on the home front,' Ted Gamble disclosed the U. S. must raise 70 billions this year, with 14 to 18 billions to come from individuals during the next six months.

'The show business will have an important part to play,' he said, and lauded the industry for its past job, including enlistment of 4,600 theatres, 822 radio stations with its 8,000 15-minute programs on behalf of the fund raising, the availability of 16,000 screens—all of which resulted in the entertainment industry raising $300,000,000 in recent months. But it couldn't have been done without the aid of the Cagneys, the Sauters, the Lytels, the Edward Arnolds and the others.

STEALS SHOW

It remained for General Osborn to 'steal the show' in his glowing tribute to the entertainment industry, and his reminder 'that the number of lives lost will depend upon the job you do. For the job ahead of you is as important as the job we in the Army are doing. The Army depends upon its leadership, but by the same token we in morale work must supply that vital aid to the leadership.

'It is not my voice you are hearing, it is the voice of millions who depend on you more than you realize. For in lonely, distant lands you have gone to them and lifted their spirits with the charm and friendliness of your persons.

'You have not been paid in money for this; your appearance on the 40 to 50 overseas radio programs the Army makes each week is a free gift on your part. The latest film in 16mm. print sent overseas for showing in every distant Army outpost are given free to the Army for that purpose. The tough journeys (and don't I know they're tough) are not paid for in money.

'I know that I have seen it for three years and I, of all people, know what I'm talking about.'

General Osborn paid tribute to the 'soldiers in grease-paint,' who have lost their lives while on missions overseas and, in the honor of their memory asked for a moment of silence.

From Osborn came disclosures that there are now 17 film libraries in strategic spots on the continent and Islands of the world, servicing Yank troops everywhere.

'We are still a little short of 16mm projectors,' said the General, 'but where we shipped out only 459 up to April 1st, of this year, we shipped 93 in April, 124 in May, 179 in June and will ship 1,993 during the balance of this year. Last January, we were falling down, now we have caught up. The men are really seeing the films for we have records from all the overseas film circuits.'

That out of NEIC's ambitious program must come a hospital circus project, aimed at entertaining thousands of wounded shipped home from global fighting fronts, was pointed out in Bert Lytel's keynoter. 'That's one of the top jobs to be accomplished, not only for this year and next year, but probably for years to come.'

TEN 'COMMANDMENTS'

Ten commandments for show business to guide entertainers swinging out on morale circuits to entertain men in uniform and on civilian and production home fronts was put up for adoption. This set of rules was recommended to NEIC by Eddie Cantor as the 'Bible' for show biz at war and comprises a series of 'Don'ts' for entertainers to avoid pitfalls and for maximum contribution.

Commandments are as follows:

1—Don't do anything for the fighting boys you wouldn't do if their parents were present. You can be just as funny by keeping it clean.

2—Don't get too patriotic—the boys will think it's an act—so you just entertain.

3—Lay off songs about home and mother. They have a tendency to depress.

4—Steer clear of controversial issues. Whenever in doubt don't do it.

5—Don't belittle the enemy too much. Boys have to fight them and maybe die at the hands of a Jap or a Nazi you think is a pushover.

6—When playing for sick or wounded don't sympathize. They're trying to forget their troubles.

7—Don't play hero because you travelled from Hollywood or New York to entertain. Boys in uniform are going a lot farther.

8—Don't complain about music. You're not playing music halls and the guys in the band might have been marching all day.

9—Don't talk down to kids in uniform. Don't patronize them. You're not there to do them a favor.

10—Don't do all encores. Find best part of act and give all to the devotion of material so you can give them just meat.

Connors to Set 20th Regional Meeting Dates This Week

New York, July 14.—Dates and locations for series of regional sales meets for the 20th-Fox sales organization will be set during the coming week by Tom J. Connors, vice president in charge of distribution for the company.

One of major matters for discussion will be biz conditions in metropolitan and rural areas, especially with realignment of sales policies and percentages to conform to shifts in population. In line with this plan being instituted by Connors for readjustment to assist exhibitors affected by loss of population, branch managers and salesmen will carry statistical data on individual theatre operations to the regional meets, to allow discussion and study of those situations for equitable adjustments of film rentals. On instructions from Connors, these statistics have been compiled by exchange managers and salesmen since January.

Fear Cumulative Effect Of 20% Tax Bite

New York, July 14.—Although the start of the 20% withholding tax during the past week has had no immediate effect upon business in film houses, exhibitors believe that the tax plan will have a cumulative effect, with the entertainment budget bound to suffer as the public keeps up regular payments of household, state tax and insurance bills. Kids now on vacation partially cushioned any immediate b.o. loss. There has also been no noticeable change in legit attendance either, except in cheaper seats.

Book Dorsey Against Dorsey On B'way

New York, July 14.—Dorsey brothers will be in opposition in New York houses in December if Tommy isn't forced to change Paramount date. He's down for either December 22 or 29 while Jimmy is booked into Roxy Dec. 15-22. Last time in opposition was when Tommy was at Pennsylvania Hotel and Jimmy at the New Yorker.

NO GENERAL WAGE DRIVE PLANNED THIS SUMMER

No general drive for wage increases are contemplated by film unions this summer, for the first time in 10 years. It is probable that annual meeting of the Basic Agreement crafts, usually held in July, will be skipped, leaving no precedent upon which other organizations could demand wage changes. Certain unions, including the Screen Office Employes Guild, are insisting upon increases to correct asserted inequities, but changes this year probably will be limited to conditions, etc.

Plans, however, may be upset by appeal of Local 40 International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers to the War Labor Board for approval of a 10% boost. Juicers claim tilt was promised them and that it is necessary to even their wages with other workers. If granted, hike would be certain to result in demands from the Carpenters, Painters, Teamsters, Laborers IATSE locals and other organizations that their wages be boosted at least 10%.

Several leaders of unions in the Basic Agreement stated yesterday they had little hopes of securing further general raises during the War emergency. They indicated it was apparent that the wage saturation point had been reached, at least for the present. They said this might be changed at any time by further rises in the cost of living.

Unions in the next few months are expected to center their attention on drives for improved conditions and employment guarantees. Herbert Sorrell, business representative of Moving Picture Painters Local 644 and prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, has always insisted that work guarantees and conditions were more important to the workers than percentage increases. He once offered to refund a 15% tilt if the Producers would guarantee his members 42 weeks work yearly.

Exhibs Here Meet to War Against City Admission Tax

Local exhibitors meet today to lay plans to battle the proposed one-cent admission tax now being sent to the City Attorney's office for legal drafting before being voted on by the City Council. Tax bombshell, dropped yesterday at joint meeting of the City Council's revenue, taxation and finance committees, has theatre men preparing a finish fight against proposed ordinance, which some assert is an unfair levy against film houses and other amusement and sports spots.

Proposed measure was sent to the Council yesterday by the committees with recommendation that it be adopted, while another revenue-raising proposition, that of a half-cent nick on all commodities, or sales tax, was sent to the Council without recommendation.

Both circuit and independent theatre operators will attend war meeting today and will undoubtedly appoint a committee comprised of members from each group to carry the fight for all Los Angeles exhibitors. Tax, which would cover all admissions of 15 cents or over and all theatres, entertainment spots with cover charges, football, baseball and other sporting events, would place burden on those film houses that customarily absorb taxes in admission price. Only a few picture theatres add present Federal tax to regular box office price.

Reject Non-Attendance Fine At SOEG Meet

Members of Screen Office Employes Guild have rejected a proposal to adopt a $5 non-attendance fine by a vote of approximately 3 to 1. Vote against plan was so heavy it was not necessary to take a roll call.

Prexy Margaret Bennett and other officers, most of whom were re-elected, were seated at membership meeting at the Filmarte Theatre. Reports on Producer wage negotiations were made by Business Representative Ed Gilbert and other Guild officers.

Berlin-WB Deal Off If Bergman Unavailable

New York, July 15.—Irving Berlin said his deal to produce for Warners looks cold. Unless he gets Ingrid Bergman, who is under contract to D. O. Selznick, Berlin says he will not join Warners despite fact that Ann Sheridan and Humphrey Bogart have been promised him for leads. He insists on getting Bergman also.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

On the Sicilian battlefront our forces are now meeting considerably stiffened enemy resistance. However our program continues according to plan and schedule.

One of the most important considerations is this: on Sicily as well as other future invasion points Allied forces have no longer to count distances measured in the thousands of miles, as they did in Africa and in the Pacific. They have comfortingly short distances to favor them in their advance. Hitler's initial blitz-krieg success was largely due to this fact, but now the Allies are favored by it.

The Red army has taken the initiative from the Nazis and has started an offensive of its own. Their initial thrust carried them close to thirty miles beyond the Nazi front lines.

The capture of Mubo in New Guinea has sealed the fate of the great Salamaua base, and at the same time forged a ring of steel around Munda.

GOVERNMENT restrictions on widespread building of theatres during the present war—along with other non-essential construction—is directly opposite from conditions existing during the World War of 25 years ago. According to close observance of the industry, Federal brakes on theatre construction at this time will prevent financial headaches for the circuits and building sponsors later when readjustment must come. In 1917-18, wartime boom of theatre biz resulted in phenomenal expansion of large independent theatre circuits in all parts of the country—with houses going up in wholesale lots, and mainly sponsored by franchise holders of the old First National Exhibitors group. Number of the latter found themselves in position of over-expansion a few years after the war, which resulted in gradual absorption by major producer-distributor companies. Currently, major circuits with theatres operating in boom areas, are stymied from heavy expansion through new building due to governmental bans, and—although circuit heads are screaming among themselves over inability to generate new seating capacities in metropolitan and warwork areas—long range view is that imposed regulations will eventually prevent circuits from taking another bath in the bankruptcy courts during the post-war transition period.

UNTIL the memory of the present generation of young soldiers who will return from the South Pacific fades, and they are able to forget the disillusioning reality of those idyllically filmed isles, one avenue of escapist entertainment is washed out. No producer is preparing a South Sea'er in the face of the frank dislike for those places—now battlefields—clearly expressed by every warrior fed up with creamy ocean combers through which he had to plough with full pack; sleepy lagoons near which sleep was usually impossible, and torrential rains always cascading from above. Add the South Sea belles and charmers, too. Comments on these vary greatly from those used to describe pin-up girls in these parts.

CURRENT call to draft boards with ensuing physical examinations have opened up eyes of many a studioite laboring under the impression that he was a hale and hearty individual . . . except for a few allowable ailments peculiar to the industry. Quite a number of these gentry were shocked to be greeted with devastating diagnoses putting them definitely on 4F basis for substantial and never-suspected reasons. These, together with those returning with medical and over-age discharges from armed services, have given studios a not unsubstantial windfall of manpower—able for lot service, anyway.

WAR Department officials in Washington, commenting on AP story out of Sicily that Army Pictorial is doing a terrific job, said that the Army is finally prepared to handle any pictorial job—motion or still—in any part of the world where there is fighting. Earlier in the war, pictorial unit was severely criticized for kind of motion pictures it was producing of war action. 'We weren't prepared ourselves for that kind of thing,' said an Army spokesman. 'The Army's first job was to move men, munitions and food abroad. It was some time later that we got fully organized on the pictorial front.'

ADDING his info to what kind of pictures the servicemen like, on post and in town, Pvt. Sam Abarbanel of the Army writes from Camp Fannin, Texas, that, whatever other preferences they may have, most of the boys go for westerns. Formerly in Republic publicity office, Abarbanel naturally mentions Roy Rogers and Don Red Barry as favorites. But, he generalizes, the boys in uniform now are versed in gun craft and sharp shooting, and they enjoy seeing the western heroes dishing it out to the heavies, even though they may pretend to laugh cynically at the dead-eye aim of the saddle stars.

Boys and gals are wearing buttons nowadays—big buttons with numbers on them and legends telling the world that this particular worker is entitled to unhindered entry into Douglas or Lockheed or Vega or any of the numerous plants growing airplanes in yonder valley where once grew oranges or alfalfa.

Buttons once had a political meaning. Back in the Nineties if you wore a gilded button bearing the words, 'Full Dinner Pail' you were for William McKinley, and if your silver-tinted button bore the legend '16 to 1' you were for William Jennings Bryan. The 16-to-1 odds looked good to the lads who hung their insteps on brass rails in the neighboring life-saving stations, not knowing at the time that they were laying their electoral votes on a dry candidate in the Prohibition Futurity.

In 1898 there were Dewey buttons, some with a picture of the good ship Olympia, which won the Battle of Manila Bay, and some with the words, 'You May Fire When You Are Ready, Gridley,' the command that wiped out the Spanish fleet in the Philippines. Dewey buttons were hot until the Admiral started talking politics, a nautical blunder.

At one time the lapel button was a medium of self-expression, with various suggestions aimed at the opposite gender. They were worn by youths who wore padded shoulders and peg-top pants, long before the modern zooters began their zooting.

Buttons are bigger and better today. They are worn by boys and gals in overalls, the best uniform outside of your Uncle Sam's.

Spotlight Scandals

(Musical)

Banner Production for Monogram release. Co-features Billy Gilbert, Frank Fay and Bonnie Baker. Supporting cast: Billy Lenhardt, Charles K. Brown, Harry Langdon, Iris Adrian, Jimmy Hollywood, Eddie Burtell, Syd Chalton, James Bush, Claudia Dell, Eddie Parks, Betty Blythe, Henry King, Herb Miller, Lottie Harrison, Jim Hope, Jack Boyle. Director, William Beaudine. Producers, Sam Katzman, Jack Dietz. Associate producer, Barney Sarecky. Photography, Mack Stengler. Musical director, Edward Kay. Dance director, Jack Boyle. Editor, Carl Pierson. Technical director, Dave Milton. Previewed in Hollywood, July 15, 1943. Running time: 79 MINS.

First of the Billy Gilbert-Frank Fay series of co-starring comedy dramas, take-off number gives promise of the future and is a melodic potpurri of entertainment which should be reflected favorably at the box office. Here is a homely little film with elements of popular appeal, and both stars register soundly, ably complemented by Bonnie Baker, the radio chantress. Top supporting cast, with Radio Rogues to evoke laughs for their impersonations and music by two orch leaders, Henry King and Herb Miller, all combined to give class to this medium budgeted picture.

Both Gilbert and Fay are perfectly cast, Gilbert the small town barber with theatrical aspirations, Fay the polished ham, quick to sieze upon opportunity. By a fluke, they're engaged as a vaude comedy team, instantly score a hit and soon thereafter star in their own musical show on Broadway, angeled by Harry Langdon, in a brief but memorable portrayal. Plot is given logical motivation when Gilbert learns that Fay is broke and, when show closes after successful run bows out so that his partner can accept a big radio chance on Bonnie Baker's program which Fay steadfastly refused to accept without Gilbert. There is a split-up, Fay being involved in the death of a chorus girl and Gilbert providing money for his defense with final reunion of the pair.

Screen play is tightly knit and pointed toward general consumption, with both stars awarded comedic opportunities for laughs aplenty. Their routines together particularly Fay's as a monologist are excellently presented. Bonnie Baker's singing of 'The Restless Age,' 'Oh Johnny,' 'The Lilac Tree' are pleasant interpolations. Atmospherically the back stage spirit is there in full measure, direction by William Beaudine, taking every advantage of the story's theme. Butch and Buddy, growing up, now draw clever portrayals, Eddie Parks is immense for his comedy, and others to be singled out include, James Busch, Betty Blythe, Iris Adrian and Jim Hope for personable support.

Production is well contrived by the two producers, Sam Katzman and Jack Dietz, and associate, Barney Sarecky. Photography of Mack Stengler is entirely up to standard. Picture should draw a repeat request for Gilbert and Fay.

New York, July 15.—It is virtually set that William Goetz and Leo Spitz are signing up 'Junior Miss' for release through United Artists.

REP VETOES SPG PROTEST OVER OUSTER OF FLACKERY

Republic yesterday nixed protest of Screen Publicists Guild over dismissal of studio publicity department personnel, contending company had a right to make such dismissals under its Basic Agreement with the Guild. At the same time, it was disclosed that Margaret Waite, who would have been entitled to some five weeks severance pay, was not included in the dismissals and will be retained when she returns from vacation.

Al Wilson, Republic labor contact, agreed with Guild that the War Manpower Commission's Work Stabilization Plan became effective July 1, but said its provisions provided services of employes could be terminated in accordance with any collective bargaining agreement that might exist. Deal between company and SPG provides for notice or severance pay, which company is complying with.

Guild's grievance committee will meet tonight to determine if any further steps should be taken at this time. It was understood a formal protest probably would be lodged with William Hopkins, regional director for the WMC at San Francisco. Situation was called to attention of Conference of Studio Unions, which authorized its WMC representatives on the industry's Labor-Management Committee, Herbert Sorrell and Ed Gilbert, to investigate the dismissals. In view of severance pay clause in SPG contract, however, it was considered doubtful Conference would take any stand in the matter.

Fly Says Cox Committee Seeks Headlines to Kill Opposition

Wahington, July 15.—Federal Communications Commission chairman James L. Fly took another sock today at the Cox committee which is investigating him, disclosing that the committee has set up a perfect publicity pattern for a packed investigation. He made public a memorandum sent to the committee members by their counsel, Eugene Carey.

'The memorandum from the Wall Street counsel to the members of the Cox committee,' said Fly, 'merely confirms and formalizes the plan adopted by the committee in assembled meeting on July 6. It is to be noted that this plan sets forth principles to govern the committee's public hearings. These principles are carefully designed to accomplish two results: "the seizure of the headline." By adroit use of the gavel, the effectuation of the principle that the committee must keep the commission's side of the case from reaching the public.'

The memorandum, prepared by a newspaperman, advised the committee of the best way to get the headlines, and to smother the 'opposition'—the FCC.

operating partners were present, is reported planning roadshow engagements of 'Bell Tolls' in several key cities, including Los Angeles, New Orleans, Chicago, Memphis and Washington. These showcase runs on twice daily policy with $2.20 top, will be followed by special sale of the picture to all theatres at advanced admissions in each instance with more than 45 key runs slated for October. Looks like policy will require 75c to $1.10 minimum in all situations. Sales policy will require 'Bell Tolls' as a solo attraction.

First of roadshow engagements are slated for the Carthay Circle and United Artists, Los Angeles, opening around first of September. Scale at Carthay will be the $2.20 top on a two-a-day policy, with UA downtown carrying $1.10 maximum for three shows daily.

At today's sales sesh, president Barney Balaban pledged that the company would deliver the best product during the coming season since inception 31 years ago. He also pointed out that Paramount will secure financial independence next year through elimination of all senior securities, and it would probably be the only film company without debt of any kind.

Chairman of the board and organizer of the company Adolph Zukor spoke briefly and declared: 'I am grateful that I have lived to see that Paramount is on top again and I am confident it will stay there.' Frank Freeman wired enthusiastic reports of next season's product from the studio, while executive producer B. G. De Sylva told the delegates of future production plans.

Paramount will launch exceptionally heavy advertising and exploitation campaign for "Bell Tolls,' sales chief Neil Agnew announced. Charles M. Reagan, assistant general sales manager, will take personal charge of the sales and release of the picture. In addition to requiring picture to be soloed, Paramount policy will also ban shorts, stage attractions or giveaway stunts in all bookings.

Advertising head Robert Gillham stated that advertising outlay will include total of $189,000 for magazines alone, with combined circulation rated at 17,000,000. He also disclosed that the four week campaign here will hit $150,000 for advertising and exploitation. On smaller scale, this extensive outlay will be duplicated in all roadshow cities for the picture.

May Lift 'A' Card Ban In East, B. O. Help

Washington, July 15.—Announcement that the pleasure driving ban for eastern 'A' card holders will be lifted as soon as possible, by Price Administrator Prentiss Brown, offers much hope for a box office upbeat in the states affected.

In stating that the oil situation is better, Brown said that he had always opposed the pleasure ban 'except and unless absolutely necessary,' feeling that 'A' card holders should be permitted to use their small rations as they see fit. Holders of 'B,' 'C,' and 'T' books must continue to use their rations for specific purposes.

BIZ TO BAT FOR WAR MORALE

NEIC Message to President

Telegram sent to President Roosevelt reads as follows:

'The Entertainment industry of the United States, through 45 allied organizations representing more than 600,000 people, meeting in a two-day session at the Waldorf-Astoria to organize national entertainment Industry Council, greets you as our President and Commander-In-Chief and reaffirms its pledge of loyal service in every way to furtherest prosecution of war. Convened by the Entertainment Industry leaders, NEIC was organized to work out ways and means of expending and bettering our war service. At the closing session today we have restated our active allegiance to the principles of Democracy and tenets of our Constitution. We have unanimously dedicated ourselves to an intensified and complete program in support of all phases of War work at home and abroad—a stand we fully intend to carry on through the peace years to follow in the rehabilitation of the mental and physical structures of our world. We are in action. We are fully mobilized and our resources are yours as Commander-In-Chief in the tireless service of winning this fight and forcing our enemies to their knees in unconditional surrender. To this end we have prepared a detailed program which we, as a unified industry, will carry forward in the days, months and years ahead to result in more and better entertainment for all the people—soldiers, sailors and civilians of this America which has given and is giving so much.'

NEIC LISTS PROJECTS FOR WORK

port of all phases of War work at home and abroad, and telegraphed him to that effect.

Likewise taking its cue from a statement John C. Flinn, delegate from The Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers and the Academy made, that the trend of show business toward unification and coordination may be well like the Military itself, set the example for all other industries to follow in the War effort.

PUSH ALL PROJECTS

The convention turned over to the all-important co-ordination committee for immediate combing and 'prosecution' ambitious lists of the projects committee.

Scope of activities on which the coordination group will take action at its meeting next Tuesday night at the Astor hotel, comprises three facts—Armed forces, Production Front, Civilian front.

Recognized as one of the most crying needs, the Committee has listed among its projects to be set up units of performers who will go into all hospitals of the nation to entertain wounded brought back from all global fighting fronts.

How NEIC as the 'Supreme Court' of the Entertainment industry can reflect itself as one of the Nation's top forces in breaking down racial barriers, aid in solving economic unrest impeding the war effort, was projected in the closing hours of the session with delegates voicing unanimous approval of projects which will take the entertainers into every town and hamlet in America.

CUT SELFISH INTEREST

The warning that 'unless show biz can be sold to the nation as a symbol of education as well as entertainment, with personalities as well as selfish interest tossed out the window' was also put into the record as one of NEIC's overall aims. Otherwise, it was pointed out, the mobilization of all the talent and resources pooled into a cohesive unit, will become nothing more than a '90 day wonder,' instead of NEIC developing into something unprecedented in show biz history. That the 600,000 people within the entertainment industry can get the full scope of contribution they will be asked to make, an interpretive digest of the two-day proceedings will go out to every organization, whether or not identified with the NEIC.

When the coordination committee meets on Tuesday it will set to work on immediate problems of setting up National pledge week. With the entertainers of America asked to volunteer at least six weeks of their time as 'soldiers in grease paint' (now being done in Hollywood by the Producers and Victory committee); arrange for a mammoth mass meeting at which an appeal will be addressed direct to upwards of 2,000 actors on Broadway; arrange for a NEIC button pledge, with 100,000 emblems to be sold to people in show biz at $1 each to symbolize active participation and help finance NEIC, and to set machinery in motion for channeling of the numerous projects into the various organizations from Stage, Screen, Radio, Music, Variety and Outdoor.

OWI NEEDS HELP

The Office of War Information, long indebted to show biz for its past role, will only be able to operate in the future, because of what little is left of its domestic branch, by passing back to Films, Radio, Press, etc., more and more of the work was the message brought to the convention by Elmer Davis, its head, who appealed for its all-out contributions.

'We have done extremely well, but we must do better,' Davis said. 'The Army and Navy as we know, is doing such excellent work that it almost seems fantastic. But the home front in recent weeks has been far from a pretty picture. In fact a sorry picture. The factor, of course, is the fact that the War is being fought 4,000 miles away, and in some places 10,000 miles. When we hear people complain about inconveniences we feel ashamed of ourselves, when we think of what the Russians and Chinese are enduring. We must obtain comparable spirit in this country to make the people feel they are trying to throw the enemy out of New Jersey instead of New Guinea. When this feeling prevails our coal strikes will end, so will our race riots. The people need the stimulant that comes via morale. I merely pose it to you. You understand and know best how to go about restoring a healthy condition, but we've got to concentrate on that above all else.'

REACH RURAL HOUSES

That the rural sections of the Nation remain untapped—so far as the Entertainment Industry contribution is concerned—was another fact cited. It was contended by several delegates that there are many theatre operators for instance, who refuse to cooperate in war bond sales claiming it hurts business; that many theatres will not reduce prices for men of the Armed forces. It was further pointed out that all 16,000 theatres can be made bond issuing agencies instead of 4,600 that participated in past drives.

Phillip Loeb's projects reports recommends, among other things, expanding runs of Broadway plays to cover a six week tour of Army camps; expansion of such plays as done by the Agriculture department on black market subjects; all Broadway plays to play neighboring camps on free matinee days and Sunday, exploring the possibility of doing without scenery by having sets described by narrators; permanent repertoire and stock companies to be stationed at selected points: facilities of Universities and Little theatres throughout the country to be used for War activity with professional directors, with leading players sent there for organization.

TAB VERSIONS

Also setting up of tab versions of plays for Camp tours; producers to furnish theatres for rehearsing units; a national three-act play contest on a war subject with prizes being a Broadway production for the best two plays; asking unions to make concessions in working conditions; a number of units similar to 'Lunchtime Follies' and musical packages to tour all the production centers, and similar units to hypo civilian morale, arousing constructive emotional attitudes in the American people. The NEIC feels in regards to the latter project, it can be a determining factor in coping with such serious situations as the recent Detroit riot, growing anti-semitism, inflation and other economic factors that are injurious to the war effort.

Film Unions Wait Call For Anti-Strike Bill Battle

California State Federation of Labor is preparing to launch a drive against the Smith-Connolly anti-strike act and other laws and legislation considered unfair to organized labor. Meeting of representatives of film unions and guilds, as well as outside crafts, will be called shortly by D. T. Wayne, Federation vice-prexy and business representative of Studio Machinists Local 1185.

William Green, international president of the AF of L, recently announced that the organization would campaign for the defeat of every congressman who voted in favor of the anti-strike measure. Members of Wayne's Federation group are expected to call on all members of the California congressional delegation to discuss the anti-strike act and other labor laws and legislation.

Postpone Exhibitors Tax Kick Meeting

General meeting of exhibitors set for yesterday to discuss the proposed city admissions tax of one cent was called off until a future date, to be announced. Although not gathering together in a general session to adopt means to fight tax measure, individual exhibitors spent considerable time yesterday discussing proposal and the effect it would have upon present operations.

Understood several major circuit figures called on the City Hall yesterday afternoon for private talk on tax with city officials, but results of visit, if any, were no revealed.

Many theatre men take the view that tax would be a nick only on that portion of the population that regularly attend theatres, placing the burden on these ticket buyers to pay for new sewage system for city, while others who rarely if ever attend film houses, sporting events, night clubs, etc., would not have to divvy up a share for the much-needed municipal improvement.

FILM TOTS UNEMPLOYMENT INS. DECISH DUE BY AUG. 4

A decision on the appeal of child film players for the resumption of unemployment insurance payments was promised before Aug. 4 yesterday by the State Employment Commission. The verdict may come within the next week.

Announcement of a settlement of the dispute which has been a matter of debate since payments were discontinued last February came after three commissioners and Deputy Attorney General Clarence Linn heard the stories of members of the Parents of Motion Picture Children, who appeared before them.

The delegation refuted the claims that the children were not eligible for unemployment payments because they were not available for work because of school attendance. The parents, who were headed by their president, Mrs. Marion Terry, maintained that the claim of the employment office was inconsistent as the state law requires 24 hours notice from a studio to a child called for work. This they claimed branded the employment office's ruling that the children are not available on call as inconsistent.

The delegation also pointed out that, while the children are declared ineligible for unemployment insurance deductions are still being made from their paychecks for such protection. Mrs. Terry branded such deductions as grossly unfair.

The state commissioners are considering the evidence given by seven members of the parents organization representing 3,000 children as a basis for the decision they have promised.

The existing law makes a child who has earned $400 in a year eligible for minimum payments of $10 a week for 16 weeks. Children from 2 weeks to three months old get a minimum of $75 a day for film work not to exceed two hours, those between three and six months receive $25 a day and those over six months $10.50, according to Mrs. Terry.

It was stated that should the employment commissioners decide against them, members of the parents' organization will appeal their case to the Social Security Board in Washington.

Rep Plans Own Netter With Studio Talent

New York, July 15.—Republic, holding the first of a series of sales meetings here this week, plans a radio program built around talent on the studio payroll for coast-to-coast airing. Herbert Yates, chairman of the board, stated program will carry no commercial tieup inasmuch as he 'believes that the radio program, concerned only with motion pictures, will provide entertainment, which will suffer from no commercial interruptions, and is much to be desired.'

Second of Republic's sales meetings is scheduled to take place at Chicago tomorrow.

Sherman Troupe Treks On 2 'Hopalongs'

Harry Sherman troupe leaves today for Kernville for location shots for two 'Hopalong Cassidy' films, 'Texas Masquerade' and 'Thundering Hoofs,' both to be directed by George Archainbaud. Shooting two pictures on same location jaunt is in line with producer's practice, established about a year ago, to economize. Company moves over to Lone Pine for further scenes, following wind-up of work at Kernville.

Purchase by Columbia Studio of $750,000 in Government securities to apply toward purchase of the Cruiser Los Angeles, was announced yesterday by the Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, War Savings Staff of the Treasury Department. Henry Ginsberg is chairman of the committee directing the drive.

This brought the film industry's purchase in the special July campaign to more than $1,250,000, at the half-way post in the campaign.

Obituary

JULES BLEDSOE

Jules Bledsoe, 43, died Wednesday at the home of his former manager, Adrian F. Huygens, in Los Angeles.

At the peak of his career, the famed Negro singer passed away suddenly from a cerebal hemorrhage.

Bledsoe was the first negro to appear in a major U. S. opera production a few years ago, when he sang with the Cleveland Opera company. On six trips to Europe he sang with every principal symphony orchestra as soloist. He also introduced Louis Gruenberg's opera adaptation of Eugene O'Neill's 'Emperor Jones.'

Bledsoe sang 'Old Man River' in Ziegfeld's original 'Showboat,' and played the title role in Paul Green's Pulitzer Prize play, 'In Abraham's Bosom.' A few years ago he was introduced in Los Angeles, in solo recital, by L. E. Behymer, impresario. Last year, he appeared on a notion-wide broadcast with Mrs. Roosevelt to sing a song dedicated to Franklin D. Roosevelt, on the occasion of the president's acceptance of it.

He had just completed a highly-successful War Bond tour and circuit of Army camps. A sister, Mrs. Naomi Cobb survives him in Waco, Tex., where he was born.

BEVERLEY SITGREAVES

Beverley Sitgreaves, 80, died in New York City yesterday. She ended a career of 49 years appearing on stages in the U. S., London, Paris and South Africa.

LOUIS LAWSON

Funeral services were held yesterday for Louis Lawson, 41, auditor for Columbia Studios, at the Hollywood Cemetery Chapel. He was entombed in Beth Olam Mausoleum. He is survived by his widow, Betty.

MPRF Help Mainly to Extras, Actors Its Report Shows

Extras and actors account for 75% of those served by the Motion Picture Relief Fund, it was disclosed yesterday in the Fund's annual report. Figures, however, show that remaining 25% was widely distributed among other film workers.

A breakdown of the clientele served during 1942 shows the following percentages: extra players, 44.9; actors, 30.3; back lot employes, 5.1; writers, 4.7; directors, 2.4; office workers, 2.3; cameramen, 1.9; electricians, 1.5; film editors, 1.2; technicians, 1.2; musicians, 1; producers, 1; miscellaneous, 2.5.

Prexy Jean Hersholt explained the high percentage of extras and actors seeking aid does not indicate they are more improvident than other groups in the industry. He said it is due to casual employment, while most studio employes receive regular pay checks.

Sherriff To London On Four Films There

R. C. Sherriff, British writer who alternates his scripting between England and America, leaves soon for London where he will be on assignment to write four or five film stories for 20th-Fox on current war activities on Allied and home fronts.

MBS Cuts WSAY Music Feed in AFM Ban

New York, July 15.—Mutual network in New York discontinued feeding all musical shows, both commercial and sustaining, to WSAY, Rochester, this afternoon. Move was based on the strike called against the station by the American Federation of Musicians two weeks ago over a dispute between the union local and station's refusal to employ five musicians. WSAY has stated it will not bow to Petrillo and will take the case to the War Labor Board.

Industry observers label Mutual's elimination of musical show service a secondary boycott. With Mutual's discontinuance of musical shows to the station, AFM's strike is eliminated and remote orchestras go back on the network immediately.

Mellon Sentenced— Thomas C. Mellon, who pleaded guilty to using Army lieutenant's uniform to obtain approximately $20,000, mainly from school teachers on representation that he was making army training films was sentenced here yesterday to serve three years in prison and placed on a five year probation on condition that he return the money he took by Federal Judge Ralph E. Jenney.

Mankiewicz Sued— Herman Mankiewicz, scenarist, faced two civil suits totalling $52,275 as the result of an auto collision in which he figured. Suit was filed in Superior Court by Mrs. Lenore Gershwin, wife of Ira Gershwin, lyricist, and Peggy Martin, Gershwin's secretary.

Children to Dempsey— New Rochelle, N. Y., July 15.—Lieut. Comm. Jack Dempsey was awarded custody today of his two daughters, Barbara and Joan, by Supreme Court Referee, J. Addison Young. Dempsey was granted a divorce from his wife, Hannah Williams last week. She was given permission to visit the children, but will appeal decision.

Gosch Leaves 20th As Associate Producer For A & C Return

Martin Gosch has resigned as as-associate producer at 20th-Fox and checks off the lot tomorrow. He resumes as producer of the Abbott & Costello air show for the William Esty agency and starts advance work on new season's program Monday, lining up writers, etc. He will head for New York end of next week for further work on the show.

Gosch was brought in to 20th-Fox by William Goetz, and his resignation follows closely the departure of latter from 20th-Fox. Gosch has been with the studio since April and had done some preliminary work on several future pictures, including a Jack Benny story, 'Man of the Year,' which he brought in with him and will retain for a future production deal. His producing contract for the A&C show leaves him a free agent for outside deals with film studios.

NLRB NIXES SPPC EXTRA POLL

WAC LOOKS HERE FOR FINANCE

New, York, July 18.—Although there was no official announcement from War Activities Committee, it is understood that the tentative program agreed upon at week-end meeting calls for release of 52 pictures. Twenty-six of these will be one and two-reel subjects and the others short shorts.

Francis S. Harmon, WAC vice chairman, stated that there would be no official word on the program until

Frisco Alcazar To F-WC As Long Run House

For West Coast is planning to take over the lease held by Sid Grauman on the Alcazar theatre, San Francisco, a legit house, and turn it into a long run film house with reserved seats at $1.65 top. It would require about $35,000 to put the house into condition for this policy with the first attraction to be 'For Whom the Bell Tolls,' figured to run at least six months. Should other attractions of equal importance come along the policy will then be continued.

Lt. Col. Roosevelt Airs To Aid 'Cruiser' Drive

Lt. Col. James Roosevelt appears on KECA today, 10 to 10:15 a. m., to deliver salute to contingent of Los Angeles boys undergoing 'boot camp' training at Camp Farragut, Idaho.

Group of naval trainees are participating in the Los Angeles County drive to raise $40,000,000 in War Bonds for the Crusier Los Angeles.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

The progress of the fighting on all battlefronts is highly satisfactory.

Especially in the eastern front where the city of Orel may easily become the 'X' that marks the spot on which Nazsim's back was broken.

And incidentally, don't give too long odds against a Roosevelt-Stalin meeting. It's in the wind and may happen sooner than anyone expects.

Wood to Make Further 'Bell' Cuts, Studies Audience Effect

New York, July 18.—Still dissatisfied with final editing of 'For Whom the Bell Tolls,' director Sam Wood has carried his argument for changes—which will include some insertions, but numerous deletions that will reduce running time.

Director went on record out on the coast several weeks ago when completed editing job was shown him. At that time, he disagreed

ACTION CALLED VICTORY FOR SAG AND MAYO CLAN

National Labor Relations Board in Washington has denied appeal of Screen Players Protective Committee from a decision of E. J. Eagen, local NLRB director, dismissing committee's petition for an election of 5,000 film extras to designate a collective bargaining representative. Board upheld action of Eagen, who made his ruling following an extensive investigation by George Yager, NLRB field examiner.

NLRB action was a sweeping victory for the Screen Actors Guild, which opposed the election after reading the phraseology of the SPPC petition. Previously, the SAG has

QUESTION HARRY COHN IN QUIZ OF CHI RACKETEERS

New York, July 18.—Federal authorities here have reopened their investigation of labor racketeering in the motion picture industry by directing their attention to the one-day strike at Columbia Studio, called by Willie Bioff when the pudgy labor labor hoodlum was extorting millions of dollars from Producers by threatening to call strikes of IATSE unions. Harry Cohn, Columbia head, now east, is being questioned by the U. S. attorney's office and it was understood he would be asked to testify before the Grand Jury.

Chatter

Barbara Britton guests on 'Noah Webster Says' over NBC July 27.

Bette Davis arrives here this week from Boston for start of her Warners starrer, 'Mr. Skeffington.'

Nan Wynn is slated for return shot as guest star on Grouch Marx' air show July 24.

Gregory Ratoff is set to go on the Groucho Marx-Pabst program July 24, as guest.

Kirk Alyn, signed for featured role in Metro's 'Broadway Rhythm,' works in a nearby aircraft plant on night shift.

Harry Goldberg, Warners theatres director of advertising and publicity, is in Washington for premiere of 'This Is the Army.'

Raoul Walsh off on Mexican siesta and to be honor guest at several functions arranged by President Avila Camacho.

Harry Barris, band soloist, is signed at Columbia for role in Ted Lewis' musical, 'Is Everybody Happy?'

Tex Ritter planes in from Memphis on Wednesday from six weeks appearance tour of army camps and theatres.

Jeanne Bates, recruit from radio and little theatre, has been signed to term contract at Columbia, where her first assignment will be femme lead in 'The Gamble of Boston Blackie.'

Emily Kimbrough, co-author of 'Our Hearts Were Young and Gay' with Cornelia Otis Skinner, hits town today from the east to function as technical advisor on Paramount film version of the yarn.

Because of space demands for current productions, Columbia has had to rent three stages at Fine Arts studios for 'There's Something About a Soldier,' a Sam Bischoff production which Al Green directs.

Felix Jackson, Universal producer, and Frank Ryan, director, return today from New York where they spent week in connection with exploitation of Deanna Durbin starrer, 'Hers to Hold.'

Harry Wallen back at his managerial chores at the Hollywood Paramount theatre after month's vacation at his northern ranch. Thirty-day siesta among hard-worked theatre managers these days is practically unheard-of.

Benny the Gouge sez—A lot of baseball fans seem to be more worried about the little ruckus in Brooklyn than they are about the big battle in Sicily.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

FILM man with foreign background points out that when trade begins in war-won territory again, exchanges handling American pictures will open for business with film inventories of staggering size never duplicated before in history of the business. The accumulation of four to five years of American production will fill the vaults and with so many pictures that he predicts a buyer's market will ensue that will prove to be a bonanza for exhibitors there. They will have a choice of a wealth of film while distributors will have to vie with each other for customers. Only possible way to combat such a situation would be for the majors to come to some releasing agreement restricting the number of pictures issued for any given time. But this would mean slower liquidation of prints into money and by the time foreign markets open companies may be in the need for cash and unwilling to delay possible grosses. Result may be dissipation of accumulated picture holdings in a general scramble for playdates. While his words come under heading of 'prediction' strictly, nevertheless a world of problems will rise when foreign selling opens up again in the opinion of any number of industry leaders.

A REAL threat to the industry, as far as production possibilities are concerned, is seen in the recent commissioning of a former U. S. attorney general to prepare legislation, apparently for presentation in congress, which would bring films under the jurisliction of price regulating agencies. The ex-federal lawyer is George R. Farnum, prominent Boston legal mind. The name of the person or persons who have retained him to do this job is not known. Speculation varies from outside interests to certain exhibitor groups. Point made by studio observers who intend to keep a close eye on Mr. Farnum's activities, is that cutting possible revenues obtainable for top pictures now will mean a definite drop in their production values. Even top grosses obtainable a year ago hardly balance current terrific rise in studio film costs, and the investment in a number of pictures on the stages today is predicated not only on a continuing lush market but even on a more profitable one. Any legislative restriction on profts is viewed as having direct bearing on every item of shooting cost with inevitable salary slashes that would have to be applied down the line from producer to extra.

INS over weekend carried an interview with B. G. DeSylva, in New York to attend world preem of Paramount's 'For Whom the Bell Tolls,' in which Paramount production boss declared war pictures were on the down-grade and motion picture industry is going all-out for escapist films. DeSylva said that the American public is too close to the war to find much entertainment in pictures playing it up, that audiences, almost all of whom have somebody in the war, prefer not to be reminded of it in their lives. Producer went on to say that Hollywood is slashing its war films production, and that although major studios have expended in excess of $1,000,000 for war stories many of these stories will be shelved because of public attitude toward them. Speaking of his own studio's output, DeSylva announced that Paramount currently is going in mostly for musicals and comedies.

IT is proverbial in the business that when stars select their own material and have too much domination over associated personnel the resulting picture is likely to be a floppo, or at best a dubious grosser. Carey Grant reversed the usual outcome when he insisted that RKO buy from an amateur writer, Milton Holmes, a yarn called 'Bundles For Freedom' for 30,000 smackers as a starring vehicle for himself. Out in circulation under the title, 'Mr. Lucky,' the picture wherever it has played thus far, has exceeded grosses of previous Cary Grant starrers, often by as much as 30 to 50 percent.

THE five outstanding features of the month of June from a box office standpoint, as far as boys of the armed forces are concerned, were in the order named, 'Stage Door Canteen' (United Artists), 'Coney Island' (20th-Fox), 'Bataan' (Loew's-Metro), 'Aerial Gunner' (Paramount-Pine-Thomas), and 'Action In the North Atlantic' (Warners). Compilation is sent out by U. S. Army Motion Picture Service from Washington, based on attendance at War Department Theatres.

GOVERNMENT of El Salvador in Central America has taken over the last 10 independent film houses in that country. Government is now operating all 29 theatres. The Government paid $170,000 to the Compania Nacional de Espectaculos for the houses, and now has a complete monopoly with which American firms will have to deal.

Work Stabilization Is In Effect Here

War Manpower Commission's Work Stabilization Plan calling for availability certificates became effective in the motion picture industry yesterday. With the exception of film extras, day players and stuntmen, all employes reporting for work today must have either availability certificates or extended availability certificates. The latter apply to technicians who are on call.

MPRF Has 400 Medical Calls Each Month

The medical branch of the Motion Picture Relief Fund continues to be one of the busiest departments in extending aid to members of the film industry, according to the annual report of Dr. Francis E. Browne, chief of staff. Of the 11,672 individuals given assistance during the year, 4,806 were medical patients, an average of 400 per month. There were 3,499 office calls, 540 home calls, 8,127 hospital calls made.

Now comes the soldier home from overseas
To spend a little time in well earned ease
He seeks a motion picture to relax
The strain of air and submarine attacks.

From house to house he goes but cannot find
A calm and peaceful film to soothe his mind.
The screen is hot with many a 4-F hero
Who sinks a submarine or blasts a Zero.

Film Previews

Silver Spurs

(Western With Music)

Republic production. Stars Roy Rogers. Supporting cast: Smiley Burnette, John Carradine, Phyllis Brooks, Jerome Cowan, Joyce Compton, Dick Wessel, Hal Taliaferro, Forrest Taylor, Charles Wilson, Byron Foulger, Bob Nolan and The Sons of the Pioneers. Director, Joseph Kane. Associate producer, Harry Grey. Original screen play, John K. Butler and J. Benton Cheney. Photography, Reggie Lanning. Film editor, Tony Martinelli. Art director, Russell Kimball. Sets, Otto Siegel. Music director, Morton Scott. Songs: Tim Spencer; Jolson, Rose, Dreyer; Shay, Harris, Malie; Woolsey, Taggert, Sauer; Bob Nolan; Smiley Burnette; Hugh Farr. Previewed in Los Angeles, July 16, 1943. Running time: 68 MINS.

Furthering the widening popularity of its saddle star, Roy Rogers, Republic plays this entry across the board with lavish production as a galloping western with music, dressed in its best dude togs. Rogers, well supported, continues to hit his assured pace to keep friends and influence people who have the faintest response to western melodrama and western tunes. 'Silver Spurs' (Republic has a genius for alluring titles) offers the warbling waddy from San Fernando valley a neat pattern for his gunfighting and romantic chores. The stirrup partner continues to be soft-spoken, warm hearted and agreeably comic Smiley Burnette, who carries his full share in keeping the standard up in this brand of range idyll.

Producer Harry Grey and the scripters, John K. Butler and J. Benton Cheney, have loaded the picture with all the lively and colorful elements demanded from this type entertainment, and Director Joseph Kane spurs it along at a headlong pace for most of its footage. Performances by John Carradine, Phyllis Brooks, Jerome Cowan, Joyce Compton, Dick Wessel, Hal Taliaferro, Forrest Taylor, Charles Wilson and Byron Foulger are above par for musical westerns, justifying the extra care taken to assembly a trouping cast which can do more than ride and shoot and mugg. Bob Nolan and The Sons of the Pioneers add the extra musical complement to Rogers singing, while a far better than average score, directed by Morton Scott, helps very materially to sustain the quality production.

The story requires Rogers, a singing hand on a big modern ranch, to extricate himself from a situation which has him accused of the murder of his drunken boss, a wealthy playboy whose ranch is coveted by Carradine. Latter also is maneuvering to profit by railway right of way into an isolated oil property, owned by neighbors of the community for whom Rogers is acting as spokesman and champion. Phyllis Brooks enters the situation as a newspaper reporter sent out from the nearest metropolis by a callous editor to discover why the wealthy rancher is advertising for a mail-order bride and to pretend to be a candidate for that dubious honor. By a fluke, she is actually permitted to marry the man, Jerome Cowan, a few hours before he is killed by a henchman of Carradine. By ruse and fight and escapades containing numerous novel and freshly contrived items, Rogers saves himself, the girl and her companion, Joyce Compton, and the right-of-way to the oil well.

(Western)

Harry Sherman production for United Artists release. Stars William Boyd. Features Andy Clyde and George Reeves. Cast: Dustine Farnum, Victor Jory, Douglas Fowley, Betty Blythe, Bob Mitchum, Francis McDonald, and Earle Hodgins. Directed by Lesley Selander. Screenplay by Mortimer Grant, Norman Houston and Michael Wilson. Associate producer, Lewis J. Rachmil. Photography by Russell Harlan. Film editor, Carroll Lewis; assistant director, Glenn Cook. Musical director, Irvin Talbot. Art director, Ralph Berger. Previewed in studio projection room, July 16, 1943. Running time: 54 MINS.

Displaying plenty of riding and shooting, 'Bar 20' is one of the better actioners of the Hopalong Cassidy series, and a cinch to catch attention from addicts of western screen adventure and followers of the Hoppy cinematic exploits.

Yarn, which follows familiar trails of heroic westerns, keeps pretty much to the open country. For first time in many issues, the three westerners are kept out of the regulation frontier town—in fact, closest they get is a ranchhouse in the cattle country. William Boyd, Andy Clyde and George Reeves ride over from Bar 20 ranch to purchase herd of pedigreed cattle from rancher Betty Blythe. They meet latter and her daughter, Dustine Farnum near the destination, and scatter outlaw band that held up the stagecoach to secure jewel case. Girl is to be married to young rancher, Bob Mitchum, who sets out to obtain coin to get the jewels back. Hoppy makes offer to purchase the cattle wanted, but is ambushed by the outlaws in trap set by Victor Jory. Hoppy then sets out to regain possession of both the jewels and his money, while rounding up the bandits, and it develops into a continual chase with several gun battles generously included.

Direction by Lesley Selander is speedy throughout, as demonstrated by the brief running time of 54 minutes. Scripters deliver the usual western tale to generate plenty of riding and fighting, but give Andy Clyde plenty of footage to display broad comedy that will be easily accepted by the juve trade. Boyd continues to effectively portray Hoppy, while Reeves is okay as the juvenile member of the trio. Victor Jory is again the heavy, with usual assistance from Douglas Fowley and Francis McDonald. Latter and Betty Blythe are a couple of old time favorites on display under Sherman's policy of not forgetting the veterans—while girl is Dustine, daughter of an early western topranker, Dustin Farnum. As usual, picture gets scenic mounting that is enhanced by excellent photography by Russell Harlan.

Warners to Release 86 Shorts for '43-'44, 18 Two-Reelers

New York, July 18. — Warners short subject releases for the coming season will include feature group of two-reel westerns among 86 subjects, including 68 one-reelers and 18 twin-reelers as announced by Norman H. Moray, shorts sales manager.

Entire shorts program will be produced at the Burbank plant under command of Gordon Hollingshead. There will be, in all, six two-reel Technicolor specials dealing with various branches of the armed services; 12 two-reel featurettes, of which six will be called Santa Fe westerns and six variety subjects; 26 Merrie Melodies and Looney Tunes in Technicolor; 10 Melody Masters bands; 13 sports parades in color; six Vitaphone varieties and 13 Blue Ribbon Merrie Melodies.

Morale Aim Spurs Film Men Agnew Reports

New York, July 18.—Neil Agnew, general sales manager for Paramount, speaking to sales execs gathered here in annual conclave at the Pierre Hotel, said that the 'need for escapist films to maintain national morale and to entertain our fighting forces has been the greatest incentive for the production of better pictures than Hollywood has ever known.

'Realization by Hollywood of the urgent need of giving the American people and our armed forces the finest entertainment that the artistry of picture studios can devise has advanced screen entertainment today to a stage that would not normally be attained in two or three years he declared.

Awaiting Mellett Successor

Washington, July 18.—OWI officials are waiting for the film industry to select a successor to Lowell Mellett. Choice was to have been made at New York pow-wow Thursday, but industry leaders failed to suggest candidates for the job it was explained here. A second meeting, to be held in Washington in the near future, is now tentatively scheduled at which the decision will be made. Meantime, WAC has been given prints of the last three shorts finished by the OWI Film Bureau. They are 'Black Marketing,' 'Three Cities' and 'Women.' Francis Harmon is expected to select release dates for them in the near future.

WAC LOOKING HERE FOR FINANCE, HARMON DUE IN further conferences are held with the Hollywood division of WAC and Palmer Hoyt, director of domestic operations of the Office of War Information.

Harmon, it is understood, is leaving for the Coast within a few days to discuss proposals with studio toppers, before any specific commitments are made. In the absence of Elmer Davis, who, it is said is going abroad, it is likely Hoyt also will go to Hollywood to join program discussions.

Neither Davis nor Hoyt attended the second of the two WAC meetings here although both were at the opening session.

Main reason for the trips of Harmon and Hoyt to Hollywood is a hunt for funds. With OWI deprived of coin by recent legislation, the picture industry will be called upon for money to meet the needs of the contemplated program in addition to what coin remains with OWI.

Among those addressing the closing meeting of WAC were Charles P. Taft, head of the Division of Recreation and Welfare of the Federal Security Agency, and Ted Gamble of the Treasury Department.

Taft said that the film biz was in position to be of great service in giving 'Forgotten Children,' those too young for uniform or war work, a specific program. He suggested a tie up with war councils, and Parent Teachers, in a campaign to combat juvenile delinquency and vandalism.

Among those attending sessions were: N. Peter Rathvon, Adolph Zukor, Abe Lastfogel, J. J. O'Connor, Charles Moscowitz, Herman Robbins, Joe Hazen, Bob O'Connell, Joe Bernhard, Edward Alperson and Barney Balaban.

in creative division will be able to free lance on time between product.'

The plan, rather ambitious as outlined by Lyons, says behind each star or other artist 'the home production unit will, at his bidding, make stories of his own choosing, by his own methods and with profits for his own sharing.'

First picture to be produced will be a musical, with the compositions by top composers blended in. Output of Jerome Kern, George and Ira Gershwin, Cole Porter and possibly Irving Berlin will highlight the selling power of the film. Rouben Mamoulin will direct.

Another major setup will be headed by Jack Benny who will produce and star in a film starting early next year. Benny will be interested in a participating way, heavily in this film.

Lyons is on way to New York looking for properties the set up can produce, also to negotiate with writers for original material, as the outfit is desirous of producing 10 to 18 films a year after it gets functioning at General studios.

Strikingly used by director, Kane, and cameraman, Reggie Lanning, is the wild mountain terrain of the Kern River canyon and meadows as background for the exciting chases, the gun fights, the romantic intervals and the several sensational thrill shots, including the kind of high water jumps and fights on running wagons not seen in westerns for many a moon. Pictorially, this is one of the finest of the Rogers starrers, to please adult and juve alike.

Only fault for critical fans, will be the inconsistency between the ultra modern life at the big ranch with cocktail bars and the delapidated ghost town and ancient western atmosphere round about.

Rogers alone and with accompaniment agreeably sings eight songs 'Jubaliation Jamboree,' 'Back In Your Own Back Yard,' 'Highways Are Happy Ways,' 'Springtime In the Rockies,' 'Tumbling Tumbleweeds,' 'Horses and Women,' 'Buffalo Gals' and 'Far Away.'

Mitchell As Tumulty in 20th-Fox 'Wilson', Hardwicke Cast

Thomas Mitchell will have the role of Joseph P. Tumulty in 20th-Fox 'Wilson,' to be produced by Darryl F. Zanuck and announced as the biggest picture ever undertaken by the company. Sir Cedric Hardwicke also has been cast, as Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, one of over 40 important speaking roles in the semi-documentary drama of Woodrow Wilson, World War I president.

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne are being sought by Zanuck to play President and Mrs. Wilson, and their decision is expected shortly.

While Zanuck will pick the top players, James Ryan has been relieved of all other talent duties to devote his entire time to tabbing the supporting actors. Story has been in preparation for 18 months, with script by Lamar Trotti, and is projected for November start.

NLRB Nixes SPG Extra Poll, SAG Victory

gone on record as being willing to consent to an election if a majority of the extras asked for a ballot. Election also was opposed by the Harry Mayo group of players, a large part of credit for defeating the move being credited to their counsel, Attorney Alexander H. Schullman.

Dismissal of SPPC appeal puts extra situation back in about the same category it was before petitions were circulated. A new move, however, is being made to get all of the extra leaders behind a drive to ask the Associated Actors and Artistes of America and the American Federation of Labor for a direct charter grantto the atmosphere players. Several conferences were held over the week-end, and it is understood that petitions already are being drafted for circulation on studio sets.

New petition would not seek to have any group certified as representing the extras, but would be directed to the AAAA and the AF of L, merely asking for a local charter with complete autonomy from the SAG. Plan would call for a general election of all extras to select their own officers after the charter was received. It is understood ballot plan would call for a percentage vote so that no group or clique could gain control of the players.

ASCAP RESUMES DEDUCTION OF SPA MEMBERSHIP DUES

Following special meeting in New York last week, board of directors of American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers has advised members that organization will resume deduction of Songwriters Protective Association dues from quarterly royalty checks. Notification states directors were advised deductions could be continued without violation of ASCAP regulations. Decision reverses action of board earlier this month, when it was decided at a special meeting that SPA dues could not be legally deducted, according to advice of counsel.

Reversal of resolution halts stiff fight that was brewing among Coast ASCAP members, majority of whom were ready to battle with board of directors unless rule was rescinded and 10-year practice of dues deductions continued. Coast cleffers had already held one fight meeting on question and had forwarded wire of protest to Deems Taylor, ASCAP prexy, demanding that board reverse itself.

ASCAP recently declared second quarterly royalty to members of $1,260,000 for period ended June 30. Royalty was largest in any quarter since 1940. Coast members report that checks so far received here failed to deduct SPA dues, having been mailed out prior to board's rescinding earlier resolution.

Carter-MCA Dispute Settled, Band Gets Full Release

Benny Carter's $740 debt to the Music Corporation of America has been paid in full, and the band stays intact as a result of an amicable settlement between MCA and General Amusement Corp. Carter now has a written release from MCA, following an agreement reached in huddles between Tom Rockwell, president of GAC; Carlos Gastel, Carter's manager, and MCA execs during Rockwell's recent Coast visit.

GAC is now lining up Coast theatre dates for the Carter band to follow his three month stay at the Cotton Club, formerly the Hollywood Casino. It was previously reported that Carter might break up his band and go into movie work as a result of conflict between the two booking offices over the debt.

No Drop in Raw Stock Order of WPB for Third Quarter

Washington, July 18.—Formal order allowing film companies the same raw stock footage for the third quarter of the year as they had during second quarter was issued Friday by WPB. It previously had been announced by Harold Hopper, chief of the WPB Film Section, that the quotas would remain unchanged.

Only thing new in the order was a 180-day limitation order on authorizations. Previously WPB authorizations were good for an indefinite period. Some authorizations issued a year ago were being used early this summer. This left WPB in the position of never knowing whether an authorization would be used in its entirety.

Old authorizations for several million feet of raw stock were still outstanding when the new clause was written into L-178.

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, July 18.—With the Sicilian invasion actually on, let's hope the Army finally straightened out that jurisdictional dispute of who was in charge of making motion pictures in the North African theatre. That was the job that Col. Melvin E. Gillette, former head of the Astoria Studio, went over to handle. Then it developed that Lieut. Col. Shaw was still on the scene and reports began to drift back to Washington that Shaw was remaining in charge with Gillette merely serving in an advisory capacity.

Latest reports are that Gillette did the main work he was sent over to do—speed things up. However, it is still pretty vague at Army headquarters whether Gillette is actually in charge of the Army's cameramen shooting invasion film, although that is the general guess.

What complicates things is that, while the War Department sends the men abroad to do a job, once they come under the jurisdiction of the commanding general in charge overseas, their functions and authority may be changed without notice.

CIAA ACTIVITY

Hollywood cooperation is making possible one of the more important film activities of CIAA. Of 140 non-theatrical pictures in distribution in Latin America, 40 started life as commercials. When they completed their theatrical runs, the industry turned them over to the Coordinator to strike a blow for the Good Neighbor Policy.

They have been rescored in Spanish and Portuguese and made into 16 mm. size. Now 3,000,000 Latins view them monthly without charge. They are shown under every conceivable condition—from large theatres especially donated for the purpose to outdoor gatherings where the screen is the white-washed side of a barn.

All of the major studios have cooperated. Here are some of the shots donated and the donors:

Warner Bros.: 'American Saddle Horses'; 'The Seeing Eye'; 'Winning Your Wings,' with Jimmy Stewart; 'Sweeney Steps Out.'

MGM: 'Army Champions'; 'Mr. Blabbermouth'; 'Further Prophecies of Nostradamus.'

Walt Disney: 'How to Fish'; 'Olympic Champions'; 'The Art of Skiing.'

RKO: 'Private John Smith, USA.'

Columbia: 'Rack 'Em Up'; 'North American Cadet.'

March of Time: Several of the older issues.

'HONEST' NAZIS

Nazis are proud as punch of their newsreel war shots, and proud of the cameramen, who are part of the Army.

'These newsreels in Germany as well as in those countries which show German newsreels have enormous success,' boast the Huns. 'The movie theatres are always crowded, even during the hot summer months which ordinarily are very dull periods for the movie theatre managers, and this fact is exclusively due to the newsreels which are shown before the main films.

'Not a single one of the hundreds and thousands of German newsreel pictures is studio photography. As a general in the high command once said: "We would consider it a base and despicable attitude to make artificial pictures of happenings in which our finest and bravest soldiers have lost their lives".'

Could it be that the Germans are trying to make the Allied world think that only the Nazi newsreels are not phonies? Wait till they get a look at what is coming back from Sicily.

Swedish films are now playing in 18 of the 45 film houses in Copenhagen, Denmark, according to reports just received here. . . . Government sources say that two-thirds of the money spent on amusement in that city is paid in at the box offices of the picture theatres. . . . New broadcast station began transmission yesterday (17) at Monte Carol, with Sasha Guitry, French actor-playwright, now a full-fledged Nazi collaborationist, as emcee. . . . Swedes say the Germans can now transmit color photographs by telegraph wire, retaining the color. . . . Although they have other things on their minds at the moments, the Italians are being told in domestic broadcasts by their Minister of Popular Culture that something has to be done to improve Italian film production.

'Italian production,' it was explained, 'will have to emancipate itself from the limitations of the French, English and American moving pitcures, whose characters and aims are alien to our mentality and to our morality. As an element of prestige for Italy before other nations, motion picture production will have to rise substantially to another spiritual and artistic level.'

PITY THE FLACKS

Congress wound up one of its most tumultous and rough riding sessions in many years, the other day, without even benefit of a newsreeler's camera. Which may have been just as well. . . . Flacks are about to become a dime a dozen in this burg where there has been a shortage of the boys for some time. New publicity budgets of all of the war agencies were trimmed down by the Bureau of the Budget, on the theory that OWI should do more of the work. Well, you know what Congress did to the OWI budget—but several dozen press agents are still out, so far as such agencies as WPB, OPA, WLB, etc., are concerned. . . . Shortly before Col. Bill Keighley went overseas for the Air Force, he asked Mrs. K. (Genevieve Tobin) whether she would like to live in either New York or Hollywood while he was away, since most of her friends are there. The answer was 'No,' on the ground that she is actively engaged in war work here and did not want to walk out on it for the next few months. Looks like good troupers never change.

Short On West Legiter

Director on Mae West's New York stage production, 'Catherine Was Great,' will be Hassard Short.

State Grants Picture Tots Unemployment Insurance Pay

The State Unemployment Commission has ruled in favor of child film players collecting Unemployment Insurance. Payments, stopped since February 10, will be resumed immediately to all children eligible under the act.

Deciding that the children are entitled to the insurance because they are 'generally available for work,' the Commission based its ruling on seven cases under direct consideration. There were 25 other cases before the commission, and 65 before the appeals board on this dispute.

Considine To Seattle With Pic Writers

John W. Considine, who will produce 'Seattle' for Metro is scheduled to leave here within two weeks to do research on the forthcoming picture. He will take with him Paul Wheelwright and Allan Kenward who are working with him on the original story, based on the hurly-burly days of the Klondike gold rush. Pic will feature Seattle as it was when it played a famous part as the embarkation and landing points for the gold seekers.

New AAF Airer Bows In At Don Lee Today

New 'Army Air Forces' program tees off over the Mutual Don Lee net work today with Lt. William Holden m. c.'ing first show. Tech. Sgt. Overseas First-Runs For Army Stepped To Four Weekly

Washington, July 18.—Army is stepping up from three to four weekly its free first-run film shows for troops overseas, it announced tonight. A program consists of a feature and short subject, done in 16 mm. to save shipping space.

Stuff is flown to 18 overseas exchanges maintained by the Army Special Services. Soldier preference runs to comedy and music, with good war pictures also getting a hand.

'A recent report from the Persian Gulf on the enthusiasm of soldiers over the opportunity of seeing pictures from home,' said the War Department, 'included the comment that each film makes a circuit of 1500 miles by plane, motor and rail before being returned to the Cairo film exchange.'

Obituary

ARTHUR BYRON

Funeral services for Arthur Byron, 71, stage and screen actor who died of a heart ailment at the Hollywood Hospital last Friday, will be held today at 12:30 p. m. at Wee Kirk o' the Heather, in Forest Lawn Cemetery, Glendale.

Byron, who recently celebrated his 50th year as an actor, and was one of founders and former president of Actors Equity Association, was born in Brooklyn, his father, Oliver Dowd, and aunt, Ada Rehan, both stage stars of the '90's. He played Maude Adams' leading man in 'The Little Minister,' similarly with Katharine Cornell in 'Saint Joan,' and appeared in many pictures, among them 'The President Vanishes,' '20,000 Years In Sing Sing,' 'Oil for the Lamps of China.'

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Kathryn Byron, of Sherman Oaks, and two daughters, Eileen Byron and Mrs. Wallis Clark. Following services, remains will be cremated and sent to Byron summer home at Skowhegan, Me., for burial.

JOHN ANDERSON

John Anderson, 46, drama critic of N. Y. Journal-American, died suddenly in New York Saturday, following sinus operation last Wednesday. One of the outstanding authorities on the stage and prexy of New York Drama Critics Circle, he is survived by his widow, the former Margaret Bruening, art critic.

CARL ANDERSON

Carl Anderson, first manager of Paramount Pictures and formerly president of Peralta, died in Rochester, N. Y., last Friday, leaving his widow, Rose Marston, and daughter Rosemary. Anderson was also associated with Jesse L. Lasky in vaudeville.

SHINDLER QUITS AS TINTERS' TREASURER, FACES CHARGES

William Shindler resigned yesterday as treasurer of Moving Picture Painters Local 644, following action of membership in rescinding group of so-called economy measures which were adopted during absence of Business Representative Herbert Sorrell, who has just returned from a two-month vacation. Shindler had forced salary of office from $55 to $10 per month and other members refused to accept it at that figure.

Membership rescinded resolution which would have denied auto mileage to business agent and tossed out several other rules which Sorrell and Tinters held would handicap rather than aid union in increasing its revenue to take up slack caused by reduction in membership when Painters joined armed forces or accepted defense jobs.

A motion to increase dues to take care of revenue was defeated by a close margin, but will be called up again at a special meeting set for Aug. 1.

Painters were practically unanimous in backing recommendations of Sorroll, who has led group to highest wage scales in history of industry. Shindler is now facing various charges of Constitution violations, including that of trying to create dissension in the union ranks.

Walkout of Makeup Artists at Columbia was ordered by Bioff at 9:30 a. m. Nov. 8, 1937. It was claimed that certain small-fry actors had been doing their own makeup, but after the settlement, the head of the Makeup Artists union stated there had been absolutely no change in their working conditions and that the same number of people were employed on the lot as before the strike. He indicated he didn't know why the walkout had been ordered.

B. B. Kahane and other Columbia officials attempted to settle the strike when production was halted after the Teamsters and other crafts said they would not go through picket lines to report for work. Bioff curtly told them he would talk to nobody but Harry Cohn. The latter was reached at Palm Springs and promptly flew to Hollywood for conferences with the Coast IATSE head. A settlement was announced at 11 p. m. that night by Harland Holmden, of Cleveland, vice-prexy of the IATSE and who occupied desk space in Bioff's luxurious suite of offices.

It is understood the Government is anxious to learn whether there was a payoff to settle the Columbia strike and, if so, who received the dough. Grapevine is that Willie claims some dough was passed, but that it never reached him, intimating it was collected by one of the six men now under indictment in connection with the film racketeering.

Reports here are that Willie, who Coast labor leaders say ruled the IATSE with an iron hand, telling its prexy George E. Browne and other officers what to do, now claims he was a mere tool of the old Capone gang. Willie has assertedly been singing since his conviction, apparently in hopes of softening the 10-year sentence he received and of escaping the income tax rap which is pending against him in Los Angeles.

Cohn made no statement after the settlement, but friends claim he insisted that no money was paid to Bioff or anybody else.

Hutton On Camp Tour

New York, July 18.—Betty Hutton, who came here for premiere of 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' left over the weekend for a two-week tour of Army Camps. She is due back next month to attend preem of 'Let's Face It' her latest Paramount picture in which she co-stars with Bob Hope.

PLAN 11 DAY TOUR OF 14 CITIES, START SEPT.

New York, July 18.—A new Caravan of Stars to boost the Treasury Department's September bond drive is in the making. Tentative plan calls for a train of film celebrities to leave Hollywood Sept. 9 for a 11-day tour of 12 to 14 cities. Ted Gamble of the Treasury Dept., speaking before a meeting of the War Activities Committee, said another Caravan would be the needed dramatic element to weld the campaign together and send it over the top.

Kenneth Thomson of Screen Actors Guild indicated that if Uncle Sam wanted the stars for a tour he would get them.

First Caravan of Stars, which toured the country last September, was given credit for the sale of some $800,000,000 in bonds.

In addition to parade of the film celebs over the country, a Heroes Carvan also is planned with men from the battle zones touring aided by screen stars as emcees.

New Season's Product Covers Every Exhib Need—Kalmenson

San Francisco, July 18.—There will be more than ample screen product for every exhibition need, Ben Kalmenson, general sales manager for Warners, assured assembled sales force at company's regional meeting in the Mark Hopkins Hotel here at the opening session. Better quality pictures now being turned out not only absorb more playing time, Kalmenson stressed, but are also bringing more money to exhibitors than ever before.

Particular duty of the field staff during the present manpower and transportation shortage and changing conditions, Kalmenson said, is to keep in closest possible touch with all exhibitor customers, especially those in isolated situations, and to assist in every possible way those handicapped by wartime conditions.

Agenda for local sales parley is similar to that at the New York and Chicago sessions presided over by Kalmenson. Other home office execs to adress meet here are Roy Haines, Arthur Sachson, Norman H. Moray, A. W. Schwalberg and Howard Levinson.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

The bombing of the Eternal City has brought to the forefront very strong indications that the defeat of Italy, or if you please, the elimination of Hitler's junior partner, may occur almost as rapidly as the fall of France in 1940.

On Sicily Italians are giving up as whole units, which indicates that the Nazis cannot prevent them from surrendering.

The great question now is: how many Nazi troops are confronting the Allies and how strongly do the Nazis intend to defend the Italian soil in their own interests?

On the eastern front great developments may be expected soon.

James G. Rogers, Jr. In Bill Lewis' OWI Domestic Post

Washington, July 19.—James G. Rogers, Jr., who came to Office of War Information last January from Benton and Bowles Advertising Agency, has been named new assistant director of the OWI domestic branch. He will fill the vacancy left by William B. Lewis when latter resigned, a month ago.

Rogers will supervise the film and radio bureaus.

Sidewalk Bally Boosts LA Cruiser Drive

Sidewalk shows in front of the Orpheum, Newsreel, Roxie, and Los Angeles Theatre today will spark the war bond drive in this area to raise the $40,000,000 for building the cruiser Los Angeles. Show at Orpheum starts at 11:00 a.m. And at noon an hour's show will be given in front of the Newsreel Theatre; another from 1 to 2:30 p.m. at the Roxie and the last one at 4:00 p.m. at the Los Angeles.

Brenda Joyce and Nick Lucas will perform on the float, carrying a model of the ship, and a group of WAVES will ride on the float to interview prospective recruits to that branch of service.

PRICE $250,000 PLUS % IN SKOURAS MADE DEAL

New York, July 19.—Hot rivalry that existed in industry for screen rights to Wendell Willkie's book 'One World' is reported to have ended with Spyros Skouras, prexy of 20th Century-Fox having finally inked the deal with Simon and Shuster, publisher of the book and Willkie. Price is understood to be $250,000 plus a percentage of the gross based on a sliding scale.

At time that Willkie first wrote book it is understood that he discussed the matter with J. Robert Rubin, of Metro, who resides in same apartment house with him, and Nick Schenck, and they signified desire to make it into a film. Later this proved embarrassing to him when the book

SANTA ANA Air Force headquarters is out now to mend its fences with the press of this area. Deke Houlgate, now Captain in Air Force has been assigned to this task following his return from handling successful tour with Gene Autry. Press were not regarded as important by Santa Ana officers delegated to that task as were other local sources with whom public relations should have been maintained. When press started taking pot shots at the Air Force center as 'country club' and word of mouth expressions of this sort were going around in the community, Major General Ralph Cousins is understood to have had checkup made on the situation. He proceeded to endeavor to straighten out the feelings of various people who previously had been slighted, himself, and also decided to have public relations officers start a campaign for friendlier and kindly feeling toward the Air Force from this community. Capt. Houlgate is in town conferring with publishers and inviting them personally to visit the Santa Ana Air Base and see what actually is being done in training of many thousands of cadets for the air branch of the army. Houlgate is very popular with newspaper publishers and editors here having been public relations liaison for the Southern California Gas Company, and as well one of top football statisticians of the country, giving his forecasts and statistics to papers gratis during his civilian career.

ADVERTISING splurges of Los Angeles theatres for pre-opening layouts will be curtailed by recent order of the Times and Examiner providing for limit of 40 column inches for any theatrical display ad. Edict ashcans color display layouts for theatres in both papers, as each of latter had 80 inch minimum for color runs, and is in line with attempt of the dailies to conform to 15% reduction of newsprint over 1941 usage as ordered by the government. New order particularly clips extra lineage for big pictures—especially 20th-Fox and Metro product. Latter two companies have tossed plenty of coin into extra newspaper lineage for local openings, and many times hit with terrific layouts to dominate the drama sections of the dailies. Although no definite word has come through as yet on space maximums of the Herald-Express, it is expected the latter will follow lead of the two morning sheets. It's a cinch that—whether or not H-E issues order—it will get same space as Times and Ex, as theatres will not make up larger plates for the one paper due to engraving problems.

WARNERS is circularizing large group of advertising agencies, department stores and leading shops around the country, with elaborate sales brochure making pitch for merchant cooperation with openings of 'This Is the Army' in various cities. Campaign brochure points out that all proceeds of picture goes into coffers of Army Emergency Relief—which provides cooperating firms with definite patriotic motive for tieups with the production—and then proceeds to outline methods of commercial participation in the campaigns. Company figures plenty of merchant tieups will be ploughed through dispatch of the advance brochure, and TITA will get particularly heavy play through such participation.

THEATRE managers employed by Fox West Coast have been averaging $76 a week earnings, which includes salaries, commissions and bonus money. This is considered high average for operators of picture theatres. F-WC now has 40 women managers on its roster and is training more currently. Company has more than 450 employes in armed services, pays them four weeks' salary when going into uniform, as well as sees to it that their insurance premiums are kept up. Also their status in the Employes Club provides benefits and relief to them. With biz at peak, figured that the weekly average will be in excess of the current in the fall.

ISABEL JEWELL is replacing Lilian Harvey in cast of 'Nancy's Private Affairs,' opening at the Mayan July 26, due to an Actor's Equity Ruling, according to Myron E. Fagan, author and producer of the show. Owing to fact that Miss Harvey is an alien and British subject the Equity rule does not permit her to appear in more than one show a year. She already had committed herself for a New York show prior to signing with Fagan and when she was informed of the rule requested release from the pact with the local producer which was given and the replacement made after two weeks of rehearsal.

Retakes

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

Our hero sang a cowboy song and drew his trusty gun
And plugged a rustler's pesky hide beneath the setting sun.
And then he strummed his light guitar and sang another tune
And plugged another rustler's hide beneath the rising moon.
He warbled on the trail until his pipes were fit to bust
And every time he piped a song, a rustler bit the dust.
A cowhand in a western film goes ranging fast and far
And alternately slays 'em with his gun and his guitar.

Eight times in 68 minutes Roy Rogers unholsters his melodious tonsils in 'Silver Spurs,' meanwhile chasing the varmints this-a-way and that-a-way and saving a couple of femmes and a railroad in addition to the old homestead. A screen cowboy is so busy nowadays that he never has time to win the blonde.

When your school teacher caught you reading the exploits of Buffalo Bill or Diamond Dick in the old days she was consumed with righteous indignation and sentenced you to write 'I must not read trash' 100 times on the blackboard. She did not realize that you were reading treatises in chivalry, integrity and respect for law and order. She had never read one, poor soul, and called them 'dime novels' in a voice of scorn, not knowing that they sold for a nickel with an exchange value of two cents when you bought a new one at Mrs. Parke's candy store. Buffalo Bill and Diamond Dick were sermons on hossback, protecting the weak and bumping off rugged but felonious individualists. They were progenitors of 'Crime Does Not Pay,' although you had to read them in the woodshed or behind the barn instead of listening openly to the radio beside the family hearthstone. A western film, generally classed as escapist, is really propagandist, preaching that right will prevail and making the kids like it.

Cox Committee Charges FCC Fund Misuse in Dull Sesh

Washington, July 19.—The Cox Committee charged at a hearing today that the Federal Communications Commission obtained $453,000 from Congress for a supplemental appropriation for its foreign broadcast intelligence work, and then used more than half of the money for an entirely different purpose. The Committee charged that the FCC gave raises to some of its personnel, created 32 new positions and reclassified upward of 172 positions, with more than $200,000 of the fund which had been granted for entirely different purposes.

Otherwise, today hearing laid an egg. Things got so dull that Eugene Garey, general counsel for the probers, called on his chief investigator, Harry Barger, to give legal opinions to the Congressional committee on two matters.

On one occasion, Barger testified that in his opinion President Roosevelt acted illegally in granting a fund to the FBIS, since that body had never been legally created either by Presidential executive order or by act of Congress. It was also brought out that Congress has been appropriating large sums for FBIS for the past three years, which the committee was told was illegal.

Barger also stated that in his opinion, as a member of the bar, the War Communications Board was violating the law in requiring its employes to take an oath of secrecy.

Nazi Radio Raps 'Bell' In Spanish Airer

Washington, July 19.—The Nazis took a radio sock at Paramount's 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' in a Spanish language broadcast to Latin America the day after the premiere of the picture in New York last week.

'Yesterday,' said the announcer, 'the Spanish red film, "For Whom the Bell Tolls," a propaganda piece to glorify the Bolsheviks of the Spanish Civil War, opened in New York with great acclaim. The film was made by Paramount, and lasts a little over three hours.'

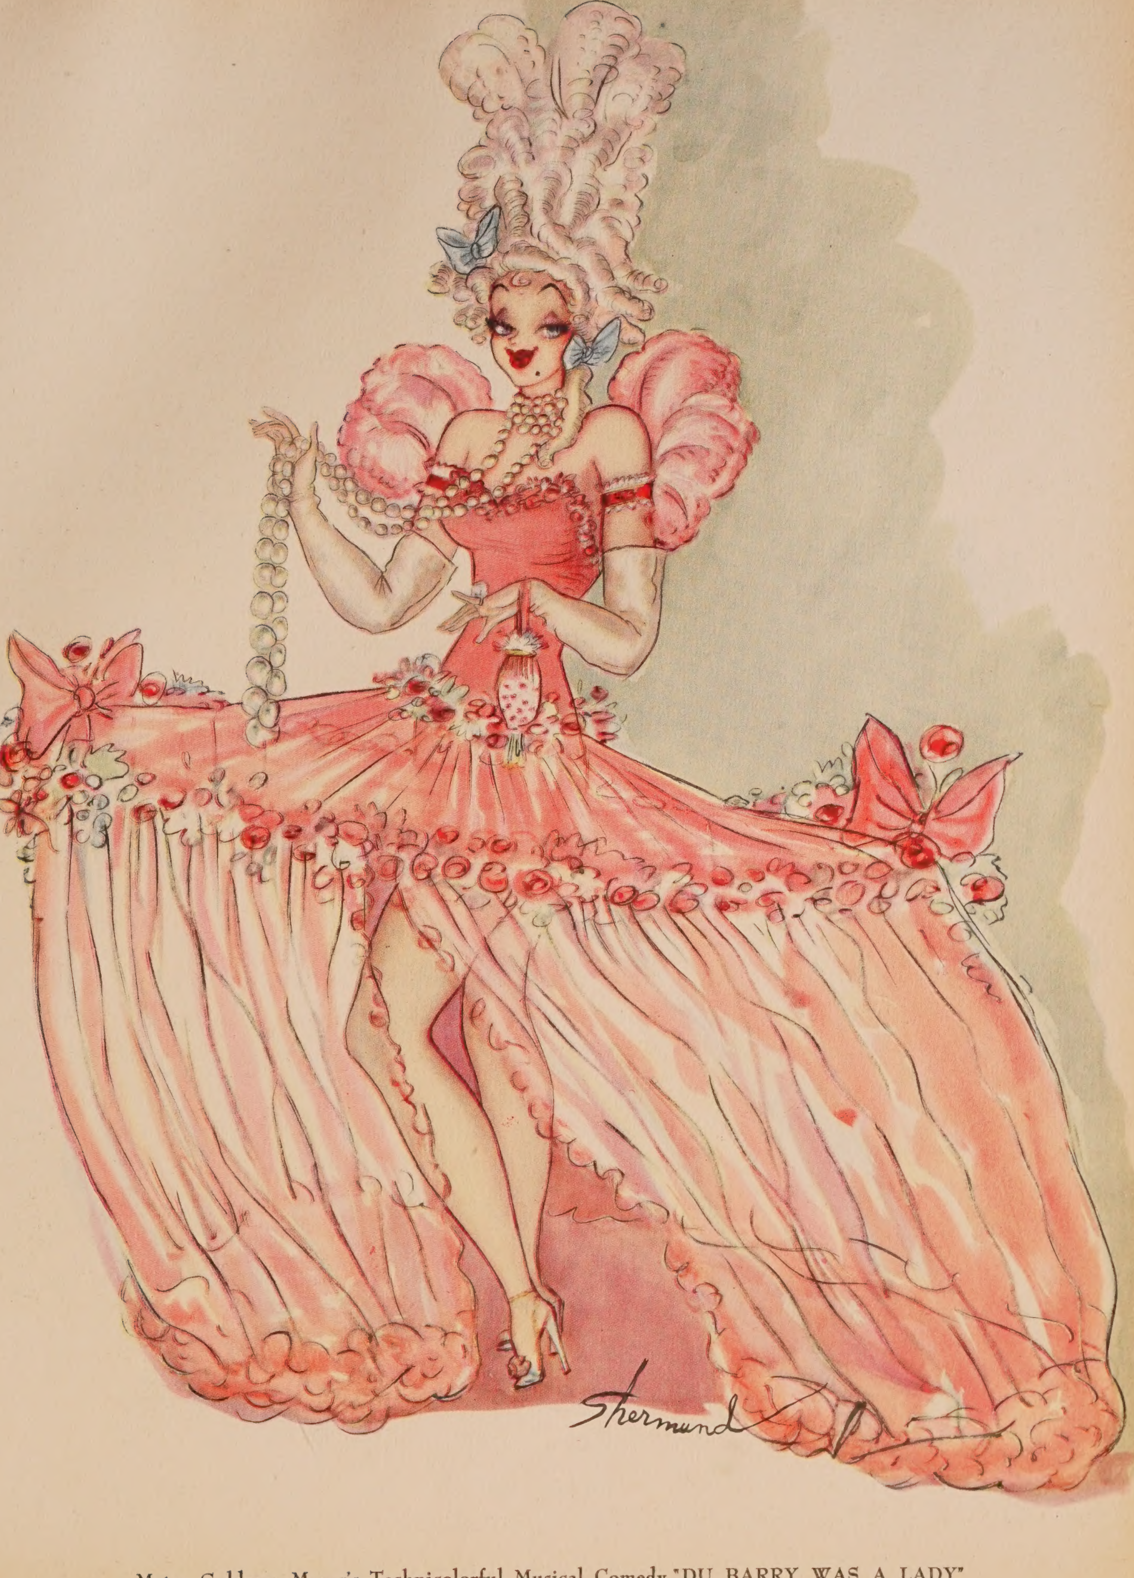
HARVEST MOON MURPHY

The House of Murphy

Famous for Eating, Drinking and Acting



Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Technicolorful Musical Comedy "DU BARRY WAS A LADY" inspires artist Shermund of Esquire Magazine to paint this impression of the Du Barry Girl.

Du Barry Was A Lady

We don't expect you to read a single word of this advertisement with all the dazzling darlings of "Du Barry Was A Lady" running over the page like mad. It's too much to ask of anyone to concentrate on Technicolor and who wrote it and things like that except that Red Skelton is so funny and Lucille Ball so gorgeous and Gene Kelly such a volcanic dancer that you'd never forgive us if we neglected to tell you about them—not to mention deadpan Virginia O'Brien and comic 'Rags' Ragland and the cafe society hit Zero Mostel plus guess who and his band... of course it's popular Tommy Dorsey playing torchy tunes by Cole Porter and others. All in all, now that you're reading this ad... or have you stopped... it's the biggest eyeful of money show in years and promoted in big magazine campaigns, newspaper teaser ads for months, full pages in Esquire and American Weekly. And nationwide Sunday Supplement ads 3 weeks in a row synchronized with July release. Screenplay by Irving Brecher, adapted by Nancy Hamilton, additional dialogue by Wilkie Mahoney, directed by Roy del Ruth, produced by Arthur Freed. And remember "Du Barry Was A Lady" is just one of M-G-M's 4th great Group, "Seven From Heaven."

SERVICE MONEY ROLLS INTO SAN DIEGO'S GOLD COAST

San Diego, July 19.—San Diego's gold coast which collects more than half a million dollars weekly, mostly from men in uniform, is less than two blocks wide, ten blocks long. Adjacent to the railroad station, to the docks where ferries and transports tie up, it stems up Broadway over to the next street South, and is jammed with every type of coin-taking diversion from niteries to penny arcades. Any spot from a backroom with juke box to the more elaborate bistros is a natural for extracting cash from enlisted men and returning heroes with back pay in their pockets.

Short leaves, scarcity of transportation out of town, ready accessibility of section to servicemen—hundreds of thousands of them—have taken this 'coast' out of the doldrums and hypoed it into Bonanza in less than a year without benefit of ballyhoo. Grind houses, skating palaces, bowling alleys, packed with concessions of all kinds, jewelry and mercantile establishments, photo studios, recording booths where uniformed lads make transcriptions to send home, niteries and cocktail bars, malt shops and hamburger joints have all boomed to success. By actual count, half the doorways in some blocks are entrances into bars. Outlawing of slot machines by the city fathers has resulted in removal of these from 'coast' to other spots in county. But other types of amusement and vending machines are doing brisk biz.

Of 500 juke boxes owned by Fox Amusement Company, more than 100 are in this crowded area. And a $50 per day take is small indeed. Same ratio is true of cigarette venders, and the 100 plus submarine and other 'guns' have a line-up of would-be hunters at a nickel a round from 9 a.m. to 2 a.m. One penny-operated 'gun' in Broadway Amusement center averages close to $20 per day. Photo establishment in that same center grossed $800 last week-end. With exception of niteries and bars which must close at midnight, joints remain open 20 hours per day.

Tower Bowl Recreation Center, for example, reports door count of 3000-4000 average on week-days, 5000 Saturdays and Sundays on shorter sked of 9 a.m. to 2 a.m. Number of attractions inside include jewelry counter, numerous vending and game machines, dozen busy bowling alleys operating at 24 to 28 cents per line, sandwich and soft drink counter in addition to Kapa Shell cocktail lounge where both food and drink are served. Line forms at right for counter service.

Tower Theatre, across street, managed by Joe Rosenfield, shows holdovers at 60 and 40 cent admish, from other Metzger uptown theatres; and packs in 700 capacity aud from ope at 10:45 a.m. to closing hour at 5:30.

Niteries, operating on no cover, no minimum policy have headaches resulting from shortages in acts and musicians, and drastic cuts in supplies of food and liquor. And Sherman's, largest of these, reports $20,000 yearly expenditure for employees involved only in checking of minors and undesirables.

Gus Arnheim is still packing 'em in at latter 11-barred nitery, where owners, 'Red' Mann, A. H. Aronson, and Ned Stewart report weekly attendance of 40,000. Gross is estimated at $55,000 per week.

Joe Kennedy's two spots, 'College Inn' and 'Paris Inn' get a play from two different crowds, although located just across the street from each other. Hunter Grey's solid senders draw jitterbugs at 'College Inn,' and Jack McLean's Down Melody Lane band draws sweet music adherents to recently enlarged 'Paris Inn,' where attendance tops 1000 on week nights. Unusual feature offered between shows and dance numbers is screening of old-timers, silents starring Chaplin, Swanson, et al.

Chief Boatswain John Ewing's 'Gay Nineties' and 'Tropics' offers cycles of gals and bits, and Hawaiian bands, respectively. Capacity attendance of 450 each spot is reaping nifty biz harvest.

Sherman Haines 'Showboat' has folded Sunday matinee, but clicks solidly nightly with non-dancers who fill up the 350 seats to drink and listen to the Diplomettes, Johnny White and his band, and other talent.

Minimum price of drinks is 35 cents, higher at majority of spots. Ad costs almost nil, with only two spots, 'Sherman's' and 'Paris Inn' broadcasting.

To quote one owner, 'Dough is there, just a question of who stretches out his hand the farthest.'

Coleman, Bolton Plan To Be Married

Nancy Coleman, Warners starlet, and Whitney Bolton, publicity director for same studio, are planning to be married, according to studio announcement. Mrs. Bolton is in Reno for a divorce.

'Good Night Ladies' Tops All Chi Records For Legit Run

Chicago, July 19.—'Good Night Ladies,' panned by the critics when it opened here early in 1942, entered its 67th week tonight and, by so doing, achieved the longest run in the legitimate theatre history of Chicago. Previous long run record here was held by 'Life With Father,' 66 weeks. Before that 'Lightning' was the bellwether having gone 65 weeks when it was closed by the death of its star, Frank Bacon. All three played the Blackstone theatre.

'Good Night Ladies' was adapted by Cyrus Wood from Ladies Night' by Avery Hopwood and Charlton Andrews. Show came here after tryout in San Francisco with cast headed by Skeets Gallagher and Buddy Essen. The latter has joined the Coast Guard and been replaced by Stuart Erwin.

Rogers Standing Them In Chicago p. a.

Chicago, July 19.—Though no house records are being broken, engagement here of Roy Rogers in person with his horse 'Trigger' at the Oriental will result in one of the best weeks house has had and with biggest sidewalk lines since 'Gone With the Wind.' Rogers is playing five and six shows daily and should hit a $29,000 to $30,000 gross on the week.

There were 5,000 photos of Rogers and his horse sold in the lobby at 25 cents each over the weekend. Rogers goes from here to Milwaukee for week starting Sunday at the Wisconsin theatre, and then returns to Hollywood.

Three 'Lifeboat' Roles Still Unfilled

With Warner's 'Lifeboat' scheduled to go into production on July 26, Producer Kenneth Macgowan is still seeking to cast three major roles. Arthur Miller has been handed camera assignment on the pic, Ben Silvey has been assigned as unit production manager and Saul Wurtzel will assist director Alfred Hitchcock.

Tallulah Bankhead is due in on the 23rd for wardrobe and make up tests. Jo Swerling handled screenplay on the John Steinbeck novel, which depicts life on a 26 foot lifeboat on the Atlantic.

Bourbon On Airer

Ray Bourbon, currently at Jim Dolan's Supper Club, who was signed last week by Mae West to play role of Florian in her coming Broadway stage production, 'Catherine Was Great,' was inked by Earl Carroll for part in his daily airer, 'Back-Stage at Earl Carroll's,' which emanates from KHJ at 1:30 p.m. became a best seller and being chairman of the board of 20th Century-Fox, his own company thought it would like the story too. With the commitment to Metro not being considered definite, Simon and Shuster, it is said, favored it going to 20th-Fox. In meantime other companies also put in bid, and when Metro about month ago found that there were vairous obstacles arising it withdrew from negotiations for the film.

With Metro out of the way Spyros Skouras stepped into the picture on behalf of his company, it is reported, and kept working on a closing for the deal which is said to have taken place last week, with the contract inked.

Understood that 20th has already put the picture on the production schedule with writers to be assigned for the adaptation and Willkie probably functioning as technical adviser and likely appearing in the forepart of the film giving short synopsis of reason for book. It is figured the film should be in circulation prior to the 1944 presidential campaign, in which Willkie is again likely to be a candidate for the presidency which he failed to grasp from F. D. R. in 1940.

The book to date has sold over 1,900,000 copies, is going at the rate of 8,500 a day and should hit well over the 2,000,000 mark.

troupes have given 21,436 performances before a total audience of 13,804,000 in the U. S. and Hawaii. Need for much bigger delivery of this type entertainment for American fighting men everywhere was stressed, since the original 2,000,000 for which the USO had been geared has now expanded to 10,000,000 men.

'Your entertainers,' said Phillips, 'are invaluable, especially to men overseas to whom they bring an intimate reminder of the life at home to which they expect to come back.'

Colonel Young said the very announcement that Hollywood players were coming to any camp or area created a tremendous stir of excitement and that a great increase of mail was sent out by the boys after each such event, indicated the morale effect of the visits. Colonel Young also reported that now there isn't a single camp in the country that doesn't get some entertainment, although not yet always enough.

Joe E. Brown spoke, as did Robert Young. Marco Wolff, executive administrator of the Hollywood Victory Committee, related the activities during the past three months. Ed Lowry, executive secretary of the West Coast division of the USO-Camp Shows, also reported.

Lt. Col. Sam Briskin, back from active service, it was announced would henceforth devote much time to executive committee work of the Victory Committee.

Prop Union Dispute Featured by Fist Throwing Tiff

Dissension in ranks of IATSE studio locals over clearance of men in lower classifications for employment in higher brackets reached a climax yesterday when a member of Affiliated Property Craftsmen Local 44 took a punch at Business Representative Cappy Du Val. Affair occurred just outside the local headquarters when Gene Mailes accused Du Val of misstating ruling of the War Manpower Commission, and followed his accusation with a right to the chin.

The two were separated before any damage was done, although Mailes received a slight cut when his glasses were broken in the scuffle. Mailes had just returned from a conference with WMC officials, who assured him the Commission did not object to men moving into higher classifications where the work was more important.

Several nurserymen and other local members have been working as prop makers, but some were stymied when Du Val refused to issue them availability certificates in the higher classification. The Executive Board of Local 44 last night was asked to clarify the matter of availability certificates for men qualifying for employment in the higher classifications.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

The Sicilian campaign is producing some very interesting evidence which ought to dispell the optimism voiced by many, concerning an early end of the war.

The Italians give up easily enough, true. But the Nazis, wherever in action, are putting up stiff fight. This must be taken as an indication that a collapse of Germany can only come as the result of a crushing military defeat.

It looks like Hitler, who started the Nazi infection, is now trapped by his fanatics. It is just like one Italian wrote over Mussolini's bomb shelter, 'leave all hope, ye who are about to enter.' When arrested he said he was only quoting the great Italian poet, Dante.

ASKS ACCOUNT PROFITS ON DEALS AT 20TH-FOX

New York, July 20.—Charlie Chaplin filed suit today in Supreme Court against David Selznick, 20th Century-Fox, United Artists, Vanguard Films and Selznick Productions, asking for accounting of Selznick's profits from deals made with 20th-Fox in which he sold latter company several literary properties.

Chaplin filed a representative action on behalf of himself and all other UA stockholders. He contends that—with the $300,000 loaned by UA to Selznick the producer bought and sold literary properties and talent instead of producing a film. He also contends that part of such profit derived from sale of story properties to 20th-Fox, should be turned over to UA stockholders.

Selznick's deal with 20th-Fox involved transfer of story rights on 'Keys of the Kingdom,' 'Claudia,' 'Jane Eyre' and loan of talent personnel under contract to Selznick.

SANTA ROSA, Calif., rapidly is becoming a favorite location site for Hollywood producers. Universal started ball rolling when Alfred Hitchcock made most of 'Shadow of a Doubt' there, and 20th-Fox Producer Kenneth Macgowan used town for his 'Happy Land.' Now it's to be used to background 20th-Fox's 'The Sullivans.' Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce sent word to studio it wanted it understood that unless CC was assured picture work wouldn't interfere with the harvesting, no cooperation would be given location troupe. Difficulty in securing harvest hands inspired this unusual demand. 20th-Fox had to promise that no sightseers would be allowed when work started there.

Union Bans Bands From City as Studio Rap

New York, July 20.—Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians, on order of the national office, has ordered the Mertle Pitt studio band of six pieces out of New York jobs, effective tomorrow morning, in retaliation for playing of English popular recordings by Martin Block on his 'Make Believe Ballroom' record program. Block has been playing discs of latest tunes which he claims were bought in London retail store and shipped to him.

Union, it is said, has labeled discs of non-union manufacture, stating that there is no English musicians labor union. Only six months ago AFM announced completion of deal with British musicians whereby no masters would be made for American pressing. Block discs are pressing, not masters.

Heaven Can Wait

(Comedy-Drama)

20th-Fox release of an Ernst Lubitsch production. Features Gene Tierney, Don Ameche and Charles Coburn. Supporting cast: Marjorie Main, Laird Cregar, Spring Byington, Allyn Joslyn, Eugene Pallette, Signe Hasso, Louis Calhern, Helene Reynolds, Aubrey Mather, Michael Ames, Leonard Carey, Clarence Muse, Dickie Moore, Dickie Jones, Trudy Marshall, Florence Bates, Clara Blandick, Anita Bolster, Nino Pipitone, Jr., Claire Du Brey, Maureen Rodin-Ryan. Produced and directed by Ernst Lubitsch. Screen play by Samuel Raphaelson. Based on play 'Birthday,' by Lazlo Bus-Fekete. Photographed in Technicolor, by Edward Cronjager. Technicolor director, Natalie Kalmus. Music, Alfred Newman. Art direction, James Basevi and Leland Fuller. Set decorations, Thomas Little; associate, Walter M. Scott. Film editor, Dorothy Spencer. Costumes, Rene Hubert. Special photographic effects, Fred Sersen. Tradeshown in Los Angeles, July 20, 1943. Running time: 119 MINS.

If Ernst Lubitsch ever was off top form, he is back to par again with as delightful an offering as the season is apt to show and one calculated to present the best kind of entertainment for relief from wartime concerns. For the general trade it is a cinch; for the elite a treat, begetting the kind of word-of-mouth which spells runs and heavy grosses. A picture of commanding charm, richly emotional, creating much laughter and compensating pathos, alive with tolerant humanness, avoiding any technical trickery to gloss over its shrewd Lubitschian observations and those of the writers who provided the story and prepared the screenplay.

The story has a lever of fantasy. A self-convicted sinner, an aged Casanova, is reciting his life, from infancy to death, to his excellency, the Devil—offering his credentials, as it were, to enter the stygian premises. The Devil, listening patiently, turns him down; says they have no room for such fellows as he, and ushers him to an elevator ascending toward Heaven, wishing him good luck. The tale clings to this scene in hell's antechamber for only a few minutes, then becomes the fascinating recitative of the wealthy, spoiled, half sinful, half virtuous and wholly beguiling Henry Van Clive; his boyhood, his youthful courting and escapades; his 10 years of happy marriage; his assorted relatives, including a magnificent old grandfather; declining years in the house of his son—all as he recollects it for the appraisal of his satanic excellency.

Don Ameche fulfills and enlivens the role to top all his prior assignments, playing with sincerity, engaging in the comedy, fully carrying his part of the romantic excitements with Gene Tierney as the girl he weds and with other more casual flames.

Gene Tierney blooms under the Technicolor cameras and justifies her seasoned talents in the most adult and demanding part she yet has had, skillfully managing the evolution of the character from arrogant, conventional girlhood in a newly rich family to tolerant and mellowed wifehood with a man who constantly has tried her patience and virtuous ideals.

Charles Coburn is a delight every foot of the way, adding his thorough comprehension of every character and every situation which excites his impish humor, and laboring mightily to resolve the dark dramatic moments happily against that day when the

Two Labor Men on WMC Group Handling Mandatory 48-Hr Week

Two representatives of labor are included on a five-man Wartime Work Week Advisory Committee named by the War Manpower Commission here yesterday in preparation for issuance Thursday of a mandatory 48-hour week order for Los Angeles, Riverside, Orange, San Bernardino and Ventura Counties. Main purpose of committee will be to aid the WMC in handling an anticipated 10,000 applications from employers seeking exemption from the longer work week.

Members of the committee are Ross Welch, representing retail employers; Harry Camp, business research expert; Edward Hertz, of the United Automobile Workers, representing the CIO; Jack Stein, representing secretaries of major employer organizations; and Joseph T. DeSilva, of the Retail Clerks Union, representing the AF of L. This committee will appoint a sub-committee for each major industry, which will draw up schedules of justifiable exemption.

It will not be necessary to appoint a sub-committee for the motion picture industry, as it will be represented by its Labor-Management Committee, which already is functioning as an advisory group to the WMC. Employers will have 30 days in which to comply after issuance of the WMC order, to give them time to prepare exemption requests, etc.

West Coast and RKO theatre head, Edward Alperson, concerned new first run operation in both Los Angeles and Kansas City.

Legal staffs of both National and RKO in giving opinion of the original proposal for creation of new first run operation in Los Angeles with product supplied from overload held by RKO for the Pantages and Hill Street are uncertain that the deal as originally proposed can be carried out. RKO and National may formulate other plans, however.

All major distribs are exploring possibilities of creating new first run situation in key centers where product backlog has been rolled up; while Republic, Monogram and PRC are in accord as new first run will give them chance to crack added coin not generally available to them now. Opening up of new show places will allow product to move faster, giving the secondary runs better chance to set up program without scouting around for low grade products.

Warner execs at various times have considered by-passing first run in some key on in-between films in order to hit the secondary situation quickly. Loew's is considering establishing the State Theatre here as a first run, which has only functioned in that manner on occasions heretofore.

Concerned in the National-RKO deal in Los Angeles are the Hollywood Egyptian and downtown Los Angeles for first week, with the pictures moving over to the Belmont and Fairfax for second stanza. In Kansas City plans originally were discussed to reopen the Main Street, which is jointly owned by RKO and National, as well as other houses. National currently operates the Orpheum, Uptown, Fairway and Esquire in Kansas City. Much of course depends on legal views on the project which may cancel out the houses first considered.

Should the RKO-National deal concerning both Los Angeles and Kansas City, as set up by Skouras and Alperson, be consummated, they undoubtedly will set a pattern for other operators in various sections of the country.

'Duke' Clark Given Par Dist. Managership

M. R. 'Duke' Clark, Los Angeles branch manager for Paramount for past several years, leaves that post Aug. 4 for promotion to district managership of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit and Indianapolis offices for the company.

figuring money goes to the Army Emergency Relief Fund anyway and they will still be well off with remaining 50% of box office due to estimated potential draw. devil will take the measure of the contrite, confessing sinner.

Much care went into the casting, from principal to the most modest role. Laird Cregar is the suave satan, excellently interpreted. Eugene Pallette and Marjorie Main provide much amusement as the Kansas City meat packer and his wife, eternally fighting, rolling in riches, living in a great and gaudy palace, yet awkwardly bereft when their daughter permits herself to elope with the wrong Van Cleve—a black mark on their social aspirations. Spring Byington is the overly indulgent mother of Ameche; Louis Calhern his fatuous, virtuous father. Allyn Joslyn creates a memorable role as the Van Cleve cousin from whom Ameche steals his fiance, rigidly correct, simpering, lugubrious—a fine piece of trouping.

Signe Hasso contributes a colorful part as the French maid, first love of the young socialite, played at this state by Dickie Moore. Helene Reynolds leaves vivid impression as the chorus girl who tells off the aging Casanova when he tries to stir embered fires and takes his money to leave his son alone.

Others who leave their mark in lesser roles include Aubrey Mather, Michael Ames, Leonard Carey, Clarence Muse, Dickie Jones, Trudy Marshall, Florence Bates, Clara Blandick.

Recreation of the Mauve decades in old New York is one of the charming elements of the picture. Eloquent are the cameras of Edward Cronjager in dealing with the ornate elegances of a fiercely competitive struggle for social estate, most amusing and satirical in retrospect. The color is voluptuous; the lensing a superlative job. Notable too, is the art direction by James Basevi and Leland Fuller; the set decorations by Thomas Little and Walter M. Scott; the special photographic effects by Fred Serson; the delectable costuming by Rene Hubert.

Lubitsch, the director, tells his fascinating tale in a musing, wistful manner, taking his time, exploring every touching or amusing possibility in the richly anecdoted, crisply related screen play by Samson Rapaelson, based on the play by Lazlo Bus-Fekete. Alfred Newman does his fine supplementary part with a persuasive musical score.

A picture to send audiences out in a glow, it is a high credit for 20th-Fox's showmanship, a personal triumph for Lubitsch, an advantage for every one connected with its production.

'Hangover Crowds' New Show Biz Factor

New York, July 20.—In population centers, notably New York, theatre operators view as a wartime phenomenon the way business levels are maintained on top of weekends and particularly after holidays. Gross on Mondays now is frequently as good or better than Fridays, so it's almost possible to predict weekend business by the previous Monday. Showmen call people who remain in town after the weekend and attend theatres 'hangover crowds.' Their presence is widely prevalent.

Pitt's Post-Gazette Rations Ad Space

Pittsburg, July 20.—Post-Gazette here has gone to rationing advertising space for amusements and is only paper in town doing so. RKO wanted 60 inches of space for ad on 'Mr. Lucky' with paper finally condescending to allow 20 inches.

Preminger Buys Play

'Benjamin Franklin,' play by Mary P. Hamlin, has been purchased by Otto Preminger for late fall Broadway presentation, with Sydney Greenstreet set for title role.

Alley Flies in 12,000 Feet Sicily Shots For Army, Navy

Washington, July 20.—The Newsreel Pool has received 4,000 feet of film on the invasion of Sicily. The Army got 8,000 feet of war action on the Italian Island as well as stills on the bombing of Rome.

The newsreel footage was flown in from Africa by Norman Alley of Panay fame. He shot most of it himself from ships covering the landing of Eisenhower's troops. It is understood that Alley, who landed in New York yesterday, is the first newsreel photog to bring his own stuff back from the war fronts by plane. He will fly back to Africa shortly.

ASCAP Seeks Extended Writer, Publisher Memberships

New York, July 20.—Writer and publisher members of American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers will be asked to extend their membership contracts for a term of 15 years, thereby bringing their affiliation with the society up to the end of 1965. Present membership agreement has seven years and five months to go.

Resolution calling for this contractual continuation was passed at a special meeting of the ASCAP board of directors. Directors hope through the measure to allay distrust or antagonism within ASCAP over outcome of the Marks-BMI suit over the ownership of performing rights. Marks action claims right belong to the publisher exclusively.

eral weeks ago by Army tops in Washington, and resulted after survey revealed efficiency and ability to produce training pictures of required standard by the AAF photographic unit.

Large number of the men at Wright Field are from Hollywood and local studios, and transfer will allow them to be close to their families and friends. Quarters at the AAF Culver City base are being greatly enlarged to take care of the transferees, who will be used to work on expanding number of training films being turned out at the post.

First motion picture unit currently has photographic units with the air force on every fighting front around the world, and much valuable footage of battle tactics has come through from all sectors. This film is primarily used to instruct AAF pilots and crews during training in this country before being sent overseas; and provides important material for the war strategists to map plans months in advance.

MPRF Morale Aid Seen Important Function

The Motion Picture Relief Fund handles many cases in which money plays no part, according to statistics in the annual report.

'The task of mending broken spirits is a complicated one,' says Wilma Bashor, fund executive secretary. 'We do not always achieve the results we would like to, but we know that understanding and kindness releases many tensions and straightens out many complications.' The Fund maintains a professional staff trained in effecting better adjustments between the individual and his environment and it also has the aid and direction of the Case Committee.

Metro Calls Pomerance For Tinter Tips

Because of dissatisfaction with finished product of recent color photography, Metro called in Ernest Pomerance, director of photography, from 20th-Fox to discuss color work with heads of camera and art departments. Pomerance had received many favorable nods for his work in shooting 'Coney Island.' Is understood complaint on color photography was raised by L. B. Mayer before his departure for east.

VOTE AD FUND TO HOUSES CUT IN POPULATION SHIFTS

Chicago, July 20.—William S. Rodgers, vice president in charge of sales for Metro speaking to those gathered at the second day's session announced that ten pictures would comprise the next selling group and would be made available as fast as the market can absorb them, after being trade shown. Decision was also made today that a budget of $125,000 would be set up in an effort to stimulate trade in every section of the country that has suffered from the shifting of population during these war times.

Referring to the budget, Howard Dietz, vice president in charge of advertising, promotion and publicity, told the company's sales executives, district managers and advertising and publicity representatives that 'to Metro every customer represents a decided entity, regardless of the size of his operation.'

INDIVIDUAL ANALYSIS

William S. Rodgers added, 'In addition to this specific appropriation by our company, exhibitors in adversely affected situations have at their command all the experience of our vast promotional departments and staffs, plus the sympathetic understanding of their problems by the sales department. As a result of our initial meeting in Cincinnati and our conferences here our sales personnel will now fan over the country giving individual analysis to each situation.'

In announcing the next ten pictures, Rodgers said, 'the facts are, that in many territories we have been unable because of crowded first and second run conditions to get dates on pictures released several months ago. This condition is especially aggravated in Detroit, Dallas, Buffalo, Atlanta, Chicago, and in many other territories. Spending, as we do, millions of dollars on magazine and newspaper campaigns to pre-sell our product, it is important that our releases be as nearly as possible timed for general distribution over the country simultaneously,' adding that he was encouraged by extended playing time prevalent today and the fact proved more and more exhibitors are now doing an outstanding job of merchandising.

LIST OF PICTURES

Pictures in the next group to be trade shown and sold are: 'Salute to the Marines,' starring Wallace Beery; 'Above Suspicion,' starring Joan Crawford and Fred MacMurray; 'I Dood It,' with Red Skelton and Eleanor Powell; 'Best Foot Forward,' with Lucille Ball and Harry James and his music; 'Young Ideas,' with Susan Peters, Herbert Marshall and Mary Astor; 'Swing Shift Maisie,' with Ann Sothern; 'Sabotage Agent,' with Robert Donat; 'Girl Crazy,' with Judy Garland and Mickey Rooney; 'Dr. Gillespie's Criminal,' with Lionel Barrymore, Van Johnson and Donna Reed; and 'Lassie Come Home,' with Roddy McDowall, Donald Crisp and Edmund Gwenn.

Metro will continue its high summer production schedule, with seven more pictures slated for start within next four weeks. Films include 'Canterville Ghost,' with Charles Laughton and Margaret O'Brien; 'Rationing,' Wallace Beery starrer; 'Kismet,' Ronald Colman, Richard Carlson; 'Gaslight,' Charles Boyer, Ingrid Bergman; 'Tale of Two Sisters,' Kathryn Grayson; 'Mr. Co-ed,' Red Skelton, Esther Williams; and new 'Dr. Gillespie' film, 'Three Men In White.'

The meeting concludes tomorrow.

MAYOR TO HEAR THEATRE TAX ALTERNATIVES JULY 30

Exhibitors, labor and representatives of other industries will meet in chambers of Mayor Fletcher Bowron next week to work out alternate proposal to replace the one-cent theatre admissions tax now up before the City Council. Meeting was set for Friday, July 30, following public hearing yesterday on the tax measure, aimed at supplying additional revenue to the city's coffers.

On hand yesterday to fight proposed revenue measure were representatives of both major and independent theatre operators, labor, and the Los Angeles and Hollywood Chambers of Commerce. There was no one present, outside of City Council committee members, who offered arguments favoring the proposed tax.

Charles Buckley, Fox West Coast counsel, told council theatres were not trying to escape their just share of any tax needed, but felt that film houses should not be singled out for a 'discriminatory' tax while other industries were omitted from the revenue measure. Buckley charged bill would only be another penalty for doing business if aimed at the theatre, and if meant only for the ticket buyer, doubts might be raised as to its legality. He also pointed out that if meant to be carried by theatres, measure would, in effect, be a double taxation since Federal taxes would increase to cover additional cent added to regular admission price.

BERMAN TALKS

Jack Berman, speaking for the Independent Theatre Owners, declared he didn't feel tax strikes at the source at which it is aimed (transients who neither own property or pay local taxes), and that it would be ruination for the smaller operator. He said tax would represent a 5% nick on a theatre charging 20 cents admission, leaving operator, already running on an extremely small margin of profit, no alternative but to pass it on to customers or pay it himself, thus wiping out profit.

He pointed out theatres now are taxed to the hilt, paying more taxes and heavier license fees than retailers. Asked if film entertainment wasn't a luxury business, Berman replied that President Roosevelt had held on a number of occasions that entertainment was a vital necessity for morale. He said theatres on the city's fringe would lose business due to patrons crossing the street to another municipality to attend a tax-free house. Smaller theatres have already lost considerable business through increased swingshift employment in war plants and have been driven to extra expense of owl shows in an effort to re-cupe a part of this loss, Berman stated; in answer to query from counsel that theatre biz is booming. He also pointed out to council that upped business is only from the big films, while lower grade of picture is steadily turning in less and less at the box office.

Labor representatives at the session included George Campbell, of Musicians, Ray Leheney, Teamsters, and Oscar Fuss of the CIO. Leheney, speaking for the CIO and major AFL groups, blasted tax as an additional hardship on the working public with only a slight portion of the burden to fall on transients, and asked that labor be called in for representation on all tax questions that will affect the worker. Organized labor takes view that theatre men would generally increase admissions by five cents, rather than face the bother of making penny change necessary if only one cent is added to admissions.

KINGSLEY PROTESTS

John B. Kingsley, prexy of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, declared no one industry should be singled out for a tax to finance city government and stated theatres would furnish approximately 80% of the tax income if measure is passed. Also pointed out that if the home of the film industry was allowed to establish such a tax without a fight, picture business throughout the counrty might well become the target for similar levies. Earl Anderson, of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, read resolution stating there were already sufficient funds in the city treasury to finance repairs to the sewage system and there was no need for levy against film and amusement business. He pointed out city had not yet reached any sort of agreement on postwar sewerage needs.

At special meeting last Thursday with Mayor Bowron, theatre men offered to use their screens to help city raise funds and to sit in to help formulate a general tax not aimed at any one business. After July 30 session with the mayor, City Council will hold another discussion on measure Aug. 3, regular public meeting day.

Major Newsreels Mull Canada Filming to Beat Local Move

New York, July 20.—To forestall expected move by John Grierson, Canadian film commissioner and head of the Canadian Wartime Information Board, to establish an all-Canadian newsreel, major American reels are considering setting up special newsreel units in Canada comparable to those in Great Britain, South America and the ones planned for France.

Grierson and other Dominion officials, as well as the Canadian public, are reported dissatisfied with the current limited reference to Canada on the Canadian screens. Situation always crops up during wartime or when country is in particularly patriotic mood. During the last war, and for several years after, attempts were made to supply local clips to the Canadian newsreel editions but efforts proved costly when both exhibs and the public failed to display more than passing interest in the newsreels.

FCC's Evidence Stand Mutiny vs Congress Cox Charges

Washington, July 20.—Rep. Eugene Cox (D., Ga.), chairman of the House committee investigating Federal Communications Commission, charged at a committee hearing today that the FCC is labeling material 'confidential' to keep it away from his committee. He asserted there was 'mutiny against Congress.' 'I can not believe,' he added, 'that Congress wants this committee to lay down before the bureaucrats and accept this treatment. We must assert our authority.'

FCC Commissioner T. A. M. Craven was the day's only witness. Craven, almost always in opposition to the majority headed by Chairman James L. Fly, charged that Fly had ordered him not to divulge confidential information to the Cox committee, but said he was willing to do so, if the committee would take the responsibility. In what appeared to be a somewhat corny act, Craven read his prepared statement and Eugene L. Garey, general counsel for the Cox committee, pleaded great surprise and indignation, and called upon the committee to direct Craven to answer.

Chairman Cox—apparently reading from a prepared statement—then directed Craven to answer questions and assured him that no secret military information would be aired. Craven said he disagreed with the stand of Fly regarding the Army and Navy, and felt that the armed forces should have control of certain communications and radio intelligence in wartime. He will be on the stand again tomorrow.

LEGIT-FILM WEDDING NEAR DUE TO HI-COST OF PLAYS

New York, July 20.—They're going to get married at last, according to the most reliable reports. In fact those in the know say they just got to, and intimate that it will be a sort of a shotgun affair. The bride and groom are the Hollywood Film Industry and the Broadway Legit Stage. And in this case the marriage bells are going to ring because the film magnates are convinced this is a case of where two can live cheaper than one. No bans have been issued nor is the date set, but ask anybody in the know and you'll hear it won't be long now.

And cause of the wedding is the high prices of hit plays that are being quoted to Hollywood. Just for example there is 'Junior Miss.' The bidding is still on with top offer of $410,000 by Mary Pickford for United Artists. And that isn't alfalfa even in these days of loose coin.

But that's only a starter. 'Oklahoma' and 'Life With Father' are on the sales counter too—but not the bargain one. The asking price for each is $500,000.

So the legit producers are coming around toward the wedding idea. They admit the astronomical prices are getting out of hand and many say they would be just as content to gamble on a sharing arrangement.

First marriage arrangement likely to be consummated has to do with 'Kiss and Tell'—there's that shotgun again. Understood George Abbott and David O. Selznick are talking of a deal for the property in which no money will change hands at start. Idea is for Abbott to share in film financing in exchange for profit-splitting arrangement on gross.

Selznick wants to star Shirley Temple in the part created by Joan Caufield in the play.

Wage-Freeze No Bar to Higher Free Lance Pay, WLB Says

The affect of wage-salary freeze on pay of studio directors of photography was explained to lensers by a representative of the War Labor Board at a recent meeting of the American Society of Cinematographers. While the minimum salary for directors is fixed by agreement between the Producers and International Photographers Local 659, it was indicated freeze would not prevent photogs getting higher pay when they moved from a budget picture to a more important production.

Situation pertaining to camermen is about the same as that of free lance actors, it was explained. The wage freeze does not prevent either group from negotiating for higher scales when they are free lancing.

PLANNING 36 TO 40 TOP BUDGETERS FOR 1943-44

There will be between 36 and 40 pictures produced by 20th Century-Fox for the new sason at a cost of around $41,000,000. Decision for this amount of product was made yesterday after conferences between Spyros Skouras, company prexy who arrived from the east in the morning, Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl Zanuck.

Company feels that with costs of production materials, directors and players having mounted to an average of 25 to 30% over the previous year and the desire to produce only high quality and top calibre pictures that the budget figure is not out of proportion for the number of pictures to be made.

PARAMOUNT figures it has saved an enormous amount of time, film and headaches through institution by William Meiklejohn, talent executive, of the once-a-week audition where young thespian candidates are seen and heard as a preliminary to possible further tests. First of all this method of weeding out the hopefuls and the obviously unfitted, who once might have secured film tests on someone's recommendation, has conserved much film. Those who show promise at the audition now get the further specific tests. In this way a much greater number of prospects are covered and card-indexed, if not immediately coached and groomed and assigned to stock company. Among youngsters recently signed through this procedure are Sonny Tufts, James Brown, Gail Russell, close to star rating, and Jean Mortimer who has had femme leads in the 'Henry Aldrich' pictures. Sitting in with Meiklejohn in the pre-testing auditions cabinet are Milton Lewis, talent scout, unit casting men, Joe Egli, Bobby Moya and Harvey Clermont, and talent coach, Bill Russell.

BEST informed men in his country today on the rise and impending fall of Hitler probably are Director John Farrow and Producer Joe Sistrom at Paramount. In gathering data on the forthcoming 'The Hitler Gang,' pair conferred at length in Washington and elsewhere with government officials and with European refugees who have intimate knowledge of maneuvers and circumstances by which Schickelgruber came to power. In addition Farrow and Sistrom have compiled the most extensive pictorial record of Hitler and his satellites ever collected in this country. Many sources of information must remain secret. Every picture acquired has been blown up to facilitate careful study. Museum of Modern Art also provided researchers for Paramount picture with access to many German motion picture films. Refugees and other informants were probed for psychological clues of Hitler and his gang, as well as the outward fact.

FIRST American-born Japanese to be brought into the western area since Army ban of all of Nip birth or descent, has been imported from the east by the AAF first motion picture unit based at Culver City. He's been a sergeant in the American forces for several years, and special permission was obtained for bringing him west for use in an AAF training film of vital importance where fluent Japanese conversation is required. Confined to the post for his own safety, soldier nevertheless had to be on his toes for several days, as enlisted men—uninformed of his status and purpose on the grounds—were inclined to figure him a spy and made passes at giving him a stiff going-over. Situation has eased, with post commander making certain that all men on the post are conversant with status of the sergeant, so that the latter can now associate with other members of the unit.

BIGGEST Paramount product representation on Broadway since the days of '24 when 'The Covered Wagon' and 'The Ten Commandments' dominated the street together, will be seen in August, when, at the same time, 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' will be at the Rivoli, 'So Proudly We Hail' at Radio City Music Hall, and 'Let's Face It' at the Paramount, with possibility of one other at a fourth Broadway theatre. 'Dixie,' which company figured could go eight weeks, will be hauled out in sixth to make room for 'Let's Face It' in forced crowding of pictures. Only four more Paramount pictures are scheduled to consume rest of the year at the Paramount: 'Face It,' starting Aug. 4; 'True To Life,' 'No Time For Love' and 'Riding High.' All are labeled as escapist entries.

ALL is not rosy on the inside of the Canadian National Film Board, which is headed by John Grierson, according to inside reports filtering through from the Dominion. Budget for the Wartime Information Board—which also includes the National Film Board—and both under direction of Grierson, provided some hot debate in the Dominion House of Commons. Although salaries and number of personnel came up for debate, it is known that many lawmakers have been delving under cover into the efficiency and abilities of various members of Grierson's staff in the film division, and some interesting appointments have so far been uncovered for future political ammunition where the voters take their balloting seriously.

STRIKE threatened by Los Angeles Railway Company's car and bus employes turned a profit for local radio stations when Lockheed and Douglas took to the air to request automobile-owning workers at the two aircraft plants to pick up any stranded fellow workers so there would be no absenteeism in the plane factories. Every available spot on KMTR was taken by Lockheed for last night and today, using a quote from the President concerning necessity of full-time turning out of planes and asking employes to pack their cars to capacity to beat threatened transportation tieup. Douglas and Lockheed also bought available time on KFWB for similar spot announcements.

KING VIDOR, whose Technicolor production of 'America' is figured to be Metro's outstanding money picture of next season, has a rough cut of the picture in 21 reels—with at least one more week of shooting required before film winds up. From present indications, with footage still remaining to be shot, in addition to inserts and some added scenes after further editing shows what is required to cover rough spots, looks like 'America' will hit the releasing channels in about 17 reels. Latter footage would necessitate single bill in all situations.

EDWIN KNOPF is the producer of two extremes at Metro. He had an all-woman cast in 'Cry Havoc' and virtually all-male cast in 'Cross of Lorraine.' Adding to contrast, both pictures were in production at the same time on the lot.

At eventide the mocking bird is piping in his tree.
He sings outside the kitchen door, as proud as he can be.
And someone turns the dial on so all the world may hear
The super-duper music of a red-hot trumpeteer.
The mocking bird has ceased to sing and droops in dank despair—
He hasn't got a comeback when a jive band takes the air.

Optimists will tell you that you are as old as you feel, and croakers will tell you that you are as old as your arteries, but you never realize how Father Time is stalking you until you hear the children talking about cutting rugs when they don't mean rugs. My father could do a nimble Irish jig and romp through the mazes of a square dance, but gave up when he gazed on his first cakewalk, the beginning of the jazz era. It wasn't the new music that stumped him—it was the new language.

Film Preview

Black Sea Fighters

(Documentary)

Central Newsreels Studios (Moscow, U. S. S. R.) production, released in North and South America by Artkino Pictures, Inc. Director, Vasili Belyaen. Commentary written by Clifford Odets. Narration, Fredric March. Photography, A. Krichevsky, G. Donetz, A. Smolka, V. Mikosha, D. Rimarev, F. Korotkevich. Musical score, A. Astradantsen. Previewed at Esquire Theatre, Hollywood, Calif., July 21, 1943. Running time: 61 MINS.

An absorbing documentary showing the Russian defense of Sevastopol against the Nazis but more particularly how the Russians waged war in the Black Sea against the invaders, this film turned out by Russian cameramen on front lines and sea battle zone graphically depicts the heroic stand of men fighting for their country. Trio of cameramen accompanied the Black Sea Fleet to limn sea action, while another trio lensed the land fighting, results of both providing an exciting hour of interest which might play profitably on any double bill.

Starting out with the siege of Sevastopol, action soon veers to the efforts of the Russian Navy and Marines to combat Nazi plan of attack. Much of the film relates to these Black Sea fighters, in their Commando raids, their attack in small torpedo boats, their consistent harrassing of the enemy through bands of snipers. The great role the Russians played in defending their land to the last ditch is brought out with magnificent sweep, and while the cutting is not always most expert, generally the picture commands attention. It is the first Russian documentary covering the Russian fleet.

'Fighters' has a commentary written by Clifford Odets which Fredric March narrates, lines punctuating action with telling effect. Music backgrounds much of this action which photographers were successful in highlighting with scores of memorable scenes in battle. After seeing this picture, American audiences will have a far better conception of our Russian ally and how they fight.

'WE SHALL NEVER DIE' STIRS BOWL THOUSANDS

Thousands of people left the Hollywood Bowl last night with a challenging phrase knelling in their ears, 'Remember Us!' It was the reiterated chant of groups of folk, members of a cast of over 1,000 on the stage, symbolizing the 2,000,000 Jews who have died as race martyrs in Europe under the barbarous blood mania of the Nazi Germans. It was the highlight, this dirge, of a solemn memorial ceremony strikingly dramatized under the title, 'We Shall Never Die.'

It was told in chant and prayer, narrative and pageant, by rabbi and cantor, prominent screen players and amateur performers, soldiers and others in the cast assembled for this single local performance.

The stage was decked in black, with the tablets of the decalogue looming in the dusk, the star of David shining from the dias and the benificent stars overhead where reminding planes patrolled.

The vast assemblage, it was told, was gathered not to weep, for the two million massacred Jews, but to honor them. Eloquently it was emphasized that, 'They Will Never Die'—these who died without weapon in hand, in the ghettos, in synagogues, in homes, in massed deliberate killings in ravished countries.

The pageant moved through phases depicting briefly the story of Israel, her ancient great people and her modern great people; the exploits of some of the soldier heroes of the war; the harrowing but valiant tale of the Jews of the Warsaw Ghetto, who fought back before the last of its many thousands were wiped out; the prospects for Jews at the peace table, and a prayer for the martyred dead.

The presentation, written by Ben Hecht, was most effective, under executive direction of Yitshaq Ben-Ami, production by Billy Rose, direction by Moss Hart, staging by Herman Rotsten, music by Kurt Weill, orchestra conduction by Franz Waxman and supervision here by S. Syrjala.

The rabbi was Jacob Ben Ami and the narrators Edward G. Robinson, Edward Arnold, John Garfield, Paul Henreid, Katina Paxinou and Sam Levene.

Finally a ringing plea was uttered for the strengthening of a second spiritual battle front, on which the spirit of militant mankind should speak for the dead and keep alive the reasons for their martyrdom.

Carroll Suit vs Par For $300,000 Gets November Trial

New York, July 21.—Earl Carroll's $300,000 damage action charging breach of contract and libel against Paramount Pictures Inc. in releasing 'A Night At Earl Carroll's,' is scheduled for trial Nov. 1, according to stipulation filed by Federal Court Wednesday. Motion to vacate depositions of Paramount witnesses was withdrawn by Carroll. Depositions of the nine witnesses will be taken in California starting July 23.

Carroll in his suit charges that release of film by Paramount, using his name as producer has subjected him to ridicule. Picture was of inferior quality to shows produced by Carroll, he alleges. They breached contract, he charges, when they permitted him little or no control over the production of the film.

Jonas Shapiro, attorney, from firm of Greenbaum, Wolff & Ernst, legal representatives for Earl Carroll, arrives in Hollywood Friday to take depositions from Paramount officials in Carroll's suit against studio.

COAST CLEFFERS SHY AT LONG ASCAP MEMBERSHIP

Coast songwriters apparently are prepared to oppose move of American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers for extension of membership contracts for a term of 15 years, unless gaining official recognition on performing rights. Cleffers, advised yesterday of resolution, passed by ASCAP board of directors in special meeting, which will seek contract extension from both publishers and writers, are understood to distrust move.

Consensus of opinion among Coast tunesters, who discussed resolution with L. Wolfe Gilbert, ASCAP director and vice-prexy of Songwriters Protective Association, was that writers would be willing to go along with board's request, provided publishers signed 100% first.

According to Gilbert, writers generally said they 'would be glad to re-sign with ASCAP, provided society showed its sincerity by recognizing cleffers' 50% interest in performing rights.' Such a resolution would almost automatically nullify threat of the BMI-Marks suit now pending, songwriters feel, by officially establishing writers' 50% interest in performing rights.

ASCAP directors hope to allay distrust and antagonism that has arisen within the society over the Marks-BMI suit, which claims performing rights belong exclusively to the publisher, through signing up membership until end of 1965 by contract extensions.

In past years writers have offered little if any opposition to renewing their affiliation with ASCAP, signing contracts without hesitation, but some tunesmiths now feel publishers have, or are, swinging the balance of power within the organization and hasty inking of pacts might be unwise unless publishers also signified their willingness to go along with move 100%, plus recognizing writers' 50% interest in performing rights.

fect on the industry is not yet clear. It seems certain, however, that the Service Equipment Division's amusement section, headed by Allen G. Smith, will maintain control over the manufacture of equipment and supply houses.

Here to determine just what effect the shift will have is Ed Kuykendall, prexy of Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, who declared yesterday that 'the Theatre Owners of America feels that any changes or adjustments that may occur in the WPB will be because of the necessity for taking a load off of some that may have more than they can reasonably attend to. We feel reasonably sure that the men directing the force of WPB will keep in mind the necessity for having one at the head of the amusement division, through which the theatres are operated, who understands our mechanics.

'While no definite changes have yet been proclaimed publicly, we feel there will be a change in the immediate future and that in all probability the theatre owners will suffer no hardship because of it. We have complete confidence in the administrative officers of WPB.'

Davis, MacIsaac Appeal Decision in IATSE Case Withheld

Appelate Court Judges Parker Wood and Clement L. Shinn took under advisement yesterday motion of George (Curly) Davis and Henry MacIsaac to set aside decision of Superior Judge William R. McKay denying the petitioners claim against IATSE, Local 728, Carl Cooper, George E. Browne and Willie Bioff.

Davis' and MacIsaac's suit filed in Superior Court was dismissed on ruling that the plaintiffs had no cause for action. Davis sought $20,000 damages for what he alleges was lost employment due to his expulsion from the IATSE and $25,000 in punitive damages. MacIsaac asked the court to fix a 'reasonable sum' as his damages.

Both men were expelled from IATSE Local 728 in September, 1939, they charged, after being members for three years. Their expulsion, which has been upheld by the International Executive Board, is illegal they charge.

Decision in the present case is expected in about 90 days.

Re-Takes On 'Lorraine' Ordered At Metro

Metro tosses 'Cross of Lorraine' back into production tomorrow for retakes and added sequences, with added shooting expected to take at least a week.

No argument of front office execs with picture as turned in by Director Tay Garnett, but fast-moving war events which indicate a sudden invasion of Europe proper by the United Nations dictated script rewrite of a second ending to provide for finish where Allied forces actually invaded Europe — regardless of landing point. It's figured new ending will be timely on release of picture, which will be hustled out to the theatres as soon as possible.

nick and his various companies in connection with a series of deals made by the Selznick organization with 20th Century-Fox. We had told Mr. Schwartz, among other things, that United Artists had no cause of action against Mr. Selznick or any of his companies.

'It was upon receipt of this statement that Mr. Schwartz, on behalf of Mr. Chaplin, filed a stockholder's action in the Supreme Court, New York County, naming Mr. Selznick and his companies, 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation and United Artists, as defendants.

'United Artists will defend the action so far as itself or any of its officers are involved. The company's affairs are in no way affected by the pending action.'

Among those attending yesterday's UA meeting were: Mary Pickford, David O. Selznick, Alfred Reeves, Mendel Silberberg, Daniel T. O'Shea, Charles Milliken, George Bagnall and president Raftery. Reeves, general manager for Chaplin, sat in for the comedian.

SPPC Raps SAG Rule To Labor in All Union Protest ship and whether they would vote to elect him president of their union.

Committee also has contacted San Pedro and many other labor councils, seeking their indirect support in drive for autonomous union for atmosphere players. Is generally understood that Committee, which recently was refused an election by the National Labor Relations Board, plans to take its fight to the floor of the American Federation of Labor, and is seeking to win support of delegates in the interim.

In addition to San Pedro and Santa Monica, Committee has received encouragement from San Fernando Valley and Pomona Central Labor Councils. It is reported group also has contacted Central Labor Council in Los Angeles, from which the Screen Actors Guild withdrew, and other State labor bodies.

In announcing that the extras would not abandon their fight for autonomy and a separate union of their own, Chairman Lawson of the SPPC, stated:

'As far as the extra player is concerned the same set of facts are still apparent, regardless of the action of the labor board. Taxation without representation, stoppage of negotiations by the Guild, even though supported by extra players dues, substandard annual wage and lack of security to the contrary.

'Incidents and influences will not deter the extra one iota; he through his own organization, the Screen Players Protective Committee, will press on toward the goal that is the right of all American workers.

'He has come to the realization that only by complete withdrawal from unwilling influences, by complete separation from interests conflicting with his own, and only through his own chartered American Federation of Labor union, standing on the same basis with all other locals of the Associated Actors and Artists of America, can he hope for the fruits of real unionism, security and a living wage.'

Whether the SAG was taking any steps to counteract the drive of the SPPC could not be ascertained, as representatives of the SAG were not available. Kenneth Thomson, SAG executive secretary, was not available and calls to office of the Guild's publicity department prompted reply that John Lee would call later.

NY'S LOCAL 306, EMPIRE PROJECTIONISTS MERGE

New York, July 21.—Following meetings held last night of memberships of both unions to ratify move, papers were signed today merging two operator groups, Local 306, Moving Picture Operators of New York, (AFL), and the Empire State Operators, a State-chartered organization.

Under combination 306 takes into its union 234 members of Empire, with cards having been issued today. Step merging two unions, with papers formally signed in office of Mayor La Guardia who congratulated both on combining, was taken in spite of decision from Brooklyn courts on application of Century Circuit to prevent merger in view of fact it holds long-term contract for Empire projectionists.

In view of fact matter is in courts, Empire will retain identity until it is settled. However, meantime all officers of the Empire have resigned, with Herman Gelber, 306 president, also becoming president of the Empire. Plans for merger of 306-Empire have been on and off for over 10 years.

Stall Sherman Ouster On Buzzell Appeal

Order of William Green, prexy of the American Federation of Labor, ousting Harry Sherman as president of the Los Angeles Central Labor Council, has been held up by an appeal, scheduled for hearing Aug. 1. Appeal was engineered by J. W. Buzzell, secretary-treasurer of Council, who claimed that action against Sherman was uncalled for and illegal according to the AF of L Constitution.

Move for a shakeup in the LA Council or chartering of a Hollywood Central Labor Council was sponsored by many film unions headed by Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, the Screen Actors Guild, American Federation of Musicians, Studio Machinists and the Screen Set Designers. Drive, however, was directed more at Buzzell than at Sherman, whom the film labor leaders claimed was only carrying out orders of Buzzell.

OWI Public 'Aleutians' Release Okay No Policy Tipoff

Washington, July 21.—OWI approval for the public showing of the Army's four-reel color film, 'Report From the Aleutians,' made by Capt. John Huston, must not be interpreted as indicative of future OWI policy, Domestic Director Palmer Hoyt insisted today. It is strictly a 'situation apart,' he said, 'a mess that we're glad to have cleaned up and out of the way.'

'OWI does not intend to abrogate any of its authority in regard to the release to the public of pictures from any government agency,' said Hoyt. He added that he had been under stronger industry pressure against approving release of the picture than Army pressure for it. In fact, he added, there was no Army pressure, although he admitted that General Surles had stated flatly that the picture would be released in the long version or not at all.

Personally, he strongly favored releasing the shorter version, Hoyt said, and felt that Lowell Mellett had been entirely correct in his insistence that the two-reeler go. But, he added, 'just because the Army is stubborn is no reason we should be.' The argument was mainly one of circulation for the film, he said, since OWI could not refuse to clear the film because of reasons of content or of policy.

Hoyt is convinced that the long version will not receive sufficient attention from theatres to keep the Army happy, and implied that he feels the Army will discontinue insisting on odd-sized pictures for public showing.

Hoyt's statement jibed pretty much with his letter to the Army notifying them of his decision. Addressed to the Bureau of Public Relations, it read, in part, as follows:

'We have come to the conclusion that the greatest public interest would be served if the shorter version of the picture were released, since it would receive many times the circulation that would be possible in the case of the longer version. In other words, we feel that the purposes of war information would be better served if a large part of the public were able to see the 16-minute picture than if a small part of the public were able to see the full picture which runs approximately 45 minutes.

'At the same time, however, we understand that General Surles, before he left for England, issued instructions that only the longer version was to be released by the War Department. The public release of this picture is a matter which has been debated without conclusion for several months. It seems to us that the only result of prolonging the debate would be to withhold from the public a motion picture which the public has a right to see.

'Accordingly, we will immediately offer to the War Activities Committee of the motion picture industry the full 45 minute version of the picture for such distribution as they may be able to arrange. We shall continue, however, to press for the release of a shorter version as well, to the end that the greatest possible number of people may be able to see the picture.'

WMC FAVORS 5 MEMBER PANEL FOR 48-HR. WEEK

The film industry's Labor-Management Committee probably will be supplanted by a War Manpower Commission subcommittee of not more than five members when the WMC order for a mandatory 48-hour week is handed down today.

It was indicated by WMC officials that the present committee might be too unwieldy and that the Commission did not like for a committee personnel to number more than five in order to expedite matters that might change every few hours.

The 48-hour week will apply to all enterprises employing eight or more persons. Business plants, however, have 30 days in which to comply with the order, and two weeks in which to file requests for exemptions. Order includes the motion picture industry, but WMC officials made it plain that exemption will be liberal where it is shown that going on longer work week would not increase war production or release workers for other essential industries.

Employer agreements with unions are completely disregarded in the WMC order as it pertains to exemptions. Three principal reasons for exemptions are that it would be impossible to comply, that it would not release workers for other industries or that it would conflict with State or Government regulations. Rule will apply to establishments, rather than firms, particularly chain stores.

WMC indicated that while current Labor-Industry Committee might be supplanted by a smaller body, members of new group might be drawn from present Committee. This would leave two representatives from labor, two from management and one impartial, if plan is followed out.

Most studio managers stated yesterday that their requests for exemptions would be small. They said most departments had already been operating on a long week and that the change over would be mere routine.

Thirty Days to Fetchit In Chicago Trial

Chicago, July 21.—Stepin Fetchit was sentenced to 30 days in the House of Correction today by Judge Joseph B. Hermes for contributing to the delinquency of a minor. At the same time the jurist vacated the sentence of six months in jail previously imposed on Juanita Randolph, the 16-year-old girl in the case, for perjury.

Policemen had found the girl in the bathroom of the comedian's hotel room clad in his pajamas.

In sentencing Stepin Fetchit, Judge Hermes said:

'A man of your prominence should be more careful. I am convinced you knew the girl was in your room and that she was there for no good purpose.'

Execution of Fetchit's sentence was stayed for 60 days pending an appeal.

SAG Eases Adjustment Check Nuisance of Extra Players

Reportedly following instructions of the OPA, the Screen Actors Guild has discontinued practice of requiring extras to call at SAG headquarters to pickup adjustment checks, which ranged from a few cents to $10.50 or more. It is understood that extras through Hal Craig, now under one-year suspension for criticizing the Guild, complained to the OPA that they often had to drive 30 miles to pick up a check that might amount to only 36 cents.

The SAG now mails a double postal card to the player entitled to an adjustment in which he authorizes the Guild to accept the check and it later is mailed to him. The card is an acknowledgment from the player that check was okay.

Obituary

MARTIN J. FAUST

Christian Science funeral services for Martin J. Faust, 57, stage and screen actor, will be held at 11 a.m. today at the Hollywood Chapel of Pierce Bros. Cremation follows. Faust died Monday at St. Vincent's hospital and in past years had been appearing in pictures as a character actor, among his latest being 'Ali Baba,' 'This Is the Army,' 'North Star.' He is survived by his widow, Hazel Faust.

Faust started on the stage at the age of eight and, at 16, toured for two years with the Richard Mansfield Co. He was a member of the Proctor 125th St. Stock Co., and also stage director for Barry O'Neil. He appeared in the second film ever made and was associated with the Edison, Biograph, Thannhauser and Lubin film companies in the east before coming west in 1925.

GERTRUDE NORMAN

Funeral services for Mrs. Gertrude Norman, 95, character actress, will be held tomorrow at 11 a.m. at Pierce Bros. Hollywood chapel. Mrs. Norman, who retired in 1936, appeared in nearly all Cecil B. De Mille productions and frequently played a screen mother.

Military operations on Sicily indicate that the Axis apparently is fighting a delaying action in the northwestern part, the region of Messina, while the rest of Sicily is being evacuated.

Catania, a stumbling block in the path of the British Eighth Army, is now surrounded on all sides and its fall is expected momentarily.

On the Russian front a general Soviet offensive seems to be in the making, revealing a decision on the part of the high command to protect its favorable position at Orel and, if possible, to find another weak spot in the Nazi line.

This coming week-end is likely to bring big but agreeable surprises.

Willkie Nixes Self-Bally in Film

No exploitation of Wendell Willkie will be incorporated into 'One World' which 20th-Fox will make into screen fodder from his novel. Willkie, it is understood, in the contract he made for the screen rights insisted that clauses be inserted that he does not appear in the film, also that no personal exploitation be accorded him either in story or sales campaign of the picture. He feels his book can be properly cinematized and tell the story he narrated without resorting to his injection in the narrative or efforts made to glamourize him. Willkie, however, will be closely associated on technical points in the preparation of the screen story.

Legit Managers, Flacks Get WLB Tilt Nod

Washington, July 22.—War Labor Board tonight ordered wage increases for approximately 280 theatre managers and press agents in New York.

IN A move to prevent occurrences such as the three months' boycotting of Loew houses in Toledo for playing 'Lady of Burlesque' without state censor board cuts, due to quick date booking, Martin Smith, president of ITOA of Ohio, is cooperating with the five Catholic dioceses in the state. He is behind the formation of 'conference committees' in each diocese to take quick action on pictures classified as 'C' (Condemned) by the Legion of Decency. Members will be non-professional and industry men and come from both Catholic and non-Catholic ranks. Upon telegraphic notification of a 'C' designation for a picture, immediate steps would be taken to see that all theatre operators are made aware of the restriction. In this manner theatre operators would arrange for such cuts as would make the picture playable. In the case of the Loew houses, it is said, the film was booked and playing while still under consideration both by Legion of Decency officials and the state board of censors. Later, cuts as ordered were thought to be hard to make because print was in use and extra prints unavailable.

JOE ROCK, indie pic producer who left here about 15 years ago to produce in London, is back in the States with a new riveting device that is creating a sensation in the plane manufacturing market. Rock, after the war started, went into mechanical biz and ran into a riveting machine for planes which required handling by one person only. He believed when he left the other side that they had a similar device here. When he found out differently he had one sent over and two of the plane manufacturing companies immediately placed orders. First consignment was shipped here by bomber. Now Rock is here and looking for site upon which to build factory to turn them out in large quantities, as he feels that besides planes they can be used for other construction operations.

COX-FCC PROBE STEAMING AHEAD UNDER HOT CHARGES

Washington, July 22.—Federal Communications Commission Chairman James L. Fly charged this afternoon that the Cox Congressional Committee is 'throwing unsubstantiated charges to get the headlines.' He held a press conference today after Eugene Garey, Cox committee counsel, announced a sub-committee will hold hearings in New York in a few days 'on the Gestapo phases of FCC.' Garey apparently referred to FCC investigations in foreign language broadcast stations.

Fly denied several of the charges made at committee hearings. He asserted FCC never has had 31 employes in North Africa, as Garey has claimed. He also hit back at Congressman Eugene Cox's contention that FCC has 'terrorized' and punished broadcast stations.

Described as 'pure hooey' was a charge by Garey that FCC used $200,000 of appropriations for purposes other than those specified by Congress.

At this morning's hearing Cox refused to put into the record 20 letters from high military, naval and government officials commending FCC for its foreign intelligence work. Foreign intelligence unit of FCC has been under constant attack by Garey, who claims it has been useless to other government agencies.

A major film studio builds what is known as a backlog of pictures, all neatly canned and stored away in the icebox to stave off hunger in the distant future. It is a sign of business acumen, to be admired by one and all. Honeymoon Lodge

(Comedy-Drama)

Universal production. Cast: David Bruce, Harriet Hilliard, June Vincent, Rod Cameron, Franklin Pangborn, Andrew Tombes, Martin Ashe, Ozzie Nelson and his orchestra, Veloz and Yolanda, Tip, Tap and Toe, Bobby Brooks, Hattie Noel and Ray Eberle. Director, Edward Lilley; Associate Producer, Warren Wilson. Screen play, Clyde Bruckman. Original story, Warren Wilson. Photography, Paul Ivano. Art direction, John B. Goodman, Martin Obzina. Sets, R. A. Gausman, A. J. Gilmore. Musical director, Charles Previn. Editor, Russel Schoengarth. Gowns, Vera West. Previewed in Hollywood, California, July 22, 1943. Running time: 62 MINS.

Romantic little comedy drama with all the essentials for family trade, 'Honeymoon Lodge' pleasantly accomplishes goal it reaches for—wholesome entertainment. Lack of draw names is no deterrent to its engaging qualities, although absence of such names makes it suitable only for sustaining half of double bill. Picture utilizes modest budget to best effect, and serves as introduction for attractive young leading lady who should go places.

Lady in question is June Vincent, who ably establishes fact she owns flair as light comedienne. Story revolves around basic premise of a second honeymoon, in which two principals leave divorce court to try to recapture their lost happiness by reliving in exact detail events leading up to their marriage. Miss Vincent is bride, David Bruce the groom, who returned to the honeymoon lodge in mountains where they met. Once they reach destination, romantic complications immediately develop to mar the smooth course of the courtship both had hoped for.

Idea is light and diverting and should strike a popular note, despite fact it is none too original, and Edward Lilley's direction accents lightness of touch. Two leads very capably supported by Harriet Hilliard, Rod Cameron, Franklin Pangborn and other players, carry through with the idea, which Clyde Bruckman presented with a facile pen in his screen play. Adapted from Warren Wilson's original story, production credits without exception are up to standard, Paul Ivano's photography, art direction by John B. Goodman and Martin Obzina, sets by R. A. Gausman and A. J. Gilmore, Charles Prevbin's musical direction, Vera West's gowns, and Warren Wilson handling production reins uniformly good.

Picture offers pleasing showcase for Miss Hilliard's singing, both alone and with Ozzie Nelson, who provides music with his orchestra. She warbles, 'Why Don't You Fall in Love With Me' and 'I Never Knew' and numbers also are sung by Bobby Brooks and Ray Eberle. Veloz and Yolanda present fast stepping waltz and another dance number is offered by Tip, Tap and Toe, buck and wing experts.

Two Fisted Justice

(Western)

Monogram release. Stars John King, David Sharpe, Max Terhune. Others in cast: Gwen Gaze, Joel Davis, John Elliott, Charles King, George Chesebro, Frank Ellis, Cecil Weston, Hal Price. Director, Robert Tansey. Producer, George W. Weeks. Screen play, William L. Nolte. Photography, Robert Cline. Production manager, William L. Nolte. Assistant production manager, J. Hawthorne. Sound engineer, Lyle E. Willey. Film editor, Roy Claire. Musical director, Frank Sanucci. Rievewed at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, July 22, 1943. Running time: 55 MINS.

Monogram's Range Busters continue their chasing of bad men and western heroines in 'Two Fisted Justice.' This time the trio, John King, David Sharpe and Max Terhune, are doing undercover work for Wells Fargo, as detailed in the screen play by William L. Nolte, in an effort to quell stage holdups.

King gets himself appointed sheriff of a lawless desert town where bad men hang out, his partner Sharpe gets himself shot and Terhune operates as a traveling entertainer in the gang roundup. Story leaves several undeveloped angles hanging, but otherwise unfolds at proper pace to please the Range Busters' fans. Boys come through ambush and hefty fist slinging rightside up for finale, having given their all for Wells Fargo and honest folk of Dry Gulch.

Robert Tansey keeps picture moving with his direction and George W. Weeks supplied okay production values for the film sagebrush market. Gwen Gaze is spotted in as the femme interest, while Charles King, George Chesebro, Frank Ellis and Hal Price supply the dirty work. Robert Cline's photography measures up and credits are standard.

His role is the astronomer in 'Heavenly.'

Wagon Tracks West

(Western)

Republic release. Stars Wild Bill Elliott with George 'Gabby' Hayes. Others in cast: Tom Tyler, Anne Jeffreys, Rick Vallin, Robert Frazer, Roy Barcroft, Charles Miller, Tom London, Cliff Lyons, Jack Rockwell. Director, Howard Bretherton. Associate producer, Louis Grey. Original screen play, William Lively. Photography, Reggie Lanning. Film editor, Charles Craft. Sound, Tom Carman. Art director, Russell Kimball. Set decorations, Charles Thompson. Musical score, Mort Glickman. Reviewed at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, July 22, 1943. Running time: 55 MINS.

This cowboys-and-Indians sage drama carries plenty of action in its 55 minutes to please the western fans. Workmanlike script has added advantage of Wild Bill Elliott and George 'Gabby' Hayes to project the outdoor thrills in sterling fashion. Plot detailed in William Lively's original script concerns efforts of Elliott and his sidekick to aid Pawnee Indians, subjected to white man's civilizing skullduggery.

Indian commissioner of the territory is plotting with tribe's medicine man to gain control of rich grazing lands owned by the redskins. They frame a murder on the new tribe chief, a full-fledged medical doctor just back from college, and it takes right smart gun work on the part of Wild Bill and Gabby to save their friend and bring peace. Production makes use of stock footage from previous Indian epics for added values and story works in touches of early hardships suffered by the redskin when the white man moved into his land.

Rick Vallin is the young civilized Indian chief-doctor. Anne Jeffreys dons redskin makeup to appear as the Indian maiden in an undeveloped romance with Vallin. Villainry is contributed by Tom Tyler, the medicine man, Robert Frazer, the commissioner, and Roy Barcroft, his aide. Others give standard western portrayals, all expert.

Howard Bretherton does another of his swiftly-paced directorial jobs on this Louis Grey production. Reggie Lanning's camera work and the other credits are good.

Gleason, Bond In 'Joe'

James Gleason and Ward Bond draw featured roles in Metro's 'A Guy Named Joe.'

REPUBLIC PLANS $3,000,000 FOR 1943-44 EXPLOITATION

Republic will spend 'not less than $3,000,000 for exploitation and advertising of its product via radio, trade papers and newspaper campaigns for the 1943-44 program.' This statement was made yesterday by Herbert J. Yates, Republic head, at opening of two day coast sales meet at the studio.

Upped outlay of exploitation coin, according to Yates, is result of favorable reaction to campaigns during past year on group of big specials, and pictures covered this season will be greatly expanded in the coverage.

Reorganization of Republic advertising-publicity departments will have Charles Reed Jones in charge of advertising, Steve Edwards handling publicity, and Len Boyd as liaison between New York office and the coast. According to present plans, duties of the trio will be rotated to contact exchanges and exhibitors periodically, and plans call for hiring of field exploiteers.

President and sales chief James R. Grainger presided at sales sessions yesterday, with those in attendance including M. J. Siegel, head of production; Pacific coast sales manager Francis Bateman; and branch managers H. T. Fuller of Salt Lake, Sid Weisbaum of San Francisco, John Frey of Los Angeles, Gene Gerbase of Denver, H. T. Sheffield of Portland, and Pete Higgins of Seattle.

Carlson Scores in Chi Suit for 'Guiding Light' Sharing

Chicago, July 22.—The suit of Emmons C. Carlson against Miss Irna Phillips for an accounting of the profits of the Guiding Light, a radio serial, seems headed for an early trial following the report of John Mulder, master in chancery of the Circuit Court of Cook County.

In a lengthy report, Mulder concluded that the testimony of the plaintiff be accepted over that of the defendant and found that the latter's evidence was contradictory to the facts as disclosed by the records. He advised that the case be brought to trial on the basis of his findings.

Carlson, district advertising and promotional manager for National Broadcasting here, filed suit against Miss Phillips in August of 1941. He claimed that Guiding Light was their combined brainchild and that there was an agreement between them on a 50-50 partnership basis. He asserted that after the serial was on the air a short time she failed to make an accounting to him of the profits.

SAYS TELEVISION READY FOR HOMES AFTER WAR

New York, July 22.—Home television sets will be ready for family use immediately after the war, Ralph R. Beal, research director for the Radio Corp. of America, announced today. He made no reservation to cover declaration. Sets, with screens from six to 24 inches, at a price within range of the average pocketbook, will be available to purchasers, Beal declared, 'within the shortest space of time required to reconvert the radio manufacturing industry from war to peace production.'

Technical factors that will figure in the rapid up-spring of see-hear broadcasting after the war, according to Beal, all feasible, will be a network of automatic monitor stations relaying images and sound from a central transmitting tower to any distance. Portable equipment will make easy the job of picking up sound and action from indoor or outdoor stages, without the need of special lighting due to technical improvements in the television camera's iconoscope eye.

Beal said he believed there was room for both regular sound broadcasting and see-hear in the post-war future without either one curtailing the other.

Don Lee System Polls 300,000 Pac. Homes In Radio Survey

What is regarded as the most comprehensive survey of the listening habits of radio owners ever made in this section is being studied this month by Sydney Gaynor, general sales manager of the Don Lee Broadcasting System. The survey covers more than 300,000 homes on the Pacific Coast and is the largest and most comprehensive ever made by the C. E. Hooper organization.

The report was ordered by Gaynor several months ago and since that time a large force of interviewers have been at work gathering a picture of the listening audience of the Don Lee system from 8 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. One basic point established by the report is the popularity of local stations as compared with out of town broadcasters. This was demonstrated by a check in 33 Coast cities.

The survey, which has been completed will be released shortly by Gaynor and taken to Chicago and New York by him for which points he leaves Aug. 6.

Stalin Walks Out On 'Mission', Bans It, London Reports

London, July 22.—According to a story in the Daily Telegraph today, Josef Stalin walked out during a private showing of 'Mission to Moscow,' and stated that the Premier had banned, 'in its present form,' the American made pic. The Telegraph quoted a Washington source.

The picture, previewed here last night, was criticized by the Telegraph, who wrote:

'History is marching down Hollywood Boulevard in a false face to the mingled strains of the "Internationale" and "The Star Spangled Banner," ' Editorial also objected to what it called an unfair depiction of British and French diplomats, while picturing the Kremlin as 'the home of the all-seeing angels.'

Other papers commenting on the preview said, 'a prejudiced account is sometimes preferred to objective statement of facts. The picture sometimes mangled the facts although it gave a proper atmosphere to the trial scenes,' The London Times.

The Daily Express said the film was a great screen document.

The News Chronicle said it had obvious sincerity.

The Daily Herald said the final effect was tremendous.

The Communist Daily Worker warmly praised the pic, saying that it took dramatic license without losing the essential truth of the story.

Starr Gets Release At Metro On Termer

SLACK, MORRIS OFFICE IN BOOKINGS RECONCILIATION

Difficulties between Freddie Slack and the William Morris office have been completely ironed out by amicable agreement and Slack starts a new theatre tour Aug. 5 under the Morris aegis. Bandsman and his crew open on that date at the Golden Gate theatre, San Francisco. Slack has been vacationing locally since closing an engagement at the Orpheum theatre June 29 while awaiting new bookings through the Morris office.

Slack's trouble with the Morris agency dated back about a year, during which he swung over to Music Corporation of America for representation. MCA deal was taken to the American Federation of Musicians by Morris agency, resulting in complete victory for latter. Bandsman was ordered to return to exclusive management of Morris, which also collected some $33,000 in commissions paid MCA during Slack's stay with that office.

There was talk that Slack would give up batoning after closing at the Orpheum here in favor of a composer-arranger contract at RKO because of his dispute with the Morris agency but studio deal never eventuated.

This marks second settlement of band disputes to be announced in the past week. Benny Carter, reported on verge of disbanding because of trouble between MCA and General Amusement over his contract, obtained written release from former office and stays with General Amusement. Trouble had arisen over $740 debt Carter owed MCA, now paid in full.

Lewellyn Set On H'wd 'Bell' Premiere

Army Post Seeks 35mm Cameras for Camp Portrait Use

Men of the Armed Forces who desire to have portraits made of themselves to send home, have run into a lot of portrait studios that have had a fluctuating scale of prices for them. At one of these posts Lieut. Paul Renay, assistant post exchange officer devised a plan to have the post establish its own portrait gallery to photograph the many thousands of men stationed there.

At these galleries a nominal sum of money is charged the men for these pictures. However, the demand is so large that it is essential to have more cameras. Lieut. Renay is in town in quest of 15 to 20 of 35 mm. cameras to be used for this purpose. They will be purchased by him for his post. He can be reached by Phoning Daily Variety, Hollywood 1141.

Launch Anti-Race Riot Broadcast Tomorrow

'Open Letter to the American People,' special program, will be aired tomorrow night over CBS, 6-6:30 p.m. (PWT), exposing dangers of race riot in this country and discussing causes and effects. Postscript by Wendell Willkie, offering suggestions, has been added to the program, written and produced by William N. Robson, also producer of 'Man Behind the Gun,' which gives up its time to the 'Letter' broadcast. Event, practically unprecedented in American radio history, is being sponsored locally by some 60 members of the Entertainment Emergency Committee.

Leighter Quits MPSA

Jackson Leighter, associated with local office of the Motion Picture Society For the Americas, has resigned and checks out of organization this weekend. Leighter leaves shortly for New York and Washington to complete details of a new affiliation as soon as the Free Mercury Wonder Show for Service Men, opening next week, is out of the way. Leighter also is personal business representative for Orson Welles.

Start New Coast Legit Circuit Covering Twelve Cities

Articles of incorporation have been taken out for Pacific Coast Circuit, Inc., which will operate legit theatres in 12 cities in Washington, Oregon and California. New organization is sponsored by Richard Kline and Sam Howard, in association with J. J. Leventhal, New York stage producer.

Company will open at Tivoli Theatre in San Francisco, on Aug. 6, with 'Arsenic and Old Lace,' with cast composed of Bela Lugosi, Allison Skipworth, Minna Phillips, Dick Purcell and June Carlson. 'Old English,' starring C. Aubrey Smith, will follow as second offering. Others include 'Eve of St. Mark,' 'Native Son' and 'Private Lives.'

Plans call for 26 productions a year, each to play two weeks at each house. Producers are now working out deals with studios for loan of name players, as well as those whom they want trained.

Metro in Tinter Spree With Five Shooting

Biggest slate of Technicolor pictures in Metro's history is being set up for the coming season, with five tinters shooting or being readied for release, and five more planned to hit cameras within next few months.

Being scheduled for release are 'Salute to the Marines,' 'Thousands Cheer,' 'Best Foot Forward,' 'America' and 'Broadway Rhythm.' In process of preparation are 'Mr. Co-Ed,' 'Kismet,' 'National Velvet,' 'Quo Vadis' and 'Tale of Two Sisters.'

'Champs' For E. S. Kids

Sam Katzman and Jack Dietz, Monogram producers, have purchased Harrison Howell's yarn, 'Goldbrick Champs,' as starring vehicle for the East Side Kids.

Obituary

CHARLES PADDOCK

Captain Charles Paddock of the Marine Corps died Wednesday in the crash of a naval plane near Sitka, Alaska. Paddock was aide to Major General William P. Upshur who died with him along with four others.

A world famous sprinter, joint holder at one time of the world's record for 100 yards, Paddock was 42 years old. He competed in three Olympic Games winning the 100 meters at Antwerp in 1920 and finishing second in the 200 meters. His speed won him the nickname of 'The Fastest Human.'

At the time he enlisted in the Marines, Paddock was business manager of the Pasadena Star-News and the Long Beach Press-Telegram. He is survived by his widow and a daughter and a son.

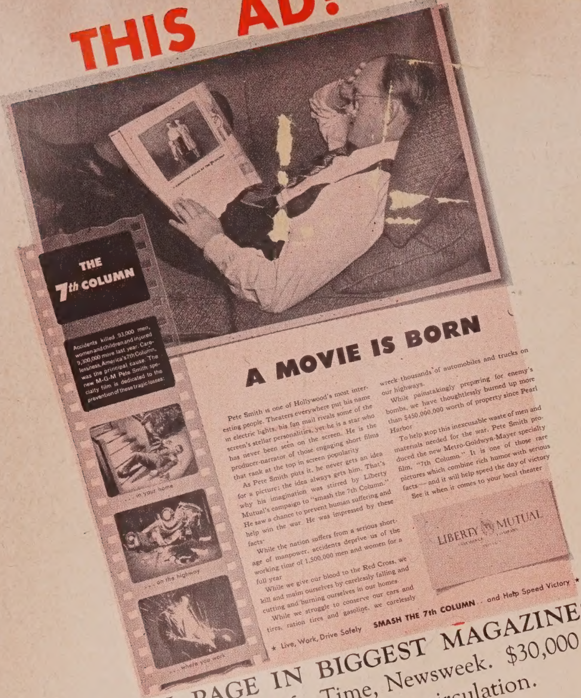
THIS AD!



THE 7th COLUMN

Accidents killed 93,000 men, women and children and injured 9,300,000 more last year. Carelessness, America's 7th Column, was the principal cause. The new M-G-M Pete Smith specialty film is dedicated to the prevention of these tragic losses:

. . . in your home

. . . on the highway

. . . where you work

A MOVIE IS BORN

Pete Smith is one of Hollywood's most interesting people. Theaters everywhere put his name in electric lights, his fan mail rivals some of the screen's stellar personalities, yet he is a star who has never been seen on the screen. He is the producer-narrator of those engaging short films that rank at the top in screen popularity.

As Pete Smith puts it, he never gets an idea for a picture; the idea always gets him. That's why his imagination was stirred by Liberty Mutual's campaign to "smash the 7th Column." He saw a chance to prevent human suffering and help win the war. He was impressed by these facts:

While the nation suffers from a serious shortage of manpower, accidents deprive us of the working time of 1,500,000 men and women for a full year.

While we give our blood to the Red Cross, we kill and maim ourselves by carelessly falling and cutting and burning ourselves in our homes.

While we struggle to conserve our cars and tires, ration tires and gasoline, we carelessly wreck thousands of automobiles and trucks on our highways.

While painstakingly preparing for enemy's bombs, we have thoughtlessly burned up more than $450,000,000 worth of property since Pearl Harbor.

To help stop this inexcusable waste of men and materials needed for the war, Pete Smith produced the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer specialty film, "7th Column." It is one of those rare pictures which combine rich humor with serious facts — and it will help speed the day of victory. See it when it comes to your local theater.

The Story behind the Story of the New M-G-M Pete Smith 7th COLUMN Movie

It was not by accident that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer made a picture on accidents; it was by Pete Smith. He is the man who makes and narrates those little pictures that make such a big hit with movie audiences. Today he ranks next to Donald Duck as the second most popular personality in the short films.

Mulcahy Publicity Top For Goetz Films

Jack Mulcahy takes over today as publicity director for William Goetz' International Pictures.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

One of the surprise events predicted for this weekend in this column came to pass.

Mussolini's reported ouster has opened the door to far-reaching repercussions. It is too early to evaluate Marshal Badoglio's intentions—but the whole situation resembles that of 1918 when sudden changes in the German government preceded the final collapse by three weeks.

Italy's influence, especially strong in Jugo-Slavia, Hungary and Roumania, lacking in the future, will become an important factor in those governments' future orientation.

Most important fact, however, is that the first partner of the Axis has cracked under the strain of Allied attack.

Anti-Trust Head Clark Has 'Confidential' Sessions Here

Murray In, Heads East With Geo. Gruskin

Bill Murray, head of Radio for William Morris agency, has been here for past few days lining up programs and deals for the new season. He heads east Friday accompanied by George Gruskin of the local office returning to visit his mother who is seriously ill.

SAG's Thomson Back

Kenneth Thomson, executive secretary of the Screen Actors Guild, returned Saturday from east after attending get together of show biz leaders in New York and conferring with various officials in Washington.

HOYT, HARMON IN TODAY SEEKING STUDIOS' SLANT

Palmer Hoyt, director of the domestic branch of OWI, is slated to arrive from the east today to confer with members of the three producer groups on successor to Lowell Mellett as head of the motion picture division of OWI. Francis Harmon, vice chairman of the War Activities Committee, and an executive with the Hays office, comes in with Hoyt.

Washington attitude is that the Hollywood producing group should be in on choice of successor to Mellett, which is one of the major reasons for Harmon's coast visit. Both Hoyt and Harmon will appear before emergency meetings of the Producers Association, Society Independent Motion Picture Producers, and

HIS WPB THEATRE ROLE NOT CZARISTIC—McMURPHEY

Washington, July 25.—George W. McMurphey, just appointed to serve with the War Production Board office of civilian requirements, in connection with the amusement field, denied flatly today that he would be in any way a 'theatre czar.' 'On the contrary,' McMurphey told Daily Variety, 'the job is in effect that of the industry's representative with the WPB. My job will be to fight amusement's side of the battle in a wide variety of fields covering materials, transportation, manpower, rationing, etc.

STATE Athletic Commission should get busy and cut out the petty chiselling stunt of fight promoters in selling two rows of ring side seats supposedly for the working press to the public. It has been a gimmick around here for years and is a great annoyance to the working press. The alleged insiders who sit in the area surrounding the press are loud, boisterous and annoying to the men who are trying to meet editions with good comprehensive stories of fights, as the case was at Gilmore Stadium Saturday night. They found themselves annoyed by the seat holders who were shouting to friends all over the place, pushing the workers around and bombarding them with questions as to whom they liked, whether there would be a knockout, and what were good odds. The fight promoters at top scale manage to apportion enough seats without the gimmick and the Athletic Commission which wants to have the fights run in a legitimate manner should put a hiatus to this practice at once.

WRITER of a Hollywood film column which gets wide syndication nationally was the recent target of a particularly caustic fan letter from a Chicago reader—with latter making certain her attitude was made known in the studios by dispatch of carbon copies to all publicity department heads. In the communication, Chicagoite questions reason for columnist's sarcastic writings of films and individuals, and states that daily offerings are merely a lot of distorted facts thrown together. In closing, suggestion is made by the writer that the columnist get a defense job and take up course of journalism in spare time. It's first disclosure that film patrons are tossing scathing criticism at the columnists for a change after stars, producers and studio heads were targets for many years of public letter-writing.

When you hear that a studio has laid $41,000,000 on the line to buy nothing but 'A' pictures, you are reminded of the rugged old days when Joe Hemingway Zilch, the lumber tycoon, broke into the front page with the news that he had bought a million dollars' worth of art.

Art, at the turn of the century, was an obsession among the rugged individualists who had slugged their various ways upward from the lumber camps, railroad yards, oil fields and copper mines. The boys saddled their bankrools in the Connoisseur Derby, trading authentic checks for almost-authentic masterpieces. One of the copper kings, who became a United States Senator, reared a Fifth Avenue mansion that became a horrible example in architecture. The good Senator had a whimsical habit of hiring and firing architects at a moment's notice. His palace started out with a simple Grecian motif and leaped swiftly from Doric into Ionic and Corinthian, but that was only the first furlong. From there it veered into Romanesque, Gothic, Tudor and New England Colonial. All it lacked was an adobe barbecue pit with revolving doors. When the good Senator passed to his just reward, his artistic treasures were bequeathed to the curators of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, who promptly drew their cultural tommy-guns and said, in effect: 'Git along, stranger. This ain't no honkytonk.' That was a gilded time when professional worm-hole borers made Grand Rapids furniture look like Louis XV, long before Red Skelton took over the throne. All of which is a round-about way to say that a million-dollar picture is not always a masterpiece.

Headin' For God's Country

(Melodrama)

Republic production. Cast: William Lundigan, Virginia Dale, Harry Davenport, Harry Shannon, Addison Richards, J. Frank Hamilton, Eddie Acuff, Wade Crosby, Skelton Knaggs, John Bliefer, Eddy Waller, Charlie Lung, Ernie Adams, Eddie Lee, James B. Leong, Anna Q. Nilsson. Associate producer, Armand Schaefer. Directed by William Morgan. Screen play, Elizabeth Meehan-Houston Branch. Original story by Houston Branch. Camera, Bud Thackery. Music director, Morton Scott. Film editor, Arthur Roberts. Art director, Russell Kimball. Set decorations, Otto Siegel. Previewed in Los Angeles, July 23, 1943. Running time: 78 MINS.

One of Republic's more pretentious pictures, using Alaska to background the first of the semi-war melodramas to be placed in that area of the Pacific conflict, 'Headin' for God's Country' stacks up as a production of merit and solid entertainment values in the program field. Not least of its selling points is the pictorial beauty of the landscape, with genuine Alaskan backgrounds clipped into other mountainous and snowclad regions. Its fighting action when the sourdoughs stand off the first attempted infiltration of the Japs is exciting, works well into the melodramatic narrative and is balanced with comedy incident off the beaten path and pleasing romantic interest.

William Lundigan and Virginia Dale ably carry the active love tale, he a mysterious prowler of the wilderness on the trail of rare metals, she in charge of the local weather station. Together they scotch the efforts of enemy agents to guide invading Japs into advance bases. Final exciting battle is preceded by spectacular dogsled chases and other action in snow. Plot focuses on Lundigan's original selfish concerns to get out of serving jail term for vagrancy by printing phoney paper in local printer's office stating that U. S. is at War before date of Jap attack and that his drunken printer pal is the winner of a sweepstake, in order that the two can raise some coin to pay Lundigan's fine. Girl is all but alienated. Townsfolk are infuriated. But Lundigan makes good when predicted war becomes a fact and he proves the military hero. Story also has considerable action involving a well-trained dog.

Armand Schaefer as producer organized his material well and got a compentent cast to enact it, giving Lundigan, Miss Dale and Harry Davenport as the printer excellent support in Harry Shannon, Addison Richards, J. Frank Hamilton, Eddie Acuff, Wade Crosby, Skelton Knaggs, John Bliefer, Eddy Waller, Charlie Lung and Anna Q. Nilsson.

William Morgan's direction is commendable. Bud Thackery uses his camera to fine advantage. Screen play by Elizabeth Meehan and Houston Branch, from latter's original story, loses some of its possible punch through over-length but maintains interest and suspense enough to satisfy generally.

Here Comes Kelly

(Comedy)

Monogram release of William T. Lackey production. Features Eddie Quillan, Joan Woodbury and Maxie Rosenbloom. Supporting cast: Armida, Sidney Miller, Mary Gordon, Ian Keith, Luis Alberni, Charles Jordan, Emmett Vogan. Directed by William Beaudine. Photography, Arthur Martinelli. Music director, Edward Kay. Film editor, Carl Pierson. Screenplay, Charles R. Marion. Original story, Jeb Schary. Previewed in Los Angeles, July 23, 1943. Running time: 64 MINS.

Dilemmas of a couple of process servers, Eddie Quillan and Sidney Miller, worked out in amusing series of escapades in a neat job of showmanship by Producer William T. Lackey, offers good light comedy support in the regular runs. It canters along with many chuckles and occasionally breaks into smartly turned lines and character stuff to cop heavy guffaws, under the skillfull direction of William Beaudine and the combined efforts of a trouping cast.

In screenplay of Charles R. Marion, from yarn by Jeb Schary, Eddie Quillan's propensity for slugging everyone he comes in contact with, sooner or later, finally lands him a process server's job. Miller is his pal. Their assignments include encounters with the temperamental dancer, Armida, protected by tough bouncers in a nitery, and Maxie Rosenbloom, a killer who toys with manslaughter every time he imbibes a litte too much. Joan Woodbury, uncertain fiancee of Quillan, has to suffer his continuous plunges into trouble, as does the lad's good mother, the completely Irish 'Mrs. Kelly,' Mary Gordon. Ian Keith is an underworld mouthpiece who tries to get fresh with his secretary, the comely but careful Miss Woodbury. Luis Alberni, Charles Jordan and Emmett Vogan have contributory parts.

Quillan's early fisticuffing tends to become a bit monotonous, but when he tangles with effusive Armida and when he and Sidney Miller find themselves unwelcome guests of the brutish Slapsy Maxie, things begin to roll and bounce. Boys finally snare the killer and come by the rewards of patience and careful behavior, if not exactly virtue.

Young Miller walks away with the performance honors, but all give good account of themselves. Technical support in all departments is okay, and picture will carry its share of the load in any of it snormal billings.

His WPB Theatre Role Not That of Czar Says McMurphey

'However, it is incorrect to say that I shall have any control over regulation of admission prices, double-features, or kindred matters. Under the OPA price regulations, these things are specifically exempt from Government control.

'What will happen will be something like this: theatres, carnivals, professional spots, night clubs, circuses or anything else in the field of amusement will go to the WPB amusements section or the War Manpower Commission to seek materials or protection for certain essential people. If they get turned down, they will then appeal to my office and, if we are convinced that what the industry has requested is essential for civilian morale or the home front, we will make representations on behalf of the industry. I don't know yet just what authority we will have to direct that anything be done. Presumably it will be on a voluntary basis between us and the other Government agencies.

'You might say we will be "consumers counsel" for the entertainment field, the trouble shooters for the industry when it gets tangled with Government regulations. This is an entirely new post set up with WPB.'

McMurphey takes over the post in about two weeks. He has been with the OPA for the past year and one-half in the service trades price control branch. Prior to that he has a background of experience in advertising, publicity, show biz and radio. Prior to joining OPA, he was with the J. Stanley Getchell Agency in Detroit. Earlier he had his own advertising agency and publicity bureau in Portland and Seattle. He also sold and wrote advertising copy for KGW and KEX, the NBC stations in Portland. At the University of Oregon and after that, he had a jazz band which made Columbia records and played engagements at such places as Balboa and Venice Pier in California. He managed dance ballrooms, and from 1929 to 1932, managed downtown theatres in Portland for the Fox West Coast chain, and did publicity for Paramount-Publix in Portland.

MAY THEATRE ADMISSIONS SLUMP, FALL UNDER 1942

Washington, July 25.—National theatre admissions in May fell off sharply from the previous month and were even below May, 1942, on basis of amusement tax figures of the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue. National tax returns for June, based on money paid into the box office during May, totaled $11,109,476, as against $14,625,614 for April, and $11,550,114 for May of 1942. About 95% of the figures cover motion pictures.

New York returns, which have been bucking the national trends in recent months, show more turnstile business in May than in April and better than in May, 1942. In New York's third district—all of Manhattan above 23rd Street—taxes were $1,787,404, contrasted with $1,622,991 for the previous month; and $1,571,323 for a year ago. Manhattan's niteries, which had been consistently good for several months, slumped in May. Federal tax receipts were $162,744, as against $227,248 a month earlier.

Independent Producers Association within the next two days.

The schedule of meetings is as follows: Monday lunch, the executive committee of the Hollywood Division, with E. J. Mannix, vice-chairman, presiding in the absence of chairman Mary C. McCall, Jr., Monday evening, the AMPP, headed by Y. Frank Freeman; at 3 p.m. on Tuesday, the IMPPA, whose president is E. W. Chadwick; and on Tuesday evening, the SIMPP, headed by Loyd Wright.

Several candidates for the Mellett post have been suggested, and these will be taken up in detail with the Producers Association for final selection and official government appointment. It is doubted that anyone from the production side of pictures will get the final selection, as the political setup within the Producers Association—with many having their own favorites—would prevent unanimous decision on candidate from the production end of the industry.

Dark horse among the names to be presented is one now in the service end of the industry, and not connected with production or studios that would tab him as being backed by any particular faction.

Washington figures to drop the problem of Mellett's successor right in the laps of the Hollywood producers, so that important liaison between the government and the studios can be most effectively accomplished. Situation being lined up puts the producers on the spot in the eyes of Washington, and their final selection is expected to function without generating friction that has cropped up from time to time during the past year.

Hoyt plans to return east Wednesday night after getting reaction of the Hollywood producer groups by that time; while Harmon sticks around until the end of the week.

Biz Gives $110,000 in Third Bond Drive For September

New York, July 25.—The film industry has set up a fund of $110,000 to promote the Third War Loan bond drive in September. Part of this amount, estimated at around $50,000 will be used for 'Caravan of Stars' tour from Sept. 9-20.

Production, Distribution and Exhibition divisions each contribute one-third of the amount.

RUSSELL BIOFF—BROWNE SUIT AWAITS DECISION

After a one-day trial, Charles T. Russell's suit against International Alliance Theatrical Stage Employes, George Browne and Willie Bioff, will be submitted to Superior Judge George Dockweiler on briefs by attorneys for both sides. Trial, held last Friday with Russell the only witness, wound up with Judge Dockweiler allowing attorneys 30 days within which to submit briefs on legal questions, following which points will then be argued before the court.

Russell, former United States deputy income tax commissioner, asserts he was hired by defendants at $10,000 a year to handle all income tax matters and that he was paid for years 1938-39-40 but no salary was forthcoming for 1941. IATSE contends that Russell was hired by Browne and Bioff, also that Browne lacked authority to make a commitment for IA and that there was no deal in writing.

Only mention of the Bioff indictment for income tax evasion in 1940 in local Federal Court was a discussion aimed at making it clear to Judge Dockweiler that income tax charge here was separate from extortion suit in New York on which both Browne and Bioff were convicted. IA attorneys Frank M. Murdock, Jr., John Call and G. Crooper came here from Philadelphia for trial and expect to return there shortly. Fred W. Mahl acted as counsel for Russell.

Union talk has it that the IA is being particularly careful about acknowledging any obligations made by Browne and Bioff as former labor czars were given criminal rap for extortion. IA tops are understood to feel that before accepting any prior deals in which two labor hoodlums figured court must define union's legal obligation to carry them out.

SEE IBEW-IATSE SHOWDOWN NEAR ON STUDIO JUICERS

Showdown over union jurisdiction on studio electrical work appeared imminent last night, as the IBEW announced 250 juicers were returning from Las Vegas defense jobs and were anxious for studio employment.

George (Curly) Davis, business manager of Local B-11 of the IB, said most of the men were experienced studio craftsmen but that they were insisting they be permitted to work on IBEW cards.

Davis recently offered to supply major companies with all the juicers necessary without the necessity of payment of overtime. Local B-11 has opened a school to train men who have not been employed in the film industry and, with those now completing defense jobs, the union claims the IBEW will be in a position to furnish 10,000 expert electricians if necessary.

Scott Milne, international vice-prexy of the IBEW, is expected here this week from San Francisco to discuss jurisdictional moves with Davis and Gene Gaillac, IB international vice-president.

Studios for months have been hard hit by a scarcity of juicers, but has contract calling for exclusive use of IATSE men except on maintenance work. Studio heads, however, recently advised the IATSE that unless it could furnish sufficient men to handle production it would have to call on the IBEW.

Rep Retains Two of Ousted Flacks as WMC Gets Case

With two members already saved from dismissal order for members of Republic publicity department, Screen Publicists Guild is centering attention on holding jobs for remaining two. Shortly after Guild protested, company announced that Margaret Waite, then on vacation, was not included in dismissal order. SPG was then notified over the weekend that Len Boyd also was being retained.

Dismissal of Boyd, Bill Porter and Ambrose Barker had already been appealed to the War Manpower Commission when Boyd was notified his services would not be terminated as of Saturday. SPG has asked the Burbank office of the U. S. Employment Service, to which the appeal was referred, to notify the studio not to make any dismissals pending hearing on the protest. It is understood such notice was given Saturday.

The USES office will call a special panel composed of labor representatives, Republic and impartial persons to hear the protest. Guild claims dismissals would violate WMC's Work Stabilization Plan, as well as SPG's basic agreement with the company.

Studio, Labor Reps to Talk 48-Hour Week Plans Tuesday

Major studio managers meet Tuesday with Pat Casey and other producer labor contacts to discuss methods of putting 48-hour week into effect Aug. 22. The film industry will experience little difficulty in carrying out the War Manpower Commission's order, since the laboratory workers, laborers and many other crafts are already on an eight-hour day.

Studios are awaiting official notice from the WMC, and in the meantime are checking various departments to determine what, if any exemptions will be asked. One studio head said yesterday that he expected few exemptions to be requested.

The longer work week also is scheduled to be discussed by the industry's Labor-Management Committee this week, unless the War Manpower Commission decides to go through with a proposal to cut the committee to five members. Difficulty, however, was expected in reducing size of group because of improbability of getting various labor and producer groups to agree on representatives. If committee reduction idea is abandoned, call will be issued today.

'Silk Hat Harry' Opens Music Box July 29

Rep Takes Rubber Off Bankroll In Bid for Top Names and Stars

Republic henceforth will vie with major studios in procuring top player, directorial and story properties and meet other majors' bids regardless of cost. This was revealed Friday when Herbert J. Yates, Republic head, addressed closing day's sales meet at studio, where West Coast Branch Managers gathered for two-day conclave.

Yates gave the go-signal to M. J. Siegel, Republic executive-producer, to meet any price competition and acquire biggest names possible from screen, stage and radio, as well as secure outstanding story material.

Grosses on trio of pictures were named by J. R. Grainger, sales manager, as indicative of progressive status of studio—'The Flying Tigers,' to reach $2,500,00; 'Ice Capades Revue,' to bring in $1,500,000; and 'Hit Parade of 1942,' currently nearing $2,000,000 mark.

Forum

July 19, 1943

Editor Daily Variety:

I wish to report a very successful personal appearance of Bill Boyd, singing star of Western Pictures, in my theatre.

Boyd is making his second Treasury Tour of the West Coast to stimulate sales of Bonds and Stamps. I booked him for a midnight show Saturday, July 17th, exhibiting one of his pix 'Tumbleweed Trail.' This was his second personal appearance in my theatre, the first having been some eighteen months ago when he opened the Treasury Tour out here for the then newly organized Western Minute Men.

After the proof shown by the box office Saturday night and the Bond and Stamp sales, I would say that Bill Boyd is the 'King of the cowboy Bond Salesmen.' My house was packed to standing room only!

The fact that this boy's popularity has doubled and re-doubled in such a short period of time proved to me how unceasing must have been his efforts on the nationwide Treasury Tours; and as an exhibitor, I want to put in a good word for Bill Boyd and compliment him on his meritorious work.

Very truly yours,

Henry Preciado

Completing screenplay for 'Twilight On the Prairie' at Universal, Clyde Bruckman remains on the lot to handle original script for 'Swingtime Johnny.' Both pictures under production wing of Warren Wilson.

George Bruce is writing screenplay for Metro's 'The Womens Army Corps,' slated for George Haight's production banner.

Chuck Riesner has completed sequel to his book for children, 'The Little Inch High People.' Psychological treatment on juvenile mind received letter of appreciation from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt who received a copy for her grandchildren.

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

Washington, July 25.—With all the excellent films coming in from the Sicilian front, War Department biggies are annoyed over the premature and 'faked' newsreel clips being shown. First shots of the preparation for the invasion did not reach theatres until last Thursday; and pictures of the actual invasion, which arrived in this country last week, are being released early this week.

Yet, less than one week after the beginning of operations in Sicily, the public was seeing newsreel shots which purported to be authentic. According to the Army, these were not studio shots; they were battle pix —but they were NOT taken on the Sicilian Coast. They were from earlier operations, somewhere else, says the Army, although the sound track commentators did not tell it that way.

AUTOGRAPH BREAK

It is seldom that a film company, launching a new picture, finds a ballyhoo band wagon coming down the street and all ready to be climbed on. MGM has just had that break with 'The Youngest Profession,' which deals with autograph collecting.

Seems that the Treasury Department, looking around for exploitation material for the sale of war bonds, dug up one Marshall (Bill) Farmer, claimant to the title of world's No. 1 autograph collector. Young Farmer — he's 18 — started through the South with an armful of autograph books for Treasury. Then MGM heard about it.

So Farmer spent last week selling bonds in the lobby of Washington's Capitol Theatre where 'Youngest Profession' has been getting its local first run. Youth is exhibiting about 200 of his 1043 autographs of the world's famous. Farmer, who even has an FDR 'Hancock' has reached draft age, so MGM may not have too long to cash in on the natural.

CIAA is planning to use a number of top film names in connection with its latest broadcast stunt to Latin America—Caravana de las Pereguntas (Caravan of Questions, to you). Broadcast, a take-off on the BBC 'Answering You,' is beamed to the Latins for a half-hour shot once a week.

It answers questions in Spanish which the South Americans ask about the United States. Among Spanish-speaking folk whom CIAA hopes to use to give the answers are: Jinx Falkenburg, Adolph Menjou, Rita Hayworth, Cesar Romero, and Maria Montez.

FLACK TO RIO

Operations of Treasury's Special Events Section have been so successful that the Brazilian Government, readying a bond campaign of its own, sent an SOS up here for advice and assistance. Through the assistance of CIAA, Treasury sent Burton Davis, its top-flight flack, to RIO to help launch the drive.

Davis, former New York newsman, is now lining up for the Brazilians a special events section which will include the bond selling services of top South American radio, stage and screen people, after the pattern used in this country.

In case you are looking around for shorts: The Administration plans a campaign in October and November to keep down the cost of living, with plenty of support from magazines and newspapers, same as it will get in September on the subject of women in war jobs. Many a studio may want to hitch a short to the tail of this ballyhoo kite. . . . Another subject due for much Federal plugging in the fall is the new U. S. Cadet Nurse Corps, which will train girls for civilian and government hospitals. Seems the shortage of nurses on the home front is approaching the dangerous point, and Uncle Sam is asking for all possible help to get recruits. . . . Third big subject for a November plug tying in with radio and publications is 'Food For Freedom Month.' Maybe you can get a short out of that. . . .

It is the Central African Film Exchange. It covers about 7000 square miles of central and western Africa, providing nightly pix entertainment for the men at the scattered bases of the Air Transport Command. CAFE books 30 theatres on five separate circuits. CAFE has a library of 350 films, with new ones coming from New York weekly. . . . Film favorites on the CAFE circuit are Dotty Lamour, Ingrid Bergman, Betty Grable, Ann Sheridan, Ida Lupino, Humphrey Bogart, Henry Fonda and Bob Hope. Red Cross is running mobile show units out of London to American camps in Britain. Shows run 75 minutes and average 17 people to the unit.

Russians are turning out a large number of scientific films on war subjects ranging from medicine and chemical warfare to such training subjects as 'Fighting Mines,' 'The Struggle Against Enemy Paratroops' and 'Driving a Tank in Broken Country Against Heavy Obstacles.' Four Soviet studios work on nothing but scientific, technical, training and popular science pix. Annual output is 120 films . . . German Theatre Chamber claims 266 stage productions played Reich theatres last winter, highest figure since before the war. Included were 209 plays and 76 operas and operettas.

SPAIN ATTENDANCE

Film attendance is climbing in Barcelona, Spain, although living costs are high and wages are low. First run theatres in the area play the required Spanish newsreel, usually a second short and a feature which is normally imported. Second run houses generally go in for double features...Shortage of tires and gasoline for private cars caused a sharp drop in the summer tourist season in Argentina (it's November, December, January and February below the equator). Mar Del Plata, big resort below Buenos Aires, felt the squeeze.

Extras Merger Meeting Called Thurs., Say 50 Reps to Gab

A merger of various film extra groups was reported under way yesterday, as Harry Mayo and other leaders announced that a meeting of 50 representatives from various extra classifications had been called for Thursday night. They declared purpose of conference was to agree on a united drive for a separate charter for extras from the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, parent body of the Screen Actors Guild.

It was stated session would be attended by representatives from the dancers, cowboys, singers, standins and all Class B membership groups. It was stated each leader would be asked to sponsor a petition for a separate autonomous charter, and that as soon as the required number of signatures were secured these would be presented to the AAAA and the American Federation of Labor.

Some of the group leaders were a bit cautious, saying they would wait until after Thursdy's meeting, but others in their group admitted they had agreed to attend. They declared the Screen Players Protective Committee's request for an election of extras had been turned down by the National Labor Relations Board and that the Essential Players demands had been pigeonholed by the Guild, making it clear the extras would not get anywhere unless they united behind a demand for a charter and temporarily sidetracked other issues until such time as they could handle their own negotiations.

tribution representatives paying him confidential visits, it is understood all concentrated on efforts to discover just how the government stands on the decree's future when it expires Nov. 20.

Government, reportedly beginning to compile information from key cities on consent decree pros and cons, has to date found complete reversal among those originally favoring decree (exhibs), while big five distributors who reluctantly signatured agreement are now its strongest proponents. Independent exhibitor organizations all over the countries already have their legal representatives preparing substitute plans for submission to the Department of Justice before Nov. 20. Exhibs are understood to favor reversion to the old form of block-booking rather than to go through another season of decree operations in its present form.

Principal beefs, according to report, are higher rental prices indies are assertedly paying by virtue of blocks-of-five, or less, selling, and failure of arbitration provision to prove equitable relief or problems, according to complaints.

Committees of officials in Independent Theatre Owners of Southern California and Arizona, who are also execs of the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, were among those holding confabs with Clark yesterday morning. No details of talk were revealed, execs reportedly preferring to keep visit and results quiet in order to avoid tipping their hand on future moves. Threesome meeting with Clark from the ITO were Jack Berman, Hugh Bruen and Robert Poole.

Another visitor with Clark yesterday was Loyd Wright, film attorney and executive of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers. Wright stated his talk with Clark did not touch on the consent decree.

Clark, who arrived here Saturday from Denver where he had attended conference of United States attorneys, will also visit with district attorneys in San Francisco, Portland and Seattle before returning to Washington headquarters. Understood he will pay another visit to Los Angeles in September. Main purpose of current trip is to look into work of war-frauds units. This department under his wing is now investigating more than 2,000 complaints.

'Hoofs' Rolls On Locash

Harry Sherman started production over the weekend of 52 of the Hopalong Cassidy series, 'Thundering Hoofs' at Lone Pine location. George Archainbaud is directing.

DOWNTOWN BIZ BIG DESPITE BEACH, STREET-CAR STRIKE

Weekend trade at de luxe film houses and legit theatres was strong, despite mob-packed beaches and heavy Sunday auto traffic as Los Angeles citizens sought to cool off. In contrast, larger neighborhood theatres found business slumping as a double blow following drastic dip in business during last Thursday's street-car strike. Ticket buyers generally, with plenty of coin despite new 20% withholding tax, seemed to prefer the ace first runs for amusement or motoring to beaches, passing up nearby nabe theatres.

Street-car strike, contrary to general outlook among theatre men, had little effect on the downtown Los Angeles first runs except in one or two instances. Los Angeles Paramount, with a double horror bill of 'Frankenstein Meets Wolf Man' and 'Captive Wild Women,' registered stronger on its Thursday opening day than it did with 'Star Spangled Rhythm.' In contrast, the Orpheum, after getting off big with Wednesday opening of Vaughn Monroe's orchestra, went into a decided slump with street-car strike, but jumped up high again Friday when public transportation returned to operation.

Plentiful coin jingling in pockets of theatre goers is having adverse effect on the outlaying situations, patronage apparently all going to top first runs. At first figured likely to benefit by gas rationing and other wartime handicaps, nabes are still finding nearby potential audiences using autos and public transportation to do their film shopping in the business sections.

'Claudia,' stage presentation at the Biltmore, was nicked slightly during the street car tieup, cutting its week's gross several hundred dollars, but 'Blackouts of 1943' at the El Capitan in Hollywood registered practically a full house Thursday night and clocked more than $14,600 through the box office for the week.

It doesn't seem to make any difference where Mussolini and his gang are and it doesn't make any difference what King Victor Emmanuel III and Marshal Badoglio are proclaiming.

Fact is, Italy is out. Either her fear of the overwhelming Allied power—or, if she ceases to fight alongside Hitler because of economic starvation.

This seems to be an excellent opportunity to start a propaganda campaign, by radio, aimed at Hungary, Austria, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania. The people of these countries will be willing to lend an ear after what happened in Italy.

FOLLOWING recently proposed one-cent theatre admission tax for Los Angeles, city of Pomona is prepping a two-cent rap against film houses in that municipality. Unusually heavy tap proposed would be almost entirely carried by Fox West Coast, which operates four of the town's five theatres, for total seating capacity of 4,413. Local theatre operators, both circuit and independent, and the Los Angeles and Hollywood Chambers of Commerce, fear theatre tax move may spread to other localities if successfully put over on this community. Already, according to reports, ordinance-making officials in other cities are eyeing the Los Angeles fight and drafting tentative measures to be ready to install similar grabs. Los Angeles exhibs now are awaiting word from Mayor Bowron's office on meeting now slated for Friday, at which compromise revenue measure will be talked as substitute for theatre bill.

BELIEVED to be the largest crowd of paid hoofers ever to pick 'em up and lay 'em down in one spot was the turnout for Kay Kyser last Saturday night in Oakland. Occasion was a benefit to raise coin for a swimming pool at naval hospital there. Count revealed that more than 20,000 plain and fancy heel-and-toe artists forked over $26,430. Oakland promoters of the project sought $15,000 for the pool but Kyser figured to top even the dance tariff by taking $50 pledges for names to be stamped in the tile blocks around the pool. That is expected to bring in another $3,500. Cost to the promoters was $298 plus scale pay for Kyser and his bandmen. It was the first paid dance Kyser has played in nearly a year, having confined his activities to military establishments.

Watch On The Rhine

Hal Wallis production for Warner Bros. Co-stars Bette Davis and Paul Lukas. Features Geraldine Fitzgerald, Lucile Watson, Beulah Bondi, George Coulouris, Donald Woods, Henry Daniell. Supporting cast: Donald Buka, Eric Roberts, Janis Wilson, Mary Young, Kurt Katch, Erwin Kalser, Robert O. Davis, Clyde Fillmore, Frank Wilson, Clarence Muse. Director, Herman Shumlin. Screenplay, Dashiell Hammett. Additional scenes and dialogue, Lillian Hellman. From stage play by Lillian Hellman. Photography, Merritt Gerstad, Hal Mohr. Editor, Rudi Fehr. Art director, Carl Jules Weyl. Sets, Julia Heon. Dialog director, Edward Blatt. Gowns, Orry-Kelly. Music, Max Steiner. Orchestral arrangements, Hugo Friedhofer. Musical director, Leo F. Forbstein. Tradeshown at studio, July 26, 1943. Running time: 116 MINS.

Of high dramatic potency and cinema import, 'Watch On the Rhine,' picturization of Lillian Hellman's play which ran 12 months on Broadway, is brought to the screen with rare understanding by producer Hal B. Wallis, and marks a distinct achievement for all in any way associated with its production.

Co-starring Bette Davis and Paul Lukas, it is Lukas who takes first honors for his brilliance of character-delivery in the dominant role in his enactment of the same part of the anti-Fascist he created on the stage—coloring his portrayal with undertones of feeling seldom displayed on the screen. Miss Davis, too, gives a splendid interpretation of an American woman who has lived so long under the whip of Nazism she reacts to it as a European and sees the danger creeping over the world through the same comprehending eyes of her husband. The film, made over a year ago but just now released, is passionately moving in its encompassment of Nazi menace, and as directed by Herman Shumlin, producer of the play on Broadway, it is a distinguished screenplay which unquestionably will score at the box-office, despite its slightly dated exterior.

Adult in its manifestations of what has gone before and what is yet to come, in point of view of the Lukas character, the story of 'Watch On the Rhine' is the story of a hunted man, a member of the German underground who has devoted his life to combatting Fascism in its every phase. A German engineer who 18 years before wed the daughter of an American Justice of the Supreme Court, his has been a life of great hardship and danger both for himself and his family, and for many years he has been subject of the Gestapo.

Story opens with Lukas and his wife and three children entering the United States early in 1941, enroute to his wife's home just outside Washington, where her mother, Lucile Watson, prepares to welcome the daughter she hasn't seen in 18 years. It is a drab little creature who comes home, to the home of great wealth she once knew, a woman greatly loved by her husband and children but who shows the effect of hiding from the Gestapo, of moving across frontiers in dead of night, of going hungry in fighting with her husband for the great cause of anti-Fascism.

Prepared to enjoy peace and security, there in the mother's home is a man, a Rumanian visitor, who believes he recognizes in Lukas the

Salute To The Marines

(Melodrama)

Metro release of a John W. Considine, Jr., production. Stars Wallace Beery. Features Fay Bainter, Reginald Owen, Ray Collins, Marilyn Maxwell, Key Luke, William Lundigan. Balance of cast: Donald Curtis, Noah Beery, Sr., Dick Curtis, Russell Gleason, Rose Hobart. Directed by S. Sylvan Simon. Screen play by George Bruce. Adaptation by Wells Root. Story by Robert D. Andrews. Photographed in Technicolor. Photography, Charles Schoenbaum and W. Howard Greene. Musical score, Lennie Hayton. Art director, Cedric Gibbons; associates, Stan Rogers and Lynden Sparhawk. Set decorations, Edwin B. Willis and Glen Barner. Special effects, Arnold Gillespie and Warren Newcombe. Film Editor, Frederick Y. Smith. Tradeshown in Los Angeles, July 26, 1943. Running time: 102 MINS.

This is the stirring tale, the very genuine if not exactly documented story, of the trials and exploits of a tough sergeant-major of U. S. Marines whose life came to violent and glorious end in the Battle of the Philippines against overwhelming Jap odds. It is also a very impressive salute to the corps whose martial song boasts 'we fight our country's battles' from the halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli, with a lot of added territory since that hymn was written.

As a picture of battle action, it has in many scenes never been excelled for fierce, explosive movement and sense of stark reality. Technicolor, magnificently used, gives it an extra charge of attraction. Comedy and melodrama have been judiciously and generously mixed, and the entertainment quotient generally is very high, under the shrewd production guidance of John W. Considine, Jr., who holds the offering to superior quality in every respect.

Picture has money values in abundance. For Wallace Beery, who wields box office pull in the top bracket of names, 'Salute' is a natural. Role of the gyrene who has put in 30 years training and sending out to battle un-numbered young fighting men is right down Beery's blustering alley. He socks the maudlin and tempestuous comedy with genuine Beery emphasis, and is not at a loss with some of the sentimental passages. Supporting group also delivers solidly, notably Fay Bainter as Beery's pacifistic wife; Ray Collins as the commanding officer of Marines; Key Luke, a Filipino fistic champ who sticks by Beery through thick and thin; Marilyn Maxwell, the sergeant-major's sympathetic and attractive daughter; Reginald Owen, an enemy agent; William Lundigan and Donald Curtis, rival lieutenants for love of the girl. In for good short parts are Noah Beery, Sr., Dick Curtis, Russell Gleason and Rose Hobart.

Director S. Sylvan Simon nurses the tale along skillfully from the colorful script by George Bruce to capture everything of entertainment value in the earlier scenes, devoted almost exclusively to broad comedy of Beery's training efforts with Filipino civilians, and in the later scenes when the Marines fight the Japs to a standstill in the early phases of the Philippine assault after the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor. Tempo mounts to hold high suspense as fighting nears its end in jungle and at a strategic bridgehead, with sen-

I Dood It

(Filmusical Comedy-Drama)

Metro production. Stars Red Skelton and Eleanor Powell. Features Richard Ainley, Patricia Dane, Sam Levene, Thurston Hall, Lena Horne, Hazel Scott, and Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra with Helen O'Connell and Bob Eberly. Supporting cast: John Hodiak, Butterfly McQueen, Marjorie Gateson, Andrew Tombes, Morris Ankrum, Charles Judels. Directed by Vincente Minnelli. Produced by Jack Cummings. Screenplay by Sig Herzig and Fred Saidy. Photography by Ray June. Film editor, Robert J. Kern. Art direction, Cedric Gibbons and Jack Martin Smith. Musical presentation, Merrill Pye. Tradeshown in L. A. July 26, 1943. Running time: 100 MINS.

When Red Skelton's expression, 'I Dood It,' hit popularity on the airlanes, it was just a matter of time before Metro would produce a picture under that title to take advantage of cumulative values. Although title has little relation to the subject matter, picture is an elaborate filmusical comedy which parades the talents of Skelton liberally between a frosting of production numbers and name talent.

'I Dood It' is slated to hit hefty box office figures. With the current strong marquee voltage of Skelton aided by Eleanor Powell, Jimmy Dorsey and his band, and brief appearances of Lena Horne and Hazel Scott—there's plenty to advertise. In addition, picture is geared to present audience requirements of light comedic and musical fare of escapist entertainment.

It cannot be said that 'I Dood It' unfolds at a steady and consistent pace. Several of the production numbers, notably the specialties of Lena Horne and Hazel Scott, are dragged in without any excuse, and it looks like this talent was injected to build up customer values only. From the story lines, there was no reason for these appearances.

Skelton is cast in the role of a pants-presser who has a penchant for using customer's garb to step out to Low-budget programmer with no names to draw and lacking punch and substance, best this uninspired melodrama can hope for is lower bracket of double bill. Then, it should be linked only with strong topper to cover for this one's weakness as screen entertainment. Cast tries valiantly, but story calls for them to display acting technique of 10 years back and even direction of B. Reaves Eason is unable to draw them up to present.

Story dwells upon murder at Navy post on waterfront, where ships are about to sail north. Crowd of entertainers arrive, among them professional knife-thrower. When a murder is committed during troupe's en-

WMC TO CLASSIFY LA NO. 1 AS CRITICAL LABOR AREA

Producer labor contact, to discuss methods of adopting longer work week and exemptions that may be filed. It is understood exemptions will be asked only for departments where the work can not be divided, such as accounting, and where the longer week would not release any workers for other industries.

William Hopkins, former studio manager and currently regional director of the WMC, arrived yesterday from San Francisco to assist in preparing move. It is understood recommendation that LA be placed in the No. 1 critical labor area will be made by the WMC area committee, will be approved by Hopkins and will then go to Washington where the official announcement will be made.

WMC officials say move will place area in a more favorable position with reference to food, housing and transportation. They were unable to say whether this would call for more favorable gas allocations, but said the Government would be certain to look with favor on requests from such areas concerning food, housing and transportation.

Las Vegas is one of few spots that will be permitted to continue recruiting labor here. It was explained the LA area is the only labor market Vegas can tap, and that because of the important war plants there ban would not be extended to them. Hundreds of Hollywood electricians, including many formerly employed in studios, have been working in plants there.

SOEG Exchangers Ask Reopening on Wage Agreement Pact

Screen Office Employes Guild has sent a letter to heads of major film exchanges here asking to reopen wage agreement with them which expires Oct. 19. Collarites said that because of delay in getting deals approved by the War Labor Board, it would be to the mutual interests of both parties to conclude negotiations as early as possible.

A meeting of the Exchanges negotiating committee will be called as soon as a reply is received to agree on the percentage boost to be requested and certain changes in working conditions. Because of the low scales now existing in the Exchange, the latter is certain to ask a higher increase than the 7% demanded for studio White Collarites.

The SOEG negotiating committee will meet this week with Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, to decide on strategy moves to get action on request that pay of 2,000 studio Collarites be boosted. It is probable Sorrell will be asked to head negotiating committee or else take over contact with producer heads whom it is claimed agreed to the increase.

administration for talent and production.

WALLIS, GAMBLE

Also reported as candidates are Hal Wallis, a producer, and Ted Gamble, now assistant to the secretary of the Treasury in charge of War Bond campaigns. Wallis has expressed a desire to go into some Government department, and at one time was considered for the Army Air Force Photographic Unit. His candidacy, however, has not the potency of either that of Thau or Gamble. Many industry leaders are of the opinion a man from Hollywood may not get the green light as easily as one who does not know so much production.

Gamble is a young exhibitor in Portland, operating two theatres there, two in Hood River, and one recently built by the Government in an area of new housing in Vanport.

Gamble, at the beginning of the War Bond campaigning was administrator in Oregon for the Treasury Department. He made such a good showing that Secretary Morgenthau drafted him into Washington as one of his assistants to work on War Bond sales. When the Treasury Department decided to revamp the War Bond sales plan and to combine the activities of two separate units handling them, Gamble was placed in charge of the plan. He is now lining up the September drive, to be conducted under auspices of the show biz as was done last year.

GAMBLE COMMENDED

Though Gamble is a dollar-a-year man, he has given his entire time to the Treasury work and has been highly commended by Secretary Morgenthau. It is hardly believed likely that Morgenthau will want to relinquish Gamble to another Government department, feeling that War Bond sales are one of the most vital functions and comes before all else.

Palmer Hoyt, director of the Domestic Branch of OWI, here with Francis Harmon, executive vice-prexy of the industry's War Activities Committee, to discuss a Mellett successor, declared:

'One of the most important posts in Government is that of the chief of the Motion Picture Bureau of the Office of War Information. The head of this department will not be named until I have had opportunity to study the problem further and to discuss it with all concerned, exhibitors, producers, distributors, newsreel and the various Government departments. Announcement will be made in Washington in about two weeks. In the meantime, an adequate program of War information on the screen goes forward through the cooperation of the War Activities Committee and OWI.'

RETAINING BELL

Hoyt indicated that Ulric Bell, now ill in New York, undoubtedly would remain here in some important OWI post.

Hoyt and Harmon were special guests yesterday at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Hollywood Division of the industry's WAC. The group, presided over by E. J. Mannix, divisional vice-chairman, in the absence of Chairman Mary C. McCall, Jr., endorsed the new program of war information film proposed at a recent meeting in New York of the Theatres Division and the National Co-ordinating Committee.

The proposal WAC will present to OWI calls for 26 full length short subjects to be played in 16,000 theatres in 16 to 20 weeks after release, and 26 War Information Film Bulletins, not to exceed 250 feet each. These will travel with the newsreels to all pledged theatres using newsreels and will be forwarded separately to all other pledged houses in an effort to blanket the country within four to six weeks.

In discussing the program, Hoyt said:

'This is a lightning war and the importance and timely communication by Government with the people of vital war messages, cannot be overstressed. I am particularly impressed with the plans of the WAC to speed up this necessary phase of our war effort. I want to thank the entire industry for its help and cooperation in the past and to express appreciation for the all-out pledges for the future.'

MAKE SIX SHORTS

Six full length short subjects were completed by Lowell Mellett's OWI film producing unit before Congress eliminated domestic film production. Four of these six have already been reviewed and accepted for WAC distribution and release by the Program Committee, headed by R. B. Walby of Atlanta. These form the nucleus of the new program, to which will be added four full length short subjects produced by the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, two more produced respectively by the National War Fund and the Red Cross and 14 to be made by various film producers, with 677 prints of all the films in the group of 26 furnished gratis to the theatres.

Production of the 250-foot bulletins will be allocated by WAC to various producers, including the newsreels. The latter are expected to make at least two each. Harmon said while here this week he expected to arrange for at least two of these bulletins to be made quickly in connection with the Third War Loan Campaign in September.

Industry participation in the War Loan Drive was discussed at yesterday's meeting. It also will be taken up by the Hollywood Victory Committee on Thursday when Kenneth Thomson will submit requests from the Treasury officials. Harmon will attend Thursday's session to explain how WAC will handle its cooperation and to learn from HVC how the New York WAC headquarters can assist most effectively Hollywood talent in the joint drive.

Those attending yesterday's meeting included Mannix, Hoyt, Harmon, Y. Frank Freeman, Walter Wanger, Adrian McCalman, Mark Sandrich, Trem Carr, Kenneth Thomson, George Brown, Fred W. Beetson, Loyd Wright and Talbot Jennings. Hoyt and Harmon attended a meeting of the Producers Association last night to discuss the Mellett successor and are slated to confer today with representatives of the Independent Motion Picture Producers Association and the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers.

F-WC Remodels Frisco Alcazar, De Luxe Filmer Planned

San Francisco, July 26. — Fox West Coast has started a $20,000 remodeling job on the Alcazar theatre to transform it into a deluxe film house to accommodate road show attractions. F-WC, which took over lease on the theatre from Sid Grauman, is installing a projection room and sound equipment, remodeling the lobby and marquee, laying new carpet and redecorating.

Alcazar is a pioneer legit house and when F-WC routes 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' into theatre as the first road show attraction, it will be the only motion picture first run spot off the Market Street main stem. It is hoped that 'Bell' may run as long as six months in the new house.

Grauman, who left here for Los Angeles Friday, will hold plans for any stage productions here in abeyance while F-WC is using the Alcazar.

Father Chisolm Role To Gregory Peck

After a nine months search for actor to play role of Father Chisholm in 20th-Fox's 'Keys of the Kingdom,' Gregory Peck was selected by studio. Peck, unknown to movie audiences, has a following in the theatre, having played opposite Katharine Cornell, Geraldine Fitzgerald and Martha Scott. He is currently working in RKO's 'Revenge' for Casey Robinson, who will share his contract with 20th-Fox.

Watch On The Rhine

head of the German underground. He attempts to sell to the Nazi embassy what he thinks he knows, is told that he may name his own price if his man can be seized on European soil. When, shortly after Lukas' arrival, he decides to return to Germany to free his friend and leader of the underground, who has been arrested, the Rumanian sees his chance and attempts to make a bargain with Lukas not to sell out to the Nazis if Lukas pays him $10,000. Lukas kills him, starts for Germany with the promise of his wife's family to give him a two-day start before notifying the authorities.

In his role of Kurt Muller, Lukas offers a memorable performance, a portrayal of great repression by odds the finest he has ever done. He commands attention in every scene, the power of his character magnificent to watch. Miss Davis seconds him in the role of his wife, contributing one of her most sincere and convincing impersonations. The picture is a dramatic triumph for both, and they find top support in a brilliant cast headed by Lucile Watson, George Coulouris, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Donald Woods and Beulah Bondi. Particularly outstanding are Miss Watson, as the mother, and Coulouris as the Rumanian intent upon returning to Europe. Donald Buka and Eric Roberts, playing two of Miss Davis' children, are from the original stage production, each turning in most commendable screen interpretations, and others in the cast are entirely in keeping with the story.

Herman Shumlin directed with the sure hand that came of long experience with the play, and he did not lose a bet. Top production values were accorded film by Hal B. Wallis, his line-up of technical assistance in such able hands as Dashiell Hammett, screenplay; Merritt Gerstad and Hal Mohr, photography; Carl Jules Weyl, art direction; Julia Heron, sets; Max Steiner, music; Orry-Kelly, gowns; Rudi Fehr, editor. Other departments were of equal standard.

Only drawback to production as previewed was the epilogue, which should be eliminated and serves as anti-climax. Story properly ends with Lukas leaving, and here final fadeout should appear.

Murder On The Waterfront

tertainment, knife-thrower is accused when he is found to be attempting escape from enclosure. Naval Intelligence is brought in, there are further attempts at murder, and guilty party finally is caught, turning out to be mate of ship on verge of departure.

Picture brings no credit to company producing it, neither cast, director nor producer having fair opportunity to show cut of their cloth. Too many melodramatics are indulged in, and Navy none too intelligently pictured. William B. Davidson, Don Costello, Joan Winfield, Warren Douglas, James Flavin, Ruth Ford, John Loder and Bill Kennedy top cast. Production credits go to Harry Neumann, for up-to-standard photography; Stanley Fleischer's art direction and Casey Roberts' sets.

Salute To The Marines

sational camera shots of bombing and blasting of a canyon bridge. Robert D. Andrews wrote the original, Wells Root made the adaptation.

Charles Schoenbaum and W. Howard Greene score with the cameras for one of the best credits of the season.

Technicians who handled the demolition chores do finest job of its kind seen in pictures. Technicolor give explosions, bombings an added horrific quality. Here also Arnold Gillespie and Warren Newcombe rate honorable mention for special effects.

U. S. Marines put official imprint on the picture by appearing in corps for opening parades, maneuvers and training scenes, and at the conclusion for a ceremony of field decoration, linked up with the drama enacted by Beery and the cast of performers. Device for telling the film tale is statement by the commanding officer to rookie Marines on parade ground that he will relate the saga of a real, though unsung leatherneck. Thus the story starts, in retrospect. Many of film episodes are based on real incidents Picture also salutes Filipino fighters with U. S. forces, and some of best comedy as well as fierce action with bolos, is done by the Filipino actors.

I Dood It

theatres and night spots. Eleanor Powell and Richard Ainley headline a musical show and are engaged, but Patricia Dane steps in to make pitches to Ainley, and Miss Powell turns to the enamoured Skelton to marry for spite. It's a marriage of convenience for the girl, but Skelton's serious. He's exposed finally as a pants-presser, with separation ensuing. Skelton, in attempting to gain entrance backstage for possible reconciliation is inducted as understudy by John Hodiak, enemy spy who is boring through warehouse next to the theatre to blow up lend-lease munitions. Naturally Skelton uncovers the plot in rousing finish for proper reconciliation with Miss Powell.

Dorsey and his band carry the opening footage to catch immediate attention of the jive customers, and a nifty western setting dance specialty by Miss Powell which turns out to be decidedly novel and expertly staged. Dorsey is on again later for delivery of Don Raye-Gene De Paul tune, 'Star Eyes,' with his vocal team of Helen O'Connell and Bob Eberly.

Highlight comedy routines, however, are two slapstickers broadly and effectively handled by Skelton and Miss Powell. Pair wow 'em with a comedy dance, and later go into slickly-paced routine of Skelton endeavoring to put the limp and passed-out Miss Powell to bed. Producer Jack Cummings was smart in digging back to an old Buster Keaton starrer for the idea, as it's so good here that the customers will laugh without digging back in their memories for the original—which also was a high spot.

Skelton romps merrily through the picture to maintain good pace overall, despite the pauses for production numbers and extended running time. Comedian delivers easily-understood comedy throughout, and is ably assisted by the straight role and dancing turned in by Miss Powell. Strong support in the rather slender story is provided by Ainley, Miss Dane, Sam Levene, Thurston Hall, John Hodiak and Butterfly McQueen. Piano specialty by Hazel Scott and delivery of 'Jericho' by Lena Horne are delivered expertly by both performers, but there's little excuse for their appearances here.

Production is mounted on elaborate scale, with plenty of coin invested in the various numbers. Direction by Vincente Minnelli maintains good pace, despite the slowdowns through display of poorly-spotted production numbers. Photography by Ray June is of high standard.

See Settlement Near In Overtime Wage Suit for Extras

That a settlement is near in the Screen Actors Guild suit to collect overtime wages at time and one-half for approximately 5,000 extras was indicated yesterday when Federal Judge Leon R. Yankwich continued case until Aug. 9. Continuance was requested by attorneys for the Guild and the 12 defendant companies through a stipulation that stated a settlement was imminent.

SAG is seeking to collect coin for players who were employed in excess of eight hours after passage of the Wage-Hour Act. Suit states that approximately 5,000 extras were affected, of which 1,113 were employed by Warners. Other companies listed in the complaint are Edward Small, Selznick, Hal Roach, Samuel Goldwyn, Walter Wanger, Paramount, Republic, RKO, Loew's, Columbia, Universal and 20th-Fox.

WMC 'Non-Deferable List' No. 2 Ready For Issuance

Washington, July 26.—The second 'non-deferrable list' of the War Manpower Commission, shelved for months is once again alive — with all the headache it means to show biz. WMC hasn't decided definitely to issue list which includes a number of positions in entertainment world. First list, out last year, clipped niteries but not show business so much. 'Non-deferables' are subject to draft even if they are fathers, if in unessential work.

Meantime WMC plans to issue new critical occupation list about mid-August. As this list stands today it contains no film industry jobs and only one or two in radio. Present film and radio jobs on the WMC, 'essential' list will remain as is. However, the little critical list will be the real one for the guidance of draft boards.

Rogers to Seattle on WAVES Anniversary

Ginger Rogers checks out today to appear as guest of honor at a celebration of the first anniversary of the WAVES at Seattle on July 30. She also will appear at a bond rally at the Bremerton Navy Yard and will visit the Navy hospital at Bremerton, it was stated by the Hollywood Victory Committee.

In the radio division of HVC, Jane Wyatt, Jean Parker, Charles Starrett, Doug Taylor, the Sons of the Pioneers, Deanna Durbin, Oscar Levant, John Nesbit and Walter Huston have been lined up for overseas transcriptions.

Take Craig SAG Appeal Under Advisement

Screen Actors Guild announced last night that request of Hal Craig, film bit player, that his one-year suspension be rescinded, had been taken under advisement by the board of directors. Announcement was made after Alexander H. Schullman, Craig's attorney, had appeared before board to argue triple motion, that judgment be vacated or that player be granted a new trial or an appeal to the Class B membership.

Exhib Poll Switching Quimby To Slapstick

Following recent national theatre survey conducted by Fred Quimby, executive producer of Metro cartoon shorts, latter henceforth will concentrate on slapstick brand of comedy in all subjects. Checkup by exhibs for Metro disclosed that the customers expressed desire for all-out slapstick in the cartoons, and Quimby and his staff are swinging over to that pattern.

CLOSE OPENING DATES 'BELL', 'TITA' MAY CRAMP BIG ADS

Newsprint reduction may have an adverse effect on extensive campaigns being lined up by both Warners and Paramount for local premieres and runs of Irving Berlin's 'This Is the Army' and 'For Whom the Bell Tolls.' Since both companies will be launching exploitation hypo at the same time, daily newspapers, faced with government order to conserve space, may have to sharply curtail lineage on the pictures in order to give each equal space.

While Paramount has still to set definite date for preem at the Carthay Circle of 'Bell,' company is talking of possibly Aug. 18, night after Warners brings in 'Army' at the Hollywood, Downtown and Wiltern theatres. Newspaper pressure would be relieved somewhat if Paramount goes for a later date and there is still a chance opening will be moved back to Sept. 1.

Both companies are giving large cash outlay to special premieres, with Warners shooting for a 70-theatre opening on the Coast for Aug. 17, all at advanced admissions for the one night before houses revert to regular runs. Triple-theatre preem locally for 'Army' will be scaled from $11 down to $1.10, and same figures are set for opening at the 5,000-seat Fox theatre in San Francisco as well as other spots. Radio, billboards and as much newspaper space as can be had will be used for plugging film and fact that proceeds go to Army Emergency Relief.

Through tieup of the Fox West Coast Carthay Circle for the 'Bell' premiere and reserved seat run, Paramount will gain use of some 45 F-WC screens for trailer plugs on its picture, starting around Aug. 1. Such a trailer plug will reach practically every film goer in this section. In addition full use of bill boards, radio, etc., will be made by company to give prominence to run.

Robert Gillham, advertising-publicity chief here from New York for local campaign, Murphy McHenry, from the studio publicity department, Ralph Ravenscroft, west coast exploiteer for Paramount, and others gathered at Fox West Coast yesterday for ad-exploitation huddles with Seymour Peiser and staff on the Carthay preem.

ALL ESCAPIST FARE HERE HEADS HOUSES TO TOP BIZ

Los Angeles first run theatres have gone completely escapist this week, with no top bracket war film screening in any of the 16 de luxers and moveovers. Deluge of romance, filmusicals and horror will pay off big for the week, theatres heading towards estimated $220,000, or some $20,000 better than last week's box office take.

Universal, dominating the bills at the two Paramount day-daters, and at the Hillstreet and Pantages, will cop approximately $88,000 in the four houses. Pan-Hillstreet, with Universal's Deanna Durbin starrer, 'Hers to Hold,' is reaching for sock $41,000. At the Los Angeles and Hollywood Paramounts, U's twin horror epics, 'Frankenstein Meets Wolf Man' and 'Captive Wild Woman,' will grab tremendous $47,000 estimate.

'Du Barry Was a Lady,' heading bill at Fox West Coast's Carthay Circle, Grauman's Chinese, Loew's State and Ritz, will come up with nifty $45,800 judging strong weekend business. 'The Constant Nymph,' at Warners Hollywood, Downtown and Wiltern is still in stride for a second week, climbing towards hefty $43,000 after hitting approximately $54,000 the first week.

'Stage Door Canteen,' in a second week at the Four Star, will pay off close to $4,800 and holds. Hawaii winds up final five days of a four-week run on 'Crime Doctor' and 'It's a Great Life' with likely $2,500. 'Lady of Burlesque,' doing moveover week at the United Artists and Wilshire has a nice $15,500 in sight.

Heat made little difference to weekend ticket buyers, practically all theatres, both film and legit, reporting heavy trade as the public sought both entertainment and air-conditioned 72-74 degrees maintained in most picture houses.

'TITA' NY Preem Sells Out Over Weekend

New York, July 26.—Warners reports Hollywood theatre was completely sold out over the weekend for premiere of Irving Berlin's 'This Is the Army' Wednesday night. With entire proceeds going to Army Emergency Relief, house is scaled for the single performance at $55 for loges; $11 for orchestra, and $7.70, $5.50 and $2.20 for the balcony.

Warners has utilized Broadway's two largest signs, the display at the north end of Longacre Square and the block-long Wrigley sign across from the Hotel Astor to plug picture, plus circularizing 1,500 advertising agencies, merchants, etc., with sales campaign brochures. Two-hundred and fifty soldiers, with searchlights and mounted guns will establish post around the Hollywood theatre to police and lend atmosphere.

See Okay Settlement On Priorities for Studios Here

Washington, July 26.—A satisfactory settlement all around on priority ratings on studio materials should be worked out here in a day or two. Harold Hopper, just back from the coast, took up this problem this afternoon with Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman. While in Hollywood, Hopper was given a complete picture of the situation in which studios have been given different priorities for the same construction materials for sets. Industry asked for equal priorities for everybody.

Confusion existing in WPB is believed due to the fact that half of the construction priorities unit is located in Washington and the remainder in New York, with the two branches acting differently in identical cases.

Set All Out Bally For Rep's 'Oklahoma'

Republic plans biggest advertising and publicity campaign in company's history for 'In Old Oklahoma,' adapted from Thomson Burtis' 'War of the Wildcats,' which Albert S. Rogell is directing.

Prior to film's release Oct. 1, company will buy time on national radio hookup, plug picture with full 24-sheets for each of its 35 exchanges and take out newspaper advertising for theatres as big as those houses ever carried for a picture in past.

Newsreelers Back From Battle Zones

Washington, July 26.—Two former newsreel cameramen are back here from the fighting fronts. Langdon Senica, Movietone man in from Hawaii, is awaiting reassignment to the Southwest Pacific. Lt. James Bray, formerly with Movietone and Pathe is temporarily assigned here to train combat cameramen.

We doff our hats to Mr. Wanger...

Within a year, Walter Wanger has given to this industry, two significant boxoffice attractions in "Eagle Squadron" and "Arabian Nights."

Mr. Wanger has now completed "We've Never Been Licked," the first picture of America's youth in uniform, inspired by the fighting sons of Texas A & M.

We believe that "We've Never Been Licked" will not only be an impressive successor to "Eagle Squadron" and "Arabian Nights," but that in importance and boxoffice quality it will even surpass these outstanding pictures.

There has been no concrete evidence for a change in Italy's position.

In spite of all wishful thinking and enthusiastic predictions Nazi reinforcements are still being flown to Sicily from Italian bases and the fighting continues.

It is interesting to note that the accusations against the Fascist regime were 'inefficiencies in conduct of the war and domestic administration.'

We do not know at present whether the new government wants no part and parcel of Fascism or whether it just wants to remedy these inefficiencies.

President Roosevelt's radio talk tonight, following the outspoken dissertation by Prime Minister Churchill may shed required light on the situation.

A and C Plan Fever Fund Tour

Victim of the scourge which mainly afflicts children, Lou Costello is going campaigning this fall, in the way he knows best, for the Rheumatic Fever Foundation. He has induced Universal to reissue 'Buck Privates,' the picture that made he and his partner, Bud Abbott, overnight b. o. sensations. They will make personal appearances with the film at openings in key cities around the country and turn over to the fund the monies received as their share of the receipts. Universal also will make a contribution. While on tour they'll make other appearances to raise money for the Foundation.

McGraw, Noble Blue Network Deal Hot, Offer $7,000,000

New York, July 27.—Sale of the Blue network to a partnership consisting of James McGraw of the publishing house of McGraw and Hill, and Edward J. Noble of Lifesavers, Inc., seemed close to the consummation point last Tuesday. Pair offered $7,000,000 with Radio Corporation asking $10,000,000. Negotiations reached a point of maximum anteing as far as prospective buyers are concerned. Estimated that capital investment for the Blue will run as high as $10,000,000, not only for studios but for television and frequency modulation after the war.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

ITALIAN versions of U. S. films are being rushed by producers, following fall of Mussolini and conquest of most of Sicily. This action is a belated following of advice of Bob Riskin of OWI, who has been urging for some time that just such steps be taken. But manpower shortage and laboratory troubles, however, held up the conversion of the pix. There is urgent need for American films in Sicily now. Occupation government is anxious to keep theatres there open, and needs Allied pictures at once to substitute for the Axis propaganda screenings. OWI is selecting pictures emphasizing the American way of life for early shipment. A big response is expected for our films in Sicily and Italy, too, when the time comes, just as in North Africa. The popularity of our pix on the south shore of the Mediterranean was indicated by the definition of a house manager in North Africa as: 'The guy who gets up early as he can each morning opens the door, then ducks to keep from being trampled.' Concerning Italy, Premier Badoglio is remembered as extremely friendly by foreign execs of American film companies. But so, too, was Mussolini—before he teamed with Hitler.

Baseball's greatest showman, Babe Ruth, returned for a few minutes in an exhibition game and struck out, thereby gaining more public acclaim than any of the younger athletes who hoisted a hit over a fence. The Babe played a double role in baseball, as a hitter and an actor. He was the only ball player capable of dramatizing a third strike. No film star ever could do that.

When a press agent, Lou Victor, for instance, comes to tell you that in his hours of leisure from Lockheed he has discovered a client who can speak eight languages, you are reminded that all actresses who speak fluently in eight languages speak them all in the same way, including Russian, Italian, French, Spanish and Portuguese, particularly American. About ten years ago Benito Mussolini put on a world-wide broadcast, speaking to America in the American language, which he had learned in ten easy lessons from a linguist who was hanging around Italy at the time. To the listeners in Rome, Naples and Milan, the Doochay's speech was a masterpiece of American lingo, but nobody in this country could understand it until the translation arrived. The gist of it was that the Mediterranian Sea had become Benito's private fish pool and that the Suez Canal was about to be detached from the British Empire by a Caesarian operation. As time went by Benito's international oration sounded like static, even in Italy. The general idea is that you can't get away with more than one language in drama or diplomacy. Meaning, of course, the top roles in drama or diplomacy. Any foreigner can play a foreign role in an American picture and it all sounds the same to the folks in Dubuque whether a Russian is playing a Spaniard or a Spaniard is playing a Turk or a Turk is playing a Portuguese. But nobody can play a Texas cowboy unless he is a native of Texas or adjacent territory, such as Flatbush.

Someone To Remember

(Drama)

'Someone to Remember' is a human interest drama of unusual trend—tending towards the artistic side for critical attention rather than box office power. Lacking any marquee voltage in cast names, picture will have to depend on slick exploitation on its mother theme to carry it through in other than dual supporting spots in the family houses.

Mabel Paige is a kindly old lady living in an antiquated apartment house sold to a university for a men's dormitory. She refuses to move out with other guests, holding lifetime lease on her quarters, and forcing the school to move the students in regardless. She's awaiting eventual return of her son, who disappeared 20 odd years before, and when freshman John Craven shows up with same name as her son, she presumes he's actually her real grandson. Protecting him, and steering him through romantic episodes with Dorothy Morris—Miss Paige becomes a general fairy godmother to everyone concerned. Saving Craven from flunking out of school, and maneuvering his marriage to the girl, the old lady looks forward to meeting her own son on prospective visit. But excitement of arrival causes her death prior to his arrival, which prevents disillusionment—as her real son had been dead for many years.

Dwelling on characterizations and incidents, picture unfolds at a decidedly slow pace, but director Robert Siodmak generates several strongly dramatic points that holds it together in good fashion. Overall, and despite its slow movement, film has a strong pull on the kindly and lovable mother angle that cannot be overlooked on audiences in the family bookings.

Miss Paige is well cast as the old lady, with Craven and Miss Morris teaming neatly as the two romancers. Most prominent in support are: Charles Dingle, Harry Shannon, and Tom Seidel—all okay in respective roles.

INDIE GUILDS WANT CENTRAL WMC OFFICE FOR COMPLAINTS

The Advisory Council representing indepndent studio guilds yesterday instructed its delegate to the industry's Labor-Management Committee to seek committee action toward having the War Manpower Commission designate a central office to handle complaints arising between management and labor. It was pointed out that five different offices of the United States Employment Service, under WMC supervision, now handle such cases, often making it necessary for film workers to travel clear across the country.

Controversy between the Screen Publicists Guild and Republic over discharge of two members of the studio publicity department is now under submission to the Burbank office of the USES on the question of jurisdiction. When the complaint was called yesterday, the USES manager, as well as the head of the arbitration panel, raised the question of whether the office had authority to hear the case.

The Guild contends the discharges violated the WMC Work Stabilization Plan, while the studio insists union contract with the SPG takes preference over the WMC Plan. The Guild admits this would be true if the case was covered by the Guild's contract, but insists such is not the case.

The Advisory Council delegate to the WMC's advisory Labor-Management Committee in the picture industry is Mary C. McCall, Jr. She is expected to take up the question of a central office when the committee meets the latter part of this week or the first part of next week to discuss the 48-hour week. The Council represents such groups as the Screen Writers Guild, Screen Publicists Guild, Screen Readers Guild, etc.

Talk Extending MPRF Shows Facilities For Residents

Plans to extend entertainment facilities for residents of the Motion Picture Relief Fund's Country House are being discussed by Fund executives, according to Prexy Jean Hersholt. Executive committee will meet shortly with residents to get their ideas on further entertainment possibilities. Guests already have a showing of late pictures every Friday night and vaudeville shows are presented each Sunday.

A world globe mounted on a mahogany stand has been presented to the Country House by Mrs. Emanuel Turner in memory of her actor husband. She felt it would enable residents to keep a close check on War developments.

Loew's Common Earns $5.67 Per Share

New York, July 27.—Loew's Incorporated today reported a net profit of $9,453,838 or $5.67 per share on common stock for the first 40 weeks in 1943, ending June 10.

Unions to Block Any Studio 48-Hr Week Blanket Exemption Bid

A drive to block any request by Producers to the War Manpower Commission for blanket exemptions from the mandatory 48-hour week was launched by film labor unions yesterday, with the Screen Office Employes Guild filing an advance objection with the Wartime work week section of WMC. It is understood action was taken by Guilders after their leaders had conferred with Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions.

Sorrell admitted yesterday that Conference leaders had been discussing question of exemptions and that group meeting to take action on the matter probably would be called shortly. He said he thought studios should go slow on the question of exemptions and that everybody affected should be consulted before exemption claims are filed. Sorrell declared the industry might easily receive adverse publicity if some congressman or other official jumped on the idea the picture business was tying up manpower through exemption claims.

Secretary Bernard Lusher said the Collarites had been advised by the WMC they should register an advance objection if they wanted to be sure to head off any blanket exemption, if one was requested. Lusher said members of the SOEG were anxious to cooperate with the war effort and the WMC, that they felt certain exemptions would be advisable in certain clerical departments of the studios, but that the Guild did not want to be suddenly hit by a blanket exemption.

Film Technicians Local 683, which recently was granted a 48-hour week for its members, also was keeping a close check on developments, as were other studio groups. Studio Utility Employes Local 724 is now on longer week, but is not disturbed over possibility of an exemption since organization is not able to currently fill all calls for studios.

Producers and studio heads, in the meantime, were huddling on the question of exemptions yesterday and are scheduled to meet again today. It is understood a majority of the major company heads favor adopting a industry-wide policy instead of each studio trying to work out the situation on an individual basis.

Smith Subs For Lawton

Larry Smith is taking over Fleetwood Lawton's sponsored newscasts on NBC while the latter prowls the war fronts accredited to the network. Smith continues his sustaining commentary series on the chain, which will keep him before the microphone 10 times a week. Lawton takes his six-week leave today.

Hersholt To Frisco

Jean Hersholt, prexy of Nat'l American-Denmark Assn. (Free Denmark), leaves tonight for week's jaunt in North to confer with prominent Danish Americans on NADA's efforts toward victory for the United Nations and independence for Denmark.

Lahr Whiteman Guest

Bert Lahr and the Modernaires share guest billing on Sunday's broadcast of 'Paul Whiteman Presents.' Following week's booking goes to Burns and Allen and possibly Jimmy Dorsey.

Union Members' Bond Buys Going Up

An appropriation of $10,000 for purchase of War Bonds in the Cruiser Los Angeles drive has been voted by members of Studio Utility Employes Local 724. At the same time, Business Representative L. C. Helm disclosed that Local 724 has developed into the second or third largest union in the studios, with a membership of approximately 1,900.

Local 11, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, has purchased $2,000 worth of War Bonds to be applied toward the cruiser according to announcement yesterday by Motion Picture Committee for Hollywood, War Savings Staff, Treasury Department. George H. Davis, local's business manager, made the buy.

Employes at Walt Disney studio have also purchased $6,000 in bonds to apply towards July Los Angeles cruiser campaign.

Seattle Symph. Opens 40th Year In Sept.

Seattle, July 27.—The Seattle Symphony will open its fortieth year in September when Sir Thomas Beecham returns to conduct eight concerts during September, October and November. Guest conductors will include Howard Barlow, replacing Vladimir Bakaleinikoff, replacing originally scheduled for the December spot; and Pierre Monteux, who takes over in January.

Marjorie Lawrence, Metropolitan Opera soprano, will be the added attraction for the fourth concert in November.

Gosch NY's On Finance For Indie Film

Martin Gosch leaves next week for New York to discuss financing for an independent picture production of a story property he owns, 'Man of the Year.' While east he'll also confer with William Esty radio execs on the fall resumption of Abbott and Costello show for Camels, which he again produces. Gosch recently withdrew from film production to devote full time to preparations for the A & C airpiece.

Cowboy In 'Brazil'

'Brazil,' forthcoming Republic musical written by Richard English, will have Roy Rogers in the cast doing special number titled 'A Salute to Pan-America.' Decision to use Rogers in film is result of reports from Morris Goodman, Republic foreign sales manager at Rio de Janeiro, concerning film cowpoke's draw in South America. Albert S. Rogell will direct picture.

U Uses 385 Extras

Total of 385 extras and bit players were used yesterday at Universal in six pictures. 'Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves' drew 180; 'Crazy House' used 140, while remainder were divided between 'His Butler's Sister,' 'The Professor Goes Wild' and 'Man of the Family.'

Rep Schedules Six in August, First is Radio Mystery

Republic has scheduled six pictures to go into production during August, starting off with 'Mystery Broadcast,' George Sherman producing and directing and Frank Albertson and Ruth Terry in the leads, on Aug. 6.

Next to go will be 'Mojave Firebrand,' Wild Bill Elliott western, rolling Aug. 17. Don (Red) Barry gets underway in 'California Joe' on Aug. 19 and the next day a new untitled Roy Rogers special gets the gun.

Rolling on Aug. 30 will be 'The Fighting Seabees,' Albert J. Cohen production starring John Wayne. Same day 'Whispering Footsteps,' another George Sherman production, will be given the go signal.

'Blue Alert' First At Seattle's Tryout

Seattle, July 27. — Seattle's new Tryout Theatre will open August 2 with 'Blue Alert' by George Savage and Zoe Schiller.

Formed by twenty-three men and women, the new theatre has four objectives: to promote interest in the legitimate theatre through giving trial porductions to unproduced plays; aid playwrights by providing a laboratory where their work may be produced before it is sold; afford a creative outlet to local actors, directors and designers; and to provide a theatre writers in the service can come back to.

Navy Helping 20th Cast 'The Sullivans'

20th-Fox has enlisted services of U. S. Navy in casting five young men to play title roles in 'The Sullivans.' Likely prospects among men in Marine Corps and Navy who have been honorably discharged are to be considered.

Studio yesterday set Percy Ikerd as assistant director on picture.

Errol's Starring Stint

Leon Errol will do one of the starring parts in RKO's 'Higher and Higher,' following which he does 'Mr. and Mrs. America.'

Seattle Chatter

John Evans, Jr., formerly director of publicity and promotion at KOMO-KJR, is now commercial manager of KEVR, having joined his former colleague, Al Schuss, who is general manager of KEVR.

Jeanne Pierce is now in charge of ad sales at Warners, succeeding Nancy Stett.

Verda Clarno, bookkeeper at the Warner exchange for several years, has resigned and has been replaced by Dee Gorman.

Julie Ballew, songstress and emcee, is now in her 15th week at Mike Lyons' Show Box.

'Ice-Capades of 1943' opens tomorrow at the Civic Ice Arena for a run of thirteen days.

Seattle will have two circuses this week, with the Arthur Bros. aggregation opening today for a seven day run and the Russell Bros. 3-rings setting up Thursday for a stay of eleven days.

Indict Horsley, Three Other LA Filmers On Postal Rap

Philadelphia, July 27.—William H. Horsley, pioneer film producer currently head of Associated Hollywood Films, Inc., was among the more than a dozen persons indicted here today by Federal Grand Jury on charges presented by postal inspectors. Three other Hollywoodites; O. B. Hertwig of Candid Cinema Corporation; Robert I. Lee, of Pacific-Cine Films, Inc.; and T. H. Emmett, laboratory technician for Horsley; were also indicted.

It is charged that Horsley and the group under indictment conspired to ship obscene films through the mails and via express in interstate commerce. Postal inspectors called the ring the largest in the history of postal department investigations, and stated the obscene films had been sold in virtually all of the 48 states.

Indictments were brought here as headquarters for shipping the film (mainly 8 and 16 mm. reels) to purchasers. Postal officials stated that Horsley was source of supply for the films, which were sold widely by Edah's Amusement Co., operated by John H. and Olga Shade.

Horsley, Emmett, Hertwig, and Lee were arrested yesterday by deputy United States marshals George Rossini and William S. Sweeney; and held under $1,000 bond each by United States Commissioner David B. Head, pending removal hearing next Tuesday. Horsley and the others denied the charges.

Allen Writer Hiken On Loanout To Benny

Nat Hiken, ace gagwriter with Fred Allen, shifts to Jack Benny in the fall on a loanout basis. If and when Allen resumes on the air Hiken will be recalled. Hiken, who has developed into one of radio's top comedy writers, received his early schooling at KFWB and served his apprenticeship on 'Grouch Club,' which moved up from local sustaining to network sponsorship.

SAG Moves Extras Autonomy Sets Class B Meet Sept. 19

wood Legion Stadium, and that major item on the agenda will be 'discussion of plans for the establishing of an autonomous organization for Class B members.'

In announcing the call for a general meeting of all Class B members, the Guild stated:

'Decision of the Guild to offer to its B members an opportunity to form a self-governing organization was announced by the Guild's Board several months ago. Details of the separation have been under consideration by the Board in the intervening period, and it is announced that a complete outline of the proposed plan will be presented to the membership at the forthcoming meeting. Following a complete discussion at the meeting, the plan will be submitted to the entire membership for vote. Full reports on the Guild's activities during the past year will also be presented by Guild officers and staff.'

SAG officials would not discuss the plan in advance of the meeting, but it is understood to call for a separate sub-charter from the SAG, with the extras being given the right to elect their own officers, hire their own employes, collect their dues and handle their own financial affairs. It is understood the proposed setup would prevent any one group from gaining control of the new union, and that some veto or restraining power would be retained by the SAG so that the Class B members would have no chance of gaining control over affairs of the actors by claiming they represented a majority. Belief is they also would be given authority to negotiate their own deals with the producing companies.

Such autonomous plan already has been approved by many of the extra players, but other groups are contending for complete separation from the SAG, with a direct charter from the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, parent body of the SAG, or the American Federation of Labor. A meeting of various group leaders has been called for Thursday night, at which time an effort will be made to merge the activities of the groups under a single drive for a separate charter grant for the extras. This move, of course, is opposed by extras who prefer to remain an integral part of the SAG, believing they stand a better chance of getting improvement through support of the actors.

rise has increased value to about $15,000,000.

Understood that Joe Bernhard, Warners exec, is one of the most recent bidders as the representative of an investor group. An offer is reported to have been made for a large part of the holdings of Odlum. But understanding is that investment trust prexy wants to sell all or none. Deal seems unlikely at this time with RKO showing sustained earnings and Odlum in the driver's seat controlling operations.

Bette Davis Due Back For 'Skeffington'

Bette Davis returns to the Coast Aug. 9, following three months' vacation in Mexico, Sugar Hill, N. H., and New York. Miss Davis goes into leading role of Warners 'Mr. Skeffington' upon her arrival. Philip G. and Julius J. Epstein are doing final polishing job on script which they will produce.

and Benjamin Landes, in administrative matters. Talent is now being lined up for the play, which is skeded for a November opening on Broadway. War Department has requested that Don Castle, Arthur Kennedy, James Seay, now with the Air Force film unit at Culver City, Cal., report in New York Sept. 1 for roles.

Peter Lind Hayes, son of Grace Hayes, is also being considered for the cast. Harry Horner, scenic artist for 'Lady in the Dark,' will be requisitioned for set work. Bill Doll, who goes in the army this week, and Irv Mansfield, already in, will do the show's publicity. No original music is scheduled for the show.

McCrea, Young Co-Star

Joel McCrea will co-star with Loretta Young in 'And Now Tomorrow,' Rachel Field novel, at Paramount.

Picture Stocks Firmest As Peace Cry Dips Market Listings

New York, July 27.—Motion picture stocks stood up better than most any other division when securities tumbled on heavy 'peace selling' in Wall Street. Overthrow of Mussolini and the belief that hostilities with Italy were nearing a quick finish sent the war brides and even peace stocks tumbling. Thirty selected industrials were off $3.31.

The average fall was practically double that of Loew's which took the heaviest tumble among the film issues closing at 62 off 1¾. Twentieth-Fox slipped one point, Warners, ⅝; Columbia, 1; RKO, ⅝; and RCA, ⅞. Traders evidently do not believe slackening of war production would necessarily mean that picture attendance would go into a tail spin, or that actual coming of peace would be hard blow to film producers. Keith Albee Orpheum reflected some of this thought by rising 3¼ points.

Fleischer 'Li'l Abner' Series Planned

Dave Fleischer, Columbia's cartoon chief, will make series around comic character of 'Li'l Abner,' following acquisition of motion picture rights from United Features. Quartet in color already are in working stage, with Robert Wickersham and Howard Swift handling direction, Sid Marcus and Al Geis story preparation, Paul Worth and Edward Kilfeather, music.

Garson, Lamarr Tested For 'Dragon Seed'

Metro will test Greer Garson and Hedy Lamarr for femme lead in Pearl Buck story, 'Dragon Seed,' which Pandro Berman will produce. Probable choice lies between two actresses.

Ad Heads Nix Studios Going Into Pin-Up Stills Selling

Distribution of pin-up pictures of film stars to service men is threatening to develop into big business, it was indicated yesterday when four companies requested permission to merchandise such art in different types of kits to be handled through post exchanges and canteens. Requests were promptly nixed by the Industry Service Bureau, which went on record as being opposed to commercialization of service fans' interest in screen personalities.

Despite the newsprint shortage, reports received by the Bureau at its meeting yesterday under the chairmanship of George Brown indicated a definite trend toward increased coverage of picture activities. It was stated that several metropolitan dailies have expanded the space devoted to Hollywood activities and that a lavish use of stills continues. The Chicago Daily News was cited as an outstanding example.

Hubbard Keavy, local AP Bureau Manager, also advised the Bureau that in response to demand from editors for Hollywood coverage, the AP is currently carrying an average of 6,000 to 7,500 words in picture features weekly. This is in addition to the news coverage and spot features, Keavy stated.

Resignation of Walter Compton, formerly flack director at Republic was accepted with regrets. Compton has joined United Artists since his resignation was written.

Will H. Hays, prexy of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, was a guest at yesterday's session.

Streamlined Exchanges RKO Sesh Subject

Chicago, July 27.—Problem of streamlining their system of exchange operations to cope with the steadily increasing manpower shortage is the main topic of discussion at the annual operations meeting being held here at the Blackstone hotel under the direction of A. A. Schubert, manager of RKO exchange operations.

'Like all other companies, we are hard hit by the shortage of suitable help,' Schubert said, 'and we find ourselves trying to do the same job with three people where four did it before. So we must streamline our system to get the greatest efficiency out of those three people and still give the best possible service to our customers.'

TOP AD FIRMS MULL OWI FILM FINANCE FOR PLUGS

are concerned about the plan and hope that the film business will fight, if it begins to take shape.

The story in some quarters here is this: Many large national advertisers making excess profits on war and other contracts are looking around for ways to spend the money which will be beneficial to the firms. At present, they merely give it back to Uncle Sam in corporate profits. They know OWI can't make any more films for domestic consumption. Therefore, they would offer to finance one or more pictures for OWI. Pictures would be made by the film industry and would be distributed by the WAC to its outlet of 16,000 theatres. Each film would carry a credit, thanking the sponsor for aiding the war effort. This would parallel much institutional advertising now done in publications and on the radio.

Should OWI decide it could not be a party to such an arrangement, the national advertisers would attempt to deal directly with the film industry, providing WAC would distribute nationally. Stunt could be used also for shorts for the Department of Agriculture, Treasury, WPB, etc., if the scheme can be worked out.

Giant corporations, it is reported, stand ready to put up a couple of million dollars for pictures which would carry their brief house ads into every hamlet in the U. S.

What worries the friends of the film industry here is that if the thing should work out, with the corporations getting distribution in commercial channels, it could eat into the market of the picture business in the post war era. For some time, big business has been making and distributing films in non-commercial channels where it did not matter very much. Now the advertisers would be able to get a toehold in independent theatres and might be hard to dislodge afterward.

Plan is still in the think stage, with one large national business association giving it serious study, according to the word in Washington. On another front, 'Reader's Digest' and 'Time' were said to be readying a new invasion into the 16mm, non-theatrical field. Two magazines are reported by authentic sources to be investigating such outlets as factories, clubs, schools, etc. Nature of the proposed pictures is not disclosed but presumably these films would do promotional duty for the publications.

Aussie Releases Film Funds To June 30

New York, July 27.—Word was received here today that the Australian government has agreed that all funds due American producers and profits of Australian companies owing parent organizations will be released up to June 30, 1943. After that date matter again will be considered in relation to Australia's overseas exchange position.

Seek $1,000 Settlement On Anderson Film

New York, July 27.—American Guild of Variety Artists is making arrangements for the settlement of $1,000 in claims still due performers appearing in John Murray Anderson's 'Silver Screen' production unit on West Coast in 1941. Anderson has paid out $1,250 on salary claims but several of the performers have been demanding payment in full.

Obituaries

HARRY BREDEN HAM

Harry Breden Ham, 52, identified with the picture business for nearly a quarter of a century as producer, distribution exec and agent, died suddenly yesterday of a heart attack at his Beverly Hills home.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 12 o'clock noon at the All Saints Episcopal Church, Camden Drive in Santa Monica. Flowers are to be omitted.

Ham's early career of adventure began on the race ovals around Los Angeles and carried through the first world war, when he distinguished himself as a flying ace. A Canadian by birth, he sought to get into the air forces of both this country and Canada soon after Pearl Harbor but was turned down on account of his advanced age. His entry into Hollywood was as an actor after he had achieved prominence as an auto race driver. He appeared in many of the old Christie comedies in 1914-15.

Ham's next film job was as an executive with the Stoll Co. in London, joining up in 1920. Shortly after he swung over to Paramount as special sales rep and after three years became district sales manager for First National in London. This affiliation lasted for six years and then he came to Hollywood to produce Spanish pictures for Paramount. His association with the Myron Selznick agency began in 1931 and was to continue for 12 years, six of which were passed in London as managing director of the Selznick office there. Last year Ham pulled out of the Selznick agency for a berth with Lyons & Lyons but this association was short-lived and he moved over to the William Morris agency, with which outfit he was with up to his passing.

Surviving Ham are his widow and two daughters by a previous marriage.

JOHN M. WILSON

Funeral services for John M. Wilson, 59, of 1024 North Breighton avenue, Burbank, camera technician with RKO, will be conducted this afternoon at 3:30 at Pierce Brothers Hollywood Chapel, 5959 Santa Monica boulevard. Wilson died at his home Sunday. He was a native of Gilroy, California, coming here 18 years ago.

He is survived by his widow, Lillian, two daughters, Bonnie Lee and Laurene A., two sons, Rodney V. and Kenworth C., his mother, Mrs. C. R. Young, of Chicago, two sisters and one brother.

Pidgeon Off on USO Camp Tour Through Southern States

Walter Pidgeon checked out last night for a two-week USO-Camp Shows tour covering five camps in Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee. His departure boosts the July total to 24 personalities, with 145 camps in 28 states already visited.

The Hollywood Victory Committee also announced that Bonnie Edwards will team with Eric Blore in the headline act of a Camp Shows troupe.

Kay Francis and Richard Carlson have been set for next week's 'Soldiers with Wings' broadcast from Santa Ana, and Frank Parker has been added to the cast of tomorrow night's 'Mail Call' transcribed show featuring Olsen and Johnson, Franklyn Pangborn, Cass Daley, Cliff Nazarro, The Charioteers, Dick Lane and Carol Bruce. Donald Crisp and Louise Albritton will sell War Bonds at a San Diego rally sponsored by the American Federation of Labor Aug. 3.

An all-colored troupe headed by Hattie McDaniel entertains tonight at Camp Lockett on the Mexican Border.

Claims SAG Craig Trial Unconstitutional

'The right of a member of a trade union to be employed and work at his trade is a property right and will be protected by a court of equity.

'Courts of equity have jurisdiction to retain an unlawful expulsion or suspension of a member of a trade union and to reinstate a member or local unlawfully suspended or expelled.

'No local trade union, nor may a member thereof, be deprived of property rights by a parent body or officer thereof in violation of the right of due process and contrary to public policy.

'Compliance with due process and public policy requires a hearing by a fair and impartial body and by persons not involved in the controversy in issue, before the charter granted to a local union or the membership granted to a member may be revoked or suspended.

'Due process demands that, in this case, the trial board consist of a jury of the "peers" of Hal Craig, which requires participation or representation on said jury by Class B members; a hearing or finding by the board of directors of the Screen Actors Guild, on which board no Class B member can serve, is invalid, unconstitutional and has no legal force and effect.'

Garland Arrives

Judy Garland arrived yesterday from month's eastern tour and checks in at Metro this week for wardrobe tests on 'Meet Me In St. Louis.'

New Contracts

Dickie Hall, eight-year-old moppet, has been inked to term contract at Metro and assigned role in 'Rationing.'

Par Will Be Rolling Twelve in August With Six New

August production schedule at Paramount will give the studio 12 pictures before the cameras, six being already in work and continuing through next month, while remainder will be added-starters.

New ones include 'Going My Way,' Leo McCarey production with Bing Crosby and Rise Stevens; 'Incendiary Blonde,' Texas Guinan musical with Brian Donlevy and Betty Hutton; 'Our Hearts Were Young and Gay,' which Lewis Allen directs; 'Double Indemnity,' Billy Wilder directing; Henry Aldrich's Code of Honor' and 'The Navy Way,' a Pine-Thomas production. In addition, 'Lucky Cowboy,' a Technicolor Musical Parade briefie, starts next month.

Continuing through the month are 'The Story of Doctor Wassell,' 'Frenchman's Creek,' 'Standing Room Only,' 'Hail the Conquering Hero,' 'Ministry of Fear,' and 'Timber Queen.'

Norman To WPB

Allen E. Norman, secretary of Fawcett Publications, Inc., and subsids, has been given limited leave of absence at request of WPB to serve as a dollar-a-year consultant in the magazine and periodical section of the printing and publishing division of WPB. He goes to Washington Aug. 2 to start assignments.

Bowes Spurns $200,000 a Year

New York, July 27.—Major Bowes has discarded the amateur unit venture which has netted him $3,000,000 during the past eight years. Last week Bowes ordered the few remaining units now on the road withdrawn as of Aug. 12. Lou Goldberg, general manager for Bowes, has offered his resignation as a result of this decision. Goldberg sold the unit idea to Bowes. Bowes' reason for abandoning traveling units is that they're not making sufficient coin, which means that he considers $200,000 a year, minimum profits earned since start in 1935, as chicken feed.

Huston Initial 'Dragon Seed' Player Inked

Walter Huston is first definite casting for 'Dragon Seed' at Metro, being set for role of Ling Tan, farmer character around which story centers. Jack Conway expects to start direction on feature in September on farming village set near Calabasas. Conway and his assistant, Edward Woehler, will start tour of northern California later this month to recruit Oriental talent.

Welles Has Midway

A midway has been installed in front of a tent on Cahuenga that will house the Mercury Wonder Show for Servicemen, premiering Aug. 3. Midway will open nightly at 6:30 o'clock, and will have typical setup of usual gimmicks to lure coin from show attendees.

Metro Lifts Donlevy

Metro will pick up Brian Donlevy's option Aug. 1 for three additional pictures, in addition to his current appearance in 'America.' Studio is interested in Donlevy doing 'Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo.'

Schiller, Army Free, To Resume Writing

Fred Schiller, writer, who last scripted Columbia's 'Something To Shout About' before entering U. S. Army Signal Corps nearly nine months ago, has received his honorable discharge and trained in yesterday from New York. In east he worked on two training films with Robert Riskin for OWI.

Kane Seeks Old-Timers

Warners Sets Richards

Steven Richards was signed to long term contract with Warners yesterday, marking the tenth contract studio has inked with actors during the past nine months. Richards has been assigned feature spot in studio's forthcoming 'Passage to Marseille.'

Equity Okays Blanket $50,000 Bond for All Todd Shows

New York, July 27.—Equity today granted Mike Todd's petition to be allowed to file a blanket bond of $50,000 for all his shows instead of putting up a separate amount for each show as required by regular union rules. This is a novel setup as most producers are required to post regular bond for each show until such time as they are considered sufficently established to be granted a waiver from keeping any such amount posted with the union. Only a few of the leading producers have the latter privilege.

20th Signs Haymes

New York, July 27.—Dick Haymes was signed to a seven-year optional contract today by 20th-Fox. The pact calls for at least two films a year. The deal set by William Morris office resulted from screen test made several weeks ago. Contract prepared pending reception of test contained a clause allowing 20th-Fox 45 days in which to sign or pass up deal.

Frisco Books Rogers As Westerns Draw Prairie Workers

San Francisco, July 27.—Roy Rogers, Republic cowboy star, has been booked into the Warfield theatre for either Aug. 12 or 19 for a personal appearance with his new picture, 'Silver Spurs.' Rogers was originally booked for week of July 22, but his other commitments interfered. Cowpoke will head the Warfield's stage bill.

Western films in the Market street grind houses are paying operators heavy dough through patronage of hinterland war workers who were raised on the celluloid prairie sagas. With western bills, such grind houses are filling seats easily, both with service men from the farm and southern states as well as war workers who have migrated here for a slice of the big defense payrolls.

Aside from subsequent run policy of using oaters, San Francisco's de luxers rarely, if ever, book in an out-and-out western, so appearance of Rogers and his film at the Warfield practically sets a precedent.

Grind spots have contributed to their big business by holding prices down. Those houses that have upped the tariff have only added five cents, making the get-in cost 35 cents. Many of these theatres are running nothing on Sundays but cowboy films. Business always takes a slump when they are forced to use a class picture.

'Ceiling Unlimited' In Format Change

Lockheed-Vega's 'Ceiling Unlimited' spreads to half an hour on CBS Aug. 8, and changes formula to music and dramatics. Joseph Cotten emcees the new series, Nan Wynn is featured vocalist and Bill Hatch directs 24-piece orchestra. Pat McGeehan continues as 'the Voice of Lockheed-Vega.' Dramatized portions will be confined to vignettes of what's on America's mind. Thomas Freebairn-Smith produces for Foote, Cone & Belding. Program airs from here at 11 a.m.

Ray Johnstone To Wed Here Saturday

W. Ray Johnston, president of Monogram Pictures, will be married Saturday afternoon at 5:30 to Miss Doris Deupree. Ceremony will take place in Pueblo Oratorio of Chapman Park Hotel, with Trem Carr as best man and bride to be attended by Mrs. Bettye McIntosh. Rev. Glenn D. Puder will officiate. Marriage is second for Johnston.

Moore Crosby Guest

Bob Crosby's Old Gold airer will have Constance Moore as visiting vocalist Aug. 1, Jean Barci the following week and for the Aug. 15 broadcast Ruth Terry.

ALL BIZ LIAISON FOR OWI FILM AID WANGER PROPOSAL

Recommendation that a liaison board with a representative from each of the producing companies and the three talent guilds be organized here to work with the new head of the OWI Motion Picture Bureau was made by Walter Wanger last night when the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers met with Palmer Hoyt, director of the Domestic Branch of OWI, and Francis Harmon, executive vice-prexy of the War Activities Committee. It was pointed out such a move would enable many important matters to be handled here by men thoroughly familiar with the business, and that the group could act as a clearing house for the OWI Motion Picture Bureau head who would be stationed in Washington.

It was explained final decision on all problems naturally would rest with the OWI head, but that much detail, etc., could be eliminated before the various matters were passed on to him. The liaison board also would make it unnecessary for the OWI motion picture director to have a Hollywood representative, which formerly caused considerable friction when Lowell Mellett designated Nelson Poynter to represent him here. Incidentally, it was made pretty plain last night that Poynter is definitely out of the picture so far as a motion picture assignment is concerned.

Hoyt who has been here several days discussing with company heads the appointment of a successor to Mellett, goes to San Francisco today and will then return to his Washington office the first of next week. He said yesterday that it probably will be two weeks before the new Motion Picture Bureau head is announced by OWI. Hoyt and Harmon met earlier in the day with the Independent Motion Picture Producers Association headed by I. B. Chadwick.

Hoyt said most of the discussion with Producers had dealt with their needs and how and what cooperation would be extended OWI. He said no names of individuals were discussed for the Mellett successor, although he had mentioned some in individual talks with studio heads. He said there were several big executives here, that some of them didn't want the job and that it would be difficult or impossible to get industry heads to agree on others. He said the matter would be thoroughly discussed with exhibitors and others in the industry and with Government aides involved before a decision is made.

It was indicated by Hoyt that the problem probably could be solved immediately if he could secure the services of Ted Gamble, currently serving as assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of War Bond sales. He pointed out though, that the one division which had done a 100% job was the Treasury work handled by Gamble, which eliminated any possibility of OWI acquiring his services.

Difficulty of industry leaders agreeing on a recommendation was admitted, leading to the belief that, if possible, a man not too closely identified with the producing end of the business finally would be selected. Such an individual, it was pointed out, however, would have to be authoritative enough to handle the job in such a manner as to keep the Army and Navy off the neck of the industry, preserve harmony between the various Government bodies handling pictures, with the idea of steering away from any thought of Government control of pictures. All leaders agreed Ben Thau, Metro executive, and Hal Wallis, were capable executives, but doubt was expressed that either would take the job if it was offered, and the difficulty of agreeing on an industry man in production was again recalled.

Tunesmiths' Post War Importance Key of New York Meet

New York, July 27.—Theme of songwriters mass meeting at the Hotel Edison today was importance of tunesmiths in post-war world, as pointed out by Chairman Oscar Hammerstein II. Jack Joy of the War Department talked of music geared to the war effort, especially on the home front and citing work done by 'Lunchtime Follies.' Hammerstein also spoke on the work of the committee and also asked for members. Finale was presentation of material written by songsmiths to show the other 400 writers slated to attend what to write about.

Line Cost on Sinatra Airers Here $4000

New York, July 27.—Lucky Strike will have to shell out $4,000 a week for the Hit Parade over CBS while Frank Sinatra is on the Coast for four weeks beginning Aug. 7. Toll line charges involve expensive switchovers. Show also will have to hire 24-man orchestra and leader in Hollywood. Luckies is reported mulling a separate show around the crooner, with Sinatra doubling as emcee and a weekly inclusion of a guestar. Since Sinatra is a CBS contractee show would have to be on that network. New Sinatra stanza would replace Luckies 'All Time Hit Parade' on NBC Fridays.

Haas Promoted To Head Par's Denver Office

Harry Haas, city salesman at Paramount's Los Angeles branch office, has been upped to post as branch manager of the company's Denver office, succeeding Chester J. Bell, who comes here to head local exchange. Haas has been film salesman with Paramount for past 11 years. M. C. Burls, salesman in the southern California area, moves up to Haas' city sales post. Promotions were occasioned by upping of Duke Clark, local branch manager, to take charge of the Ohio territory, headquartering in Cleveland.

BELL GIVEN DUAL OWI POST

TO REPRESENT DOMESTIC WITH FOREIGN DIVISION

Ulric Bell takes over immediately as both domestic and foreign OWI representative with the motion picture industry in Hollywood. Currently serving as chief of the OWI Foreign Bureau here, Bell has agreed to take on work formerly handled by Nelson Poynter and a staff of 15, in addition to his foreign contact work.

Agreement to have Bell act as OWI film contact man with the industry was reached by Producers in conversations with Palmer Hoyt, director of the domestic branch of OWI, who came here to discuss a successor to Lowell Mellett as chief of OWI's Motion Picture Bureau in Washington. The new director will not be named for two weeks, but company representatives were elated over agreement to have Bell act as

FREE MUSIC TO STICKS AFM IDEA

New York, July 28.—'Because President Roosevelt is very much concerned' about lack of good music in smaller American communities, Prexy Petrillo of the American Federation of Musicians announced today that he will send nationally renowned symphony orchestras on road tours. Plan was born in White House discussions last December, according to Petrillo, and the federation has appropriated $250,000 for expense of tours.

More money has been authorized if required. The concerts are to be free, he declared, and the plan goes into operation next week. Among the orchestras to take part are those of Los Angeles and San Francisco, he said.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

President Roosevelt, in one of the best and fightingest speeches of his career, gave the expected information on the war situation.

There is nothing that has been left in doubt—we are on the road to victory, and will continue on it until our enemies are either defeated or hoist the white flag of unconditional surrender.

International circles greeted the President's speech with enthusiasm, and it is anticipated that it will go a long way toward a speedy settlement of the warfare in the European theatre.

Bob Miller moved up to audio supervisor at KNX.

Scoop Conlon to New York for month's stay on business.

Richard Arlen trains east next week for look-see at Broadway shows.

Ernest Charles transferred from the transcription department to production staff at KNX.

Lee Mortimer, film critic and editor of N. Y. Daily Mirrow has gone to San Francisco for weekend visit. Returns here for two weeks on Tuesday.

Joseph Kane returned yesterday with Republic second unit of 'In Old Oklahoma,' from Utah location where he has been shooting buffalo stampede scenes with Piute Indians.

Bob Hope will go to North Africa and Sicily with Frances Langford to entertain service men on those fronts, if Army permission can be secured. Duo currently is in England.

Kyle Palmer has been signed by RKO to oversee senate committee hearing scene in 'Government Girl,' which started production yesterday. Palmer is Los Angeles Times correspondent in Wasihngton.

Robert Fellows, RKO producer, is taking several days off, following completion of 'The Iron Major,' and preparatory to starting preparations for his next picture at studio, 'Marine Raiders.'

George Glass, retiring United Artists West Coast publicity head, goes to Arrowhead Monday for 10-day vacation. When he returns he takes over new post as publicity-advertising head of Producing Artists, Inc.

Major Jack Votion, former RKO producer is in town from London for a few days. Votion attached to the American Embassy in London was dispatched to Washington on an official mission, and came on here to visit with his children. He returns to his post next week.

Johnny Burke and Jimmy Van Heusen turned in five untitled songs yesterday to producer-director Leo McCarey, for use in Bing Crosby picture, 'Going My Way.' McCarey yet is undecided what songs Crosby will warble for film among these new numbers, although it already is settled that he will chant 'Silent Night' and 'Adeste Fideles,' his two most popular wax recordings.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

EVER-QUICKENING tempo of the war with constantly shifting background of armed effort and status of conquered areas functions as further deterrent against war pictures. No certainty that either plot or even incidental references will hold water by release date is influencing producrs to stay farther away than ever from stories based on current campaigns. An important feature almost completed had to be partly rewritten the other day because Mussolini was ousted. Stories of Axis activities in Algeria already are outdated, Sicily and practically all southern Italy may be lands with whose natives we may be on a friendly basis tomorrow, and hardly a spot in middle Europe could safely be painted as a background for danger since anything could happen during time of filming—including overrunning of the scene by American troops by the date the film's last scenes are lensed.

ALTHOUGH Ascap has lost a good part of its revenue from summer resorts, that organization is doing very well in the section around San Francisco with boom conditions in cities more than offsetting the loss in the country spots. About 20% of the resorts of northern California are closed, due to gas rationing and inability of operators to get help. Of those operating, less than half as many are using live music as in previous years. Many spots that wanted music have been unable to get musicians. Such famous resorts as Cal-Neva Club and State Line Country Club at Lake Tahoe are closed tighter than drums. Casa Del Rey at Santa Cruz and the Del Monte hotel are off the amusement list, having been taken over by the Army. Many of the shuttered spots used entertainment as well as music in the past.

PLAN to reduce size of theatrical advertisements in Los Angeles daily papers in order to ease newsprint curtailment has been tossed out, according to reports, with drama pages now wide-open to receive any size ad film companies, etc., care to purchase. Plan of dailies was called off when one downtown sheet refused to nix ads above certain number of inches, with other papers deciding to also continue to collect juicy theatrical rates for big displays. Reversal means both Paramount and Warners can plug 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' and 'This is the Army' respectively, with as much space as desired. Understood Paramount is scheduling a number of 40-inch ads for premiere and run of 'Bell,' with Warners also drafting large displays, some of which may run as much as 60 inches.

CO-WORKERS of Harry Flannery, KNX news analyst, are recalling his broadcast of May 3 at which time he reported the imminence of a Fascist crackup in Italy. His script of that date carried the following tipoff: a secret German broadcast claimed that Mario Badoglio, son of Italy's military leader, had conferred in North Africa with U. S. officials on a plan to overthrow the Fascist government. Terms of the negotiations were that Mussolini and all Fascists were to be ousted, the king was to be retained, Italian borders were to return to pre-Ethiopian days and there was to be an immediate break with the axis. Flannery believes that developments of the next few days will bear out further details on his explosive scoop.

When I was young and eager, out on the trail of news,
The city ed would often hand my youthful soul the blues,
'We don't get out this sheet,' he said, 'to air your half-baked views.'

And now at summer eventide I often get the blues
When commentators on the air unleash their half-baked views
And all the world is waiting unadulterated news.

Mussolini is like a baseball manager, a popular guy when his team is winning, and a Jonah to be tossed overboard in stormy weather. In due time Adolph Hitler will be kicked out on his little mustache, with the explanation that he was only an Austrian paper-hanger and never rightly represented the high culture of the German people. Any old baseball writer can remember how many managers were deposed overnight when their ball clubs went into a sudden tailspin. It still goes on in baseball and in war. The manager is dunked but the same old stockholders are still running the ball club. Meanwhile we have a pretty good umpire, although the boys in the right and left field bleachers are giving him the works, as they always do.

Irving Berlin's 'This Is The Army' is terrific screen entertainment—so powerful and sweeping in its display of Americanism and socko solid entertainment—that it will be seen multiple times by virtually every person in these United States.

Box office reaction will be sensational, with indefinite runs prevailing in all bookings. Major concern of exhibs will be to obtain extended datings, and then accommodate the crowds. Repeat bookings will be the rule rather than exception all down the line to the smallest community.

In addition to displaying grand entertainment, film version of the great Army show offers several outstanding spectacular production numbers of patriotic appeal that lifts an audience out of the seats. Broader scope allowed by film production accentuates the impact of these numbers over the stage presentations; and latter were tabbed as sensational when show toured large cities last year.

Salute goes to Warners and latter's entire studio organization for combining with the Army to bring 'This Is The Army' to the screen for every American to see. Warners spared no expense in making this the top piece in filmusical entertainment of all time. It's elaborately mounted, and expertly produced down to the most minute detail. Only with the aid of the Army talent and unlimited resources provided, could a picture of such magnitude be turned out.

Film story has been neatly woven around presentation of highlight numbers from the stage 'TITA.' It goes back to 1917, when Berlin's first soldier show was concocted at Camp Upton. George Murphy is introduced as a Broadway musical song-and-dance star who's inducted and takes charge of staging the original 'Yip, Yip, Yaphank,' with opening presentation on Broadway and march of the soldiers from the theatre for active service in France. It's a brief prolog of 23 minutes running time to set the stage for the new Army show setup.

Kate Smith opens the modern portion with reproduction of her radio introduction of Irving Berlin's 'God Bless America,' which Berlin had written for 'Yip, Yip, Yaphank' a quarter century before, but tossed it aside at that time. Miss Smith's ap-

Previewed at General Service Studios, Hollywood, July 28, 1943. Running time: 72 MINS.

Andrew Stone Productions gets off to auspicious start with this slap-happy comedy which builds up an amusing premise and turns loose a swell bunch of performers who go the limit with idea which should titillate popular imagination. Picture is fast-paced and novel, with bang-up performances and situations, and classic windup absolutely unique in film presentation. Stone has turned out top piece of nonsensical entertainment for his take-off United Artists endeavor which should find reflection in box-office.

Story starts off with a wedding breakfast before the wedding, because Dennis O'Keefe's ship hasn't arrived yet and Billie Burke, mother of prospective bride, Martha Scott, says that's way to keep guests there. O'Keefe squadron finally docks, Adolphe Menjou, his father, is there to greet him with town car he's trying out with demonstrator, and they rush to the wedding, where gob finds his bride-to-be with her arms full of twins. Seems while they're waiting, minister is staging a christening.

Following immediate marriage, couple try to leave for their honeymoon but find interruptions. Menjou, slicker wed to Pola Negri, grand opera singer of sorts, hits upon idea to get back Billie Burke's money she lost at crooked roulette wheel, which left her broke, and enlists groom's services. Later, when frustrated pair are about to take off again on honeymoon, Menjou calls once more upon

'THE NEW MEET THE PEOPLE'

They've done it again. Meaning that Henry Myers, Edward Eliscu, Jay Gorney and Danny Dare have more than a mild hit on their hands in the new edition of 'Meet The People.' What was projected across the footlights at the Assistance League Playhouse last night to a packed, smart theatre audience was pretty much of a stencil of the earlier formula. A dozen or so kids generate more entertainment than company of twice that number have kicked up in bigger houses. The principals, mostly unknown, are adept at their trade and through 27 skits kept the sitters in an applauding mood and no turn dissolved into blackout without ringing ovations.

Naturally comparisons will be made with the first issue of 'Meet The People.' Those who can remember should find it pretty much a stand-off. The new edition is without such standouts as Virginia O'Brien, Fay McKenzie, Leon Belasco, Bernice Parks, William Orr, and Lois Ranson of the first issue. Its largely a company affair, and if one were to single out the individual star of the evening the choice must fall on Jack Gilford, a mimic and gagster who should use this show-casing to good effect.

He wraps up his two turns with a fine professional flair and expertly times and punches his routines. His soldier-in-town and Victory Garden skits have the mob howling and begging, but Pit Director Gorney ruled no encores due to the late start and length. Studio scouts and picture execs, who reveled in his antics, must have made a mental note for future reference. Revue has other promising talent that may win a nod from the studio bosses. There's Judy Clark, a first-rate comedienne; June Haver, a blonde looker and pert performer; Marilyn Hare, with a fine soprano voice; Ida James, this edition's counterpart of Virginia O'Brien, and a few others of budding ability.

Original music for the show is tuneful, 'Love In a Changing World' being the outstander. Gags, quips and blackouts are better than average, but the show really swings into high gear when the youngsters cut loose with fast and novel dance routines, contrived by Danny Dare and Josephine Earl. The bevy of kids who really cut it up are comprised of Donald Kirk, Roland Dupree, Jimmie Vey, Cynthia Will, Joyce Horne, Valmere Barman, Jean Ruth and the Misses Haver and Hare. Others in the cast are Jack Bailey, Inesita, Patti Steele, Al Eben, Michael Butler, Hal Horton.

Myers, Eliscu and Gorney contributed the book, music and lyrics and their direction. A dozen others are credited with additional material. Milt Gross gets program mention for the setting and the costumes are by Betty Colburn.

'The New Meet The People' will fare prosperously in the intimacy of the Assistance League Playhouse. Should it be moved to a larger theatre, as was its predecessor (for a combined run of 45 weeks), then its fate becomes a matter of professional speculation.

world will need a revamped educational system to replace the present 'outmoded one,' and declared that in his opinion the motion picture 'is the most potent method for teaching.'

'In addition to the teaching of trades and geography, we must educate the people of this Democracy to understand and protect the four freedoms,' said Dr. Studebaker. These things cannot be accomplished by the present method of education.

'What is needed is a method that will bring about learning instead of teaching. The motion picture is the best medium, but we need the art and science of the motion picture people to make them. I hope to see text books supplementing films, rather than films supplementing text books.'

pearance and rendition is inspiring—and resulted in veterans of 'Yip, Yip' to generate interest in a new Army show. Sons of original members of the old unit are back at Upton to carry on and recruit the show talent. After brief footage to give audience inkling of how the talent was brought in from all parts of the country, picture jumps right into the various Army numbers at opening night at the Broadway theatre, New York.

Opening number displays a large chorus for presentation of 'This Is the Army, Mr. Jones,' followed by S/Sgt. James Burrell singing 'I'm Getting Tired So I Can Sleep.' Blackface song-and-dance chorus then comes on for 'Mandy.' Sgt. John Prince Mendes clicks with a comedy blackout in 'one.' The Allons are then on for a hand-balancing exhibition that is tops in its line. Other numbers in this section include 'Ladies of the Chorus,' a comedy song and dance routine; Negro soldier group with presentation of 'What the Well-Dressed Man in Harlem Will Wear'—with Sgt. Joe Louis introduced for a bag-punching routine on sidestage. Finale here is elaborate production song and marching number, 'Give a Cheer for the Navy,' in which the Army salutes the Naval branch of the armed forces.

Montages cover tour of the show to various cities throughout the country, and at this point, footage picks up a few story threads to keep things welded together. Second half of the Army show is presented in Washington, with President Roosevelt and high Army officials present.

Opening is the Canteen number, which is a clicko with girl dancers, impersonations of Jane Cowl, Lynne Fontanne, Alfred Lunt, Charles Boyer and Herbert Marshall, and rendition of 'I Left My Heart at the Stage Door Canteen.' Production number as tribute to the Army Air Force is next, with solo and chorus delivering 'American Eagles,' a lively marching tune.

Highlight is an original scene from 'Yip, Yip,' with vets of latter show of film story—George Murphy, George Tobias, Alan Hale, Charles Butterworth, and others—on for introduction and brief dance stepping. Climax presents Irving Berlin to deliver 1918 hit tune, 'Oh, How I Hate To Get Up In The Morning.'

Finale is a rousing and inspiring production number, 'This Time Will Be the Last Time,' with entire TITA unit of 350 being enlarged through addition of 150 men from the 174th infantry. It's the most sensational number ever staged for films—an inspiring spectacle with terrific patriotic impact—and a grand climax to great entertainment.

Kudos go to everyone concerned in the making of the production; producers Jack L. Warner and Hal B. Wallis; director Michael Curtiz; scripters Casey Robinson and Capt. Claude Binyon; cameramen Bert Glennon and Sol Polito; Leroy Prinz and M/Sgt. Robert Sidney, who staged the production numbers; orchestral arrangements by Ray Heindorf; musical direction by Leo F. Forbstein; special effects by Jack Cosgrove; and great sound recording by the Warner sound engineers headed by Colonel Nathan Levinson.

Despite the overload of Army talent and production numbers, sketches, etc., the Hollywood players used in the cast for the running story, handle their respective roles with distinction. George Murphy delivers his usual grand performance as the motivating factor in lining up the two Army shows; Joan Leslie and Lt. Ronald Reagan team for the romantic interludes; Alan Hale is the tough sergeant; Charles Butterworth the milquetoast bugler; and George Tobias is a recruit and pal of the boys in the 1917 army. Frances Langford and Gertrude Niesen make brief appearances for song deliveries.

Just a year ago, Warners closed deal to produce a film version of 'This Is the Army,' with company putting up all production costs and distributing the picture on a 20% basis. All receipts beyond actual production outlay by Warners and distribution charge goes into coffers of Army Emergency Relief. It is estimated that film will garner between $6,000,000 and $10,000,000 net for AER—a not unlikely figure in view of the tremendous box office potentialities of the production.

Irving Berlin's songs add much to the entertainment factors. In addition to three from 'Yip, Yip,' and nine which he originally wrote for the stage presentation of 'TITA,' there are four other tunes that were not in the two previous Army shows.

As a film attraction, 'TITA' is as large and outstanding as the United States Army—which is tops in any language. It's another reason why it's great to be an American.

Whole picture has Miss Scott and O'Keefe trying to get together, with interruption after interruption. Facets of story enter comedic stage to extent events pile so rapidly upon one another that high degree of mirth registers constantly. Over-all effect is audience treat.

Players without exception score roundly, attributable to both Stone's direction and screenplay by Frederick Jackson. Pola Negri returns to screen for first time in ten years to contribute a gem portrayal as hammy Wagnerian singer, and she plays part to hilt. Menjou gives another of his comic slicker roles, and Miss Scott reveals a new and glamorous personality as a comedienne. June Havoc is in for considerable notable footage, Dennis O'Keefe plays likable part and Billie Burke is glimpsed in one of her customary insane roles.

Picture reaches novelty stage in conclusion when cartoon characters appear, animated by Leon Schlesinger Productions, seen on screen at same time live actors perform. Film is interspersed with bright moments, many of them inspired, both lines and performances contributing to fun-filled film.

"Hers to Hold"...with Terrific Raves!

"Deanna Durbin scores her happiest grown-up portrayal in 'Hers to Hold,' a delightful modern comedy that opens up a brand new career for its star . . . It remained for this Felix Jackson production to strike exactly the right note that will send the Durbin stock to its all-time high . . . in the immediate hit classification. Directed by Frank Ryan with a finesse which is buoyantly refreshing."

—Hollywood Reporter

"This latest Deanna Durbin feature is right up to the minute, tuneful, entertaining, with sure-fire audience appeal. Co-starred with Joseph Cotten, actress turns in one of her most engaging and captivating performances . . . Picture should gross at the boxoffice as a top Durbin presentation, and should be billed as such."

—Daily Variety

"If this isn't the best picture Deanna Durbin has ever made it will serve in that classification until a better one comes along. La Durbin has shed the last semblance of adolescence to emerge a glamorous, alluring, talented actress without loss of her golden voice. Certainly no picture could have such strong appeal to the funny-bone and the heart without proving a boxoffice bonanza."

—Boxoffice

"Solid entertainment set for big grosses. It gives Deanna Durbin her greatest opportunity. This picture also ushers Deanna into the ranks of the grownups, and she shows certain charm in her new maturity."

—The Exhibitor

"Deanna fares very well in the hands of her new producing-directing combination of Felix Jackson and Frank Ryan, who deliver a product of high boxoffice potentialities."

—Motion Picture Daily

Plan All Out Campaign For Entire Carthay Run of 'Bell'

Advertising campaign Paramount has lined up for Carthay Circle engagement of 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' will be continued full strength throughout the run, according to plans laid here by Robert M. Gillham, national director of advertising, publicity and exploitation.

Campaign in all local papers starts Monday, Aug. 2, building towards Aug. 18 premiere and will then be continued for entire length of engagement. According to Paramount, advertising buildup will be the largest ever used locally for a picture. Billboard campaign will use 420 24-sheets in the LA metropolitan area in addition to all available painted bulletins.

Aug. 18 premiere proceeds go to the Los Angeles Area War Chest with civic, business and social names sponsoring. Sponsors include respective heads of each of the various 18 groups making up the War Chest in this area: Count de Laling and Dr. Charles Winsel, Belgian War Relief; Basil Rathbone and Major Robert R. FIRST COMPANY LAB.-MAN., COMMITTEE UPS EFFICIENCY

The first company labor-management committee in the picture industry, set up by Leon Schlesinger and Screen Cartoonists Guild, already has eliminated production bottlenecks, speeded up film delivery, cut operating costs, and increased the friendly relations between employer and employe, according to the committee's first report, released yesterday. Out of 15 suggestions submitted to Schlesinger, after being approved by the committee, 13 were adopted, one was adopted in part and one still is under consideration.

The committee was set up with five members chosen by the Schlesinger unit of the SCG and with Schlesinger naming five for management. After a careful study of its ideas, those approved are presented to Schlesinger for his adoption or rejection. In discussing work of the committee, a spokesman said:

'The Labor-Management Committee asked for and gathered all the production figures in the different departments. A study of the figures revealed that the number of pictures in different stages of production had grown tremendously in the past year and that a bottleneck was formed by the ever-widening gap between the animators and the assistants and in-betweeners. This constantly widening gap was the result of the loss of practically all the experienced in-betweeners and most of the assistant animators.

'As a result of the study, it was found that the apprentice inbetweeners could not begin to keep up with the pace of the animators. As a result, the committee suggested that the animators work for a period as assistants and inbetweeners to cut down the gap, with the result that after working for a period of eight weeks they cut the difference down some 60%. This brought about a substantial reduction in the company's investment on pictures in production.

'This was done without extra cost to the company after it was found that the animators at $90 a week minimum turned out an average of 160 drawings as against an average for apprentice inbetweeners of 40 drawings for $30 per week. This was considered one of the biggest achievements of the committee.'

Management members of the Schlesinger Labor-Management Committee are Steve Newman, Chuck Jones, George Winkler, John Benton and Isadore Freeling. The SCG unit representatives are Bob Gannon, Martha Goldman, Helen Curry, Richard Bickenbach and Ace Gamer. Suggestion for a labor-management setup was made by Business Representative William Pomerance of the Guild after conferences with various studio heads.

In addition to the military, leaders of industry, society and theatrical celebrities showed up for the premiere, which netted $30,000 for the Army Emergency Relief Fund.

With thousands milling around, 400 participated in the Broadway hoopla which brought in displays running a virtual gamut of modern warfare equipment. City in general joined in the salute to 'Army' premiere with 7,000 stores setting up window displays, 7,000 taxis carrying placards, restaurants and hotels, via menus, saluting the picture, etc.

Similar premieres are slated in other cities throughout the country starting the second week in August.

Washington, July 28.—'This Is the Army' will open here Thursday, Aug. 12, with first night prices ranging from $2.75 to $10. Picture will begin its regular run at Warners Earle theatre the next day. Film will be shown tomorrow for General George Marshall, chief of staff, and associates in the War Department's Pentagon Building.

Dietrich Must Appear In Lily Dache Suit Or Pay $4,151

New York, July 28.—Marlene Dietrich was ordered today to appear in court on or before Sept. 15 for examination in damage action brought against her by Lily Dache for $4,151. Judge John Bright in an ultimatum to actress said that judgment would be entered against her by default if she does not appear in the time specified.

Claim against her is for 98 items of wearing apparel ordered according to the complaint in 1941 and never paid for.

Miss Dietrich's attorneys had sought to avoid the examination on the ground that the actress was on a bond-selling tour for the government. The court couldn't see this contention. Trial is expected early in September.

Lubitsch In Capital On 'All-Out Arlene'

Washington, July 28. — Ernst Lubitsch has started active work on his new WAC film, 'All-Out Arlene,' based on the H. I. Phillips Book. He conferred today with Col. Oveta Culp Hobby, WAC head as first step toward picture. He goes from here to the two WAC training centers, at Fort Ogelthorpe and Des Moines to gather background material. Picture will be welcomed by Army which needs plenty of help in its campaign to enroll more women.

Former Studio Lenser Snaps 20,000 Feet Bombing Shots

Washington, July 28.—The War Department has received more than 20,000 film feet of bombardment operations from Lieut. James M. Bray, former Hollywood studio cameraman. Bray, who just returned from nine months in the Middle East where he was attached to an Army bombing unit, now is in Hollywood.

The valuable film was obtained by Bray during 325 hours of flying time in which he participated in 32 bombing missions as a gunner and cameraman. Twice while on bombing raids Bray left his camera long enough to shoot down Messerschmidts. In addition he was in three crashes, one far out in the Mediterranean. For his valor he has received the air medal with three oak leaf clusters and has been recommended for the distinguished flying cross.

The film he brought home probably will be used exclusively for training and tactical purposes, for which it will be of great value.

20th Plans Three Regionals, NY, Chicago and Hollywood

New York, July 28.—Tom Connors stated today that 20th-Fox will hold three regional sales meetings this year, launching the first at the Astor hotel, here, Aug. 2-4. Second will be held at the Blackstone hotel, Chicago, Aug. 5-7 and the third, covering western sales territory, in Los Angeles at the Ambassador hotel, Aug. 11-13.

Regional field forces in each area will attend the sessions while group of home office executives will go to all the regional meetings. They include Connors, Spyros Skouras, Bill Gehring, Jack Schlaifer, Hal Horne. Murray Silverstone plans attending the New York meeting then likely leaves for England.

Western regional sales meet of 20th-Fox will be held at Ambassador hotel Aug. 11 to 13 inclusive, with between 125 and 150 delegates attending. Managers, salesmen and bookers of practically all branches west of the Mississippi will gather here for the sessions; in addition to home office sales exec group headed by vice president Tom J. Connors, all division and district managers.

Sales contingent rolls into town Aug. 10, with all meetings to be held in the Fiesta Room of the Ambassador. In addition, delegates will make a couple of trips to the Westwood studios to gander new product for the early 1943-44 season.

Shortage of hotel accommodations necessitates scattering the visitors around a number of mid-city hostelries, as large amount of rooms required for the visitors cannot be handled solely by the Ambassador as has been the custom in previous years.

Born in Kansas City, Mo., he started his advertising work as solicitor on N. Y. Journal, later going to Chicago American, organizing his own ad agency 20 years ago. He is survived by his wife, two sons, two sisters and two brothers.

Re-Editing 'Bell' to Shorten Length

'For Whom the Bell Tolls' will be shortened with 1000 to 1100 feet being trimmed, according to present plans at Paramount. Despite big grosses film is rolling up at Rialto in New York, both B. G. De Sylva, studio production head, and Sam Wood, producer-director on picture, believe feature will be improved by such shearing.

DeSylva is personally supervising editing here, with Wood, now in New York, also working out cuts to be made. Their two edit jobs will be coordinated, and as soon as final cuts are made finished product will supplant print currently showing in New York. New length will open picture when it preems Aug. 18 at Carthay Circle in Los Angeles, and also used for national release.

BELL GIVEN DUAL OWI POST ON BOTH DOMESTIC, FOREIGN

chief of both branches of OWI here.

Bell, unlike Poynter, is thoroughly familiar with industry problems and is well liked by all industry leaders. He has been cooperative in all matters and, whenever possible, assisted in straightening out tangles when the industry was unable to get any assistance from Poynter.

When the new OWI director of the Motion Picture Bureau is selected, Bell will act as his liaison man in Hollywood. Many of the problems will be disposed of by Bell here under supervision of the director, saving both time and money for producing companies.

Bell has made a 100% record with his Foreign Bureau, and when Congress started to slash OWI appropriations, the financial drive was centered on the picture bureau headed by Mellett and dominated here by Poynter. Little or no funds were taken away from the foreign division, legislators agreeing that it was doing a good job.

Producers expressed confidence that the domestic bureau, under supervision of Bell here, would make equally as good record as the foreign branch.

Hoyt trained to San Francisco yesterday, following his meeting with the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers. He will remain there a day or two and then return to Washington to discuss with Government aides, exhibitors and other interested parties the appointment of a Mellett successor. Producers believe, however, that through appointment of Bell and his agreement to serve, many problems pertaining to propaganda, service films, etc., will be quickly disposed of without long delays and unnecessary expense as was often the rule when Poynter was handling the Domestic Branch here and acting as Mellett spokesman in Hollywood.

'Mission' Booked All Moscow Theatres

WLB Ups Band Pay at Beverly Tropics

War Labor Board has okayed pay raise for four musicians at the Beverly Tropics, with increase granted retroactive to March 27. Musicians Local 47 has been trying for some time to gain increase for small musical crew, on grounds that expensive cuisine and business done by Tropics justified raise in scale, as well as increased cost of living.

Retroactive pay totals $612. Scale jumps include raise from $42 a week for the three side men to $50, with leader going from $63 to $75. Four-piece band plays four hours nightly six nights a week.

'Dr. Wassell' Campaign To Equal 'Bell' Size

New York, July 28.—Paramount is lining up advertising-publicity campaign for 'The Story of Dr. Wassell' on same scale now being used for 'For Whom the Bell Tolls,' according to Neil Agnew, general sales manager. Agnew said that Robert M. Gillham, advertising-publicity director now on the coast for 'Bell,' is also confabbing with Cecil B. De Mille on campaign for 'Dr. Wassell.'

A week has gone by and Italy still hasn't answered the $64 question: quitting or not?

First asked by Prime Minister Churchill, it was repeated by President Roosevelt and again by General Eisenhower. The Allied high commander's message was a little more conciliatory in tone—BUT—it bespoke a determination which indicated that his patience was running short.

There has never been any doubt that Italy, one way or another, would be knocked out of the war. At present it is only a question of how. The unfortunate Italians' choice seems to be narrowed down to a selection between the Nazis and the Allies.

So far indications favor the Allies—but you can never tell.

ANOTHER demonstration that the public is escapist both in reading and in choice of films has been furnished the past week. Herald-Express which prints daily circulation figures yesterday revealed that its sales on Monday with the story of the downfall of Mussolini, biggest allied triumph of the war, reached 331,000. During the zoot suit episodes here the H & E touched 345,000 and on two or three occasions exceeded the Mussolini story mark. L. A. theatres the past week, with non-war pix in every first run house, showed a gain at the box office of $20,000 over the previous week when Mars ruled the screens. Recent national survey showed 40% drop off in attendance at pictures with war themes. Evidently, while there is no slackening in the determination of the public to fight the war through to victory, the people like other subjects for their entertainment.

OWI SAYS ADVERTISER PAID PICTURES NOT CONTEMPLATED

Washington, July 29.—OWI spokesmen admitted today that they had heard reports of national advertisers considering the production of shorts for the agency, but said no firm had yet approached them. James Allen, assistant chief of the OWI Domestic Branch, said that in his opinion OWI could not agree to War shorts financed by big business and carrying an advertising 'sponsored by' slug.

As early as last year, Allen said, one large firm offered to finance shorts for the Office of Civilian Defense on that basis. The offer was rejected. The only picture of this nature actually made, he said was 'Hidden Hunger,' produced for the Federal Security Agency with the backing of Swift and Co. packing house.

While no large corporation or advertising agency has yet approached OWI with a proposition, Screen Broadcasts, which makes advertising trailers, did make representations this week to James Rodgers, another assistant chief of the OWI Domestic Branch. Robert Harper, Washington rep of the firm, suggested that his firm be called in on the OWI program planning, so that Screen Broadcasts could make a series of trailers for OWI and then go out and sell local, sectional and national sponsorship for the pix. Rodgers made no promise and the indications are that he will not.

You can always tell an old resident of Hollywood by the way he pronounces Cahuenga Boulevard. It is the southern outlet to Cahuenga Pass where the Gringos once caused the surrender of the Southern California by cutting loose with a cannon which ruined a Mexican horse. Those were the days when steeds were scarce, before the birth of Santa Anita, or Inglewood, or Where the Turf Meets the Surf, or Agua Caliente, where the airplane workers meet the $2 windows every Sunday. You walk along Cahuenga blvd. today and find a circus tent a-flutter with pennants but not horses, camels or elephants and no steam calliope. You remember the time you were up before dawn to see the Gollmar Show pull in from Baraboo, Wis., with six white horses, each built with a landing deck like an airplane carrier. They lumbered around the ring with the precision of an eight-day clock while Mlle. La Flambeau, nee Agnes Mulcahy of Kenosha, leaped from horse to horse through rings of fire. So we have a bigtop in town, housing a sleight-of-hand show. How about Orson Welles as the daring young man on the flying trapeze?

What 'Young Ideas' lacks in flashiness, it more than makes up for in good sound entertainment values. It's an old idea clothed in new raiment and the results are satisfying for the average audience, picture stacking up as a swell sustaining feature on any double bill. Its producer, Robert Sisk, has endowed film with very excellent production qualities, Jules Dassin directed expertly from Ian McLellan Hunter and Bill Noble's breezy original screenplay and characters without exception are well enacted by capable cast.

Motivating theme, familiar enough but placed in new setting, is the attempt of two young people, Susan Peters and Elliott Reid, to break up the new marriage of their best-seller-writing mother, Mary Astor, when she up and weds Herbert Marshall, a somewhat stodgy college professor of chemistry. It isn't that they don't like their new stepfather; it's that Marshall expects his bride to give up her writing, and kids feel she should continue turning out best-sellers.

Action unfolds in college town where Marshall takes his new wife and four live under one roof. In their campaign, kids point out to Marshall that three of the characters in their mother's latest book, 'As I Saw Paris,' all spicy creatures, really are autobiographical, and otherwise implant seeds of suspicion and distrust in Marshall's mind as to Miss Astor's fidelity. When the brother tries similar tactics with Richard Carlson, young professor with whom his sister has fallen in love, and makes him believe that one of book characters is actually Susan, idea backfires and kids try too late to patch up havoc they've created. It all ends happily, though, in divorce court, where Marshall and Miss Astor make up.

Some of the action is far-fetched and drain on imagination, but idea generally is amusing and passes as entertainment. Marshall gives good account of himself in character off the beaten path for him, and Miss Astor appears all too briefly. After the dramatic start she's had in past pictures, Susan Peters seems somewhat lost in the insipid role she's cast in but manages to imbue it with charm. Elliott Reid is bright new personality and Richard Carlson delivers his usual good performance. Allyn Joslyn also has prominent role. Photography by Charles Lawton is up to expectations, Irene did costumes and credit goes to Cedric Gibbons and Leonid Vasian for art direction, and Edwin B. Willis and Mac Alper for set decorations. David Snell directed George Bassman's excellent musical composition.

Thach, USN. Flying scenes directed by Vernon Keays, photographed by William J. Kelly. Previewed at the Pantages, Hollywood, July 29, 1943. Running time: 103 MINS.

'We've Never Been Licked,' the story of the fighting sons of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, is a production of high merit, packed with tremendous appeal—and pride—for any American. The quality, showmanship and entertainment by virtue of Walter Wanger's production gives Universal a money picture—a picture that can and will get box office coin, despite absence of usual marquee names upon which to hang its selling. Stirring, forceful, this story of the Texas Aggies strikes home and adds up as screen entertainment that will doff its hat to none.

Conceived by Wanger some two years ago, and produced to a great extent on the campus of Texas' famous college, 'We've Never Been Licked' takes the public into a great American institution—the schoolroom, this one building for both war and peaceful pursuits—to picture native pride in scholarly and military tradition. The hazing of the uninitiated typical of collegiates, the boning at dry learning and other school-boy patterns lend the human touch to the grimmer business of preparing youth for proud service in Uncle Sam's fighting forces.

These phases, the threading of the story line through the school routine, the clash of deadly war, etc., come to life under the forceful direction of John Rawlins definitely establishing him as a director with intelligent talent for either mass or intimate scenes and fully justifying Wanger's confidence in turning over the assignment to him.

The cast is a group of almost unknown youths each of whom makes a public mark here that will linger. Plot focuses on Richard Quine and his four years at Texas A. and M., his roommate and buddy, Noah Beery, Jr., and Anne Gwynne beloved by all the Aggies. Smart script by Norman Reilly Raine and Nick Grinde from Raine's original, projects upon the fictional phases a deep understanding of A. and M. tradition and the high places of honor occupied by many of its warrior graduates.

Quine, son of a fighting officer, enters the College after years in the Orient with his dad. A smart-alec attitude is soon forgotten but a mis-

Black Hills Express

(Western)

Republic release. Stars Don 'Red' Barry, with Wally Vernon, Ariel Heath, George Lewis, William Halligan, Hooper Atchley, Charles Miller, Pierce Lydon, Jack Rockwell, Bob Kortman, Al Taylor. Director, John English. Associate producer, Eddy White. Screen play, Norman Hall, Fred Myton. Original story, Fred Myton. Photography, Ernest Miller. Film editor, Harry Keller. Sound, Ed Borschell. Art director, Russell Kimball. Set decorations, Charles Thompson. Musical score, Mort Glickman. Reviewed at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, July 29, 1943. Running time: 55 MINS.

Don 'Red' Barry romps home a winner again with 'Black Hills Express,' a slam-bang western that measures up in all respects for the outdoor fan. Combining happily with heroics of Barry is the foolery of Wally Venon as a slap-happy deputy sheriff. John English's direction and the production guidance of Eddy White deal out the stoy values to fit the market for an all-around neat package of oater entertainment.

In this one Barry is a gun-slinger with a price on his head, although really not such a bad egg. Gang headed by a United States marshal and a banker are robbing Wells Fargo stages, attaching blame on Barry. That doesn't fool stage owner, who calls in Barry to save the company from bankruptcy and foil plot to buy up the stage franchise at a bargain. Barry starts his gunning, gradually subtracting from the gang until kingpins get worried and hire a killer to get Barry. That doesn't work and Barry tricks leaders out into the open for final roundup.

Norman Hall and Fred Myton scripted from latter's original and excellent photography was turned in by Ernest Miller.

Leading the dirty work are William Halligan, crooked U. S. marshal, who injects genuine villainry, and George Lewis. Ariel Heath needs much more experience before tackling even such a slight chore as western heroine. Others in the cast measure up to action demands capably.

Cheyenne Roundup

(Western With Songs)

Universal release. Stars Johnny Mack Brown and Tex Ritter, with Fuzzy Knight. Others in cast: Jennifer Holt, Harry Woods, Robert Barron, Roy Barcroft, Budd Buster, Roy Brent, Ken Duncan, Gil Patric, Jimmy Wakely Trio. Director, Ray Taylor. Associate producer, Oliver Drake. Screen play, Elmer Clifton, Bernard McConville. Original, Elmer Clifton. Photography, William Sickner. Art director, Jack Otterson; associate, Ralph De Lacy. Musical director, H. J. Salter. Film editor, Otto Ludwig. Sound supervisor, Bernard B. Brown; technician, Jess Moulin. Songs, Oliver Drake, Jimmy Wakely, Milton Rosen, Everett Carter. Assistant director, Melville Shyer. Reviewed at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, July 29, 1943. Running time: 58 MINS.

Johnny Mack Brown and Tex Ritter team handily to mark 'Cheyenne Roundup' as a capable entry for the western market. Dealing with a ghost town and a gold rush, advantageous use is made of stock footage from earlier oaters to add more-than-spent production values, the old being mixed with the new smoothly. In for fun, and doing a first rate job is Fuzzy Knight, ghost town owner who is given a ride by a band of bad men who take over.

Plot uses the old twin brother theme, one good and one bad, with Brown neatly handling dual assignment. As the baddie, Brown heads foursome of toughies kicked out of Quartet declare themselves in, prepare to stage a phony gold rush but a real bonanza comes through with gang riding high as town rulers. Miners recruit Tex Ritter, Mesquite county sheriff, to clean up. The bad twin is killed as he seeks to stop Ritter and the good Brown comes in to work with new sheriff. There is plenty of gun-and-fist fighting for action under Ray Taylor's direction—although plenty of wasted lead—and remaining crooks get their come-uppance.

Harry Woods, Robert Barron and Roy Barcroft are the villains. Jennifer Holt does the outdoor romance and Jimmy Wakely Trio spot good western tunes, aided on one by Ritter's baritone. William Sickner photographed the Oliver Drake production. Latter also did the tunes with Wakely, Milton Rosen and Everett Carter.

Femmepower Rises in Studios, Note 50% Membership in Guild

Taking advantage of the manpower shortage, femme workers are not only taking over many studio jobs formerly held by men, but in addition are moving into high spots in film unions and guilds. In several organizations, the femme membership equals or exceeds that of men, with many of them having been elected to the various union executive boards.

List is headed by Mary C. McCall, Jr., who was elected president of the Screen Writers Guild, and representative of the independent guilds on the industry's Labor-Management Committee, which acts in an advisory capacity to the War Manpower Commission. Margaret Roberts, Jane Murfin and Gladys Lehman also are members of the SWG Executive Board, which handles policy matters for one of the biggest crafts in the studios.

Approximately 50% of the membership of the Screen Cartoonists Guild is women. Celine Miles, Metro, is financial secretary of the Guild and a member of the Executive Board. Barbara Baldwin, Screen Gems, is recording secretary and also a member of the board. Claudia Hubley represents the Walter Lantz unit on the Guild board.

Femme workers have practically taken over the Screen Office Employes Guild, working as messengers and in other spots formerly held by male workers. Approximately 75% of the membership is composed of femmes. Like the SWG, the post of president is held by a femme. Margaret Bennett is serving her second term, having been drafted when she attempted to retire after serving one year. Blanche Cole is recording secretary, Betty Andrews trustee, Esther Stephenson warden and Judie Jurs conductor. Femmes elected 25 out of 37 Executive Board members.

Femme members of the SOEG Executive Board are Betsy Rosenmyer, Ruth Schultz, Roberta Thomas, Goldine Stein, Kathleen Anstine, Aileen Wahl, Betty Andrews, Marjorie Lewin, Lillian Hurwitz, Hert Uerkvitz, Frances Freedman, Ethel Simpson, Lillian Donohue, Mary Simpson, Rosella McGrath, June Brentinger, Julie Armonda, Emily Benton, Rose Matlin, Yetta Soicher, Ethel Stephenson, Helen Pade, Katherine McAuliffe, Margaret Bennett and Blanche Cole.

While Dorothy Alexander is the only femme member of the Executive Board of Film Technicians Local 683, a big portion of the membership is composed of women and those receiving permits since the emergency will run 60% femmes.

About 25% of the membership of the Screen Publicists Guild is composed of femmes, many of them the wives of flacks now in the armed services. The Society of Motion Picture Film Editors also has about 75 femme workers.

There has been considerable talk of even using women as lamp operaators, laborers and on other jobs if the labor situation becomes more acute.

In addition to Mary C. McCall, Jr., serving on the industry over-all Labor-Management Committee, Martha Goldman and Helen Curry are serving on the Labor-Management Committee at Leon Schlesinger, which already has made recommendations that speeded film delivery and cut production costs. Before the emergency is ended, officials say women may take over many other studio jobs now held by men.

Industry Seeks Some 'Essential' Jobs on WMC Ruling

Washington, July 29.—Pressure is being exerted here to get several film production 'essential' jobs on the new War Manpower Commission's 'critical' list due within the next three weeks.

Industry spokesmen are not too optimistic about their chances, but they are making all possible efforts on behalf of cameramen, soundmen, cutters and other technicians. It is hoped by some officials that Government agencies such as OWI and the armed services, who know the morale-building value of films, also will put in a good word with the WMC.

The critical list as of today does not contain a single film industry job, and WMC spokesmen have indicated that it will not.

'TITA' Stands 'Em in Street for Opening At NY H'wood

New York, July 29.—Irving Berlin's 'This Is The Army' today started out in sensational fashion at the Hollywood theatre here, where film is scaled from 44c to $1.25, after receiving pleasing notices, with all the standees the house can accommodate, and with lines all day. Estimated that gross on day will be $7,500 for an opening record at the theatre.

Because of the long lines formed two hours before the opening at 9 a.m., by noon there were enough people outside to fill the Hollywood twice, according to Zeb Epsin, managing director. Nine performances are being given.

'Army' had a special premiere last night at $2.20 to $55 for 100% benefit of Army Emergency Relief.

'This Is The Army' opens at three Warners houses in Los Angeles Aug. 17. A big drive will be made to establish a new box office record as the proceeds of the opening at the Downtown, Hollywood and Wiltern Theatres will go to the Army Emergency Relief Fund.

Play Review

'SILK HAT HARRY'

Vincent Lawrence's comedy of the theatre had its break in at the Music Box last night and according to the producers, William Harris and Irving Jacobs, will tarry here for only two weeks before it is shipped to Broadway. Plotted as a play within a play its unfoldment is slightly mystifying at times and not too easy to follow. Perhaps that will be taken care of before the New Yorkers have their first glimpse of a new Lawrence play in more than a decade. Running well past eleven o'clock on its bow-in, the length also will have to be snipped.

Three act piece, which derives its title symbolically from an enveloping octopus in the steeped imagination of a likker-laden playwright and not from comic strip of another generation, picks up at the try-out of a play in New Haven. Third act comes a cropper and the only one who can fix it up is one Jack Willard, greatest playwright of his time but now deep in his cups. First act is given over to sobering up Willard for the mighty effort. He tears the play apart, lays open the infidelities of friends and wears down the performers. Closing act is finally whipped into shape with laughs and strong language peppering the proceedings. It would seem that some of the salty dialogue is dragged in needlessly.

Play is gifted with a first rate cast, topped by Leon Ames in a capital performance as the drunken playwright. Joan Woodbury gives a strong dramatic characterization as one of the cheating wives and Wynne Gibson carries the lighter moments skillfully. Art Smith, as the producer makes the blustery part stand out. Others who contribute good portrayals are: John Eldredge, Gregg Lomond, Guy Kingsford, Robert Malcolm, Clifford Brooke, Harry Worth, George Dudley, Harry McDonald, Mary Lawrence, Eve McVeagh, Penny Brierley. Harris staged and the settings are by Stewart Chaney.

'Silk Hat Harry,' will get to Broadway undoubtedly much improved over last night's break in. Its chances for a stand there must be premised on what tinkering and tightening has been done by playwright Lawrence in the meantime. He may even have to call in Jack Willard to help out.

Carlton Alsop, who produced the radio version of 'Abie's Irish Rose,' takes over the reins on the Judy Canova show from Diana Bourbon, who leaves Wednesday for London to join radio division of Office of War Information.

Rival Extras Leaders Meet Sun. on Anti-SAG Autonomy

Meeting of film extra leaders called for last night to attempt a merger of rival groups fighting for autonomy from the Screen Actors Guild was postponed until Sunday night. At that time, it is understood an entirely new organization, composed of representatives from all extras classifications, will make its appearance with a declaration that it is interested only in a separate autonomous charter from the Associated Actors and Artistes of America or the American Federation of Labor.

It is reported new organization will include many leaders now in other groups, but that the latter will remain in the field to carry on individual fights. Tops are said to have drafted a simple petition asking for an autonomous charter and will hurridly circulate these on studio sets in order to get a representative number of names.

While no announcements will be made in advance of the meeting, it is understood that Hal Craig, bit player, and Lee Powell are active in the new organization.

Frisco AFRA In Staff Announcer Tilt Bid

San Francisco, July 29.—American Federation of Radio Artists local here is negotiating with KPO, KGO, KSFO and KYA for a new standardized contract, providing pay increases for staff announcers. placed regard for the Japanese lingers until it brings eventual misunderstanding with his fellow students just prior to Pearl Harbor. He awakens to Jap treachery when a chemical formula which he is guarding is sought by the enemy and he forsakes school, honor and friends to enter service of the Japs as an American Lord Haw-Haw in order to best serve his country. This service results in leading his A. and M. flying buddies to a Jap carrier for the smash finale—and to Quine's honorable death.

Quine's work is a standout, handled with talented assurance. Noah Beery, Jr., gives a big boost to his screen career by the fine work as Quine's room-mate—a sterling performance. Anne Gwynne lends ability and charm to the lesser assignment as the beloved of both Quine and Beery. Harry Davenport, an understanding professor, gives the role assured experience. Bob Mitchum, an upper class student; William Frawley, a traitor; Edgar Barrier, a Jap spy; Roland Got and Allen Jung, Jap students; William Blees, Alfredo De Sa, Martha O'Driscoll, Samuel S. Hinds and Moroni Olsen complete the smart casting.

Photography by Milton Krasner lends importance to the sweeping action as a major contribution to the production. Final battle scene filmed with the cooperation of the Navy shows magnificent action. William J. Kelly and Vernon Keays gave skillful photography and direction to the flying scenes respectively. Stirring use is made of the Texas Aggies' student body for mass movement and music. Charles Previn directed the music; Frank Skinner did the score and vocal arrangements were by Ken Darby. Art direction, sound, film editing, the military technical advice by Col. J. K. Boles, U. S. Army, and other technical cerdits are of high order.

Nunnally Johnson in NY For Plays Gander

Nunnally Johnson, first producer to go with William Goetz under International Pictures, Inc., banner, arrived yesterday in New York for gander at Broadway plays as possible properties. Before returning here in about two weeks, Johnson will finish play being written for Jed Harris, New York stage producer.

U. S. X-RAYS CONSENT DECREE

INDIES KICK OVER PAID PREVIEW

Announcement by 20th-Fox that trade press screenings of 'Heaven Can Wait' will be held in theatres before paying audiences has drawn ire of Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners. Organization, branding 20th-Fox move as a return to 'commercialized previews,' has sent letter to Tom Connors, general manager, protesting plan and charging it is in violation of the consent decree.

America Looks Abroad

with ROBERT ARDEN

As this column has held all along the surrender of Italy has not taken place and probably will not for quite some time. It is difficult to surrender to the Allies while Nazi forces are in control of all the vital installations, industries and communication centers.

A surrender to the Allies means a fight with the Nazis, and for this Italy is ill equipped.

However, the military situation indicates Allied activity against the Italian mainland. Whether this comes as a consequence of the delayed surrender or as a continuance of the Allied strategy makes no difference.

What is of importance however are the political shadings that are coloring the scene.

CUT SHORTS AS REELS TAKE OVER BATTLE PIX

Washington, Aug. 1.—New OWI film policy was described yesterday by James Rodgers, assistant chief of the Domestic Branch, as follows: 'We want to give the people pictures of the War and the fighting, first of all. Second, we want to get across some information programs.'

Rodgers left the door wide open on whether this meant that OWI would seek to cut down on the number of propaganda shorts being handled by the War Activities Committee. It is presumable OWI will not be too concerned with how the job is done so long as it is done.

Hint here was that the newsreels would be permitted to handle the large bulk of actual war films, with the Army making less and less. Rodgers said that the policy on the information or propaganda shorts, remains to be decided by Palmer Hoyt, chief of the OWI Domestic Branch. He is to make the ultimate decision on the number of shorts to be produced for various Government agencies for general public consumption. Feeling here is that the number will be curbed as much as possible. 'It will be talked out with the industry,' promised Rodgers.

MONOGRAM is sending out 'Her First Romance' under re-issue title of 'The Right Man,' with complete switch on press book and paper to Alan Ladd and Julie Bishop, instead of picture's leads, Edith Fellows and Wilbur Evans. When first release in 1940 film plugged growth of Miss Fellows into a young lady and her first grownup role, with Ladd only among supporting feature players. Miss Bishop, now at Warners, then used film name of Jacqueline Wells and was so billed in press book and paper. I. E. Chadwick production is figured to cash in on strength of the Ladd name through re-issue, hence title change and switcheroo on billings. Odd note in original press book, written without any thought of prophecy, was story pointing out scene-stealing ability of Ladd. Original billing listed Miss Fellows and Evans as leads. Now its Ladd, Miss Bishop, Miss Fellows and Evans in that order.

WAGE earners in motion picture production received $14.67 more each week during June, 1943, than June, 1942, and show a jump of $4.44 for the month over May, 1943, according to figures released in California Labor Statistics Bulletin. Average weekly earnings for June this year were $70.81, as compared to $56.13 in June 1942 and $66.37 in May, 1943. To earn this money, workers put in an average of 44.7 hours a week at $1.583 per hour. Total weekly hours for May were 43.5 at $1.527 per hour, and in June, 1942, hours averaged 37.4 each week at $1.501 per hour. Index of employment shows slight drop in number of workers on the job during June as compared to May, figures being 99.4% against 99.8%, but registered an increase over June, 1942, index of 93.6%. Payroll index was up to 158.9% for June over May's 149.5%, and June, 1942's 119.9%.

Brass Hats Tip Lids to Combat Camera Crews

Washington, Aug. 1.—War Department doffed its lid here yesterday to the combat cameramen and still photogs of its Signal Corps, for the calibre of films being shot in the current Sicilian invasion.

It announced that Col. Melvin Gillette, former head of the Astoria studio, is attached to General Eisenhower's headquarters staff in North Africa, in charge of films; with Lt.-Col. Robert Shaw, Gillette's aide at Astoria, on the ground in Sicily directing the camera crews there.

After the films are shot in Sicily, they are rushed back to North Africa for editing. Capt. Reynolds A. Scott, one of the three cameramen who shot 'Report From the Aleutians,' is one of those in charge in North Africa under Gillette.

Bergen Ends Camp Tour

Edgar Bergen returned over the weekend from three weeks of entertaining in military establishments of Newfoundland. Along about that time your grandpop wandered home on payday night with a little hunk of peppermint candy, built like a miniature doughnut, hidden in his cheek. It was called a life saver and it was designed to conceal the fact that your grandpop had hesitated for a few snifters at McLaughlin's bar on his way home, but it never fooled your grandma any more than cloves or sen-sen did. You thought it was only a passing fad but you were all wrong. Since those simple days the little round hunk of candy with the hole in the middle has been parlayed into control of the Blue Network, with 150 stations, valued at 8,000,000 solid cartwheels. All because your grandpop and thousands of other grandpops hesitated at the corner on the way home from work on Saturday night.

The Saint Meets the Tiger

(Melodrama)

Republic picture, produced in England. Cast: Hugh Sinclair, Jean Gillie, Gordon McLeod, Clifford Evans, Wylie Watson, Dennis Arundell, Charles Victor, Louise Hampton, John Salew, Arthur Hambling, Amy Veness, Claude Bailey, Noel Dainton, Eric Clavering, Ben Williams, John Slater, Tony Quinn, Alf Goddard. Director, Paul Stein. Producer, William Sistrom. Screenplay, Leslie Arliss, Wolfgang Wilhelm, James Seymour. From novel, 'Meet the Tiger,' by Leslie Charteris. Photography, Bob Krasker. Art director, Paul Sheriff. Editor, Ralph Kemplen. Costumes, Honoria Pleasch. Previewed in Hollywood, Aug. 1, 1943. Running time: 70 MINS.

Produced apparently with an eye more for British consumption than for American market, best this picture can hope for is second billing on nabe double programs. It's not sharp enough for American audiences, not the type of film they'll accept seriously nor sort of up-to-minute technique they're accustomed to seeing and enjoying. Consequent footage leaves much to be desired as action picture.

'Saint' must not be confused with series RKO put out several years ago. Produced in England, film has all-English cast, although directed by Paul Stein, who once was Hollywood director, and William Sistrom, who produced 'Saint' series at RKO, again functions in similar capacity for picture in Britain. Film is based upon exploits of popular character made famous by books of Leslie Charteris, present feature being adapted from author's novel, 'Meet the Tiger.'

'Tiger' in this case is somewhat indefinite character of underworld, who is trying to smuggle £5,000,000 in gold ingots out of England, at same time planning to bleed public out of millions by salting a mine. The 'Saint,' in person of Hugh Sinclair, enters plot when a man is murdered on his doorstep, repeats name of an English town before he dies. Whereupon 'Saint,' a fabulous character whom Scotland Yard would like to pin something onto but who prefers to work alone in solving case, goes to this town on seacoast with his valet, to see what he can learn, and immediately is plunged into maze of mystery from which he extricates himself with his customary neat dispatch. There's a girl, too, who helps him solve the crime and recover the gold.

Story had ingredients of good picture, which simply did not jell in style presented. Americans will laugh in wrong places. Most believable character is that of the 'Tiger,' portrayed by Clifford Evans, person of the 'Saint,' as depicted by Sinclair, being bit on maddeningly-confident side. There are occasional good bits of action, however, which hold interest. Characters are more to be censured than screenplay. Jean Gillie enacts the girl in traditional English fashion, Wylie Watson is in as 'Saint's' valet for comedy relief, Gordon McLeod is a too-stuffy Scotland Yard inspector and Dennis Arundell and Charles Victor provide menace. Picture, photographed by Bob Krasker, is typically British.

Landers Megs 'Vampire'

Lew Landers will direct 'The Return of the Vampire' for Columbia producer Sam White with start slated Aug. 16.

$8,000,000 BLUE NET SALE TO NOBLE INKED BY RCA

New York, Aug. 1.—Sale of the Blue network of 159 stations was finally consummated last weekend, with Edward J. Noble the buyer. Transaction is reported to have involved the cash payment of $8,000,000 to Radio Corporation of America. Chain was unloaded by RCA, also owner of NBC, under pressure from Washington which recently ruled against dual network ownership. Change in ownership and operation is immediately effective.

New owner of the Blue is chairman of the board of Lifesavers Corp. and an important stockholder in Procter & Gamble and Sterling Products. He is owner of radio station WMCA, New York, and was onetime under-secretary of commerce. In a closed circuit talk to affiliate station personnel after the papers were signed, Noble assured all employes there would be no changes at this time and that Mark Woods would continue as president, and Edgar Kobak as executive veepee.

Three stations owned by the Blue are included in the transaction. They are KGO, Oakland, 7,500 watts; WJZ, New York, 50,000 watts, and WENR, Chicago, 50,000 watts.

Don E. Gilman v.p. in charge of the Blue network's western division, hailed the change in ownership as 'a happy conclusion to many months of constructive development of the new, but old, network.' No changes are contemplated, he declared, because the Blue is a going and successful network. He said the entire personnel of the chain is gratified and enthusiastic over what will undoubtedly prove enlarged and useful service to the radio public.

YACHT CLUB BOYS ZIP LIPS ON RETURN

New York, Aug. 1.—George Kelly, Charles Adler, Rodney McLennon and Jimmy Brown the Yacht Club boys who returned here last week after a seven month off-shore tour to entertain American troops charted new routes into the Middle East and spent several months in the front lines following conquering troops through Tunisia.

They left Algiers for home day that Jack Benny with his entourage of Larry Adler, Wini Shaw and Anna Lee group arrived for a three-month tour of American bases.

The quartet say they have thrilling yarns to spin about their trip but will have to forego the telling until they check in with the War Department in Washington to narrate them and get an official censor okay before they unbutton their lips.

Pascal Signs Six-Pix Pact With Bronston

Ernest Pascal has signed 6-picture producer-writer pact with Samuel Bronston Productions. Pascal, who scripted 'Jack London,' must turn out films within three-year period. Writer is in New York negotiating for motion picture rights to several novels and plays in which Bronston is interested.

Pichel Draws 'Harvest'

Irving Pichel was set by Paramount to handle direction on 'Tomorrow's Harvest,' over weekend. Picture, to be produced by David Lewis, is currently in scripting stage by Lenore Coffee.

U Uses 350 Extras

Universal made use of 350 bit players and extras Saturday for six pictures.

PIX FOR 15,000,000 ILLITERATES

Walt Disney announced over the weekend plans for a new series of pictures designed especially for illiterates. Speaking over NBC from New York on the 'World of Sight and Sound,' he discussed the place of motion pictures in education and added:

'In co-operation with the Office of the Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs and our State Department, we are working on a series of films to combat the problem of world illiteracy. There are more than 3,000,000 people in this country who cannot write their own name. Another 15,000,000 are unable to read a newspaper.

'Our plan is a new and exciting adventure and another tributary on the highway to progress in the post-war world.'

Legit Goes on Spree; 'Nancy's Affair' Really Private

Legit went on a mid-summer spree last week with three openings. Rated best chance to succeed in their present habitat is 'The New Meet the People,' which is settled for a long and profitable run at Assistance League Playhouse. Limited stand of 'Silk Hat Harry' at the Music Box before shoving east may be trimmed to less than two weeks and a half if biz doesn't hold up.

Unfavorable press will militate against any profit-taking on the breakin. Myron Fagan's dated whimsy, 'Nancy's Private Affair,' is a weakie on many counts and won't keep the Mayan lighted for long.

Choice of 'Nancy' by Fagan for his return to the theatre here was a bad stroke of showmanship. Piece is too dated, creaks with pat situations and the pace slowed by too much gab. Casting is of stock calibre and only outstander is Charles Purcell, late of operettas, who knows his way around and can cover up a muffed line with the best of them. Isabel Jewell is not a happy choice for the lead but struggles through the part of the neglected but wily wife with too much energy and not enough finesse on the transition from the ugly duckling to the sleek matron. As the gold-digging menace of the play, Jacqueline Dalya fails to measure up and had the audience chuckling at serious situations.

Ruth Gillette, also from the operettas, plays the scheming mother with too much emphasis, or less politely put, hams it. Edward Woods as the moody husband acts like a football player in a high school play and spends most of his time huffing it from room to room. Sarah Selby, who acts like an actress, has little to do but arrange the room for her guests. A phony scion of a diamond king planted to break up an affair is essayed by George Leigh in the usual demean of a bounder.

Nancy affair probably will remain too private for the good of the play. It won't get around enough to keep the ticket sellers too busy.

'Last Express' Bought For Edward Arnold

ALL COAST WRITERS DUE TO SIGN ASCAP EXTENSION

New contract forms, extending writer and publisher memberships in Ascap 15 years beyond the 1950 expiration, arrived in the mail over the weekend and immediate signaturing by all Coast writers is anticipated. L. Wolfe Gilbert, Coast rep of Songwriters Protective Association, recommended to writers acceptance of the terms embodied in the new covenant following a long distance phone discussion with E. C. Mills, SPA prexy, in New York. Both are agreed that the new contract protects the songwriters' interest in performing rights and participation in ownership of the copyright for a longer period than they had hoped for.

Letter accompanying the contract forms explains the purpose of the extended membership and indicated one of the reasons is to counteract 'a tendency among certain writer members to foment discord within the Society.' Gilbert and Mills believe the new contract reflects a conciliatory gesture by publishers and hail it as both a concession by publishers and a victory for the writers. Many writer-members are inclined to the belief that the 15-year extension precludes the possibility of any publisher sessions from the organization, as was hinted, when the old pact would have expired in 1950. Move by Ascap also is interpreted as dissipating any court action resulting from the BMI-Marks suit regardless of the outcome.

in full swing at the others before the end of this week. Clark is inviting all complainants against the decree to tell their stories and present their evidence to the regional U. S. attorneys.

'I want out people,' Clark told Daily Variety, 'to interview everybody with a real complaint against the motion picture consent decree. I began to get some real inkling of these complaints when I was on the Coast. As a result of that visit and what I learned there, I decided that the best way to proceed would be to have our branches in all parts of the country to go to work to gather the evidence.

'This will not only speed up the preliminary phase, but will also give us an overall national picture. We will be able to determine, for example, whether the same complaints exist everywhere, or whether there ar separate regional flaws in the decree and its operations. When we put all this information together, we will be better able to proceed with the case.'

Regional anti-trust offices are located at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Denver, Chicago, Dallas, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, New Orleans, St. Louis and Kansas City. In addition, Robert Wright, special deputy attorney general, who has worked on the consent decree since it went into effect in 1940, will gather information in Washington and will whip together the reports from the various parts of the country.

Clark said he will not lay his plans for future action until he has time to study the reports.

Par Moves 'Bell' Preem Up to Aug. 16, Day Ahead of 'TITA'

Paramount will premiere 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' at the Carthay Circle theatre Monday night, Aug. 16, instead of previously proposed date of Aug. 18. Switch has picture bowing in the night before Warners holds special premiere of 'This Is the Army' at the Downtown, Hollywood and Wiltern theatres on Tuesday, Aug. 17, instead of following. Decision for new date was received from New York Paramount headquarters latter part of last week.

'Bell' will open day-date with the Carthay Circle at the United Artists, downtown Fox West Coast house, Aug. 17, following Hollywood premiere. Policy for run will be two-a-day showings with week-day evenings and both matinee and night weekend showings at $1.65 and $1.10. Week-day mats are scaled at $1.10 and 85 cents.

Paramount Los Angeles and Hollywood theatres, as well as F-WC de luxe houses will run trailers week preceding Carthay opening plugging film, giving 'Bell' ballyoo in seven first run houses.

Gillham Heads Home

Robert Gillham, Paramount home office advertising-publicity chief, heads back to New York tomorrow, following two weeks of confabs here with George Brown, studio publicity director, and other execs.

MILLER STICKS IN POST; DEMANDS AIR FREEDOM

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Neville Miller's status as president of National Association of Broadcasters remains unchanged following a meeting here by the board of directors presumably called for the purpose of outsing Miller from his position. Telegram from W. B. Lewis asking that his name be withdrawn as possible successor to Miller changed the entire complexion of the meeting although it was denied that the session had any bearing on the termination of Miller's contract.

Several opposing members of the board attended with the avowed purpose of voting Miller out of office if enough strength could be mustered. Lewis' wire threw a monkey wrench into their plans leaving them no alternative but to continue Miller in office. The board passed three resolutions at the one-day meeting.

First one declared the meeting was called to consider proposals of its legislative committee. Second resolved that a nominating committee of six be elected to present to the board its recommendation for president of NAB at the expiration of the incumbent's contract, the committee to report to the board at its next regular or specially called meeting for that purpose. Named were Don Elias, Nashville, Tenn.; G. Richard Shafto, Columbia, S. C.; John Gillin, Jr., Omaha; J. O. Maland, Hartford, Conn. A chairman of the committee remained to be elected. This resolution expressed regret that extenuating circumstances intervened to preclude Lewis' availability as possible successor to Miller at the expiration in 1944 of the latter's six-year incumbency in office. Meeting was attended by 23 of the board's 25 members. Absentees were Frank King, Jacksonville, Fla., and Art Westlund, Berkeley, Cal.

In addressing the board members, Miller declared that freedom of speech on the air must be preserved at all costs. He said that new legislation is the only hope of free radio in America and 'the present power of Federal Communications Commission to say what the American public shall hear over the air, if exercised, would amount to government control of radio and this power could be used for propaganda purposes and therefore constitutes a threat to our free institutions.' Miller added that the NAB is backing the White-Wheeler bill in the senate, which seeks to define the powers of the FCC and to separate radio broadcasting from such other communications utilities as the telephone and telegraph.

20th Opens First of Sales Meets Today With Gab on Shorts

New York, Aug. 1.—First of three regional sales meetings of 20th-Fox opens at the Astor Hotel here tomorrow with about 200 attending from the eastern area. Initial day will be devoted to shorts product and release of product up to, and including 'Stormy Weather,' last of the 1942-43 pictures.

Schedule is expected to reveal only 40 shorts on next season's program, or 12 less than the current season, with 'March of Time' again the standout as on present year's schedule.

Tom Connors, general manager, gives the welcoming address with W. J. Kupper, his executive assistant, taking over the New York session. A. W. Smith, Jr., eastern sales chief, conducts the meeting after these preliminaries. Eastern shorts production, newsreel staff and a talk by William Clark, shorts manager, figure importantly on the first day's program, with outstanding 'March of Time' producers and executives also scheduled to make speeches.

SUB FOR 1c ADMISH TAX PLANNED

NEW IDEA TO BE DRAWN THIS WK.

Committee of representatives from motion picture, labor, professional and retail fields will be named this week to draft a substitute revenue-raising ordinance to replace proposed one-cent admissions tax, now before the City Council, as a result of a meeting Friday in office of Mayor Fletcher Bowron. Latter named James L. Beebe, attorney with O'Melveny & Myers, to act as chairman of the committee, which will seek solution to city's need for additional revenue without placing burden solely on places of amusement.

During Friday's meeting, Mayor Bowron declared the city's income was down while expenses were up and means must be found to help balance the budget. He made it plain that he believed the proposed admissions tax was unfair in many respects and was open to suggestions that might result in raising money without penalizing a single industry. He said greatest need was to find a way to tap war-coin lined pockets of some 500,000 or more 'transients' now here reaping benefits of Los Angeles' improvement and industry without contributing one cent to maintaining city government.

Cocktail bars and amusement spots are the only ones tapping the 'transient's' pocket, the mayor declared, and a perfect solution would be a means of effecting a division of taxes, not increasing them, so every one would pay an equal share. He also made it plain that admission tax should not be connected with needed sewage work, as the city has funds on hands to carry out repairs.

While Los Angeles theatremen fight what they believe would be a precedental tax opening way for similar levies around the country, other Southern California municipalities are starting to groom measures to jump on the tax-wagon if ordinance is adopted here. Pomona has already proposed a two-cent tax and state of Washington has been thrown wide open for its cities to impose a levy on the theatre and public. Washington legislators recently vacated admissions tax field and gave cities the right to adopt their own nicks.

Estimated that Washington cities will garner a grand total of $1,440,000 next year through box office levies, with city of 20,000 or more population contributing about 75 cents per capita, with those less than 20,000 population contributing about 50 cents per capita.

Proposed one-half of one-per cent sales or use tax that was brought up before Los Angeles City Council at same time as one cent admission tax was defeated Friday morning by a vote of 10 to four.

WHAT CHANCE HAS A GAL GOT?

New Haven, Aug. 1.—They're telling this one on the Yale campus where the Army has an AAFTTC School. Neat young thing tapped a corporal on the shoulder and pointed to former film player Corporal Broderick Crawford. 'Pardon me, soldier,' said the lass, 'but isn't that soldier over there a movie actor?' First corporal took a look at Crawford, made a face, and objected: 'That guy? No lady. He's no actor; he's a bum.' Gal walked off, disillusioned. Name of the first corporal was Tony Martin.

INDIVIDUAL ENTERPRISE! HE HASN'T ANYTHING ELSE BUT

Hollywood story came to life latter part of last week at Universal preview held at Pantages Theatre. Bob Moak, of Universal publicity staff who handles previews, was bit late in arriving at door, and found handsome youth passing out tickets and credits to press. Moak naturally assumed he belonged to theatre.

Later, John Joseph, national publicity head, asked Moak who the boy was and latter told him he was attached to theatre. Rodney Pantages, house operator, came up few minutes later, and, upon injuiry, said he never saw boy before.

Moak thereupon approached youth, who said his name was Jones and that he had been member of Universal time department for two days. He vouchsafed information that when he arrived at theatre, nobody was on hand to greet press and he had thought studio should be represented.

Jones now stands good chance of becoming permanent member of publicity department, for he's up for interview this week with Joseph. Publicity boys already are laying plans to plug him for acting career, for with his looks and personality he's natural.

Harmon Gushes on Hollywood's Knowledge

Speaking over WEAF, New York Saturday on the 'For This We Fight' program, Francis Harmon, executive vice-prexy of the War Activities Committee, declared the twin functions of motion pictures is 'to entertain and to inform.' Referring to the part pictures are playing in the War, Harmon said:

'But the war also has given belated impetus to the use of the non-theatrical motion picture as a visual aid in education. Thousands of training films upon a variety of subjects, both technical and general, have provided quick and effective instruction to several million men in the armed services. Once the fighting stops, motion pictures may well become the chief visual aid in comprehensive educational programs not only for millions still in uniform, but also for even large numbers of civilians in the freed countries and in Axis lands occupied by United Nations forces.'

In recalling that the talking picture made its appearance only 16 years ago, Harmon declared 'Hollywood succeeded where Geneva failed.' He said pictures achieved present international influence and worldwide usefulness during a period when other types of international relationships were breaking down.

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—One casualty of the drastic whittling down of the OWI Motion Picture Bureau is the British Information Service in this country. Lowell Mellett formerly handled distribution of BIS shorts and even footed the bill for the raw stock.

Robert Ford, head of BIS film unit here probably will deal directly with WAC in the future and the British will have to pay for their own raw film.

Incidentally, all started shorts of the OWI film unit have been completed except three. These are 'Malaria Control,' 'Industrial Recreation' and 'White Collar Worker.' All they need is some final polishing and editing. Best opinion here is that WAC will undertake to finish and distribute them.

MAJORS SCOUT 'STRANGER'

SCOUTS for Warner's, Paramount, MGM, Universal and the New York Theatre Guild were in town past week to look at 'Stranger at the Gate,' dramatic production of Catholic University. Work of Patricia Treadwell, now a WAC captain, story deals with the daughter of a U. S. Senator in search of love. Locale is mostly wartime D. C., with the gal finally finding herself an artist in Mexico.

Should the story be bought for the big time, it would not be the first out of the Catholic University student theatre. University's productions are generally watched by Broadway and a recent one, 'Art and Prudence' is now being whipped into shape for professional time by Michael Meyerburg, under the title 'Star Dust.'

GOEBBELS GABBLES AGAIN

THE Nazis are in again. This time telling Latin America via the short waves that the Hollywood and British studios make a really foul production and are devoting their limited talents to strongly angled and badly distorted propaganda pix. The only really artistic productions at present, claim Goebbel's broadcasts, come out of the German studios. Here is some of the direct quote:

'There is an interminable stream of British and American films which are only films in name. They are really vehicles of propaganda. The producers have no scruples and sacrifice truth and the simple laws of nature to put over their lessons to the people, who are innocent and believe everything they see. In America, there are thousands and thousands of theatres showing war pictures, and the movie industry has made phrenetic use of its medium to influence the people.

'In Germany, the cinematographical studios of UFA continue to work as usual, producing real artistic films and excellent cultural entertainment. Under the bombings of the enemy, the German actors continue to produce art and culture in the same way as in other times, as is demonstrated by the films in which tragedies and comedies alternate. They produce pictures of the lives of animals, the growth of plants, etc.

'The contrast between these pictures and those of the Americans is very significant. It is a symbol. The Germans have reduced to a minimum pictures about the war, and make very few allusions to their adversaries. In contrast, the British make pictures against Hitler, Mussolini and other European leaders. The public in America is being deceived.'

ALLYN BUTTERFIELD, who coordinates work of the studios with the War Department on films with an army angle, reports this. He is constantly besieged by officers in the Pentagon Bldg. (War Department headquarters) for a look at the serials he prevues. Seems that lots of good soldiers, some with high ranks, never grow up. . . . British are still looking around for somebody to launch their food documentary 'World of Plenty' in commercial channels. Pic is good but needs cutting and reediting. . . . Reaction to Walt Disney's 'Victory Through Air Power' has been so good at CIAA that the Inter-American Affairs crowd is about to go to work on Spanish and Portuguese sound tracks, so that the pic can get wide distribution in Latin America. CIAA thinks it is just what the doctor ordered for the Latins. . . .

THAT VALLEE TOUR

EXACTLY who has arranged the much-heralded South American tour of Rudy Vallee? CIAA officials, who are supposed to sponsor the junket, say it is all news to them. And the Coast Guard, in which Vallee is serving, is equally in the dark. The feeling in the armed services, incidentally, is that Vallee has had too many personal good breaks already, and that it is about time he fell into step with the rest of the boys.

PEOPLE HERE ARE TALKING ABOUT: The acute shortage of beer in this town where the brew serves as a counter-irritant to the heat wave. . . . Mussolini, who is a better burlesque of himself than anything Hollywood ever did on him. . . . the bad cases of Frank Sinatra-itis developed by the junior female set the morning after his singing appearance here last week.

SINATRA? WHO'S HE?

AND speaking of Sinatra. A local reporter and photog. walked up to the desk of the Statler Hotel and asked for the crooner's room. 'How do you spell the name, please?' asked the girl clerk. Yes, the gal admitted to the reporter that she had never heard of the guy. . . . Madeleine Carroll has been doing her daily broadcast, 'Madeleine Carroll Speaks,' over the local CBS outlet lately. She has been visiting her husband, Sterling Hayward—pardon, Hamilton—who is a Marine lieutenant stationed in town. . . .Chinese Embassy put on one of the most successful programs at the local Stage Door Canteen, the other day. Featured were Anna May Wong and Margaret Speaks. . . . Helen O'Connell, popular songstress, now at Loew's Capitol, tells friends she will quit show biz after this appearance. Object—matrimony.

Indies File Complaint Over Paid Preview Of 'Heaven'

ization asks Connors to reconsider its 'Heaven' screenings plan, and points out that it is natural to assume that company will adopt same policy for trade showings of its other product if national screenings on this picture are carried through.

Under consent decree previews before paying audiences have been officially banned.

PCCITO letter reads:

'We have just read in the trade press your intention of presenting 'Heaven Can Wait' as a trade showing in theatres, before paying audiences, throughout the United States. We can only naturally assume that you intend also to adopt the same policy on the trade showings of your other product.

'Therefore, may we most emphatically protest this action, not only because we believe it defeats the intent and purpose of Section 3 of the Consent Decree, but also because it, in reality, goes back to the generally acknowledged unfair practice of 'commercialized previews.' It established a precedent that could easily be followed by all other distributors and thus inject a further unfair trade practice which will undoubtedly be opposed by all exhibitor organizations in the United States.

'There can be no doubt in the minds of anyone in our industry that when paying audiences view a 'commercialized trade showing' that another inroad has been made into the potential boxoffice receipts of all independent subsequent run theatres.

'We do not believe you would have taken this action if you had consulted with exhibitor representatives throughout the United States and it is our sincere hope that it is not too late for you to decide NOT to introduce the policy of "commercialized trade showings".'

Par Reissues Dualed

Paramount re-issue of 'Union Pacific' and 'Souls At Sea' will have dual run at Million Dollar and Vogue Theatres starting Aug. 6.

Obituary

JEAN BENEDICT

Mrs. Benedict died Wednesday at the Motion Picture Country Home. Her only survivor is her husband.

SADA COWAN

Sada Cowan, 58, silent film writer, playwright and novelist, died Saturday in Cedars of Lebanon hospital after an extended illness. Deceased came to Hollywood a quarter century ago, and was a prominent screen writer of silents with most of the major companies. Since introduction of talkers, she has confined her time mainly to writing books and plays. At her own request, there will be no funeral services.

AFL Man Takes Over Labor Council to Halt Dissension

investigation of complaints Council was a 'paper setup' and operated by minorities.

It also was reported that AF of L representative Paul Smith, might also seek to relieve J. W. Buzzell of his post as secretary-treasurer pending a new election to choose a new set of officers. Fight for a shakeup in Council policies was aimed principally at Buzzell, the claim being advanced that Sherman was merely a figurehead.

There was possibility Buzzell might step out of his own accord. He recently engineered an appeal on the Sherman ouster order and, at that time, stated he would fall or stand with Sherman. Council delegates said Buzzell made it plain he would step out himself if Sherman was ousted.

The fight for a new deal in the Council, or establishment of a Hollywood Central Labor Council was led by Herbert Sorrell, business representative of Moving Picture Painters Local 644 and prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions. He was joined by the Teamsters, Musicians, Screen Actors Guild, Film Technicians Local 683, Screen Office Employes Guild, Screen Cartoonists Guild and many other crafts.

Sorrell and representatives from the SAG, Musicians and Teamsters went to Miami to urge the AF of L Executive Council to take some action on their complaints. The Council was told the members of crafts outside the L. A. Council was much larger than that on the inside. It is understood they had the backing of Dan Tobin, international prexy of the Teamsters, and Dave Beck, western director for the group.

The SAG withdrew from the Council when Buzzell asked the Chicago Labor Council to aid Willie Bioff during his fight to escape extradition to Chicago as a panderer. The Musicians and other crafts later pulled out, the Teamsters alone pulling a membership of approximately 50,000. The AF of L in ordering the ouster of Sherman requested the various crafts to reaffiliate with the organization, but most of them indicated they would not do so as long as Buzzell remained in the picture.

Buzzell, who has held the Council post for many years, is not expected to surrender without a fight.

ARMY FILM TOP DUE THIS MONTH

Washington, Aug. 1.—Col. Kirk B. Lawton, head of the Pictorial Division of the Army Signal Corps, will probably land in Hollywood the middle of August. Lawton, who succeeded Major General William Harrison in the post, leaves here Aug. 9th for a three week transcontinental inspection tour of Army film centers and Signal Corps field units.

He will visit the film labs at Columbus, Ohio, enroute to the coast, where he will contact Hollywood companies producing pictures for the Army. Lawton is also slated to look over the first motion picture unit of the AAF at Culver City, which is absorbing most of the Signal Corps personnel and equipment formerly at Wright Field.

Tinters Elect Trio For Top Post

Carl Head was elected treasurer of Moving Picture Painters Local 644 Sunday at a general membership meeting of union. Head served as acting business representative for two months during vacation of Herbert Sorrell, and is popular with entire membership.

Jack Reed was elected trustee and Adolph Friedman was named conductor.

Extras Mull 4A Charter

Preliminary plans looking toward merger of several extra groups into one organization to seek a separate autonomous charter from the Associated Actors and Artistes of America were discussed last night by leaders of various classifications. It was stated that if leaders could agree on move petitions would be circulated on studio sets endorsing charter idea. When sufficient names were secured it was said petitions would be presented to the Screen Actors Guild, the AAAA and the American Federation of Labor.

WELLES PIC FOR RKO ASHCAN

New York, Aug. 2.—RKO is about ready to write off negative costs of both the Orson Welles Technicolor footage shot in South America and Pare Lorenz' 'Name, Age, and Occupation'; and charge both up to profit and loss.

Both pictures—neither completed—were turned out about a year ago, and each stopped when costs were running above original budgets. Decision on salvaging any footage of the two films has rested with N. Peter Rathvon, president of RKO, with present status figured as permanent shelving the two ventures.

NY LEGIT OPENING

TRY AND GET IT

New York, Aug. 2.—'Try and Get It,' first play of the new season opened tonight at the Cort Theatre. It is a light-weight farce by Sheldon Davis with mild change. A. H. Woods presents it. Play was tried out on Coast two years ago, once with Joan Blondell, reported title being, 'Cinderella Goes to Town,' it was also known as 'The Key to Viy's Room.'

One setter has to do with gold digger who decides to do bit of playing on side while elderly lover is away. Supposed plain little girl takes her place to entertain boy friend's old buddy, but that worthy's attractive son appears instead. Complications of familiar kind ensue and in end dizzy lady of the evening loses out all around.

Several players who were in Coast showing are present. Among them Claire Meade, on only for short time in third act took show's honors. Margaret Early, also in original showing very good as innocent damsel who learns fast. Among others are Iris Hall, Virginia Smith, who is best in first act, and Hattie Noel Buxon, colored maid.

HARLEM RIOTS HIT SHOW BIZ; SIX KILLED

New York, Aug. 2.—Riots in Harlem which broke out Sunday night to cause 6 deaths and 320 hurt may cause considerable box-office damage, not only in colored belt but also in downtown area unless brought under quick control. Hoodlumism already is causing alarm in theatre-operating circles.

While downtown theatres don't average as much as 5% on colored patronage, it is pointed out that fear of running into trouble is likely to keep white folks at home in areas contiguous to Harlem.

Business was affected seriously in the Harlem zone, although no theatres closed. In addition to various independents, Loew's and RKO operate number of theatres in Harlem or on its fringes. Special firemen were stationed in all houses there.

Business has not been affected at the Roxy where 'Stormy Weather' is playing, downtown engagement not drawing many Negro patrons with RKO Alhambra in Harlem playing it day-and-date.

INDUSTRY effort of 'men in uniform' is splendidly knitted together in a Columbia Screen Snapshots currently at Pantages. It's right kind of industry propaganda showing who's in uniform. Runs 10 minutes and as it unreels shows what the former screenites are doing in service regalia. It has shots of Gable, Stewart, Wayne Morris, Alan Ladd, and many, many others doing their service chores, etc. It's something that the industry can be proud of having recorded, hits well with audiences, and exhibs should schedule it for showing. It helps lighten those jabs that are taken at the film biz by those who get their names in print by talking about important people.

PUBLIC discussion of radar is causing increasing concern to the government and a memo has gone out to radio stations and publications from the Office of Censorship urging prudent handling of all matter pertaining to the secret weapon used by our military forces. Byron Price, director of OOC, admonishes against loose talk about military electronic devices so that the enemy is denied knowledge of new methods in applying the principle of radar. Editors and broadcasters are asked to be alert to every mention of radar and establish beyond question that there is proper authority for all statements. Price declares that such a request is necessary in the interest of national security.

WRITERS working on 'Rickenbacker: The Story of an American,' for Winfield Sheehan at 20th-Fox, are faced with quite a problem on what to omit and what to use in screenplay. Rickenbacker now moves, and for the past year or so, has moved with such rapidity and such far-reaching events have followed in his wake, that utmost discrimination must be used in selection of material. Rickenbacker's position is so unique, being eyes and ears of War Department and more important than majority of ambassadors, that overall picture must be given of the man, at same time keeping warm human aspect which Sheehan insists upon establishing.

WHILE he was in the southwest Pacific battle area some time back, Lieut. Commander Robert Montgomery was used as an important factor in making captured Jap fliers talk. Seems the Nips refused to answer any and all questions under excuse they could not speak English, and when they persisted, Montgomery nonchalantly wandered into the questioning room and sat on the sidelines. In most instances it was just a question of time before one of the Jap fliers, after staring at Montgomery for several moments, blurted, 'You're Robert Montgomery, the picture star.' From then on the questioning was comparatively simple.

'HEAVEN' PLAYS TO PAID CROWD

Girl Crazy

(Musical)

Metro production. Co-stars Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland. Supporting cast: Gil Stratton, Rags Ragland, Nancy Walker, Robert E. Strickland, June Allyson, Guy Kibbee, Frances Rafferty, Henry O'Neill, Howard Freeman, and Tommy Dorsey and his Orchestra. Director, Norman Taurog. Producer, Arthur Freed. Screenplay, Fred F. Finklehoffe. Based upon musical play, 'Girl Crazy,' by Guy Bolton and Jack McGowan. Music, George Gershwin. Lyrics, Ira Gershwin. Musical adaptation, Roger Edens. Musical direction, Georgie Stoll. Orchestration, Conrad Salinger, Axel Stordahl, Sy Oliver. Vocal arrangements, Hugh Martin, Ralph Blane. 'I Got Rhythm' number, directed by Busby Berkeley. Dance direction, Miss Garland dance, Charles Walters. Photography, William Daniels, Robert Planck. Art direction, Cedric Gibbons. Sets, Edwin B. Willis, Mac Alper. Musical presentation, Merrill Pye. Costumes, Irene, Sharaff. Editor, Albert Akst. Tradeshown in Los Angeles, Aug. 2, 1943. Running time: 100 MINS.

Combo of Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, plus playing of Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra and the music of George Gershwin can total up to but one conclusion—smash entertainment. 'Girl Crazy' has every element of popular appeal, possessed of all the ingredients which made two stars' appearance previously in 'Babes In Arms' and 'Babes on Broadway' such top-ranking hits. Picture should be a natural at box-office, of type attractive to every class audience.

Based upon Broadway musical of same title, by Guy Bolton and Jack McGowan, film is jam-packed with musical numbers. Nine compositions in all, by George Gershwin—five lyriced by his brother Ira—are presented, such hits as 'I Got Rhythm,' 'Bidin' My Time,' 'Could You Use Me?' 'Embraceable You' and 'Fascinatin' Rhythm' providing a hit parade seldom enjoyed in a single picture. Judy is in best voice in her singing of five songs. Mickey warbles three and offers a surprise in his taking over piano to accompany Dorsey and band in playing 'Fascinatin' Rhythm,' displaying a never-before-realized aptitude.

Given lavish production by Arthur Freed, and Norman Taurog in top form as director, 'Girl Crazy' gets off to swift start, with Mickey the playboy son of a millionaire publisher entering a smart night club, beautiful gal on either arm. Stage-show rolls immediately, June Allyson tripping out to sing 'Treat Me Rough'—Gershwin tune—in smart style, and Mickey being pulled up on stage to do comedy number with her.

Next day comes an accounting with his irate afther, Henry O'Neill, following headlines of night's escapade, and instead of returning to Yale, Mickey is shipped out to Codyville School of Mines in the West, where there's no gal within hundreds of miles. When he gets off train at Codyville, all he can see in any direction, apart from station, is sagebrush, and following directions of agent he starts to hike distance to school. En route, he comes upon Judy Garland, trying to get her old car started, and from there on it's love in bloom for Mickey, with Judy having none of him until he figures out plan to save school from being closed by state legislature, for her college president grandfather. There's usual romantic complications in Mickey's wooing, and big-number finish, in

Metro production, made at Gainsborough Studios, London. Stars Robert Donat. Features Valerie Hobson. Supporting cast: Walter Rilla, Phyllis Morris, Anthony Eustral, David Ward, John Penrose, Mabel Terry Lewis, Glynis Johns, Martin Miller, Percy Walsh. Frederic Richter, Hubert Leslie, Miki Iveria. Director, Harold S. Bucquet. Screenplay, John Lee Mahin, Howard Emmett Rogers. Original story, John C. Higgins. Photography, John J. Cox. Art director, John Bryan. Editor, D. Myers. Musical director, Louis Levy. Special effects, Henry Harris. Costumes, Rahvis. Tradeshown at studio, Aug. 2, 1943. Running time: 102 MINS.

Well contrived and motivated melodrama, 'Tartu' is the story of an English army captain sent to Czechoslovakia to sabotage a chemical works manufacturing poison gas. Posing as an officer of the Rumanian Iron Guard, he works his way into a position in works' laboratory, and through the offices of the Czech underground succeeds in blowing up the plant, just before first tanks of gas are dispatched to the front.

Robert Donat is starred in this tale which offers something different in way of story material, and does bang-up job as Rumanian, character of whom he's worked out to a T. Produced at Gainsborough studios in London, film is one of better products to emerge from England, principally because it was turned out by American craftsmen, script being written here by John Lee Mahin and Howard Emmett Rogers from John C. Higgins' original and Harold S. Bucquet going over to direct. Picture lacks class of Metro features of corresponding expenditure made here, but suffices as engaging melodramatic fare.

Valerie Hobson appears opposite Donat as member of Czech underground, who first falls for Englishman, then turns against him when she thinks he's a Nazi using her to round up her organization. She's lovely in role, and does excellent piece of acting. Another contributing an outstanding performance is Phyllis Morris, in tragic role, other members of cast turning in commendable support.

Film originally was titled 'Sabotage Agent,' present title being of doubtful marquee appeal. John J. Cox photographed and John Bryan achieved interesting art direction.

P-T Rolls 2 Sept. 15

AMERICA LOOKS ABROAD

with Robert Arden

We are rapidly moving into the most important phase of the history of mankind. Not only because of the magnitude of important military operations, but mainly because our thinking and outlook on life are certain to undergo a radical change.

Victory is coming closer every day, and many problems to insure the peace to follow victory still are unsolved.

It was foolish to read into Mussolini's ouster only a sign of Axis weakness—it is just as possible that it was a manifestation of Hitler's power to discard a useless figurehead.

At any rate, we will have a fight on our hands every inch of the way—to Berlin and to Tokyo.

We must start thinking. Wishing alone is not enough.

Net Execs Burn When Oil Company Says It Won't Associate

San Francisco, Aug. 2.—Network execs are burned plenty about Associated Oil company's recent decision not to include a radio show in its ad plans after webs had spent thousands of dollars for auditions. In the past two months the Blue and CBS have displayed two shows each and NBC one. CBS went to the trouble of bringing Maury Amsterdam and other talent from Hollywood. Radio execs lament that this wouldn't be so bad if it hadn't happened so many times in the past.

Before account was switched to the Buchanan agency last June, six sets of auditions had been given for Lord & Thomas in recent years, with all bringing the same answer that 'our client has decided not to use radio just now.' Associated, which has Coast Conference football games sewed up for radio, has not sponsored a radio show in 10 years.

STUDIOS CHECK LOSS OF MEN BY 'DRAFT FATHERS' ORDER

Major studio heads have started checking personnel records to determine the number of employes who might be affected by authorization given local draft boards yesterday to start calling pre-Pearl Harbor fathers for military service after Oct. 1. Authorization order, issued in Washington, said fathers would be called only to the extent 'absolutely required' to meet monthly quotas, and that policy of not drafting men over 38 would continue.

In the eyes of selective service, only production is essential in the motion picture industry, and a good many jobs which are part of radio are not held by them to be essential.

Industry leaders said they did not expect to lose many key men through draft order, since a majority of them are over the 38-year age limit. The same situation applies to most technicians, including carpenters, painters, electricians, etc. Unless exemptions are granted, however, order might dig deeply into ranks of Cartoonists, Film Editors, White Collarites and other younger age classifications.

It was estimated by an authoritative spokesman in Washington that approximately 300,000 fathers living with and supporting children born prior to Sept. 15, 1942, would be inducted this year. It was explained though that another 150,000 would have to be sent to induction centers in order to get 300,000 qualified, physically fit men.

The 750,000 fathers engaged in agricultural work will be deferred for occupational reasons. Reclassifications are expected to begin immediately, but local draft boards have been forbidden to order fathers to report before Oct. 1. Boards will continue to call single men and childless married men first if they have no occupational or hardship ground for deferment.

Calling of fathers will be by draft order numbers regardless of the number of dependents and their age. In an effort to put off calling fathers as long as possible, Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower Commission, has instructed local boards to analyze all 4-F cases to sift out registrants who may now be qualified for service.

15 Screen and Radio Set to Make Discs For Overseas Camp

LA FIRST RUNS SEE 182G WITH REPEATER PIX

Los Angeles first runs and moveover theatres, with only two new top films on the screens, are heading towards likely total gross of $182,000, a sturdy figure considering holdovers in eight of the 17 houses estimated. Top money is going to Universal's 'Hers to Hold,' with second week at the Pantages and Hillstreet, and 'Stormy Weather' (20th) in five Fox West Coast first runs.

'Stormy' seems set for handsome $53,000 or more on the week. 'Hers,' beating any previous Universal picture in the two houses the first week, will repeat with record second with estimated $37,000. Former Universal top money film at the two theatres was 'My Man Godfrey,' which cracked slightly more than $40,000 for a first week while the Deanna Durbin starrer racked up socko $42,000.

Take on 'Hers' last week, plus the Universal horror combination, 'Frankenstein Meets Wolf Man' and 'Captive Wild Woman' at the Los Angeles and Hollywood Paramounts, gave Universal total first run box office of $82,000, a tremendous figure. Horror combo finished a five-day second week last night with estimated total of $18,000, making way for Paramount's 'Dixie' and 'Night Plane from Chungking' at the downtown house, with 'Dixie' taking on 'Report From the Aleutians' as partner at the Hollywood.

Only war film current in first runs is 'Spitfire' at the Hawaii, Hollywood boulevard house. Picture, teamed with 'The Falcon in Danger,' is heading for bangup $8,400 on the first week. 'Constant Nymph,' in third week at Warners Hollywood, Downtown and Wiltern, has likely $29,000 coming up. 'Stage Door Canteen' is doing third stanza at the Four Star with nice $4,000 estimate.

Future of Newsreels Up Today in Sesh With OWI Chief

Washington, Aug. 2.—Thoroughgoing discussion of future relations of the OWI and the newsreels will be held here tomorrow, when officials of the five reels come down from New York to meet with OWI News Chief George Lyon. Domestic Director Palmer Hoyt, due from the west coast tomorrow morning, and Deputy Domestic Director James L. Allen also are expected to attend, as will WAC Newsreel Coordinator Claude R. Collins.

A lengthy exchange of ideas is anticipated by Lyon, but he does not expect to be able to announce any detailed plans. The job of working with the newsreels, setting up stories for them and representing them with other Government agencies fell to Lyon's news bureau with the demise of the Mellett pic bureau. An industry man will be named soon to serve as liaison officer.

Walter Doniger, Malvin Wald and Irving Wallace have turned in finished script of PRC's 'Jive Junction.'

Sherman Resigns as Smith Takes Over Labor Council

Harry Sherman resigned as president of the Central Labor Council last night, as Paul Smith, International Representative of the American Federation of Labor, moved in under instructions from Prexy William Green to take over the administrative and executive functions of the Council. Sherman had tendered his resignation to the Executive Board earlier in the day and the action of the Board in accepting it was approved by the general membership last night.

In reading the letter from Prexy William Green, J. W. Buzzell, Council secretary-treasurer, declared he would resign 'if they try to make an office boy out of me.' He led the fight for acceptance of the Sherman resignation, despite a former announcement that he would stand or fall with Sherman. Green's letter authorized Smith to take over all books, finances and so forth of the Council, practically stripping Buzzell of his authority and leaving him an officer in name only.

Fight for a shake-up in the Council was led by many film unions, headed by Herbert Sorrell, business representative of the Moving Picture Painters Local 644 and prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions. Many of the unions which withdrew from the council have indicated they will not return to the organization if Buzzell remains in office. Action of Smith in taking over most functions performed by Buzzell, however, may change the picture.

Initial 'Bell' Sale Fills 35 Per Cent of House

FLY NOT SURE McGRAW OUT OF BLUE NET DEAL

Washington, Aug. 2.—FCC chairman James Lawrence Fly indicated today that he was not at all certain McGraw-Hill has been eliminated from the deal for the Blue Network. Because of the FCC attitude toward radio ownership by publishers, McGraw-Hill was believed to have dropped out of the deal for the Blue, leaving Edward J. Noble, life-saver king and former Under-Secretary of Commerce, as sole purchaser.

Fly told a press conference today that he is not at all certain the publishing house did drop out, and said the FCC will 'watch with considerable interest' future developments in the case.

As for approval of the sale, he indicated that approval of Noble as a purchaser would be forthcoming, but when asked whether the FCC might approve McGraw-Hill as a purchaser he refused to commit himself or the commission.

NEW EXTRAS' UNION LAUNCHED WITH FIVE-POINT PROGRAM

our own self-governing union and the right to elect a board of directors, officers and collective bargaining representatives of our own choosing.

2. 'To immediately open negotiations to collectively bargain with the several producers for fair and decent contractual wages and working conditions, cooperating for this purpose with other AF of L union.

3. 'To secure for us from the Screen Actors Guild our share of the assets and funds to which we are equitably entitled.

4. 'To use all lawful means to effectuate these purposes, it being understood that no expenditures will be made or obligations incurred unless approved beforehand by a majority of the signers at a meeting called for such a purpose. It is understood that meetings shall be called periodically and that when the charter is issued a general meeting will be called to establish our own democratic organization and elect our own officers and bargaining representatives.

5. 'We hereby revoke any and all petitions and documents heretofore signed by us pertaining in any way to the purpose of this petition, since this is the only petition which requires the unity of all screen actors and actresses who are known as Class B members of the SAG into a democratic and autonomous union chartered within and affiliated with the AF of L.'

It is understood the last paragraph of the petition is aimed at the Screen Players Protective Committee, which did not send representatives to the merger meeting. The SPPC is conducting its own individual campaign, carrying the fight direct to labor through appearances before central labor councils of the AF of L.

It was stated the unity move was sponsored by Jimmy Harrison, Lee Powell, Jack Shea, Harry Mayo and Hal Craig. Mayo, head of the SAG Council when it was abolished, was one of the first signers and is understood to be circulating personally a petition in the belief that only through unity can the extras get their own organization.

The SAG has called a general meeting of the Class B members for Sept. 19 to announce its plans for separation of the extras form the SAG, but leaders of extra groups claim the plan does not call for a separate charter.

which Mickey assures school's future.

Finish number, set to 'I Got Rhythm,' was staged by Busby Berkeley and is director at his best. Judy, Mickey and gigantic chorus chant song for all it's worth.

Two stars are in top form for 'Girl Crazy' and spark film with their personalities. In their singing, their dancing, their romancing and their frolicking, they're engagingly effective and they imbue somewhat sketchy story with charm. Mickey emphasizes his past reputation as an entertainer in this picture and Judy adds dancing to her talents, in a clever number with Charles Walters.

Capable cast supports principals, Rags Ragland in for notable comedy, June Allyson scoring for her singing in opening number, Guy Kibbee enacting prexy, others including Gil Stratton, Robert E. Strickland, Nancy Walker, Frances Rafferty, Henry O'Neill and Howard Freeman. Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra beat out their rhythm in best approved style.

Much credit accrues to production end of film, which Fred F. Finklehoffe scripted and William Daniels and Robert Planck photographed. Cedric Gibbons is responsible for art direction, Edwin B. Willis and Mac Alper dressing sets with taste, and Irene and Sharaff created costumes.

On musical end, Roger Edens did adaptation from original scores by George Gershwin, Georgie Stoll directed, orchestrations were done by Conrad Salinger, Axel Stordahl and Sy Oliver, and Hugh Martin and Ralph Blane made vocal arrangements. Merrill Pye handled presentation.

Mrs. Roosevelt One Of the 'TITA' First Nighters in Wash.

Washington, Aug. 2. — 'This Is The Army' is assured of as distinguished a send-off as any motion picture has ever had when the Capital premiere is held a week from Thursday. The makeup of the special 'First Nighters' committee, arranging the first screening, reads like a 'Who's Who' among national military and civilian leaders, and the patron and patroness list for opening night is headed by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Bernard M. Baruch. The other names are hardly less luminous.

Mesdames George R. Homes and Edwin M. Watson, chairman and vice-chairman of the 'First Nighters' committee, are arranging the evening's program.

Honorary committee members include the following: Hon. Henry L. Stimson and General George C. Marshall. Co-chairmen: Robert P. Patterson, John J. McCloy, Robert A. Lovett. Vice-chairmen: Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, Lieut. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, Lieut. Gen. Brehen Sommervell, Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, Maj. Gen. Alexander D. Surles, Maj. Gen. Irving J. LOEW'S NET SEEN AS $8 A SHARE

New York, Aug. 3.—With Loew's looking to earnings in the final month of the fiscal year at about the same rate as the first 40 weeks, when corporation filed a net profit report of $9,453,838, likelihood is that firm may show close to $8 per share on the common for the year ending next Aug. 31. Company hit $7.02 per common share for the fiscal year ended August, 1942.

Net profit, after all charges including $12,887,698 for Federal taxes, represents $5.67 per common share in the first 40 weeks.

FIVE-WAY PREEM FOR 'TITA' HERE

Warners is now planning to use five theatres for premiere of 'This Is the Army' on Aug. 17. Forum and Beverly Hills theatres will be added to the premiere trio of Warners Downtown, Hollywood and Wiltern. Film will be only shown opening night at the Forum and Beverly, with runs continuing following day in the other three theatres. Figured that a gross of $50,000 could materialize from the premiere.

20th Six-Month Net Due To Hit $3,200,000

New York, Aug. 3. — Despite heavy writeoffs for Federal income and excess profits taxes, 20th-Fox is expected to show a net profit in excess of $3,200,000 for the first 26 weeks of the present year, or $1.50 per common share. Corporation showed $1,751,739 in the first quarter, ended last March 27, and held close to that rate.

WLB PANEL NAMED FOR INQUIRY ON WAX BAN

Washington, Aug. 3.—Announcement of the panel to investigate the American Federation of Musicians' recording ban and make its recommendations to the full War Labor Board is due tomorrow. Panel is expected to get to work soon to determine whether refusal of the musicians to make recordings can be termed a strike. If so, the Board can order the musicians back to work pending a settlement; if not, it is uncertain just how far the Board can go aside from setting conditions which must be met when and if the musicians go back

DISTRIBS MAY YIELD BIT ON DECREE TO KEEP THEATRES

New York, Aug. 3.—While it is reported here that the consent decree distributors may be willing to discuss concessions in continuing the decree, with view of warding off action toward a theatre divorcement, no actual steps are known to have been taken in that direction. It is expected that meetings will be held shortly to get deeper in the situation.

Assumption in sales circles is that the decree will stand, though possibly modified to appease not only the Department of Justice but also

NY LEGIT OPENING

TWO MRS. CARROLLS

New York, Aug. 3.—After an absence of eight years from the Broadway stage, Elisabeth Bergner returned tonight to invest a slow moving weak script with a performance possessing such individuality and charm as to insure Martin Vale's 'Two Mrs. Carrolls' at least a moderately successful run at the Booth Theatre.

The suspense elements in the melodrama isn't injected until late in the first act, after a lengthy and dull preamble setting the background, but once plot is unfolded several high moments of tension are reached, and

FIRST triple premiere of a picture to be broadcast locally has been undertaken by Harry Maizlish, KFWB manager, for August 17 unveiling of 'This Is the Army.' Eddie Cantor will emcee the lobby activities at the Hollywood theatre and other film names will preside at the Downtown and Wiltern. To help along the charity angle, all sponsors on the Warners transmitter opening day have consented to mentions of the picture's engagement here and interruptions on programs by martial music and speakers. During run of the film at the three houses roving mikes will pick up lobby comment for daily airing over the station. Maizlish has mapped out what should prove the most extensive radio campaign ever given a picture on its break-in here.

CAPRA FILMS WILL BE SHOWN TO WORKERS IN WAR PLANTS

Washington, Aug. 3.—Series of orientation films made for the Army by Col. Frank Capra is expected to be released for showings in war plants that are working on Army orders. These pictures, and others deemed suitable for morale purposes, will be shown as part of the Army's industrial incentive film program. Orders for 16 mm. prints are expected to be issued shortly.

Film subjects used, in addition to about half a dozen already put together from combat footage by Major Dick Maybaum especially for the war plant programs, will include combat footage for the most part; although such films as the Army's 'Report On the Aleutians,' might be included.

The Man From Down Under

(Drama)

Metro production. Stars Charles Laughton. Features Binnie Barnes, Richard Carlson and Donna Reed. Supporting cast: Christopher Severn, Clyde Cook, Horace McNally, Arthur Shields, Evelyn Falks, Hobart Cavanaugh, and Andre Charlot. Directed by Robert Z. Leonard. Produced by Leonard and Orville O. Dull. Screenplay by Wells Root and Thomas Seller. Based on story by Bogart Rogers and Mark Kelly. Photography by Sidney Wagner. Film editor, George White. Special effects by Arnold Gillespie. Technical advisor, Lon Jones. Art direction by Cedric Gibbons. Tradeshown in L. A. Aug. 3, 1943. Running time: 102 MINS.

'The Man From Down Under' is a refreshing and interestingly-told drama, with plenty of pace and lightness injected along the way to make it ideal 'escapist' entertainment to conform to present audience requirements. With Charles Laughton spotlighted in an excellent characterization as the star, and splendid support from the featured Binnie Barnes, Richard Carlson and Donna Reed, picture will click for profitable biz in all bookings.

Producer-director Robert Z. Leonard deftly screens the fine script by Wells Root and Thomas Seller, from the original story credited to Bogart Rogers and Mark Kelly. Latter, former sports editor, fashions the tale slightly around the boxing career of Les D'Arcy, Australian fighter; but the ring is only secondary to a strong romance and the interesting characters and incidents picturized along the line.

Laughton, Anzac soldier, is in French port of embarkation in 1919, when he decides to take back home two Belgian waifs. In order to have motherly influence for the youngsters, Laughton proposes to beer hall entertainer Binnie Barnes, but gets tangled to leave her at the dock when the boat sails.

Back in Sydney, Laughton conducts a tavern while raising the boy to be a champ boxer; while the girl is in a boarding school. The grown kid, Richard Carlson, wins the Aussie championship but tears his shoulder ligaments to prevent further fighting. With purse proceeds and money he won on the fight, Laughton buys a back-country hotel in Queensland, but paying guests are absent and soon undertaking is in serious financial straits. The girl, Donna Reed, is pursued by American newspaper correspondent Horace McNally, while Carlson becomes increasingly jealous of the affair. Binnie Barnes shows up to win the hotel from Laughton as revenge for his perfidy of 20 years previously. Yarn then hits some light moments before Jap attacks on northern Australia provides vivid air attack on the hotel, which has been turned into a refuge for children. On the romantic side, Carlson and Miss Reed got together when records from Belgium disclose they are not blood relations; while Miss Barnes snags the willing Laughton to make everybody happy.

Laughton provides smart and interesting etching of the blustering and conniving Aussie, while Miss Barnes is excellent as the romantic interest in his life. Carlson adds to his screen status as the young boxer, while Miss Reed handles her spot in strong fashion. Clyde Cook clicks as Monogram release. Stars Mary Beth Hughes, with Eddie Quillan, Tim Ryan, Irene Ryan, Mantan Moreland, and Jerry Cooper, Armida, Andre Charlot, Kenneth Harlan, Cyril Ring, Ramon Ros, Loumell Morgan Trio, Ruloff, Follette and Lunard, Anson Weeks and his orchestra, Ted Fio Rito and his orchestra. Director, Arthur Dreifuss. Producer, Lindsley Parsons. Original screen play, Tim Ryan, Charles R. Marion. Photography, Mack Stengler. Production manager, William Strohbach. Dance director, Jack Boyle. Musical director, Edward Kay. Film editor, Richard Currier. Sound director, Glen Glenn. Technical director, Dave Milton. Songs, Edward Cherkose, Edward Kay, Armida. Previewed at the studio, Aug. 3, 1943. Running time: 72 MINS.

Melody Parade

(Musical)

This little musical package is strung out a bit too ambitiously for its worth and will have to undergo some needed trimming on several slow production numbers before earning more than a passable grade for its market. Story framework is okay material upon which to hang a musical comedy, but dialoging is lightweight and direction lacks sparkle necessary to give proceedings a lift.

Plot concerns an about-to-be-defunct night club managed by Tim Ryan. Creditor trouble gives Ryan his difficulties, and Irene Ryan, the deceased owner's heir, herself penniless, isn't much help. Eddie Quillan, bus boy, sells the heir on idea of bringing out a noted impresario to set up a new floor show, hoping to get his hat-checker girl friend, Mary Beth Hughes, a vocal spot. Obvious difficulties occur before girl gets her chance at fame, and several plot tangles are still that way when abrupt end comes.

Comedy falls to Quillan, Tim and Irene Ryan, and Mantan Moreland, all of whom do their best with material furnished in original script by Ryan and Charles R. Marion, with Moreland having the edge for chuckles. Miss Hughes has three vocal bits to carry as well as the starring role. Jerry Cooper demonstrates an excellent pop baritone with two songs, and Armida spots three dances for additional production touches. Loumell Morgan Trio, Negro vocal group, stands out. Knock-about dance is performed by Ruloff, Follette and Lunard. Anson Weeks and his orchestra give tuneful lift to numbers, of which new ones were written by Edward Cherkose and Edward Kay, latter also musical director. Ted Fio Rito's band is also spotted in for one bit.

Arthur Dreifuss' direction showed ragged handling of both musical and comedy portions in this Lindsley Parsons production. Mack Stengler photographed and Jack Boyle staged the dances.

Film Review

Report From The Aleutians

War Department presentation of a United States Army Signal Corps production in Technicolor. Filmed in the Aleutians on 16mm. Distributed by Office of War Information through the War Activities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry. Reviewed at the Hollywood Paramount, Aug. 3, 1943. Running time: 44 MINS.

An outstanding job has been done by the Army Signal Corps in giving the American public a graphic, suspenseful film account of the armed forces on that bleak string of islands known as the Aleutians. Detailing in forceful scenes soldier-life and warfare, 'Report From the Aleutians' climaxes with an actual bombing raid on Jap-held Kiska that contains no make-believe in its filming.

Picture opens with pictorial depiction of the Aleutians and narration that explains what they mean in the war against Japan, their climate and equally rugged terrain, and the difficulties overcome in preparing to carry a daily fight to the enemy. Scenes of camp life, where the ever-ominous Jap is not the only adversary, soldier morale, construction feats, sudden death, are used as the build-up for the bombing raid to come, on which the camera accompanies, in effect, each bomb as it hits Jap-infested Kiska.

Particular highlights caught by the experienced, story-telling 16mm camera with which the picture was filmed, include the movement of men and supplies onto barren Adak Island, half-way between Dutch Harbor and Kiska; the erection in 10 short days of an air base capable of handling our monster bombers and fighter planes; the terrifyingly-picturesque sight in color of planes taking off and landing on these rain-covered crude fields with the water splashing twice the height of the ships; the gripping shock of a crash landing, with some of the participants carried off to the hospital; the shaking melancholy of a burial of a fighting man on Adak; and a Sunday service with soldiers of all creeds.

Of the some three accounts of war released by the War Department, 'Report From the Aleutians' stands out. In the spell-binding interest of its subject; the colorful sweep and power of the land as caught by the camera; the excellent photography blown up from 16mm. to regular 35mm Technicolor, are found ample justification for the picture reaching the public in its entirety. The credit for filming the report, and reflecting his Hollywood-gained craftsmanship goes to Captain John Huston, and his unsung Signal Corps aides.

AMERICA LOOKS ABROAD

with Robert Arden

One of the most important realizations in the current phase of the warfare is that where the military succeeds with hard work, diplomacy is apt to fail with soft pedaling.

There is a strange parallel between Marshal Badoglio and Marshal Petain, and there is a strange similarity in the resulting confusion, delay and misjudgment of factors and personalities.

However, the Axis claims can best be evaluated by reports from neutral countries. Sweden has canceled the agreement to allow passage of Nazi troops to and from Norway. Argentina has just decided to ignore the Nazi-decreed blockade of North America. Axis satellites are straining at the leash—all in all, it is pretty evident that the successes garnered by our military power are far superior to anything else.

the majority of exhibitors throughout the country, who want larger blocks and cancellations, such as was proposed under the UMPI plan which Tom Clark's predecessor, Thurman Arnold, knocked over.

It was learned that last year, when the 'escape clause' went into effect, relieving distribs of screenings and limitation to blocks of five, there was a discussion on modifying selling plans but nothing came of it. Screenings and blocks, restricted to five except for Metro, which had one 12, and one 10 during the past season, are being continued by the majors. Sales manager of one company favors this rather than full-line selling since both seller and buyer have the right to know what's being sold, what's being bought, whether one film or as many as 20.

Meantime, Tom Clark, assistant attorney general in charge of the anti-trust division, has launched survey among exhibitors around the country in order that the Justice Department will have a complete picture of exhib complaints before delving into distribs' side of the matter.

the pace quickens considerably, with a second act that redeemed some of the script weaknesses.

Selfish qualities formerly associated with Bergner are only in evidence in the opening scene, with star's ability to retain her charms in a more serious, emotional role one of the play's assets.

Play, a click in London and withdrawn here for repairs after a tryout this past summer in Scarsdale, when Beth Merill appeared in the Bergner role, can still hardly lay claim to originality, dealing with the attempt of an artist to dispose of his wife so he can take another. But the Robert Reud-Paul Czinner production has been so well cast and so finely staged by Reginald Denham as to minimize its flaws. Victor Jory, as both the attentive, tender husband and the calculating murderer, is always convincing, while Stiano Braggiotti, Irene Worth, Vera Allen, and Philip Tonge are also fine. Possibilities are enhanced by its value as escapist entertainment.

Newsreels Asked to Name Contact Man With OWI

Washington, Aug. 3. — Meeting today with top OWI officials, newsreel editors were asked to select the man to handle newsreel contact work for the OWI news bureau. An industry man will be named soon to work with the OWI Domestic News Bureau, according to George Lyon, chief of the news bureau, to whom fell the newsreel responsibility when the duties of the OWI motion picture bureau were so drastically pared down last month.

OWI Domestic Director Palmer Hoyt and James Allen and James Rodgers, deputy director, also were on hand for the meeting, during which the entire field of Government-industry cooperation was gone over.

'I think the newsreels have done a swell job to date and I'm certain they're going to continue doing just as good a job,' said Lyon, adding that he had made it plain that OWI will not try to force material of doubtful value on to the reels.

Announcement of the newsreel officers for the agency is expected soon. Industry men present included A. J. Richard and Bob Denton, Paramount; Walter Ament and Geo. Dorsey, Pathe; Tom Mead, Universal; M. D. Clofine and J. C. Brown, News of the Day; Edmund Reek and Tony Muto, Movietone; E. M. Glucksman, All-American; Claude R. Collins, WAC newsreel coordinator.

Lyon made it plain he feels there has been too much duplication in newsreel coverage of Government stories and hopes to see more individuality. He also expressed a desire to see five newsreels come out with different stories, not just 'one original and four carbons.'

Cathrey Leaves Central Casting For Service

George Cathrey, chief casting director of Central Casting Corp., has resigned to join the U. S. Coast Guard.

Nine WB Units To Shoot

With production start of 'Passage to Marseille' next Monday, Warners will have six pictures embracing nine units before the cameras. Other pictures that continue in production include: 'Destination Tokyo,' 'Shine On Harvest Moon,' 'Rhapsody In Blue,' 'Conflict,' and 'In Our Time.'

IT ALL COMES OUT OF THE HAT IN WONDER TENT

Orson the Magnificent has long had an obsession—magic. Some day, he must have promised himself, I'll make them pay to see my tricks. Well, it happened last night and pay they did, some 500 of them at the munificent fee of $11 scaled down to $5.50. That's making a hobby pay with a vengeance, the dream come true of a dilettante.

Welles and his assisting prestidigitators, Joseph Cotten and Rita Hayworth, flanked by a dozen or more stooges and barnyard accomplices, opened the Mercury Wonder Show under canvas and on sawdust last night on Cahuenga near Willoughby to a capacity turnout which included 1,100 servicemen, for whom the enterprise is primarily intended. They're in for free and what profits accumulate from the pay clientele over and above actual expenses will be turned over to the Assistance League. It's a costly operation and the word is around that Welles has around $35,000 of his own moola wrapped up in the venture.

There may be some rolling over in the tombs of Keller, Herrmann the Great, Thurston and Houdini if the spirits get wind of what is happening to the blackest of the arts. Almost every trick known to the nimble-fingered gentry is given a not-to-professional going-over with an especial emphasis on rabbits, roosters and other feathered stooges. More than half the turns are climaxed by the appearance of these two-footers from out of the mystic mists. But the guy can't pull a T-bone steak out of nowhere, the spirits apparently having no standing with OPA. While the illusions are intended as out-and-out exhibits of what Orson so fondly calls 'numbo jumbo, hanky panky and hocus pocus,' a comedy theme runs through the entire assortment of mystic maneuvers. For instance, Welles scatters spirit dust as an applause cue and parades around in all manner of bizarre getups.

Cotten and Miss Hayworth are used sparingly, the latter bowing out after the premiere performance due to 'a heavy schedule at the studio.' Her thought projection bit with a soldier from the audience was weighted with laughs, the idea being for la Hayworth to write down what the doughboy was thinking about her. There she sat before him in a tight-fitting white gown draped about her muchly-publicized figure. What she wrote down was quickly erased by Wells and the soldier run off the stage. Cotten is billed as 'that great escapist' and to prove it he not only gets out of a trunk strapped with heavy rope but gets back in again with Hayworth. But all behind a curtain! Hasn't Orson always maintained that chumps like to be chumped? Sawing a woman in two is done in full view as are most of the others but the lighting was so bad as to spoil many of the illusions for the sitters.

It's all a field day for Welles and how he glories in it. He even goes in for hypnotism and puts a rooster under his spell. The simpler feats of legerdemain are easily disposed of and he goes from one to the next with a high glee of a magi who has kept his auditors in complete bewilderment and can make living things appear and disappear at will. He actually works so hard that dry towels are tossed him to mop up the perspiration.

The carnival spirit is everywhere evident outside the big top. There's a midway with concessionaries and barkers, with a wild animal show thrown in at intermission. Melvin Koontz puts the cinema beasts through their paces, the subjects being Jacke the Lion, Satan the Tiger and Dynamite the Black Leopard. Koontz announces that these playful animals have appeared in most of Frank Buck's pictures. Hey, is he foolin' us, too?

Orson's Wonder Show is in for four weeks and then what will have to send him into another seance with the spirit world. It should prove a pleasant stopover for servicemen and its novelty lure enough pay customers to get past operating costs and rack in a few extra bucks for its charity auspices.

Saroyan, Schnitzler Wilder, Coward For Playtime

Series of one-act plays by William Saroyan, Noel Coward, Thornton Wilder, Arthur Schnitzler and other top playwrights will be performed by Brentwood Players for Naval Aid Auxiliary when that group takes over Playtime theatre Aug. 13. Openers will be Wilder's 'The Happy Journey'; Saroyan's 'Hello Out There'; Coward's 'Fumed Oak'; Schnitzler's 'The Farewell Supper' and a vehicle for costarring by Hedy Lamarr and John Loder.

James Whale directs the entire series and casts will be drawn from the following roster: John Abbott, Philip Merrivale, Philip Dorn, Gladys Cooper, Eve Gabor, Alan Carney, Wally Brown, Beulah Bondi, Doris Lloyd, Henry Morgan, Aubrey Mather, John Qualen, Ray Feist, Reginald Hamblin, Adele Harrison, Rose Hobart, Charles Irwin, Pat Hitchcock, Rae-Nell Lasky, Muriel Mansell, George Matthews, Una O'Connor, Elliott Reid and Norman Wilnor.

Specialty entertainment will be provided between playlets and guest singing stars on the opening night, Aug. 13, will be Deanna Durbin and John Charles Thomas. All performers contribute their services and net proceeds go to Naval Aid. Bills will be changed every six to eight weeks and 320-seat house will be split up with 51% of the capacity for servicemen to be admitted gratis and remainder for ticket sale ranging from $1.50 to $2.50. Tariff for premiere will be $5.50.

Irving Parker, who negotiated six-month lease of theatre, will look after its operation until the Jap zero plane is ready to be taken on tour as an enterprise of Naval Aid Auxiliary. Series of one-acters and specialties will be billed as 'Play Time.'

SWG Will Meet To Plan Own Agency Set Up

Plan of Screen Writers Guild to set up own agency to handle film scriveners is expected to be taken up this week, following return to city of Harry Tugend, chairman of committee authorized to work out details. SWG decided to establish its own agency following breakdown in negotiations with the Artists Managers Guild on franchise agreement that would have called for sliding scale of fees.

WPB Says No 'Freon'

Washington, Aug. 3.—Theatres will receive no 'Freon' for their air-conditioning plants for many months to come, Allen G. Smith, head of the WPB amusement section, said today.

He had made inquiries on behalf of a Philadelphia house which needed some of the fluid. Only one-third of the quantity needed this month for vital civilian purposes, not including comfort cooling, is available. No improvement is seen for some time.

20th Winds Up Meet Today and Moves On to Chicago

New York, Aug. 3.—Three-day regional meeting of 20th-Fox winds up tomorrow with a reception to Ernst Lubitsch at the Waldorf, with home office executives leaving for Chicago late Wednesday in time for start of the regional session there Thursday.

Product lineup for 1943-44 was revealed but will not be officially announced until the Los Angeles regional starting Aug. 11. Lineup includes a maximum of 40 and a minimum of 36, with the former likely, and selling has already started on the first block of three.

Discussion of terms and the possibilities that the different blocks shape up for the coming season are among things to be gone over at final meeting here tomorrow at the Astor hotel.

Laughton's sidekick, while McNally is okay as the American. Christopher Severn and Evelyn Falks fit nicely as the two waifs picked up in opening sequences by Laughton.

Script abounds with broad Australian slang and expressions, but not too colloquial for American audiences to understand. Picture unfolds at a fast and steady pace, with Leonard neatly packing it with incidental episodes that dovetail neatly into the overall.

Picture has been provided with good background and mounting; with photography by Sidney Wagner hitting consistently high standard throughout. Miss Barnes sings a comedy song, ''E Pinched Me,' which is delivered in the pub in fine style.

PIX DELIVERIES HIT NEW LOW BUT DUALS LIVE ON

New York, Aug. 3.—Sales managers of the major companies see no reason for a shortage of pictures in the 1943-44 season, even though deliveries have reached lowest point in a decade. Companies have been materially assisted by decree selling, wihch—in turn—provided incentive to make better pictures. Smaller number of releases is doubted to result in diminution of double-billing, which now represents around 50% of the country's accounts. Distrib execs hold the position that fewer changes of program will take care of the situation.

In the opinion of Neil Agnew, vice president in charge of distribution for Paramount, there is no evidence at present of a 'hungry' market, nor that theatres are unable to obtain sufficient product to take ample care of their requirements. According to William F. Rodgers, veepee on Metro sales, many box office films are currently available so that no exhib need worry.

Large number of moveovers have been created during the past year in order to make room for first run engagements and quicker playoff of product. Agnew points out that, with only 30 features on the market, bookings in many places are exceptionally late.

'Invasion Bond' Idea Gets Treasury Okay As Sales Boom

New York, Aug. 3. — 'Invasion bond' idea which the Detroit Theatres had up its sleeve ready to spring with the first landing of troops in Europe, spread out from there on a national basis and is credited with a strong boost to War Bond sales.

Idea, originated in the offices of United Detroit Theatres, got the Treasury Department behind it and was adopted swiftly by theatre groups all over the United States. Few hours after the Sicily campaign, lobbies and trailers were urging the public to support 'invasion bond buying.'

Easing of Pleasure Gas Ban Will Aid Rural Show Biz

New York, Aug. 3.—Greater distribution of film theatre patronage, spreading over wider areas and bringing relief to stricken outlying communities, resort towns and rural areas, is seen in indications that within two weeks the pleasure driving ban will be lifted in 12 eastern states.

Additional, added gasoline allowance for other purposes, proposed by the Office of Price Administration, will lighten the burden on film salesmen, who have been unable to cover their accounts adequately. Likewise, film delivery services were forced to curtail by cutting deliveries to five days a week.

Harlem Riots Close Few Houses; Business Downtown Normal

New York, Aug. 3.—Short-lived, but violent hoodlumism in Harlem late Sunday night had little effect on downtown film box offices. Managers feared that many who have to ride through the Harlem district would stay away from the zone in coming to the downtown shows, but Monday afternoon and night biz was normal.

Only a few theatres in Harlem are closed, business being mainly affected there. However, no damage was reported to theatres, nor unruly mobs in the showhouses. All houses of the district were closed Monday at 10:30 p.m. by special curfew order. In addition to indies, Loew's and RKO operate a considerable number of houses in the Harlem area.

Irving Lesser, managing director of the Roy, where 'Stormy Weather' is currently playing, stated that biz was unaffected by the disorders uptown, but the downtown engagement of the picture had not previously drawn many colored folks. They are presumed to have gone to the RKO Alhambra, where picture is playing day-and-date with the Roxy.

All liquor stores and bars in the Harlem area were closed by La Guardia Monday, and the mayor also imposed shutdown hour of 9:30 p.m. on stores and bars down to 86th St., and from river to river. Dimout in the area was also lifted. Spark touching off the riot was the shooting of a colored MP by a white cop on duty at a Harlem hotel,

Scribbling

Bernard Schoenfeld, currently scripting 'Phantom Lady' for producer Joan Harrison at Universal, is working with Earl Robinson on musical drama of American Indians, to be broadcast over radio from Mexico City for Mexican government.

Robert Tallman is writing treatment of 'Angel of the Navy,' story of the WAVES, for 20th-Fox.

Robert O'Brien, writer on Roma air show, makes his bow as screen writer by doing dialogue for RKO's 'Rookies in Burma.'

Edwin Burke, who has been collaborating with Paul Green and Howard Emmett Rogers on 'Rickenbacker: The Story of an American' for Winfield Sheehan at 20th-Fox, Chiefed out for New York yesterday, his part of assignment temporarily completed.

John A. Wald, known on the radio as 'the Richfield Reporter,' has completed dramatic narration to be used at the start of Metro's 'Cross of Lorraine.' Narration describes feeling of the average Frenchman at the time of France's fall.

Gerald Schnitzer wound up 'Silent Victory' assignment for producer Bryan Foy at 20th-Fox yesterday.

Norman S. Hall started script yesterday at Republic for first of Don (Red) Barry's new series of westerns.

H. Allen Smith, recently tabbed to writing contract in the east by Paramount, arrives here Monday. First assignment will be concoction of an original story for the screen.

Play Ring Around Rosy With OCR on Theatre Permits

Washington, Aug. 3.—A tug-of-war developed here yesterday and today, with OCR taking over, relinquishing, taking over and relinquishing authority over priority assistance applications for new theatre buildings and repairs. The authority, on latest information, rests now with the War Production Board amusements section, but it is expected to revert to OCR when that agency has completed the makeup of its amusements division.

The shift of authority is in name only, however, since OCR, it appears, will do more than merely recommend to the amusements section that this or that application be granted, with the amusements section holding final authority to grant or deny. Close cooperation between the two offices is expected.

New Theatre Union Says It Has 2,500 Members

New York, Aug. 3.—The newly organized Motion Picture Theatre Managers and Employes Local 152, which started last week to organize front of houses in theatres of Greater New York, Westchester, Suffold and Nassau counties, claims to have added 500 new members during the past week. It was stated local's membership is now 2,500.

EXTRAS APPEAL TO FDR ON 20% PAY TAX NICK

to President Roosevelt and members of Congress.

AGVA for several weeks has had a representative in almost daily contact with Washington officials in an effort to have variety performers declared independent contractors. This would relieve them of daily tax deductions. Film extras are seeking the same consideration, as well as many other film workers who are employed on call.

SAG attorneys have been puzzling over the situation for some time. They recently asked Producers to do something about it, but the latter said they were merely complying with the law and that any leniency revisions would have to come from the Treasury Department. In the meantime, Guild attorneys are studying the question to determine what, if any relief, can be secured.

HARDSHIP ON EXTRAS

Producer representatives admitted that in the case of extras the 20% tap would work a hardship, since a big percentage of them would pay in more than would be due from them at the end of the year. Their tax clip is figured on a daily basis, it was stated with an exemption of $1.70 for a single man, $2.40 for a married man, and $3.20 for a married man with one dependent. It was pointed out though that because of the high average daily wage and the small annual earnings of an atmosphere player, they would be overpaid at the end of the year.

Extras are clamoring to be classed as casual employes, pointing out that was their classification by the NRA and other Government agencies. Cederic Stevens, an extra in an appeal for relief for the casual, charged in a letter to the President that 'It is respectfully submitted that the present method of deducting the 20% withholding tax from daily checks of atmosphere players, I. S. on a daily exemption basis instead of the lawful weekly exemption basis, is confiscatory, illegal and an onerous hardship not contemplated in the framing of the law.'

CITE 40-HOUR RULING

'In recent decision on retroactive overtime payments (i.e. time and one half over 40 hours per week in accordance with Federal statutes) atmosphere players were excluded because they were adjudged to be casual workers. If my information is correct in this respect, an unescapable precedent is thereby established prior to the new interpretation of 'casual worker' included in the 20% withholding act which approaches the matter from the employers viewpoint.

'The 20% withholding tax law specifically excludes casual workers from its provisions, and it is peculiar logic indeed to approach a worker's problem such as this from such a disinterested viewpoint as that of the employer. That the clear intent of the law to protect the worker from confiscation of needed income, by providing exemptions to guarantee him funds on which to live, is being violated.'

Stevens then quotes figures to show what deductions are being made and what he contends would be legal. Stevens closes his letter to the President and other officials with plea:

'I respectfully, but urgently, request immediate exploration of my contention that (a) the law is being misinterpreted by officials who are understandably zealous in their efforts to raise money sorely needed for the war, and (b) that the reestablishment of the legal rights of the casual worker in the motion picture business will remove him from the action of the 20% withholding tax.

CHANGES SUGGESTED

'Completely within the framework of the present law simple directives can be issued either to (a) place the casual in the category of the professional man with regular income who will estimate and remit his tax every 90 days; or (b) adjudge a casual motion picture actor as individual contractor containing substantially all the provisions contained in a standard acting talent contract; under which plan he would likewise estimate and pay his tax every 90 days.'

Many complained to Treasury officials said they were turned away with the suggestion 'get another job.' Guilds and unions, however, are taking up the situation to see if some relief can not be secured from Washington.

Gilbert Quits SOEG to Join Navy and Pratt Moves In

Ed Gilbert resigned last night as business representative of Screen Office Employes Guild to join the Navy. Guild Executive Board announced that Glenn Pratt, first business head of the Collarites and recently released from the Army, was being called in to take over post until such time as he would be called back into the armed services.

Pratt is considered one of the smartest labor leaders in the industry, and is well liked by both workers and employers. Working with the Guild Board, he negotiated most of the deals which resulted in improved wages and conditions for studio clerical workers.

The Guild Board also was advised by Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, that retroactive pay for Exchange workers for the week they were on strike will be paid by next week. Deal was set by Sorrell Monday at conference with Producer representatives.

Sorrell Will Meet With Prods On Pay Hikes

Pay boosts for heads of studio paint, matte shot and scenic departments will be discussed this week when Herbert Sorrell, business representative of Moving Picture Painters Local 644 meets with Producer representatives. Sorrell recently pointed out that many workers are now drawing bigger weekly pay checks than the heads of the departments. Sorrell discussed situation Monday with representatives of the War Stabilization Board.

IA THROWS JOBS OPEN

WPB GETS 2D HOARDING CHARGE

Washington, Aug. 4. — Charges that major distribs were hoarding pictures, which was against best operation of WPB, as outlined recently by George R. Farnum, representing a group of New England indie exhibs, were answered by Harold Hopper, head of WPB motion picture division with explanation that practices complained of by Farnum are not under WPB jurisdiction, and the matter should be taken direct to the Department of Justice, and judging from Farnum's attitude that is pust what he is likely to do.

Farnum, who first complained to

FILMS DRAFT STATUS UP AT MANPOWER COMISH

Washington, Aug. 4.—War Manpower officials were reported to be meeting here today in an effort to devise some means of distinguishing —for draft purposes—between direct war jobs and jobs which simply 'support' the war effort. No information was available on how this distinction might be made, but it was feared here that, if such a distinction is made, neithei motion pictures nor broadcasting would be held in the first group.

GOETZ, SPITZ PLAN SERVICE AFFILIATES FOR OTHER PRODS

Goetz-Spitz International productions outfit, according to reports, will setup various affiliated units to obtain finance, give assistance on stories, and casting and do other chores for producers. These functions, outside of possibly doing one picture a year, will be main biz of new outfit.

Though the heads state they have given releasing arrangements no consideration, it is likelv that the distribution outlet will be RKO. Leo Spitz, who, as attorney for Sam Goldwyn, handled latter's releasing deal with that company, feels that this source will provide his company and its associates with more advantageous distribution conditions than elsewhere, even better than through United Artists. At the same time, RKO would like to augment its own top product with outside films of high calibre.

BERLIN'S PAR FILM WITH SANDRICH DIES OF CHILL

Deal whereby Mark Sandrich, Paramount producer-director, and Irving Berlin were to have made musical together for Paramount in Spring has chilled, and Sandrich is readying another musical without composer. Sandrich was to have taken couple writers with him when he goes to New York within next 10 days, for confabs with Berlin on musical, but now he goes east alone, merely for opening of his picture, 'So Proudly We Hail.' New musical probably will star Bing Crosby, and possibly Bob Hope.

CAST and crew of an independent unit are getting plenty of amusement out of the maneuverings and manipulations of the associates in the picture now shooting. Seems the top guy has banned his associate producer and partner from the stage while company is on the set, probably because the a.p. has his wife working in the film. Further, an assistant of the top guy has been appointed with overall authority on the picture, and cast and crew sit back for frequent laughs when the kitchen cabinet of supervisor, director and others congregate in the center of the set and engage in an extended harangue and arm-waving argument on how the next scene is to be shot. Only continual yowls from the assistant director—who's concerned about the shooting schedule—seems eventually to get the group off the set for shooting to resume.

MARIA PALMER is only cast member of 13 principals in RKO's 'Revenge' who will ever have been glimpsed by American audiences before release of Casey Robinson production. She played part of Litvinoff's daughter in 'Mission To Moscow,' and by actual clocking was on screen less than three minutes, and then as a brunet. For 'Revenue' she's become a blonde, and it will take careful eye to perceive any resemblance between her in current film and Warner opus. Remainder of principals all hail either from eastern stage or from Hollywood ranks whose faces never are seen by public.

PICTURE news is getting a heavy play on radio stations serviced by United Press. Partial survey recently completed disclosed that 114 transmitters in 36 states use the six-time weekly column on Hollywood written by Hal Swisher, UP division radio manager. On this basis it is figured that when all clients have been canvassed it may run the figure up to 350 stations airing the feature regularly. Greater radio interest in film news is ascribed to the closer cooperation between the two branches of show business and the need for light material to leaven the run of war news and Washington palaver.

the WPB on picture hoarding in letter of July 13, followed it up with a second broadside received by Hopper today. Retakes

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

Times grow fast, so the jivers tell us,
Trying to make the oldsters jealous.
They don't know the oldtime dancing
When their grandpops went a-prancing.
Hicks of a bygone generation
Hoofed all night in their animation.
Even a jitterbug would slow down
Keeping up with a good old hoe-down.

There were vigorous but not acrobatic dances, and vigorous but not acrobatic music, in elder days before melody was processed through a sliphorn and came out high voltage. There were square dances, quadrilles and Virginia reels, a continuous round of athletic pursuit, with no rest except when the fiddler paused to rosin his bow and give his left foot a rest. He always kept time with his left foot. In those intervals the boys would hasten out to consult a jug of hard cider or elderberry wine and return steaming with renewed vigor. When the hoofing marathon was over and dawn lightened over the east ridge, the boys went out to hitching bars and unblanketed the horses and everybody rolled home asleep, knowing that Old Bess would turn in at the right gate in time for milking. Dancing in those days was not acrobatic, but required more stamina than a short horse in a six-furlong jive. Boy never tossed girl over his shoulder but kept on hoofing like a derby horse until dewy morning, and then went out and pushed a plow until dewy eve. Maybe the jitterbug tempo is faster nowadays, but the old boys were there in the stretch, snorting like Malicious.

Let's Face It

(Comedy)

Paramount production. Co-stars Bob Hope and Betty Hutton. Supporting cast: Dona Drake, Cully Richards, Eve Arden, ZaSu Pitts, Marjorie Weaver, Raymond Walburn, Phyllis Povah, Joe Sawyer, Dave Willock, Nicco and Tanya. Director, Sidney Lanfield. Associate producer, Fred Kohlmar. Screenplay, Harry Tugend. Based on musical play by Dorothy Fields, Herbert Fields and Cole Porter. Suggested by play by Norma Mitchell and Russell G. Medcraft. Photography, Lionel Lindon. Art direction, Hans Dreier, Earl Hedrick. Sets, Raymond Moyer. Editor, Paul Weatherwax. Costumes, Edith Head. Songs by Cole Porter, and Jule Styne and Sammy Cahn. Tradeshown at studio, Aug. 4, 1943. Running time: 75 MINS.

Picturization of Cole Porter's Broadway musical hit, 'Let's Face It,' as produced by Paramount, has its lusty moments but is in need of a hypo, to imbue it with fresh blood. Picture unquestionably will draw heavily at turnstiles, with star-names of Bob Hope and Betty Hutton to boost its sale, augmented by promised songs of Cole Porter, but general reaction is apt to be far less responsive than to Hope pictures Paramount has turned out in past. Studio very often went overboard in reaching for laughs, consequently action frequently fringes on poor taste in presentation of Hope as a soldier.

Adapted from old stage play, 'Cradle Snatchers,' basic theme is three wives picking up trio of soldiers to teach their respective spouses a lesson, when latter leave them at a health farm to go off on announced fishing trip but actually to have gay time with some cuties. Wives become suspicious and invite soldiers to country home of ZaSu Pitts, one of the wives, where they expect their erring husbands to show up.

Hope, who's agreed to idea because he needs money to pay for wrecking Army jeep and get married to Betty Hutton, sells idea to his two buddies, who revolt when they glim middle-aged partners when they were promised young lovelies. Story resorts to traditional mix-ups thereafter, with arrival of husbands with their gal friends, and appearance on scene of soldiers' sweethearts, final end showing Hope and his pals capturing a German sub as they're attempting to cross bay to their camp.

Picture lacks spontaneity of original situations, and Hope is made out as a sap, which ill becomes uniform he's wearing. He makes the most of his role, however, and finds a top partner in Betty Hutton, who plays a milk farm trainer. Two form what should be a popular comedy team. Actress puts over two song numbers, 'Let's Not Talk About Love' and 'Who Did? I Did, Yes I Did,' with her customary gusto, and her appearance in film marks step forward in her screen career.

Eve Arden, from New York cast of 'Let's Face It,' enacts one of wives, ZaSu Pitts and Phyllis Povah the other two, and she gives distinction to her quips, many of which obviously have been cut out due to footage. Her two companions perform amusingly, too, as do Hope's two pals, Cully Richards and Dave Willock. Boys' sweethearts are Marjorie Weaver and Dona Drake, who look pretty but have nothing to do. One of outstanding comedy sequences is eccentric dance number per-

COAST INDIES OFF TO WASH. TO LAY IN BEEFS ON DECREE

Rotus Harvey and Hugh Bruen, Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners trustees, and a committee from Allied States will meet in Washington this weekend with Tom C. Clark, assistant attorney general in charge of the anti-trust division, for a conference on organized independent exhibitor complaints against the consent decree.

Conference, arranged during Clark's brief visit to Los Angeles July 24-25, will be for purpose of augmenting detailed complaints which were handed the trust-buster at a confidential session here in the Federal Building July 25, plus giving him a picture of Allied squawks against the decree's provisions. Abram Myers, Allied general counsel, will attend with that organization's committee.

Following meeting with Clark, Bruen and Harvey leave for Baltimore to act as observers at an Allied board meeting there Aug. 11-12, and will then return to the Coast to give PCCITO members here a report on results of both sessions.

Costumers Win WLB Okay for Pay Hike After 90 Days

Approval for increased pay for studio costume illustrators was received by Screen Set Designers yesterday from the War Labor Board in Washington. Agreement on scales was reached by Producers and union nearly 90 days ago, but deal was held up pending an okay from the WLB.

New rate for assistant costume designers will be $1.75 per hour, $70 per week or $94.50 per week on call. Rates for costume illustrators is $1.30 per hour, $52 per week or $70.20 per week on call. An apprentice costume illustrator will receive 80 cents per hour or $32 per week.

Deal with Producers was set by a negotiating committee headed by Business Representative Ed Mussa.

Dennis Day Signed To 7-Yr. Metro Deal

Dennis Day has been tabbed by Metro to seven year contract, with ticket calling for annual options. One assignment is slated to be 'Ziegfeld Follies,' although with latter picture set back to next year, it is expected that Day will be given another filmusical spot in the meantime. Deal was negotiated by the Lou Irwin office.

'Broadcast' Rolls Friday

Producer George Sherman will roll Republic's 'Mystery Broadcast' Friday, he announced. Frank Albertson and Ruth Terry are featured. Others in the cast are Alice Fleming, Nils Asther, Wynne Gibson, Addison Richards, Mary Treen, Emmett Vogan, Paul Harvey, Francis Pierlot and Joseph Chehan. Kenny Holmes aids Sherman in megging spot, and Bill Bradford handles camera.

Howie Mayer Reported Set For Todd Bally

Although Howie Mayer still is functioning as head of Columbia studio publicity department, it is reported he has signed deal with Mike Todd to handle publicity for latter's stage shows both in the east and on the Coast. In addition to handling the studio post, Mayer still has his Chicago publicity organization operating to handle the outside accounts.

UA's Collins Upped To Branch Head Here

Earl R. Collins, manager of the United Artists branch in Dallas, has been promoted to head UA branch here and takes over Aug. 16. He is due in from Dallas latter part of next week and fills vacancy left by recent resignation of Cresson Smith, who retired to his ranch at Redlands. Collins headed the Los Angeles office several years ago.

Feuchtwanger Sued

Lion Feuchtwanger, noted writer, was named defendant in a suit filed yesterday in Municipal court by Mrs. Alta Mae Mattison, who alleged in her petition that she was the owner of the premises at 15827 Sunset blvd. and that Feuchtwanger leased the house there on Aug. 1, 1942, on a yearly basis. She asked that the court order the writer to give up the house as the lease has expired and she needs the home for herself.

AMERICA LOOKS ABROAD

with Robert Arden

Berlin admits the evacuation of Orel. Moscow announced the storming of the city. Thus one of the greatest successes of our Soviet ally has been achieved on the Eastern front.

The continued hammering at the Axis defense in Sicily will unquestionably lead to an early collapse of the Axis resistance.

These two events are very likely to lead to extra important developments over the coming weekend; one may be the continuance of the Soviet advance on Smolensk and Kharkov, the other may be an invasion of the Italian mainland and perhaps the Balkans.

At any rate, it has become definitely clear that our military power is fully able to swing the tide of the war in our favor—even if the diplomatic attempt to help it along falls short of its goal.

How knowledge of weather conditions aided in the invasion of Sicily will be revealed by Army experts.

Golden Gate Drops Hi Power Band Leader and MC

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—Golden Gate theatre has dropped policy of having a high-powered band leader and master of ceremonies for its house orchestra. In view of fact that orch lays off for weeks on end while name bands hold down the stage, vaudefilm theatre decided it was a waste of money to pay a high salary to an m.c. and leader while he twiddled his thumbs in inactivity most of the time.

Charlie Kalary, who was drawing $10,000 a year for this berth, picked up a band of his own in San Francisco and is now playing at the Hotel Last Frontier in Las Vegas, Nev.

On the few occasions when the house orchestra is playing, one of the acts will handle the m.c. chores and musicians union will furnish someone to wave the baton as nominal leader of the band.

Radio Stations Asked To Give Postal Zone

Broadcasters Yanked When FCC Frowned, Says Station V. P.

New York, Aug. 4.—Two broadcasters on a Chicago commercial were yanked because they had incurred the displeasure of Federal Communications Commission, according to Gene Dyer, v.p. of radio station WGES, Chicago, in his testimony before Cox congressional committee. He declared that loss of the radio men cost the station up to $20,000 in billing as the macaroni sponsor cancelled out.

Ex-Col Scenarist Is Missing In Action

Lieut. Gerald Breckenridge, former scenarist at Columbia studio before entering the service, has been listed as missing in action in Asiatic waters, according to a War Department advice. Breckenridge resided with his wife, Edith, at 2058 Watsonia terrace.

Mae West Wins Decree

Mae West was awarded final divorce decree yesterday from Frank Wallace, vet vaude hoofer, by Superior Judge Goodwin J. Knight. She told court she was married to Wallace in Milwaukee, Wis., April 11, 1911, and lived with him only one month. It was understood that a settlement between Miss West and Wallace was made out of court.

Also appearing on the program will be Kay Kyser, Ginny Simms and possibly Lionel Barrymore. Half-hour show airs over KECA at 8:30 o'clock.

Touhy Beats 20th in Round 1

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Roger Touhy was the victor today in a court battle to prevent 20th-Fox from exhibiting or advertising picture allegedly based on his life, when Federal Judge William Holly signed temporary restraining order against the film company. Touhy is serving a 99-year sentence in the Statesville prison in Joliet, Ill. Judge Holly stated that the order would remain in effect until Friday, when he will issue a permanent restraining order unless the defendants appear to contest Touhy's petition.

Radio Gets Bouquet For Fine Chore On OWI Jobs

Washington, Aug. 4.—Radio received a terrific bouquet from the official Department of Commerce publication, 'Domestic Commerce,' whose August issue was released today and included some figures compiled recently by the OWI on radio's war jobs.

Nine million listeners were credited to the 85 weekly programs sponsored by 70 advertisers which carry the war message through the OWI national spot allocation plan. Station announcement plan was said to have 891 stations participating, with 8,000 daily war messages broadcast. Further, more than 50 national commercial programs were reported to have been devoted entirely to war information themes, employing in excess of $13,000,000 in time and talent. Campaigns covered wide field of endeavor for the war effort, and each was highly successful.

Seven Televising Spots Skedded For Coast

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—Post-war plans for television on the Coast provide for construction of seven televising transmitters—three here and four in Los Angeles. This information was disclosed by William M. Boland of General Electric Co., who stated the stations would be built by the electronics industry as a whole at heavy cost.

Burroughs Coasts

Washington, Aug. 4.—Lincoln V. Burroughs, assistant to WPB motion picture chief, Harold Hopper, left last night for Hollywood. Burroughs will attempt to ease a critical shortage of X-ray film for west coast military and civilian purposes.

formed by Nicco and Tanya, clever artists both.

Sidney Lanfield directed with as much adroitness as screenplay would allow and Fred Kohlmar is credited as associate producer. Picture was based upon musical play by Dorothy Fields, Herbert Fields and Cole Porter, which, in turn, was suggested by play co-authored by Norma Mitchell and Russell G. Medcraft, and Harry Tugend wrote script. Lionel Lindon handled camera, photographing principals to excellent effect. Jule Styne and Sammy Cahn turned out song, 'Who Did? I Did, Yes I Did,' and Cole Porter composed 'Let's Not Talk About Love' and third song of picture, 'Let's Face It.'

Frisco's Old Portola Quits Delicates Biz To Be 1st Runner

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—Blumenfeld Circuit has started restoring a Market street building to its former status as the old Portola theatre, with reported aim of launching another first run house here. Portola has been divided in recent years with two small store spaces, one occupied by a delicatessen and the other by a bus ticket agency. Delicatessen has vacated and the restoration of the old theatre has already started in that half of the building.

Theatre is two doors away from the State, Fox West Coast second run house, and is several blocks down Market street toward the Ferry building and away from the first run theatre district. Location as the first picture house coming up Market street at night may catch many service men and war workers coming to the Ferry building and Bay Bridge train terminal.

Blumenfeld Circuit, which operates the Orpheum, United Artists and Esquire, all first runners, has been looking for another Market street house for some time. Reason that circuit is particularly anxious for a fourth outlet is that recent long runs of pictures have built up an excess of product. A fourth first runner would give Blumenfeld as many as Fox West Coast operators here. A new theatre on Market street would also be the first addition to theatre properties there in about 15 years.

HVC SETS ALDRICH FAMILY, OTHERS ON CAMP TOURS

The Aldrich Family has been set by the Hollywood Victory Committee for a tour of service camps, with Jimmy Lydon, Johnny Litel and Olive Blakeney in the roles of Henry, Father and Mother, respectively.

Slim Summerville checked out yesterday on a two-week tour of Virginia camps, and a route was received from the War Department for Eric Blore and Ann Savage, who leave tomorrow to join a USO-Camp Shows unit in Texas. Playing through Aug. 21, they will appear at Camp Hood, Camp Wallace, Camp Hulen and the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station.

Alice Faye will headline this week's 'Command Performance' for the War Department.

CLARK RULE MAY SLOW TRUST SUITS

Washington, Aug. 4.—Possibility of a 'rule of thumb' to apply to all outstanding industry anti-trust cases was raised yesterday by assistant attorney general Tom C. Clark. This would mean a delay at least until late September on any action in the Schine, Crescent, Griffith and other cases, pending the setting of the government course in the New York case.

Although each case differs from the others, Clark indicated that he might grant the request of the Schine circuit that action on their request to be relieved of responsibility for the disposal of 10 theatres be held up until policy in the New York case is set. Schine was ordered to get rid of 16 theatres, but has only been successful in disposing of six; with circuit requesting right to hold the rest until suitable purchasers are obtained.

Barry p. a.'s For Lippert

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—Robert L. Lippert Circuit has set a date with Republic studio for personal appearance of Don 'Red' Barry at eight of the Lippert theatres in Northern California from Aug. 13 to 20. Barry will appear in conjunction with one of his recent pictures.

Southgate Garners 42 Day Cut in Clearance Case

Total clearance cut of 42 days has been gained by the South Gate theatre, operated by L. W. Allen, with upholding of a local arbitrational decision by the national appeal board in New York. Appeal board also doubled original 21-day cut granted by local board, giving theatre a 49-day clearance at 20 cents admission, instead of its original 91-day clearance at that price scale.

South Gate complaint, on which Albert Law represented the theatre, was aimed at obtaining earlier playdates for pictures in that zone for house and named Fox West Coast and the Vogue theatre as respondents.

Mark Hellinger Will Film 'Dough Girls'

Mark Hellinger will produce film version of 'The Dough Girls,' rights to which were recently acquired by Warners. James V. Kern and Sam Hellman, who just handed in script of 'The Horn Blows at Midnight,' have been assigned to handle screenplay of 'Girls.'

EXTRAS CARRY $15 A DAY PLEA TO LABOR COUNCIL

Screen Players Protective Committee, which is carrying film extras fight for the right to manage their own affairs direct to organized labor through appearances at Central Labor Councils disclosed last night that it is still pushing its demand for a $15 daily minimum for atmosphere players. Following a meeting of the full committee, it was announced that Chairman Roy Lawson had been authorized to issue the following statement:

'A minimum wage scale of $15 per day for all extra players appearing in motion pictures. A $7.50 minimum for interviews and $7.50 for fittings. No time deducted for fittings on work days. Abolishment of cancellation. No conversion. Extra to be carried at daily basic rate if required to appear in picture for continuation or added scenes. Waivers to be granted only when regular members are unavailable.

'This is still the vital issue. To obtain these just and fair conditions will continue to be your committee's goal and you can be assured of their ceaseless efforts in this behalf. The Screen Players Protective Committee does not recognize any groups or cliques, stands on the principle that all extras are of equal importance, be he so-called racial, character, dress, rider, dancer, singer or standin. This is the way of real unionism, the American way. Any other way is inconceivable.'

Despite reported protests from Executive Secretary Kenneth Thomson of the Screen Actors Guild, nearby labor council publications continue to devote considerable space to the Protective Committee's fight.

LeBaron Opens New Troc Room With Capacity Crowd

Trocadero's opening last night as an Eddie LeBaron operation drew a capacity crowd of Hollywoodites which found the run of entertainment and dansapation in the Panther Room much to their liking. Featured are The Revuers, a mixed foursome of hilarious satirists, and the music of Garwood Van and LeBaron. Others who were well received were Marye Gilbertt, vocalist with Van's orchestra; Barbara Perry, tap dancer, and Chandra Kaly and his terp troupe. Chuy Reyes, pianist with LeBaron, also is spotlighted.

IA Throws Studio Jobs Open

'War Cards' will go to outsiders. Latter are good only for the War Emergency, and those receiving them are required to sign a pledge agreeing to rturn them on call after the emergency. No initiation fee is charged card men, although they are required to pay monthly dues.

Men in lower wage qualifications, particularly members of IA Studio Laborers and Utility Workers Local 727 will be given an opportunity to qualify for cards. Schools are being operated on the various lots, with the pupils receiving no pay until they are qualified to receive cards. They will be instructed by an IATSE man, who will be paid.

Move was interpreted by film labor tops as aimed at stopping drive of International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers to take over electrical jurisdiction. There has been a scarcity of juicers for months, many of them working second shifts at time and one-half. Producers objected to paying the premium scale for second shifts, and recently threatened to call on the IBEW to supply men unless Local 728 kicked through with enough men to man sets without paying time and one-half.

Regular members will have first call on work, with permit men coming second and those holding 'War Cards' taking show position. International Sound Technicians Local 695 is operating its own school for sound technicians who will be permitted to work on permits, as in other IA crafts.

There has been considerable beef in Affiliated Property Craftsmen Local 44 over men in lower brackets moving into higher qualifications, but it is understood Vice-Prexy Carl Cooper and other IA tops are favorable to boys in lower brackets getting a crack at higher coin during the emergency provided they can qualify to handle the work properly.

Issuance of War Cards was framed by the International in order not to load up the memberships of the locals and at the same time furnish all the men needed for production. It was hoped this plan would enable the union to take care of boys when they return from the armed services or defense jobs, which would be impossible if membership rolls were thrown open.

Prexy Richard Walsh of the IATSE promised Producers that his organization would furnish sufficient men to handle production even if they had to bring them from other cities. In the case of electricians, however, it was found sufficient men could not be secured from sister locals in nearby jurisdictions, hence the plan to issue War Cards for the emergency.

Hopper Puts Studios On 50-50 Basis for Sets, Materials

Washington, Aug. 4. — One of those incredible situations which could happen only in Hollywood or Washington has just been ironed out by Harold Hopper, chief of the War Production Board's motion picture division. This one happened in Washington, a bit of it in New York.

Practically every Hollywood studio, Hopper found on his return from his recent trip to Hollywood, was operating under a different set cost limit and preference rating for set construction materials. Hopper went to work and has, so far, straightened out the situation to the extent that all studios are once again on the same basis, with AA-3 ratings for lumber and hardware and AA-5 for expendables such as paint and sandpaper. He also is trying to pull the studios out from under the authority of WPB's construction order, L-41.

No full explanation for the differences in ratings has been given, except that some were figured out by the New York office and some by the Washington office of the WPB construction branch.

Removing studio sets from the control of L-41 would not make the materials any more accessible, but would materially reduce the amount of paper work required to get these materials.

Studios have cut their use of critical materials greatly since the present emergency started, with present annual cost of such materials for sets estimated at not much over $600,000. A member of the WPB construction branch will probably arrive in Hollywood next week to look the situation over.

Coe, Film Tops Meet On Anti-Pix Blasts

New York, Aug. 4.—Film company New York toppers huddled today at the Hays office with Charles Francis Coe, vice prexy of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, regarding plans for combatting antipicture business blasts, particularly a Hollywood series now appearing in the Chicago Tribune.

DEAL FOR NEW FIRST RUN OUTLET HERE HITTING SNAGS

New York, Aug. 4.—Deal for creation of a new first run setup in the Los Angeles-Hollywood area, with Fox West Coast converting the subsequent-run Los Angeles and Hollywood Egyptian to day-daters; and RKO providing overload product from the Pantages-Hillstreet; is far from completion.

Many ramifications and interests are involved in the proposed setup. In addition to F-WC, which is anxious to move backlogged product awaiting release in the Pantages-Hillstreet so that circuit's subsequent runs will have pictures available, other interests are vitally hooked up in the proposed deal.

Pan-Hillstreet film franchises cover first runs on Universal, RKO, and Columbia product—with all three distribs required to okay switch of any product to the new first runs. Rodney Pantages, an operator of the Pan, also figures in the arrangements insofar as obtaining his approval to any deal. F-WC operates the Hollywood Egyptian, but the downtown Los Angeles is currently operated by Sherrill Corwin, a F-WC partner.

Charles Skouras, president of F-WC and National Theatres, is here from the coast attempting to weld the eastern elements together for final submission to the coast interests concerned.

Relations Counsel Asks $3,750 From Carrillo

William Richman, public relations counsel, filed suit yesterday in Superior Court against Leo Carrillo, charging that film actor engaged his services to poll public on Carrillo's chances to win Governorship of California. Richmand alleges that Carrillo dropped out of Governor's race, but owes him $3,750 for his poll survey.

Projectionists Make Appeal to FDR in Wage Dispute

New York, Aug. 4.—Burning over failure of the War Labor Board in Washington to settle the long-standing dispute between Local 306 Operators, and the Julius Joelson Circuit, which in Oct., 1942, arbitrarily cut the pay of five projectionists in its Kingsbridge Theatre, union is framing a protest to be sent directly to President Roosevelt.

The union resentment is particularly keen due to the fact that the impartial referee, Robert L. Hale, professor of law at Columbia University, appointed by the WLB regional office here, handed down a decision favoring the union as far back as March last, but nothing has been done by Washington.

Requests by 306 for a WLB ruling has invariably met with the declaration that the case involved important policy and must be considered carefully by the board. The circuit operates 18 houses in Greater New York.

Meyer Marks Commits Suicide In Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Meyer Marks, 48, former co-owner with his brother Louis, of a string of theatres here, committed suicide last night by monoxide gas in a parking lot. 46 ORGS UNITE FOR BOND DRIVE

New York, Aug. 6.—National Entertainment Industry Council tonight mapped plans for 46 allied organizations representing all phases of show business to join in an all-out effort on behalf of the Third War Bond Drive, beginning Sept. 9. Committee of NEIC members will go to Washington next Tuesday to pledge itself to Treasury Department and ask in what way entertainment industry as whole can supplement activities of Hollywood Victory Committee in helping to put $15,000,000,000 drive across.

As NEIC's first ambitious project since its inception a huge Broadway mass meeting will be staged midnight of Aug. 23 at the Winter Garden Theatre at which all show and pic representatives, will pledge services on part of the campaign.

Event originally scheduled Sept. 20 was moved in order to tie in with Third Bond Drive and will be featured by dedication of show biz service flag. NEIC will also play prominent role in national war fund drive starting Oct. 1.

AMBITIOUS campaign lined up by Republic for 'In Old Oklahoma' will call for company to spend better than $250,000 for ballyhoo in exchange centers, plus an additional $100,000 as its share in cooperative campaigns to be put on by exhibitors. In addition, Republic has laid out a preliminary budget of $25,000 for trade paper advertising during October. Weekly and monthly magazines also will start breaking ads in October additions and later. Radio spot announcements will be used starting two days prior to a release date and carrying through run of the picture in exchange localities, plus heavy splurge for newspaper and 24-sheet space. Allotment for Los Angeles area alone on 24-sheets and newspaper lineage calls for total of 7,500 lines in the dailies, and 75 regular and 81 special 24-sheets. Parties and screenings exclusively for the press also are being set up in exchange centers for additional exploitation.

WIRED music, better known as central station telephoned request record playing, in taverns and night spots is getting increased tap from the customers. When wired music originally was introduced a few years ago, operators figured they had to compete with the coin-machine phonographs, and consequently held price per record to five cents, despite heavy overhead and line charges. But 30% increase in cost and upkeep during past 18 months, and decreased revenue due to earlier tavern closing, had the wired music operators fighting to keep out of the red ink. Result was upping of record plays by one operator to 10 cents, or three for a quarter, a few weeks ago, and results were so satisfactory that other operators are immediately following suit. There's no decrease in number of plays at the tilted figure, according to the operator putting higher scale into effect, and gross receipts from his more than 50 locations have increased 40%.

KAISER Shipyards are placing new dormitory, housing more than 150, at disposal of Republic Producer Albert J. Cohen, when he takes company to Richmond, in San Francisco Bay area, to film 'The Man From Frisco.' Kaiser also is giving producer 25 motor vehicles to use during company's stay there, since other transportation is unavailable, as well as 140-foot crane, three times size of any studio crane now in use. Present plans of shipbuilding concern call for blanket coverage of picture on all recruiting ads for shipyard which will be displayed in 50 cities throughout nation. Picture also will have day-by-day coverage in Kaiser periodicals which go out to all shipyards all over country.

tire 1943-44 program. Distribs currently each have between 10 and 20 features either completed or in advanced stages of production, and these will—on announced schedules—carry through half of the season. Every studio has heavy production lined up for the next four months, with all intent on getting under the wire before the services lift too much manpower.

Studio managers and execs, with close watch on draft requirements, and trends, have been anticipating drastic inroads into their manpower, and have been able to convince the front office of the eventual effect of such a condition.

It's the first time that the advice and counsel of the back lot operators has taken effect on front, as studio officials have already gone through problems of securing actor talent for male leads or prominent support in pictures during the past six months.

If Robin Hood in days of old
Were wise to legal functions,
He might have stopped the Sheriff cold
With permanent injunctions.
In such a case you never would Have heard the tale of Robin Hood.

There never was a Robin Hood. At least, there was not the noble character press-agented by Sir Walter Scott and later plugged by Howard Pyle with handsome illustrations. Nor even the tuneful hero of light opera. There always have been Robin Hoods in every age and in every clime, but they never became heroes until some minstrel or novelist or playwright wove a halo of romance about the nefarious doings of a no-good so-and-so. Which makes Roger Touhy look like an ungrateful person when he calls upon the courts to protect him from the minstrelsy of Hollywood. Under the Will Hays regime all crime stories are based on the theory that right is right and justice will prevail. Imagine Robin Hood, or Little John, sitting in a donjon in the Nottingham county jail and paging the Lord High Sheriff: 'Hey, screw, my mouthpiece is gonny lay a lawsuit for 10,000 quid right in your lap. As a guest of good King John's hoosegow, I demand privacy.'

In every language there are tales of bandits who robbed the rich and fed the poor, which was a good idea in those days when the rich had everything and the poor had nothing to rob. Nowadays the poor are wealthier than the rich, or richer than the wealthy, or whichever way you want to put it. There still is a bit of adventure Robinhooding along the highways, but it is no longer romantic and it is not a promising career for a young man. Essentially, Robin Hoods are frustrated hams, more concerned with front-page notices than with annual dividends.

And even on the far-flung farms the gals now reap the crop.
In corporations, banks and such, the femmes are in the chair,

The beauteous blonde is nothing but a supernumerary.

Frontier Badmen

(Western Drama)

Universal release. Features Robert Paige, Anne Gwynne, Noah Beery, Jr., Diana Barrymore, Leo Carrillo, Andy Devine, Thomas Gomez, Frank Lackteen, William Farnum, Lon Chaney. Produced and directed by Ford Beebe. Original screen play, Gerald Geraghty and Morgan B. Cox. Photography, William Sickner. Art director, John B. Goodman, Ralph DeLacy. Director of sound, Bernard B. Brown; technician, Charles Carroll. Set decorations, R. A. Gausman, Leo Smith. Musical director, H. J. Salter. Film editor, Fred Feitshans, Jr. Gowns, Vera West. Previewed at the RKO Hillstreet, Los Angeles, Aug. 5, 1943. Running time: 76 MINS.

'Frontier Badmen' is adult western fare. The high adventure of printed outdoor fiction comes to life on the screen in a swell, slam-bang saga of the early west, its good girls and men, and its bad men. Played with a keen recognition of the entertainment values such fiction has, and written with a modern touch for sterling comedy and romance, 'Frontier Badmen' adds up as enjoyable fare slated for excellent reception.

Ford Beebe combines his producer-director chore into a top-notch credit in realizing on the prime elements in the original script by Gerald Geraghty and Morgan B. Cox. The rousing action of massed gunfight and cattle stampede, the quietly effective suspense of impending hand-to-hand battle, the sure comedy, all are told with assurance and easy performance under Beebe's smart guidance.

The story concerns itself with the old Abilene cattle days, when that frontier town offered a market for Texas ranchers, and with the bad men who controled the buying and selling price to their own advantage. Into that setup comes easy-going, lady-loving Robert Paige and his sober partner, Noah Beery, Jr., and the boys soon settled down to making Abilene a safe place for a cattleman, or a buyer, to do business.

Paige is at his best as the 'wolf-in-chaps,' a performance that raises his mark considerably. Beery accounts for another able characterization as the more sane of the Texans. Anne Gwynne, a femme rancher who forms a triangle between the two boys, demonstrates that she is ready for any assignment, doing an outstanding job. Diana Barrymore, a dealer in the town's gambling emporium, capably offers additional romantic play.

For comedy Beebe has thrown in Leo Carrillo, an impetuous Latin; Andy Devine, a rotund cowboy; and Frank Lackteen, a cow-punching Indian. The trio are a guaranteed success. Thomas Gomez gives assured ability to his role as head of the crooked cattle combine. Lon Chaney is a deadly gun-slinger, and William Farnum projects an excellent small spot, as do several other uncredited cast members.

William Sickner's camera took every advantage of scenic and action values. The musical direction by H. J. Salter carries the varied moods, and other credits, including art direction, sets, film editing, etc., each add value to the finished production.

McHugh Cast In 'Way'

Frank McHugh was cast today as Father Tim Timony in Paramount's forthcoming 'Going My Way,' which stars Bing Crosby. Leo McCarey is producer-director.

Robin Hood of the Range

(Western With Songs)

Columbia release. Stars Charles Starrett, with Kay Harris, Arthur (Arkansas) Hunnicutt and the Jimmy Wakely Trio. Supporting cast: Kenneth MacDonald, Douglass Drake, Hal Price, Ed Peil, Sr., Frank LaRue, Bud Osborne, Stanley Brown. Director, William Berke. Producer, Jack Fier. Story and screen play, Betty Burbridge. Photography, Benjamin Kline. Film editor, Jerome Thoms. Art direction, Lionel Banks; associate, Perry Smith. Interior decorator, James M. Crowe. Assistant director, William O'Connor. Sound enginerr, Jack Goodrich. Reviewed at the Hitching Post, Hollywood, Aug. 5, 1943. Running time: 57 MINS.

High standard of the Charles Starrett-Columbia westerns is easily maintained with 'Robin Hood of the Range.' Scripting is slick for the market and Starrett comes through with action performance that fills the bill all the way. With Jack Fier producing and William Berke directing, Columbia's Starrett oaters always appear to have an extra bit of polish not found in usual prairie saga.

Betty Burbridge's script plotting has Starrett, orphan raised by an early-day railroad pioneer, assuming a Robin Hood guise to succor homesteaders who are being deprived of their ranches by a railroad land grab. To do this he has to go against his foster-parent, but Starrett, always on the side of right, carries on to bring justice and peace again to the range. Script is action-packed, with an eye on western values, as penned by Miss Burbridge, and William Berke knows his business of never slackening the pace when a western hero is on the prowl.

Kay Harris lends a comely note as the heroine, foster-sister of Starrett, who gives him timely aid in his Robin-Hooding. Arthur Hunnicutt, standard in the Starrett series, projects the dry comedy. Better than average western villainry is carried out by Kenneth MacDonald as the railroader, and Douglass Drake, his right-hand man. Latter has the ability to make a mark in regular features. Hal Price, sheriff; Ed Peil, Sr., Frank LaRue, Bud Osborne and Stanley Brown complete good casting.

Movement benefits by good photography of Benjamin Kline. The Jimmy Wakely Trio are in for the vocals, properly spotted, with Wakely also carrying off well several lines.

Chapman NY's On P.A.'s

Marguerite Chapman superchiefs out today for New York, where she will do series of personal appearances in connection with opening of Columbia's 'Destroyer,' in which she appears opposite Edward G. Robinson and Glenn Ford.

SOEG Poke So Fat Months Dues May Be Refunded

Big turnover in studio White Collarites because of manpower shortages has built up such a financial reserve for Screen Office Employes through collection of initiation fees, that union is recommending months dues be rebated to membership. Resolution will be introduced at general membership meeting Tuesday night to permit Collarites to pay two months quarterly dues next quarter instead of three months.

If approved move will save members several hundred dollars since current dues range from $3.25 to $9.25 per quarter. Even with current turnover, studios have been finding it difficult to get sufficient clerical help, many inexperienced workers being taken on.

Following an address by F. L. Doherty, representing the U. S. Department of Agriculture, SOEG also is planning to recruit hundreds of Collarites to help harvest produce on Sunday. First group will turn out this Sunday to harvest carrots. Doherty said the situation was more serious than many people realized, and that many farmers were plowing under cabbage and other produce because they could not get it harvested. Doherty will talk to the general membership Tuesday night in an effort to get adidtional recruits, following his appearance before the SOEG Executive Board.

Geraldine Fitzgerald goes into top spot alongside of Loretta Young in 'When Ladies' Fly' to be made by Walter Wanger for Universal. John Rawlins will direct with pic going into work end of this month.

AMERICA LOOKS ABROAD

with Robert Arden

Three important victories are ours. On the Eastern front, Orel and Belgorod were retaken by our Soviet allies. On Sicily, Catania and Gerbini have been captured, and in the far Pacific the Munda air base fell to our jungle fighters.

The strategic overall picture looks very promising at this time, especially with prospects of a Soviet advance in the direction of Smolensk and possibly Kiev.

It looks as if all of Sicily will be in Allied hands by Sunday, and an invasion of the Italian mainland would seem sure to follow.

All in all, it was an important day in the war, not so much because of the successes achieved, but primarily because of important events foreshadowed by them.

Only Just Begun To Star!:

● ● ● MUSIC, 'tis said, hath charms......The tune-laden feature film, whether of the war or nay, makes it easier for America's millions to walk in Duty's path with the weight of the conflict's cares and worries on their shoulders......And to the exhibitor there is charm in music...... His business symphony, which makes possible the efficient operation of his house in wartime, provides the wherewithal for the purchase of Bonds in maximum volume, and makes possible his own and much of his community's activities in behalf of Victory, is the clinking of coin as it pours into the ole box-office till......Both of these facets of present-day filmdom,—from the patron's and showman's standpoint—, bring to mind the intriguing Case of Deanna Durbin......Her latest Universal vehicle, "Hers To Hold," is not only a rich example of the timely, music-studded opus which the public wants, but a timely example of music-studded richness which the theater operator needs......Fans are heading eagerly for the new film, as is evidenced by the heavy "takes" reported from hosts of situations where it is now playing......

● ● ● THAT "Hers To Hold" is making turnstiles click with the frequency of machine-gun fire is not altogether a novelty in the annals of Durbin pix......From the time of the young star's debut in features via "Three Smart Girls," she has enjoyed unique success, hurtling virtually overnight to stardom, and then hanging up repeated triumphs in rapid succession......Then she was tagged as a prodigy,—primarily because of her vocalizing and refreshing personality......Today, the Case of Deanna Durbin is precisely what we say here,—intriguing...... Her vocal skill is far above what it was formerly, and her personality even more magnetic......From a pretty child-star, with what might be termed adequate histronic ability, she has grown into an adult luminary with great performing skill......Her glamour enchants patrons of the feminine gender, giving her intense box-office value on that important score......Equally magnetic is she to the male coterie ... ..In "Hers To Hold," she has what it takes to make the femmes admire and imitate her, and the swains, all the way from knee-pants to 4-H and far beyond, go "Whoo-Whoo!" in the best Hugh Herbert manner......It all adds up to one inescapable conclusion, namely, that Miss Durbin is a full-fledged butterfly, no longer in the kid cocoon, and only just beginning to really spread her wings......Her present is big......Her future even bigger......She is one of the very, very few members of the film acting profession who has been able to withstand the transition from juvenile ranks to adult status, and be better in the latter than the former......

● ● ● MUCH of the credit for Deanna Durbin's present high estate in the hearts of public and press is due to the intelligent and strategic guidance at the hands of Universal's studio-ites......It was not easy to convert a girl in early 'teens (the pretty prodigy) into a young woman in early twenties whom khaki-clad and bluejacketed lads now pin-up and look upon with ga-ga, wolfish eyes, and whom gals, young and old, view as a magnetic model......In this triumphant metamorphosis, considerable credit likewise goes to Felix Jackson, producer of "Hers To Hold," who collaborated in the writing of several of Deanna's previous pix......His knowledge of her as a person and an artiste has provided with exactness the best channels for her ability......Miss Durbin, likewise is a mighty factor in her own success......She has conscientiously "stuck to her knitting" in Hollywood,—every stitch a good, clean one..... She has only just begun to star,—and gross!......

MEXICO HAS BIG FILM BOOM; $3 TO SEE SINGLE FEATURE

Mexico City, Aug. 5.—Mexican motion picture industry looks like it's headed for boom days. Native producers aver they have felt the public pulse, and now know what to make, and how to make it better than ever before. And there's talk of American money coming in to hasten the rising tide.

Bo Roos, Hollywood actor's manager, has rounded up a group including Frank Borzage, Ray Milland, John Wayne, Lloyd Nolan and others, to halve capitalization of a picture outfit with several Mexican bankrollers. Outfit would produce in Mexico City, using mixed American and native casts, paying off in Mexican dollars (4.85 to the American buck).

Said to have State Department approval, and to be set for use of Technicolor, but unknown where they would get the necessary equipment, which is as scarce here as it is in the States.

Meanwhile, native production continues apace, seven films in work now. Clasa Films going strong out at Churubusco, where Fu Manchu stars in very popular mystery stuff, and Cantinflas continues as top screen comic. Considerable production at Estaca Studios in Coyocan, and there's one grinding at Mexico Films in Mexico City.

Local film men say they are going through the same growing pains Americans went through a decade or more ago. Their low budget pictures, say they, are more popular with the natives than foreign versions turned out in Hollywood, one reason being the variety of Spanish dialects used by Hollywood. There's no denying the fact, though, that the customers do like American mysteries, action stuff, pageantry, and tear-jerkers, but not the Yank comedies or musicals. Bette Davis and Charles Boyer are foreign faves here, and U's 'Arabian Nights' even grossed well few weeks ago. But 'Star Spangled Rhythm' didn't do well.

Distributors have clamped down an iron-clad ukase under which there are no children's admissions, so small fry pay the adult tariff which runs as high as $3 for a single feature at one downtown house. Most showshops open up about 4 p.m. and run until midnight. No bargain matinees, or lower mat prices.

Mexico City newspapers carry four and five pages of theatre advertising per day, but seldom any reviews or publicity yarns.

150 Attend Second 20th Sales Meet At Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Second 20th-Fox regional sales meeting got underway today at the Blackstone hotel under the direction of Tom Connors and L. J. Schlaifer. Some 150 branch and district managers and sales personnel and home office representatives are in attendance.

Today's sessions were confined to the discussion of short product and Lew Lehr of Movietone News cleared the businesslike atmosphere of this afternoon's meeting with comedy talk and Don Ameche made a brief appearance. Company executives were host to about 20 leading exehibitors at luncheon today, and Spyros Skouras will address tomorrow's gathering.

Meeting will wind up Saturday when home office execs leave for Los Angeles for the final meeting next week at the Ambassador hotel, at which new product announcement will be made and company policies outlined.

New York, Aug. 5.—Spyros Skouras, who did not accompany other home office executives when they left for Chicago yesterday, shoves off tonight to be there the second and third days of the Chicago regional sales meeting. Murray Silverstone is unable to attend the meeting there due to arranging his trip to England. He departs Monday.

ing Corp. will not be able to fill calls for $5.50 players.

Situation developed recently where studios were forced to up pay to $10.50 in order to get sufficient people for sets. Even many of the college boys who formerly were glad to work for $5.50 on waivers from the Screen Actors Guild are now demanding $10.50 because they can earn more than $5.50 in restaurants, defense plants, etc.

Following circular is being distributed at Universal:

'In view of the increasing manpower shortage, it is anticipated that the membership of the Screen Actors Guild may be inadequate for the filling of certain large calls for $5.50 extra people. For that reason, there has been launched a recruitment program among studio employes with a view to building up a list of people who may be used in such an emergency.

'If you have any relative or friend who would be interested in securing such occasional work, please fill out the blank at the bottom of this page and send it to Central Casting, where they will be made available to all Hollywood studios. It should be clearly understood that employment resulting from this procedure will be on a purely casual basis and only in the event that waivers are secured from the Screen Actors Guild.'

Less than 300 regulars are reported willing to work for the $5.50 figure. Most of them demand $10.50, and the Screen Players Protective Committee is now insisting Producers hike the minimum to $15 daily.

WHY MOOLA ROLLS IN

San Francisco, Aug. 5.—Local exhibs, who are always wondering where all the biz is coming from, were given a partial answer in a report issued by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce. The report said that 'the unabated flow of new population, war contracts and other war activities here' had raised general business in Frisco for the first half of 1943 to a 25% higher level than for the same period in 1942. According to the Chamber's doping of the boom conditions, the city's estimated population of 775,000 is nearly 50,000 above an actual count six months ago, and 124,000 above an estimated 651,000 on Jan. 1, 1942.

SPG Awaits Harnish Return for Ruling On Rep Flacks

Move by Screen Publicists Guild to force reinstatement of two members of Republic publicity department has been stymied pending return from Washington of Bert Harnish, Southern California area director for the War Manpower Commission. Harnish will be asked to rule whether the Burbank office of the U. S. Employment Office has authority to conduct an arbitration in the case. Guilders claim release of flacks violated WMC Work Stabilizationzation Plan.

Jessel Signs Larkin To Script 'Dolly Sisters'

George Jessel yesterday assigned John Larkin to develop screenplay of 'The Dolly Sisters,' his first production job at 20th-Fox. Rosy Dolly shipped three trunksful of scrapbooks out from Chicago, collected by herself and her sister during their heyday as dancers, and much of story details will be selected from these. Story is to be laid principally in Europe, covering period from 1910 to 1935.

Greenblatt, Lefton East

Arthur Greenblatt, PRC sales head, and Nat Lefton, recently appointed new district manager with headquarters in Cleveland, leave today for New York and Cleveland, respectively. Greenblatt will stop in San Francisco, Seattle, Denver, Omaha and Chicago en route.

Scribbling

Muriel G. Herman is writing screenplay for 'Home in Indiana,' at 20th-Fox.

Arthur Kober, who wound up script for 20th-Fox' 'Army Wife' few days ago, is taking leave-of-absence to write play for Broadway producer John Golden, for Fall production.

Ralph Spence has been signed by RKO to script an original mystery for production by Herman Schlom.

Dwight Taylor and Albert Maltz have been assigned scripting job by Alex Gottlieb for his first Warner production, 'Deep Valley.' Producer also has set Charles Hoffman to write screenplay for his third film, 'Judy Adjudicates.'

Hearst's Chi Paper Starting Series on H'wood at War

Chicago, Aug. 5.—Herald-American here is starting a series on Sunday (8) being called 'Hollywood Goes To War.' It will run for a week to 10 days. It was written by Ann Marsters, who gathered the material on her last trip to Hollywood in March and April.

Series will not be a whitewash in any sense of the film capital. The articles are based on facts relating to Hollywood's role in the war effort.

Most of the theatres here are solidly behind the series, resenting the one running in Chicago Tribune, and are voluntarily screening trailers to advertise the findings of Miss Marsters.

Seven Femmes Set In U's 'Ladies Fly'

Producer Walter Wanger has set Diana Barrymore, Anne Gwynne, Evelyn Ankers, June Vincent, Lois Collier, Vivien Austin and Ramsay Ames, all Universal contract players, in featured roles in forthcoming production, 'When Ladies Fly,' which is scheduled for production late this month.

Hoyt Winds Talks With Different Industry Groups

Washington, Aug. 5. — WAC Theatre reps met here today with OWI's Domestic Director Palmer Hoyt and James L. Allen, his aide, thus completing Hoyt's discussions with the various industry groups. Previously Hoyt had conferred with WAC distrib groups in New York and with producers and the guilds in Hollywood.

Today's meeting was mainly a 'get acquainted session,' with both parties pledging continued cooperation. Representing the exhibs were, Si Fabian, Harry Brandt, George Skouras, Carter Barron, Charles Moskowitz, Arthur Mayer, Robert Wilby, Ed Kuykendall and Joseph Bernhard.

The same group also met with OCR amusement chief, George W. MacMurphey, again mainly as a matter of establishing contact and trying to get a clear picture of what MacMurphey's function is to be. How clear that picture is is still questionable.

ROARING TWENTIES PIX ENJOY BOOM IN FRISCO

San Francisco, Aug. 5.—Public screening of both silent and sound films of old vintage under non-commercial auspices is booming here, with the commercial exhibs, including revival and foreign film houses, being more or less tolerant of this activity.

Latest to get the revival spirit is the Jewish Community Center, which is holding a summer film festival, exhibiting such pictures as 'Monsieur Beaucaire,' a silent made in 1924, starring Rudolph Valentino, and with Bebe Daniels, Lois Wilson and Lowell Sherman.

The Palace of the Legion of Honor, city art gallery, screens the old silents and sound pix every Saturday afternoon in a 353-seat auditorium, with a for free get-in policy.

Another city institution, San Francisco Museum of Art, opens a new season of old film exhibition August 24, and has scheduled such revivals as 'The Informer' and 'Backstreet.'

Because it is downtown near the first runners, the museum makes a small admish charge in order not to be in unfair competition with the film houses. The tariff is 58 cents for the first visit, and 28 cents thereafter.

The commercial revival and foreign film exhibs view these ventures without jaundice because they figure only small audiences are involved, and, also, that some of the attendees may get a taste for this type of film that will later send them to the picture houses.

Obituary

JOE GOODWIN

Joe Goodwin (Alschuler), 53, songwriter for the past 25 years, died July 31 at Veterans Base Hospital in New York after a long illness. Body is being brought here by the widow for interment. Born in Worcester, Mass., his family moved to New York in his early youth. He started in show business as a boy monologist with Tom Minor's burlesque troupe and later played the vaudeville circuits.

Soon after he turned his hand to writing lyrics for the melodies of Al Piantadosi and other top composers of that day. For a time he was professional manager for Shapiro-Bernstein, music publishers, leaving to devote full time to songwriting. Outstanding among the many tunes he wrote were 'That's How I Need You,' 'Baby Shoes,' 'When You're Smiling,' 'I Miss You Most of All' and 'Liberty Bell,' which was rated among the best songs of the first world war.

Goodwin was a member of Hollywood Post of the American Legion.

LOUIS GRUEN

Newsreel Coverage Wins Kudos; 13 Pool Men at Fronts

Washington, Aug. 5.—Newsreel coverage of the war came in for some praise today from Claude R. Collins, newsreel co-ordinator of the War Activities Committee. The quality of footage he said is improving steadily. He expects to see better action material coming in soon for both the newsreels and for U. S. features. He spoke of improved relations between Newsreel Pool Correspondents and Army and Navy officers and of the steady improvement of service photographers.

Collins asserted that undoubtedly some of the best footage from the fighting fronts would have to be withheld from exhibition for military reasons. Little of the material he believes will be good for the newsreels because the land action is largely long range artillery dueling with the exception of the South Pacific area while the air shots from bombers are generally from too high altitude to be of much use.

The Newsreel Pool has 13 men on foreign assignment with two on leave in this country. Jack Barnett of Movietone, W. F. Gerecke of Paramount, Irving Smith of Universal and Ned Buddy for the Pool are in North Africa. Neil Sullivan, ace aerial cameraman of Pathe is on his way to replace Howard Winner of Pathe who is back in this country. Norman Alley of News of the Day has been covering naval action in the Mediterranean.

Based in Australia are Martin Barnett of Paramount and Earl Corchett of Universal while Langdon Senick of Movietone, who is replacing John Bockhorst, and Len Roos of Pathe are in Hawaii. Bockhorst is recovering from malaria in this country. Charles Perry Maf of News of the Day is operating in Alaska while 'Newsreel' Wong is in Chungking. Pathe's David Oliver is presently in London.

FILM GUILDS PROTEST 48-HOUR EXEMPTIONS

Independent film guilds have protested to the War Manpower Commission against any blanket exemptions under the Government's mandatory 48-hour week order, it was learned last night. At a conference with WMC officials, Lesley Mason, representing the Guild's Advisory Council, in the absence of Mary C. McCall, Jr., asked that the exemption situation be discussed with the individual crafts before any are granted.

This is the same position taken by the Screen Office Employes and other members of the Conference of Studio Unions. Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference, contends no exemptions should be granted until the individual organizations affected have been heard by the WMC.

This will be one of the main points of discussion at the next meeting of

JUST when he was on the verge of a break, Murray Alper, an outstanding character actor got a kick downstairs when he was pulled from the co-starring part in 'Life Boat' which Alfred Hitchcock will direct. William Bendix was given the part. Originally studio wanted Bendix for the part in the film which was to have gotten underway eight months ago. Nothing happened and he signed with Edward Small to star in 'The Raft. Twentieth-Fox on recommendations of Hitchock then decided that the part be given to Alper. Latter, who has done some excellent work since coming here from the New York theatre, was tested. Studio went nuts about the test and besides giving him the co-star part also took one of those seven year option tickets. Then word came that Small would not do 'The Raft' and Bendix was available. Darryl Zanuck jumped at the chance, sent for the agent of Alper, told him deal was off, actor was given three weeks pay, the option contract was forgotten also, and a ten week job on a picture that Alper had been offered elsewhere and could not take also faded. Hitchcock who had great confidence in Alper and felt that a new star would be born in 'Lifeboat' was very much downcast when Zanuck made the switch for b. o. insurance.

IN line with government wishes that 'This Is the Army,' get the quickest and widest distribution in this country, Warners is setting up multiple first runs of the picture in every key city possible where theatres are available. To date, 11 cities have 'TITA' first runs in either two or three theatres; Los Angeles-Hollywood, Denver, Milwaukee, Portland, Columbus, Sacramento, Seattle, Long Beach, San Diego, Portsmouth, O., and Atlantic City. Initial Technicolor print order is reported to be around 450 for domestic bookings, which is far above present totals for regular tinters turned out by Warners. In addition, the Army will utilize both 35 mm. and 16 mm. prints for early showings of 'TITA' to the armed forces in all parts of the world.

KFI radio towers which loom above the Earle C. Anthony, Inc., automobile headquarters in San Francisco, despite fact the station is in Los Angeles, result in amusing situations in view of the location of KFRC, the Don Lee station, almost directly across the street. Radio novitiates, heading for the first time for the KFRC studios, see the imposing radio towers and, by mistake, make their way toward the Anthony showrooms. Towers were constructed years ago as ballyhoo competition to Don Lee, an Anthony competitor in the high-priced automobile field.

One thing is missing from the modern screen,
One long remembered vision of delight—
No more we glimpse the good old banquet scene,
With luscious foods to whet the appetite.

Gone from screen and stage is the banquet table groaning with delectable chow, and so is the rich uncle groaning with gout. Gout is no longer fashionable. Besides, it is a tip-off that the goutee is doing business with a black marketeer.

'Command Performance' reeks with royal dignity, but its original title, 'Four Jills In a Jeep,' had more pep and girlpower.

All the necessities of life in Hollywood are feeling the effects of inflation. Entry fee in the California Divorce Derby has gone up from $7 to $10.50.

They are still called bleachers even though they are utilized at night, sometimes by baseball customers and sometimes by screen idolators at colossal premieres. Originally the word 'bleacher' was a baseball term, meaning the sections allotted to the less fortunate fans who could not afford to sit in the shade of the grandstand and had to sizzle in their shirtsleeves afar off on the wooden benches where there was no protection from the summer sun. Charley Dryden, greatest of all baseball writers, had the customers classified in his own way. In the boxes down in front were the goldfish. Behind them in the stands were the silverfish, and out on the planks in right and left field were the sunfish. Charley passed on before baseball became a nocturnal business, but if he were alive today he would probably call them starfish.

Every war develops its own lingo. When a Marine, 1943, calls for fish-eyes and armored heifer he wants tapioca and canned milk. When he asks for a blanket he is not going to bed. He needs a cigarette paper to twist a dizzy—meaning to roll a pill.

FILM MAN FOR MELLETT SPOT

HOYT SAYS HE WILL NAME OWI SUCCESSOR IN 2 WKS.

New York, Aug. 8.—Palmer Hoyt is reported desirous of naming someone from the film industry for the Lowell Mellett post within two weeks. Situation was discussed by Hoyt and a committee of theatre operators in Washington but no specific recommendations or names were mentioned either by the War Activities Committee delegation or Hoyt. Understood, however, that Hoyt was interested in getting the perspective of the WAC group regarding the Mellett successor and the type of man for the job, with likelihood of an industry representative being appointed stemming from the meeting held.

In addition, cooperation of theatres in the Third War Bond Drive, on which a large press book is being gotten out, was discussed by the WAC group, plus continuance of government films, with plans calling for a maximum of 26 one-reelers and 26 bulletins, latter to be tacked to newsreels.

In addition to talking with Hoyt, confabs were held with George MacMurphy, now of the OPA, who shortly becomes chief of the amusement section of Civilian Requirements Office.

WB Sets 85 More Houses for Special 'TITA' Preems

Warners western sales district has set 85 theatres from Denver west to stage special, advanced price premieres on 'This Is the Army,' with many of the houses to donate entire first-night receipts to Army Emergency Relief, instead of retaining 30% allowed under sales terms for advanced price showings.

Picture premieres here Aug. 17 at Warners Hollywood, Downtown, Wiltern, Forum and Beverly, before starting regular price run next day in first three houses. Expected local opening will hit $60,000, with seats scaled from $10, plus tax. Salt Lake City also preems picture Aug. 17 and San Francisco, Portland and Seattle have big openings slated for Aug. 18. Denver will stage its premiere Aug. 24.

Price scale starts down from $10 for large cities while smaller spots will go for a top of $5 plus tax, averaging out about $6,000 a town. San Francisco expects to hit $21,000 for its opening. Oakland will garner approximately $14,000 with other large cities varying according to house capacity.

Madison, Wis.—Local preem of 'This Is the Army' at the Capitol theatre on Aug. 20th will be double-barreled event. War Chest will host audience of soldiers from nearby army camps at 6 p.m. performance, with second running set for 8:30 for paying customers.

The Madrid originated rumors of Hitler's 'confinement' by the Nazi military are symptomatic of the present favorable situation in which the Allies find themselves.

After the fall of Orel and Baleord and the increasing threat to Kharkov and Bryansk, the need for a scape goat becomes greater every hour. The ouster of Mussolini was a similar event.

Hand in hand with the Soviet advance goes a continued victorious march of the Allied forces at Sicily and these military events, these strategic factors are the only things that are shaping the future. Nothing the Axis leaders do has as much meaning.

FIDLER FUMBLES AGAIN

Radio's bad boy, Jimmie Fidler, put the Blue network out on a limb again last week. After he had broadcast that Gertrude Lawrence would marry Hugh Marlowe, the chain over which he airs offered a public retraction. It so happened that both Miss Lawrence and Marlowe and married and perfectly content with their present marital status. Twice before Fidler jammed up the Blue network, the last time resulting in 20th-Fox declaring the skein and its then sister web, NBC, out of bounds to its contractees when the gabber involved Gene Tierney in a cigar-smoking episode. Later he blabbed a story about Ethel Barrymore having a collapse while on tour with 'The Corn is Green,' which forced the Blue to chastize Fidler with an open retraction.

LAUNCH $350,000 CAMPAIGN TO HOUSE SERVICE VISITORS

Opening gun in the industry's campaign to raise at least $350,000 to relieve the shortage of housing facilities for service men on leave will be fired today when 125 representatives of producer, exhibitor and distributor groups meet at a luncheon at Perino's. Y. Frank Freeman, prexy of the Producers Association, and Fred Stein, of Fox West Coast theatres, will preside at the luncheon in the absence of Chairman Charles P. Skouras.

Willard W. Keith, state director of civilian defense, California War Council, will introduce Rear Admiral Ralston Holmes and Major-Gen. Cortland Parker, new commanders of the Southern California sector, Western Defense Command; Dr. Charles Strub, who is making a servicemen's housing survey for Governor Warren; Leo Carrillo, representing actors, and B. H. Wallerstein of Warner theatres.

The industry has created the Servicemen's Overnight Housing Fund, to be organized by two separate committees, one in Northern California and one in Southern California. The latter drive opens today, with a goal of approximately $200,000 to be raised through theatre collections and subscriptions. The northern committee will seek to raise at least $150,000, with both drives being officially launched Sept. 1.

George Mann is chairman of the northern committee. Hollywood will be represented by Laraine Day, Leo Carrillo, Preston Foster and Ruth Hussey.

At today's luncheon exhibitors will be asked to sign pledges promising their screens for the special Spencer Tracy film produced for the collection. Organization of the southern committee has been completed by Chairman Skouras, with David Bershon as treasurer and Fred Stein as secretary. Executive members are Y. Frank Freeman, Marco Wolff, Rodney Pantages, Louis J. Halper, Harry Vinnicof, Milton Arthur, Lou Anger, Sherrill Corwin, Hugh Bruen, Jack Y. Berman, Robert H. Poole, Lou Metzger, Harry Popkin and Mike Rosenberg. Freeman chairmans the advisory committee composed of Willard Keith, Dr. T. J. Tormey, Dr. Charles Strub, Rear Admiral Holmes, Major General Parker, Kenneth Thomson, Dr. Donald Tippett, Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin and Father J. J. Devlin.

State Board Won't Ask Deferment for Top Radio Names

Only 21 job definitions, as contained in the original Bulletin No. 29 from Washington, will be given a 'we recommend' to draft boards.

Jobs originally classified as necessary to the war effort for deferment purposes are: executives or station manager and assistant, news analyst, chief radio engineer and supervisor, radio technician, technician-announcer, recording engineer, traffic manager and assistant, manager of news and special events, managing editor of news bureau and assistant, news editor, manager of program department, personnel director, manager of building maintenance, carpenter and electrician.

AD AGENTS BLAMED

While no reason for the action was given at State Selective Service headquarters, those close to the picture believe that draft officials in Sacramento resented the inclusion of ad agency radio departments in the over-all deferment appeal, feeling that agency heads here sought protection in the shadow of an essential industry.

Flurry stirred up by imminent drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, also is believed to have influenced the Sacramento move. Radio Committee of six, which tabulated the deferable jobs in collaboration with War Manpower Commission, will seek a further clarification of the state board's action for proper interpretation to those affected. Committee was composed of representatives from the networks, independent stations, American Federation of Radio Artists, Radio Writers Guild and ad agencies.

ORDERLY WITHDRAWAL BLAMED

It was at the suggestion of local officials of WMC that the list was compiled to assure an orderly withdrawal of personnel from the radio industry. Varying periods of deferment had been worked out, based on the time required to train replacements for the vacated jobs.

While the 'we recommend' has been tossed out for the 94 job definitions, the state board, however, will not memo local draft boards as to its action as if may unduly affect filing of 42A's by employers for those who are regarded as essential to their operations. The state officials had never issued any order to local boards, one way or the other, and therefore has no backtracking to do. Local draft boards will be advised this week of Sacramento's recognition of only those classifications embodied in Bulletin No. 29, which was issued in Washington last March 1 and amended April 29 to clarify the titles. This summary of deferables embraces only the radio industry, per se, and excludes all agency men for whom deferments had been sought.

U. S. SETS NEW RULES ON FILMS FOR FOREIGN TRADE

port censorship of films rests with the Film Censorship Boards of the Office of Censorship in New York and Los Angeles; while certain types of materials also require office written approval from the War, Navy, or other government agencies which have direct supervision over the subject involved. Foreign language titles and translations are to be reviewed by whichever board originally examined the picture.

Regulations as outlined are as follows:

1. Photographic shots which require approval by the Army, the Navy or appropriate authority include:

a. All aerial photographs and detailed close-up air shots of war production plants, docks, shipyards, railroad terminals, dams, power plants, storage tanks, reservoirs, radio towers, arsenals, munitions dumps, forts and all other military installations, including air fields and military depots; detailed close-up shots of panoramic shots of civil as well as military air fields, cities, factories, or terrain showing distinguishing buildings or landmarks in relation to each other or to the general landscape; any picture of new-type planes, tanks, guns or other military equipment.

b. Detail photographs of indentifiable beaches and coastlines which would aid enemy landing parties on any seacoast of the United States, its territories or possessions. This does not include conventional scenic views of coastline which do not disclose information of strategic value to the enemy.

c. Technical data of any kind (other than that which discloses well-known processes, installations and other information of no importance to the military, naval or economic war efforts of the United States) which could be used or adapted for use in connection with any process, synthesis or operation in the production, manufacture, reconstruction, servicing, repair or use of any article for any phase of warfare. The list is so comprehensive that technical data generally is prohibited except that contained in industrial films approved by the Office of Economic Warfare and a Board of Review.

d. Movements of land, air or sea forces, and merchant ships, when identification, origin or destination is indicated.

e. Views of Army, Navy or Marine Corps activities and detailed views of equipment.

f. Movement of naval or merchant ships in the coastal waters of the United States, its possessions, or naval bases which might be of value to the enemy with regard to attack, sabotage, or otherwise.

g. Pictures of interment camps or of persons interned.

2. In addition, labor, class or other disturbances since 1917 which might be distorted into enemy propaganda generally are prohibited for export. Such scenes shown as an incident to the main theme of a picture which, in the opinion of the Board of Review having jurisdiction, are not harmful to the war effort may be used in dramatic productions. Likewise, scenes of lawlessness or disorder in which order is restored and the offenders punished may be approved if lawlessness is not the main theme and is not the major part of the production. While it is realized that 'gangster' productions reflect discredit on the American system of government in most cases—in the eyes of foreign audiences—such scenes are not prohibited per se. The Board of Review having jurisdiction will give an unofficial opinion on such scenes, prior to completion of a picture, but any such opinion will not be binding inasmuch as final action will not be taken on any production until it has been completed.

3. Undue emphasis should not be placed on rationing of essentials or other information revealing economic preparation by this country for prolonged war effort.

4. Derogatory picturization or presentation of nationals of United Nations and of the neutral countries is objectionable.

5. United Nationas armed forces should not be burlesqued, held up to ridicule or shown as unworthy representatives of their governments as the main theme or major part of any dramatic production. Briefer sequences of this character are objectionable in newsreels.

Fly Says FCC Probe Favors Pro-Fascist Broadcasts

Washington, Aug. 8.—FCC chairman James Lawrence Fly yesterday challenged the statements made by Cox Committee Counsel Eugene Garey at hearings in New York last week denying the authority of the FCC to check the operation of foreign language stations.

Fly pointed out that neither he nor any other representative of the Commission has been permitted to take the witness stand to give the full facts regarding these matters.

'These irresponsible charges of the Cox Committee counsel follow the pattern of ''judicial'' conduct which has characterized this whole proceeding,' said Fly. 'It is somewhat startling to see the Cox Committee counsel step out publicly in favor of pro-Fascist broadcasts in this country and, at the same time, charge this Commission with endeavoring to force its ''political'' beliefs on the broadcasters.

'The Commission would be derelict in its duties as provided in the Communications Act, especially in time of war, if it did not check these domestic stations broadcasting in the enemy's own language.

'This latest line of attack is typical of the reckless methods that have characterized the whole Cox investigation up to date. Mr. Garey's statement is simply a reiteration of the conclusions announced in advance of a hearing and which, after a week, he has utterly failed to prove.'

WLB Rules Pay Hike For 560 Techs In NY

New York, Aug. 8.—The Regional War Labor Board Saturday approved wage increases for approximately 560 technicians employed in film laboratories here. Technicians earning less than $50 a week are given a 10% boost, while those receiging more than $50 get 5%. Workers affected are employed by Pathe, Ace Film Laboratories, Paramount Films and three small independents.

In addition the Board approved a 5 to 10% bonus for night shifts at the three larger plants. Latter plan to put on night shifts to handle the increased volume of Government film work resulting from the war.

By FLORENCE S. LOWE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Mary Beth Hughes, who opened her personal appearance tour here prior to a New York appearance, almost didn't make it. She, her mother, and agent, were put off the train at Chicago because some brass hats got a priority for the accommodations. It was a full day before the party could continue and they reached Washington just a hop-skip ahead of the first show. . . . Mary Beth, who went to school here, also made an appearance at the Stage Door Canteen and sold bonds at George Washington U. . . . Morning audience at the Palace Theatre was startled one day when over a loud speaker, in measured and heavy dramatic tones, came a male voice: 'I love you; I love you; I love you.' Audience burst into nervous giggles and Angie Ratto, house manager, galloped up to the stage and announced that NBC was merely testing for the President's latest fireside chat. Speech was piped into most downtown D. C. houses. . . . New song launched at Loew's Capitol, 'Put a Stamp in the Book for Uncle Sam,' went so well that the Treasury sent over scouts and will probably use song and accompanying stage biz throughout the country. . . .

SAROYAN IN DEMAND

CAPT. TED. ('TWENTY MINUTES OVER TOKIO') LAWSON in town prior to leaving for Chile where he will be a military attache at our Embassy. . . . William Saroyan is in great demand these days. OWI tried to borrow him for the overseas branch, but the Army said he was too valuable and offered a couple of other guys. . . . Gene Ford, manager of Loew's Capitol, is pacing the floor these days over the fate of his song, 'There's Only Tonight.' May be used in Tim Whelan's 'Higher and Higher' (RKO) if Frank Sinatra approves; ditty landed on the cutting room floor last time out, in Hollywood. Versatile Ford did the lyrics for the once popular song 'Rain'. . . . Bea Lillie, Evelyn Laye, and Seaman, Farrell and Forsythe are scheduled to tour U. S. Army Air Forces installations in Britain. . . . Reciprocal Lend-Lease because of the U.S.O.-Cap Shows tour of Canada?

DIPLOMATS WERE ALWAYS SO

STOP me if you've heard this one. Eight soldiers were asked this question at Fort Sam Houston, Texas: 'If you were stranded on a life raft and could rescue one more person, whom would you pick up if you had to choose between Betty Grable and the ship's captain?'

They all voted for the captain (the liars), although one sergeant said it would be nice to cruise around for a while with Grable and then come back for the captain. A corporal commented: 'Brother, you just don't know my wife.'

Particularly ungallant was a soldier who wrote on the questionnaire: 'It takes years to make a good captain, and one picture to make Betty Grable. So. . . .'

CIAA officials are disturbed over a recent article in 'El Cine Graphico,' Mexican film trade paper. Piece tore into Hollywood, and panned the American industry for destroying rather than improving relationship between the two countries.

Nice stuff, with all the U. S. has been doing to aid picture production below the Rio Grande.

THEIR FIRST PICTURES

IN FRONT of the church in the little town of Cayes-Jacmel, on the south coast of Haiti, the other evening, 1800 persons gathered and gaped in amazement. Under the stars, they were seeing for the first time pictures that could talk and move.

They loved it and yelled for more. These first pix were documentary shorts. They dealt with disease and cleanliness and kindred subjects.

Then the show moved on over mountains and through jungles to other towns where a film had never before been seen.

It is a CIAA project, similar to many which have been carried out through South America, and which are making a post-war market for the Hollywood commercial product as soon as there is enough inexpensive, second-hand exhibition equipment so that people can go into the business in these remote spots of the world.

* * *

CRITICS in the nation's capital frequently complain about the fact that pix are frequently down to the neighborhood house level in most towns before they reach first run here. Example are 'Next of Kin' and 'Saludos Amigos' which are scheduled for a double-billing at RKO-Keith's here late this month. They were screened for government groups months ago, but the public has to wait. . . .

First OWI-WAC Film Set for Release On August 19

Washington, Aug. 8.—The first of the 26 250-foot newsreel bulletins, to be distributed with reels under OWI-WAC arrangement, will be released a week from Thursday, Aug. 19, and will be devoted to the giant Third War Loan Drive. Two more bulletins to be released in September will also be devoted to the Drive, with one of them to be made by Columbia and to feature an appeal by Rosalind Russell.

A series of conferences with OWI and Treasury officials was held here Friday and yesterday by Francis S. Harmon, WAC executive secretary, and Ray Beall, Interstate Circuit publicity director on temporary loan to WAC for the Bond Drive. Palmer Hoyt, OWI Domestic director, his deputy, James S. Allen, and acting motion picture chief Arch A. Mercey were all closeted with Harmon, Oscar Doob and several other Treasury officials.

Harmon pledged the full resources of the industry for the Third War Loan Drive during a luncheon meeting yesterday at which he addressed War Finance publicity directors from 15 states.

Treasury Seeks Bids On 200 Reels for Work Training

Washington, Aug. 8.—The U. S. Treasury is sending out invitations to bid for a contract to distribute more than 200 reels of industrial training films released through the Office of Education. Because it does not have a complete list of firms which might be able to handle the work, interested parties are urged to notify the Procurement Division, U. S. Treasury, they would like to bid.

There have been 48 reels released thus far, with over 17,000 prints sold and another 9000 furnished the Army and the Navy at cost. Distribution has been through Castle Films, Chicago, whose contract is up at the end of this month.

Completion of an additional 150 reels has been scheduled by the Office of Education for Nov. 1, and it is probable that from 80 to 100 Army and Navy training films will be released through whoever gets the distribution contract. Prints, almost without exception, are in 16 mm.

Obituary

ALFRED R. SMITH

Funeral services will be held at 9 a.m. today at the Church of Christ the King for Alfred R. Smith, 68, former film producer, who died Saturday morning at his home in Hollywood. In his early career Smith directed stage plays in his home town, Baltimore, and later in New York. Before the advent of voice into pictures he directed many Hollywood stars, including William Farnum and Theda Bara. Surviving is his widow, Mrs. Anne Smith.

AMERICAN ETHER WAVES SOOTH LATIN-AMERICA

Washington, Aug. 8.—With an average of 420 hours of American programs being received in South and Central America, CIAA last week reported that we have won the fight for superiority in the American ether. Axis propaganda broadcasts are fast losing both their audiences and their influence.

Three years ago, prior to the formation of CIAA, Berlin, Rome and Tokyo dominated the shortwave bands into South America, with the U. S. almost completely inactive.

Recent CIAA survey shows that the 4,000,000 receivers below the Rio Grande are now tuned to Allied frequencies far more than to Axis broadcasts, and that a large majority of the 200 shortwave outlets there prefer to hook up with U. S. or British shows. This despite the concentration of Axis propaganda agencies for Latin America for several years before the war, resulting in complete domination of the air at that time.

U. S. news shows features, commentaries, music and dramatic shows now average 420 hours weekly, with BBC in for another 32 hours. Six BBC representatives are in South and Central America now arranging for additional BBC shows, and cooperative agreement has been signed recently between MBS and Radio MIL, Mexico City, for free interchange of programs.

Our programs are beamed simultaneously in Spanish over 10 shortwave stations and in Portuguese over 3 more operating on 3 frequencies for best coverage. Facilities of CBS, NBC, Westinghouse, General Electric, Crosley and World Wide are used for transmissions.

the industry's Labor-Management Committee. Question of reducing the size of the committee also is expected to come up. It is generally believed WMC will leave the committee personnel as is, but have it meet in panels in order to expedite business. Labor representatives having matters before committee would be called at different times, with the same applying to management members.

Independent guilds represented by the Advisory Council include the Screen Writers Guild, Screen Publicists Guild, Screen Readers Guild, Society of Motion Picture Film Editors, Art Decorators and Script Clerks.

New Warrants Out as Film Shakedown Trial Delayed

New York, Aug. 8.—Warrants were issude Friday in Federal Court here for the arrest of Robert McCullough and Nicholas Avolio, fugitive witnesses in the Chicago film extortion case, scheduled for trial here. Boris Kostelanetz, assistant prosecuting U. S. attorney general, requested the warrants from Judge John Knox.

Trial of the six defendants, asserted former Capone gangsters, charged with shaking down the film industry for more than two million dollars, has been postponed from Sept. 7 until Oct. 4, according to A. Bradley Eben, the mob's attorney who has his offices here. Delay is for the purpose of searching for the two hoodlums wanted as witnesses. The six defendants, Louis Campagna, Paul Ricca, Philip D'Andrea, Charles Gioe, Ralph Pierce and Francis Maitote, are at liberty on $50,000 bonds each.

FLY CLAIMS RULE OF AIR

XTRAS EARN $400,000 IN JULY

Film extras pulled down $400,231.74 in July. Figures released by Central Casting Corp. yesterday also disclosed that the $5.50 call is being outlawed by refusal of regular extras to work for less than $10.50 per day. Despite efforts of Producers to recruit outsiders through the U. S. Employment Service and other agencies, there were only 1,120 job placements at $5.50 during the month.

There was an up in $10.50 calls

Red X Gets Over 4 Million From Biz

New York, Aug. 9.—Final report issued today by Barney Balaban, National Chairman of the Red Cross Week sponsored by Motion Picture Industry under WAC auspices shows audience collection in nation's theatres totalled $3,067,236 and that total proceeds of drive reached all time high of $4,122,008.

SAVINI MAY GET HUGHES 'OUTLAW'

Bob Savini, who has been in town several days talking with several producers who want to make product for release through his Astor Pictures outlet, may leave town within week with deal to distribute 'The Outlaw' for Howard Hughes. Savini distributed various of the Hughes pictures in the past and producer feels that Savini can handle 'Outlaw' through his 26 exchanges and get a healthy return around the country on the picture. Film opens shortly in Detroit in house that Hughes leased.

Savini himself says he will stay out of production but that there are four or five producers who are prepared to turn over about a dozen pictures for him to distribute. He will be in a position to get both negative and positive film from the government for this product.

Tugend Made Producer; First Pic 'California'

Harry Tugend has been advanced from writer to producer status at Paramount, and first assignment made yesterday by B. G. DeSylva, executive producer, will be 'California,' elaborate musical for Bing Crosby. Boris Ingster, who wrote the original about gold rush of 1849, will work with Tugend on screenplay.

FCC HAS CONTROL OF ALL AIRINGS, HE SAYS

Washington, Aug. 9.—James Lawrence Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission today asserted that FCC, by virtue of appropriation from Congress and the Communications Act has power to supervise all domestic broadcasts. He was speaking of the charges of the Cox Committee that the FCC was 'terrorizing' foreign language broadcasters. The commission has such power, regulation, he asserted because it must act 'in the public interest,' adding:

'If a station operates as a pro Nazi organ, I cannot believe that it can be deemed to be operating in the public interest.'

In speaking of the power to regulate broadcasts he was speaking specifically of foreign language stations. Later he added that FCC has the same power over all domestic broadcasts but said there was not much of a problem with English-language stations.

Fly again called upon the Cox Committee to give the commission an opportunity to be heard in its own defense.

Elmer Davis returned today from London and North Africa. He declared that OWI has files of foreign language broadcasters and has furnished information on them to individuals on request.

Jed Harris Talks Plays With Zanuck, Schenck

Nunnally Johnson returned from New York yesterday and moved into his new office with International Pictures, Inc., where he will function as producer-writer.

INDIES TELL CLARK TO TIGHTEN DECREE SANS DIVORCEMENT

Washington, Aug. 9.—Members of the National Board of Allied Theatre Owners met yesterday with Assistant Attorney General Tom C. Clark to discuss with him the operation of the consent decree in New York. The decree simply doesn't work, they told Clark, and even the arbitration board would admit that. They declared that there are no advantages to independents under the present decree.

Clark said they did not ask for outright divorcement, indicating instead that they thought changes could be made to tighten up the decree. They will submit a report to Clark, outlining the proposed changes and detailing specific instances where the decree has worked to the disadvantage of independents.

JACK MOSS JOINS COL AS PRODUCER

Jack Moss has joined Columbia as a producer. Will be assigned top flight productions. Moss had aligned himself with Leo Spitz to produce 'Duffy's Tavern,' but deal did not jell, so he has gone to the studio post. Likely that he may make deal for the filmization by Columbia of 'Tavern.'

Moss, who has been in Hollywood for past 12 years, has made an unsurpassable reputation in handling personal affairs and biz of Gary Cooper and Henry Hathaway.

Irving Marks Here On Foreign Artists Deals

Irving Marks who was 'Mr. Show Biz' in Paris prior to hostilities is due in town today. Marks is representing various foreign artists now in the east or coming from abroad and will negotiate film deals for them. He comes from San Francisco where he has been past few days. E. Ray Goetz, is functioning as his chaperone.

Newsreel Connolly Out

Jack Connolly in charge of newsreel relations for CIAA was in town yesterday and leaves today. He came in from San Francisco. Connolly is arranging for newsreel shots for the Latin area to be made on the coast. His headquarters are in Washington.

· HOLLYWOOD · INSIDE ·

SOME one around motion picture relief fund has changed ideas regarding its publicity policy in past few months, which is foreign to tradition of the Fund which has built a most creditable reputation for good it has done in the community. Release was sent out for Sunday papers that during 1942, 'film directors or former film directors who dipped into the fund comprised 2.4% of the 11,672 beneficiaries who received aid.' This amount of people would be about 250 persons. It is far fetched. Currently there are now 212 directors members of the Screen Directors Guild. Since 1936 there have never been more than 214 at any time. In Hollywood, over a period of 20 years, there have never been over 300 directors. Of the directors now in the biz some 80% have been in it 15 years or more, and during that period about 50 to 60 have disappeared from the active film horizon. Some have gone into other business, others died, a few have been and are being aided by the Relief fund, but at no time were there any 200 or more aided by the fund, and positively not the 2.4% of the 11,672 beneficiaries of 1942 were from the directorial ranks. Relief Fund has in the past been operated on a confidential basis. No inaccurate or misleading information was dispensed for publication or otherwise and the directors of the Fund should see to it that none is given in the future. Fund is not hungry for publicity of that kind and has enough virtues to be pointed out that are legitimate without someone using an adding machine.

EXTRAS are beefing over failure to receive their pay checks within 24 hours after they work as was promised when new payoff system was adopted by studios because of necessity of deducting 20% withholding tax. Players claim when they work on Saturday they do not receive a check until Wednesday or later from certain studios where it is claimed the accounting department is closed on Monday and does not process checks until Tuesday. Boys claim they need the coin to live on and are asking the Screen Actors Guild to insist on prompt payment.

WARNERS is understood to have paid around $300,000 for the rights to produce the film 'Night and Day,' based on the life of Cole Porter. At the time the studio first got the idea to make the picture it was intended to skeletonize it with incidents in the life of Porter, using, of course, his compositions. When the price of $300,000 was asked, the studio sort of stood aghast and shied away from making the transaction. But Hal Wallis started pressing for the proposition, with the deal finally being closed at the initial figure asked. Michael Curtiz will direct the film.

of 7,000. Total expenditures in that bracket hitting $272,947. Overtime and adjustments accounted for $53,078.49 of the coin received by atmosphere players. There were 2,134 standin calls at $8.25 for a total of $17,605.50, and 2,637 calls at $16.50 for a total of $43,510. The expenditures for $5.50 players amounted to only $6,160 of the total.

There was a total of 32,392 job placements during the month. The average daily wage was $12.36. Placements were up 6,000 over the preceding month, with a dollar differential of $60,000. The average daily wage was up approximately 50 cents over July, 1942. Placements were approximately the same for the two months, but the dollar value of the total employment in July this year increased $12,000.

The Good Fellows

(Comedy-Drama)

Paramount production. Features Cecil Kellaway, Mabel Paige, Helen Walker, James Brown and Diana Hale. Supporting cast: Kathleen Lockhart, Douglas Wood, Norma Varden, Olin Howlin, Tom Fadden, William B. Davidson. Directed by Jo Graham. Produced by Walter MacEwen. Screenplay by Hugh Wedlock, Jr., and Howard Snyder. Based on play by George S. Kaufman and Herman Mankiewicz. Photograped by Theodor Sparkuhl. Film editor, Arthur Schmidt. Art direction, Hans Dreier and Haldane Douglas. Music score, Leo Shuken. Tradeshown in L. A. Aug. 9, 1943. Running time, 69 MINS.

'The Good Fellows' is a lightweight supporter for the filler duals, seldom attaining its purpose of generating laughs from the fraternal enthusiasm of lodge members. Without names in the cast, and saddled by inadequate direction, picture will have to pick up lower dual bookings where product is required to fill out running time.

Story unfolds in a small town, where Cecil Kellaway neglects both his business and family finances for his lodge activities. Tale wends through endless footage to pitch Kellaway far into debt, but he's rescued and placed on stable financial basis through windfall contact made through his lodge affiliations.

There might have been a germ of farce and good-humor in the original idea, but neither the script nor direction is capable of displaying more than a series of silly, far-fetched and boresome episodes.

Members of the cast are unable to rise above the handicaps imposed. Kellaway is forced to overplay the role of the fraternal enthusiast, and balance of cast fails to impress with the shoddy material supplied. Picture is the poorest B to merge from Paramount in several years.

L. B. Signs Three To Metro Pacts

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Louis B. Mayer, executive head of Metro studios, gandered three finds of Maurice Golden, studio midwest talent scout, during stopover here last week. Frank Sinatra is due in by train tomorrow from the east for the Tim Whelan production at RKO, 'Higher and Higher.'

Tornado

(Drama with Songs)

Paramount release of Pine-Thomas production. Stars Chester Morris and Nancy Kelly. Supporting cast: Bill Henry, Joe Sawyer, Gwen Kenyon, Marie McDonald, Morgan Conway, Frank Reicher, Nestor Paiva. Directed by William Berke. Screenplay by Maxwell Shane. Adapted from story by John Guedel. Photogarphed by Fred Jackman, Jr. Film editor, William Zeigler. Art direction, F. Paul Sylos. Songs by Ralph Freed and Frederick Hollander; Frank Loesser and Hollander. Tradeshown in L. A. Aug. 9, 1943. Running time, 80 MINS.

'Tornado' is the latest in the Pine-Thomas series of action dramas, and like its predecessors, will provide strong support for the regular dual houses. There's a more solid story and less physical action here than has been the general rule with P-T product, with unfolding hitting consistently-fast pace.

Plot concerns adventures of Chester Morris, a coal miner in the Illinois fields, who marries a designing showgirl and latter's yen for riches and social position forces him through various positions to post of mine superintendent. Discovering coal on an old farm, he promotes capital for development, while the wife, Nancy Kelly has an affair with rich mineowner Morgan Conway. Former miner pals of Morris desert him, he gets enveloped in financial jam when fire stops operations, and yarn moves to climax to clear away all difficulties via a tornado twister that results in death of the ambitious wife.

Physical action and suspense is provided in several sequences in the mine tunnels, including an explosion and cave-in. William Berke keeps the pace rolling neatly, and script deftly builds suspense.

Morris capably handles the lead spot, with Miss Kelly neatly delivering as the unsympathetic showgirl. She sings two songs in the miners' cafe, but both renditions are very weak. Bill Henry, as Morris' younger brother; Gwen Kenyon, Joe Sawyer, Conway, Frank Reicher, and Nestor Paiva, provide good support. Production is adequately mounted, with photography by Fred Jackman, Jr. of standard quality.

Col. Lawton Due In; Photog Shakeup Seen

With Colonel Lawton, head of the Army Photographic Section, scheduled to arrive today, reports were heard last night that another shake-up might be impending in section personnel. Was said some boys who have been directing film work here might be due for other assignments.

Laugh Time, Vaude Review, Off to Whooping Start

'Laugh Time,' third vaudeville—poddon, variety revue—venture of Paul Small and Fred Finklehoffe got away to a whooping start last night at the Biltmore theatre. More smart and suave than its predecessors, it was red meat to the show-wise Hollywood mob that filled the better pews at the opening. Whether its appeal will be broad enough for the mill run of showgoers remains to be seen. Triple-plated with personalities who have long and successfully trod the boards, the in-betweeners help to make up a diverting evening.

On the suave side there's Frank Fay, who shares the emceeing and doubles up with Bert Wheeler, a pair of hot favs with the home guard. Their routines are mostly in the profesh groove and Fay may have to 'open up' for the sitters in the balconies. Wheeler should be solid as his patter is more earthy and geared to mass acceptance. Third star of the bill is Ethel Waters, whose songs as in so many years gone by are still show stoppers. She had to beg off after two encores. There was enough applause to go around, however, and Fay and Wheeler got most of theirs on entrance. Wheeler reverted to his old surefire standby of munching on a sandwich while spinning yarns and scored solidly. Fay in his sophisticated style got acorss his polished gags with his usual effortless ease. Those who expect raucous comedy from this pair of comics won't be too highly pleased.

Well rated at the opening were Mary Jane Walsh, singing comedienne with many Broadway plays to her credit, thrushing her songs in nice style; The Bricklayers, a kennel of trained pooches who do cute tricks on a construction job; Jane and Adam DiGatano, ballroom dancers comparable to the better teams of whirlers and terp specialists; Lucienne and Ashour, apache spinners; Jerri Vance, contortionist, and Mickey King, aerialist whose only prop is a rope.

'Laugh Time' should draw fairly good trade for its run at the Biltmore on the strength of the triple star billing. Variety revues have done okay in this sector and this issue of Small-Finklehoffe series should fare as well as the others.

'Rurales' In Stretch

Alan Le May and Charles Bennett are working on final sequence of screenplay for Paramount's 'Rurales,' which Cecil B. De Mille expects to put into work immediately after finishing his current production, 'The Story of Dr. Wassell.'

AMERICA LOOKS ABROAD

with Robert Arden

The flood of rumors emanating from Europe indicates the desperate Axis attempts to gain time. It must be borne in mind that these rumors come at a time when the hammering blows administered by Allied forces are becoming increasingly effective, both on the military machines and the home structures of the Axis. The advances of our Soviet ally, as well as those of the United Nations' forces in Sicily, indicate that continued military pressure eventually will achieve the desired effect. But waiting for a surrender, unconditional or otherwise, is only wishful thinking. Axis chieftains are pretty much alone these days. The next big crowd at Hitler's palace will be there to bury the Feuhrer, not to feast with him.

THEY had a power breakdown the other night in Las Vegas while the show was in progress at the Last Frontier. Audience was bewildered as the place went dark, but Maxine Lewis stepped forth and said, 'The show goes on.' She sent for oil lamps and lanterns, but them on the orchestra stand and all of the acts did two shows that night with the emergency lighting their only spotlighting. Unusual nowadays, isn't it? . . They multiplied silver bars for Mike Frankovich, so now he is Captain Frankovich of the Ferry Command at Palm Springs. . . . They're honoring the 100th birthday of Bartley Campbell, author of 'The White Slave,' in St. Mary's cemetery, Pittsburgh, Pa., on Thursday. Show folk will be there to pay tribute, including his son, Robert, theatrical producer, now 74 years old and an executive of the Actors Fund.

When Gary Cooper left to go on locash with 'Dr. Wassell' company he carried with him six little pigs. Looks like lots of ham an' for the troupe.

LOCAL chapter of the Victory Service League is in need of electric fans and radios. Wanted for mess halls and recreation rooms of Army camps on the desert. Should you want to furnish a bit of breeze or music for the boys, phone PRospect 0212, and Dick Francis will get it on its way for you. . . . Gone from the menu for the duration is the chicken soup which L. B. Mayer some years ago ordered to be kept on the Metro studio commissary luncheon bill every day of the year. Item was lopped off yesterday as a wartime casualty by administrative permission.

It's the War! Cast of Universal's 'Set To Music' partied Producer Edward Lilley on set yesterday with a cake, sans frosting.

THE Nacio Berb Browns have closed their Laguna Beach home for the duration, and now are residing in Beverly Hills. . . . Sabu, currently stationed with Army Air Corps at Santa Ana, is being transferred to Maryland for training. . . . Jack Briggs, husband of Ginger Rogers, paid visit to his home lot—RKO—yesterday, with number of sailors in tow. . . . Screen heroes are growing zits again. Among the bearded performers are Ronald Colman in 'Kismet,' Walter Pidgeon in 'Madame Curie,' and Red Skelton with an especially heavy beaver, in his current pic.

BARBARA BEL-GEDDES, the second daughter of Norman Bel-Geddes, has been signed to term acting contract by Hunt Stromberg. Her first assignment there will be named when she returns from Newport.

Pine and Thomas Have 5 in Vault, 5 in Making

Pine and Thomas now have their biggest backlog of productions for Paramount, five being ready for release—'Alaska Highway,' 'Minesweeper,' 'Tornado,' 'Submarine Alert,' 'Timber Queen.' P-T also have five yarns in preparation, 'The Navy Way,' 'Rhythm Ranch,' 'One Body Too Many,' 'Fast Freight,' and 'Storm.'

'The Navy Way' will be produced under Naval supervision at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. 'Fast Freight' will be the story of ordnance transportation, and 'Storm' is from the Book of the Month Club novel by George Stewart.

Lucia Perrigo Now With WB Exploitation Staff

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Lucia Perrigo, for several years motion picture critic of the Chicago Herald-American, has resigned to join Warners exploitation staff here. She left for New York yesterday for confabs with home office officials before assuming her duties. Miss Perrigo was film critic up until a few months ago, when she was transferred to the city department as a feature writer.

NBC PREXY SAYS BIZ BIG; GIVES STROTZ A HAND

'Everything is just too perfect out here so there's nothing for me to do this trip but to enjoy myself.' That's how NBC's prexy, Niles Trammell, feels about Sid Strotz's western division. 'Business is great, we still have the top programs and our billing this fall will top all previous highs,' he went on in pleasurable elaboration.

'Our operations along the coast are in excellent shape although the complete divorcement of the Blue network has posed a few problems which are being studied for a solution that will cause a minimum of disruption in service. Our studio space at Radio City here will be taxed to the limit this fall, what with most sponsors demanding an audience for their programs. In that respect, the Blue will have to shift for itself and find outside studio space on crowded nights such as Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday. Naturally, NBC shows will get first call on audience studios and even we may have to rent outside space if the swing to the west continues.

BLUE'S POSITION

'As for certain departments which have been functioning for both networks, it may be necessary to continue that ararngement so as to not work too much of a hardship on the Blue, the personnel problem being what it is. The Blue can continue to remain as tenants of NBC for two years beyond the duration if it so elects.'

New talent reservoirs are being tapped to fill the voids created by inroads of the draft and shift to essential industries. Trammell believes that the network's 140 stations can do a satisfactory 'scouting' job and are constantly on the alert for promising talent. He pointed up the case of Garry Moore, star of the Camel cigaret show with Jimmy Durante, who was scouted in Chicago. Tieups with colleges around the country have developed many interesting personalities, who are being groomed for network jobs.

Situation at 20th-Fox should be cleaned up shortly now that the Blue is no longer affiliated with NBC, Trammell, declared, referring to the studio's virtual talent boycott of NBC and the Blue due to a crack made by Jimmie Fidler that Gene Tierney puffed on cheroots. Strotz will probably iron out the difficulty with Darryl Zanuck this week.

TELEVISION FORECAST

'Television will explode like a bombshell right after the war is ended,' Trammell declared, 'It's all ready to go and the starter will be a regional network in the east, followed by similar hookups here and in Chicago with the eventual transcontinental web of booster stations.'

Trammell winds up his stay Thursday to return to New York. Due in tomorrow is David Sarnoff, president of Radio Corp., parent company of NBC, who will pass most of his time vacationing at Arrowhead. Also packing up for return to their bases later in the week are John McDonald, NBC treasurer, and John Elwood, manager of the network's KPO in Frisco.

Tamiroff Rings 'Bell'

Busy half-four for Akim Tamiroff last night. Following appearance on L. A. Daily News 'It Can Be Done' show over KFI, he stepped across hall to guest on Erskine Johnson's program over KECA. He plugged Paramount's 'For Whom the Bell Tolls' on both.

PRC Buys 'Bars'

'Music Without Bars,' original by Lawrence Taylor, has been bought by PRC as second picture to be produced by the company. Start is set for November.

FOR WHOM THE BELL TOLLS

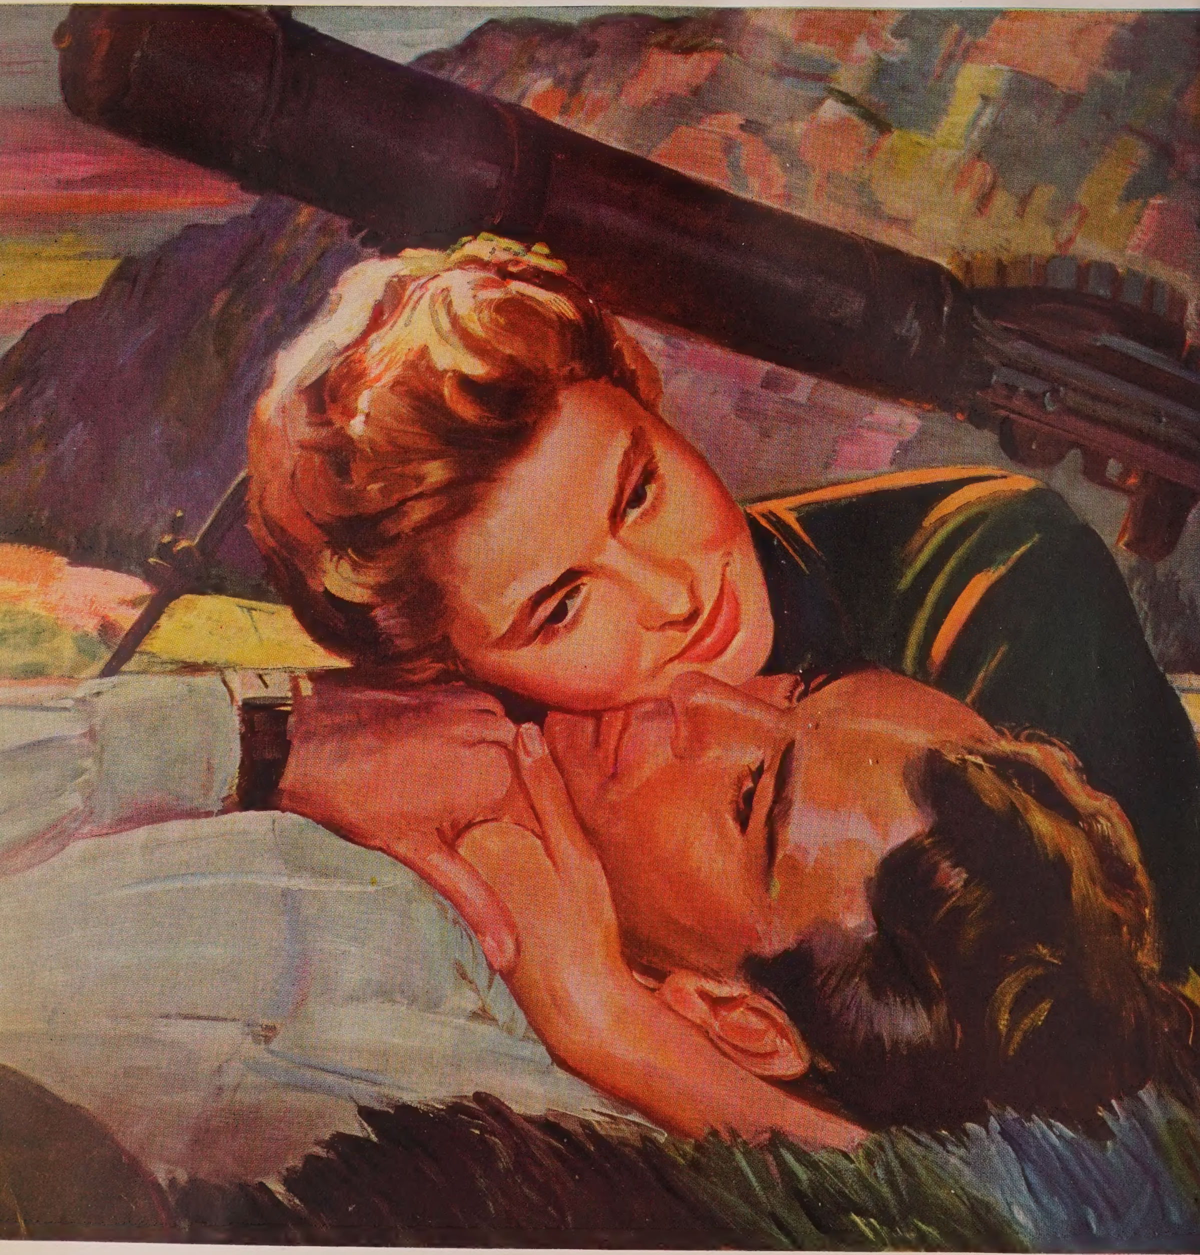
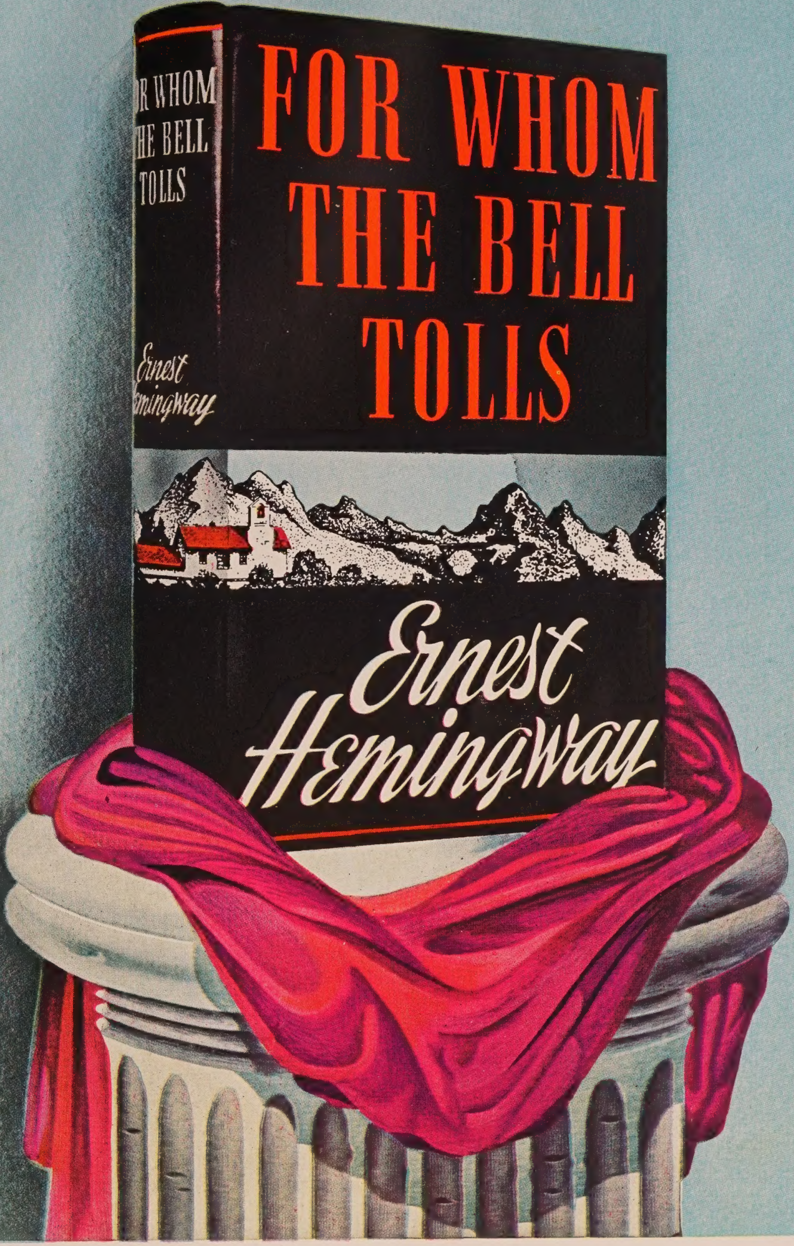
Three years ago the Paramount studio dedicated its heart, its hands, its hopes, to the creation of an heroic film. Nine million man-hours of devoted care were lavished on it. Volumes of publicity have preceded it. Now, filmed in superb Technicolor, its 168 minutes of entertainment at last unfold upon the screen...

These Are The *L*overs



"In spite of the things that were done to me, I never kissed any man until you. And now there are but three days and three nights—yet they're everything. Longer than the months of torture—longer than the years I've lived . . . There isn't anything else but 'now'—and we must live all our life in the time that remains."

This Is The Story



FOR WHOM THE BELL TOLLS
Ernest Hemingway

Towering high as its own craggy mountain peaks over all other best-sellers of this day and age. One million people bought it . . . 5,000,000 read it . . . To 50,000,000 spread the fame of its superb romance: “Nobody can write as Hemingway can of a man and a woman together . . . This is a book, not of three days, but of all time.”

These Are

who had come to offer his life for a country that was far from home—and a cause that was near his heart.

Ingrid Bergman as Maria
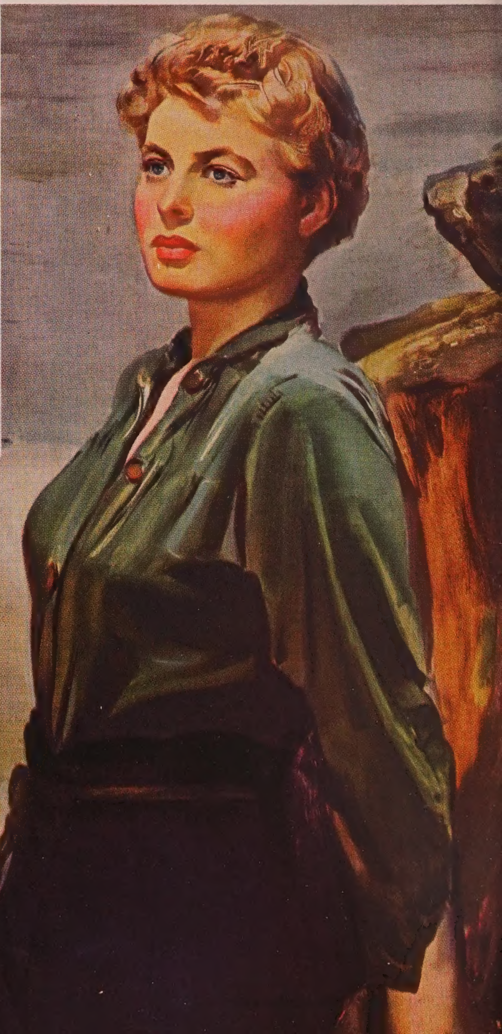
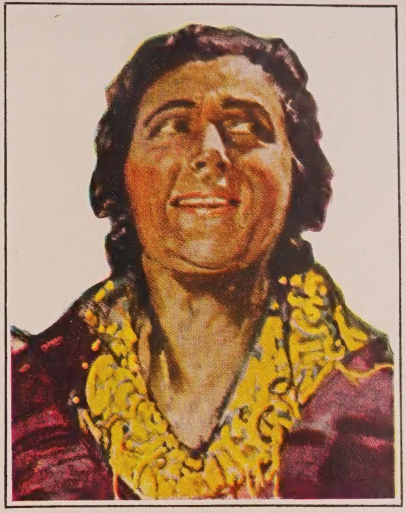
Of the Close-Cropped Hair

"I do not know how to kiss, or I would kiss you—and I shall learn to kiss you very well."



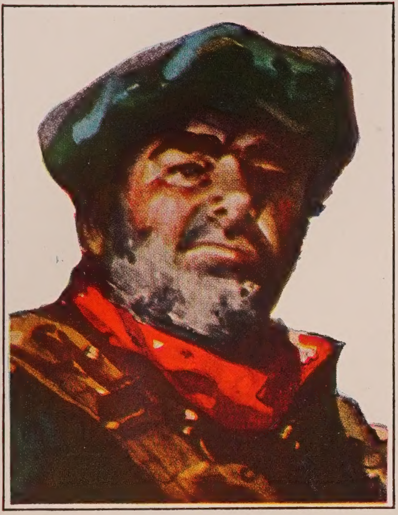
. . . and all the others of that brave, lusty, brawling, life-loving band who flung a desperate challenge in the face of death—against crushing, hopeless odds.

The People



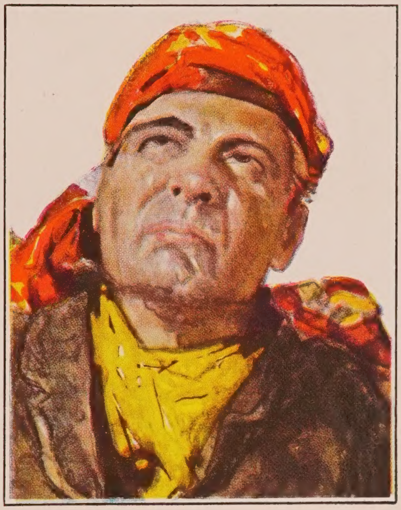
Katina Paxinou as Pilar

"She is of an unbelievable barbarousness, with a tongue that bites like a bull whip . . . She would have made a good man—but she is all woman, and all ugly."



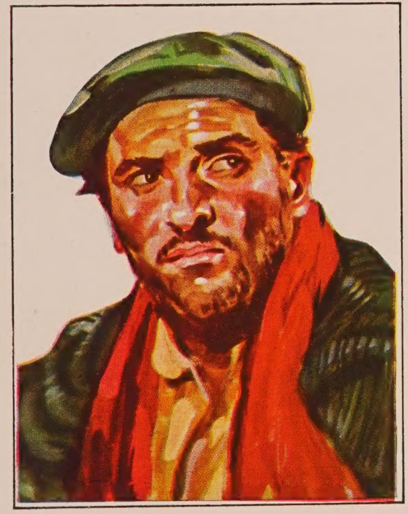
Akim Tamiroff as Pablo

"Pablo was brave in the beginning . . . he killed more people than the cholera. But now he is finished. He is very much a coward and he will betray us all."



Joseph Calleia as El Sordo

"Whether one has fear of it or not, one's death is difficult to accept . . . even at fifty-two, with three wounds in you, and surrounded on a hill."



Arturo de Cordova as Agustin

"It is better to die on your feet than to live on your knees."

This Is The Bridge

For them the bridge was everything. For three breathless days their every thought, their every movement was consecrated to its destruction. And then—"there was a cracking roar and the middle of the bridge rose up in the air like a wave breaking, and they felt the blast of the explosion roll back against them . . ."

Film Unions Meeting Today on Anti Labor Laws

A drive on anti-labor legislation and congressmen who voted to override the President's veto on the Smith-Connally bill will be planned today at a meeting of film labor representatives at Makeup Artists headquarters. Call for session was sent out by D. T. Wayne, business representative of Studio Machinists Local 1185 and a vice-prexy of the State Federation of Labor.

Film Technicians Local 683 opened campaign this week when its members were advised to 'Defeat anti-labor Congress members.' Prexy William Green of the American Federation of Labor was then quoted as saying:

'Let them know that they are going to be defeated if the laboring man has it in his power to do it. Six million members of the American Federation of Labor have been penalized and insulted by the action of Congress in passing the Smith-Connally bill.'

Local 683 then advises its members that Hinshaw, Poulson, Ward Johnson, Anderson, Elliott, Gearhart, Leroy Johnson and Lea voted to pass the measure; that Senator Johnson was ill and did not vote and that Senator Sheridan Downey voted against overriding the veto.

Chase Submits Script Of Seabees To Navy

Bordon Chase, who scripted 'The Fighting Seabees' for producer Albert J. Cohen at Republic, returned yesterday morning from Washington, where he submitted script to Capt. John C. Perry, U. S. N., Commandant of Navy Construction Battalion, for official okay. Perry turned screenplay over to Navy Public Relations for final sanctioning, a mere routine as long as he has put his own seal of approval on story.

Dwight Mitchell Wiley, author of 'The Griswold Story,' which Seton I. Miller will produce for Paramount, trained in yesterday from east. He reports at Paramount today, to start work on screenplay of his book, on which he will collab with Miller.

Robert Edmunds is screenplaying 'The Voodoo Man' for Monogram.

Burpee Heads Aniline In Reorg; Foreign Interests Out

New York, Aug. 9.—George W. Burpee has been elected president of General Aniline and Dye Corporation in reorganization which has frozen out all foreign interests in the corporation, which controls various American companies including Agfa-Ansco film.

Importance of the reorganization for long-range post-war plans and operation in seen in inclusion on the new board of directors of John D. Hertz, Chicago financier who has been on the Paramount directorate for several years; A. N. Williams, president of Western Union; and Colvin Brown, vice president of Quigley Publications.

With the new officers and directors, it is expected that campaign will be waged on behalf of Agfa-Ansco to increase materially latter's raw stock biz to producers and distributors. In addition, General Aniline also controls the Ozalit Co., which is perfecting method of printing films—both black-and-white and color—on variation of cellophane base which is reported to be more durable than the present celluloid base stock. Ozalit is said to be ready to market color stock as soon as the war is over.

Daltons Ready To Ride

Harold Shumate has completed script at Universal for 'The Daltons Ride Again,' sequel to 'When the Daltons Rode,' made two years ago from the saga of the southwest outlaw band as told by the then surviving member, Emmett Dalton. 'Ride Again' is on next year's program.

Seattle Chatter

John Henry, former Northwest exhibitor, has bought the Grand Theatre here from John Kirk, who has been operating the north end nabe in conjunction with the Sterling chain.

Bob Clark, from Salt Lake City, is the new booker for the Sterling chain.

Tavern operators here have decided to remain open as long as the beer holds out rather than close early or limit customers to a certain ration of suds. Decision was reached at a Washington State Restaurant Association meeting where problems confronting the operators were given a going over.

Marilyn Wilson, formerly with Nattional Screen Service, is now in the inspection department at the Columbia exchange.

PIC UNIONS SEEK BETTER CONDITIONS, NO PAY TILT

With percentage wage increases virtually stymied by the Government's wartime economy restrictions, Film Technicians Local 683 is preparing to go all out in pressing for improved working conditions when negotiations open on new contract. Prexy Russell McKnight has turned over to the joint Welfare Shop Stewards-Executive Board Committee the job of preparing the new contract proposals. All technicians are being urged to submit recommendations to the labor committeemen.

In the meantime, however, McKnight told membership that a few important working conditions, where the union has incomplete, inadequate or objectionable contract stipulations or no provisions include vacations, paid holidays, seniority, guaranteed work week, relief periods, overtime stipulations, daily and weekly, night premium clause, shop steward rights, review of discharges, grievance machinery. He pointed out that Donald Nelson, War Production chief, has stated vacations are desirable where they do not interfere with production. McKnight declared 'it is no less than a disgrace to the motion picture industry that the bulk of its rank and file workers are denied a yearly vacation.'

Most other film unions also are expected to center their drives on improved working conditions. Herbert Sorrell, prexy of the Conference of Studio Unions, always has contended that working conditions are more important to the worker than percentage increases. He once offered to kick back a 10% raise if the employers would guarantee his members steady employment.

Drive for a guaranteed work week, probably 42 weeks per year, is expected to be made by many of the unions and guilds. It is probable that Producers will attempt to skip a meeting of the Basic Agreement groups this year by continuing current contracts in an effort to escape long negotiations on working conditions.

Local 683 and other crafts believe they can actually increase the earnings of workers by getting pay for holidays, guaranteed security, etc.

Swing Shift Dance Ban Clamped On In Seattle

Seattle, Aug. 9.—There will be no more dancing 'til dawn in Seattle. Police Chief Kimsey has withdrawn the special police permission for city dance halls to hold swing shift dances declaring that the early morning hops had evolved into public affairs and war workers no longer comprised the entire attendance.

A city ordinance makes it unlawful to hold public dances between 1 a. m. and 11 a. m. the Chief said, and special concession was made to war workers at the request of union officials.

Police dance hall supervisor Richardson had reported to the Chief that recent crowds at two city dance halls for swing shift parties were not predominantly war workers. The two, the Trianon and Crescent, were the only ones granted the special permissions.

It was also pointed out that there are several dance halls north and south of the city, out of police jurisdiction, that hold swing shift dances, so if the urge to cavort is strong enough no one need go without the early morning exercise.

BEDS FOR BUDDIES DRIVE ON

THEATRES OUT TO GET 350G FUND

Exhibitor leaders of southern California yesterday unanimously voted all-out support in campaign to be launched Sept. 1 in all theatres of the state to raise $350,000 to provide beds for service men on leave. Funds will be collected through audience collections in the theatres, with special trailer appeal by Spencer Tracy being utilized as generator for contributions.

Special meeting of exhibs was called in name of Charles P. Skouras, president of Fox West Coast circuit, with Freddie Stein presiding in absence of Skouras. It was stated that Bing Crosby and Bob Hope originally instituted idea of providing sleeping accommodations for service men visiting Los Angeles area several months ago, but the need is state-wide.

Even small towns in outlying districts have overload of visiting soldiers, sailors and marines that must be put up for a night or two, so matter was placed in hands of the California State War Council headed by Willard Keith. Latter, in turn, had Dr. Charles Strub and a committee make a detailed investigation of requirements; with present fund-raising campaign the result.

It was pointed out that neither the Army nor Navy could allocate funds for taking care of men on leave or furlough, and coin would have to be raised from the public — with the State of California matching appropriations.

Exhibitors and theatre operators of northern California have already unanimously agreed to participate in the drive, with quota set at $150,000; and the southern sector to raise the other $200,000. Funds will be used to provide beds for buddies, with special state-wide committee being selected to administer the money.

Victor Rosetti, president of the Farmers and Merchants National Bank has agreed to serve as treasurer, with other members of the committee named by Keith to include: James Musatti, Walter Sullivan, Truman Johnson, Dr. Charles Strub, Dr. T. J. Tormey, Col. Crandall of the Army, George Mann, and Capt. Francis T. Traynor and Lt.-Comm. McKinley of the Navy.

In raising the overall $350,000 from the public the State will match that sum through allocations for individual projects in various communities.

At yesterday's luncheon, held at Perino's with about 100 present, Y. Frank Freeman of the Producers Association; Keith; Strub; Admiral Holmes; Major General Courtland Parker and others spoke enthusiastically of the need for reaching the quota set for the drive to provide adequately for the visiting service men.

Radio Network Plugs

Top plug tunes of the week, as logged over the major networks, NBC, CBS, Blue and Mutual, are being listed alphabetically, not numerically, under a new accord between the music publishers and song pluggers union, as a means to curb the payola evil. Thus, it is figured, the normal competitive methods, sans artificial stimulation to get on top will tend to eliminate some of the petty bribery, etc.
